ARCANUM'S FIGHT SOON IN COURTS?

PROBABLE THAT COMING CONFERENCE WILL ADOPT LEGAL ACTION.

Boston, Sept. 15.—Although the committee of fifteen appointed by the consolidated councils of Massachusetts to act for members of the Royal Arcanum are unanimous that the action of the convention at Put-in-Bay is open to serious criticism and that representatives of the Supreme Council appeared to have had their decision predetermined, no action was taken regarding the question of legal proceedings against the Supreme Council at a meeting Monday night.

The question was fully discussed and representatives were named to attend the conference of protesting committees in New York October 1.

From communications received by Stephen E. Reynolds, chairman of both committee of fifteen and the associated committee of the several States, it is believed that the New York conference will decide at once to bring a legal action and that this action will be guided by a committee of lawyers to be named by the conference.

These communications came from New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island. Many members of the order are now advancing the idea that the methods employed by the Supreme Council in changing the assessment plan were illegal, in that the contractual relationship between the order and the members is changed materially, so much so that the contract made by the member on entrance is entirely void.

If any legal action is taken it is not impossible that it will be in the form of an action for breach of contract.

CHECKING IMMIGRATION.

Inspector Blames Steamship Companies in the Premises.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Dr. Maurice Fichberg, of New York, special immigration inspector detailed to make investigations in Europe of aliens afflicted with loathsome and contagious diseases, has submitted his report to Commissioner General Sargent, of the Bureau of Immigration, Department of Commerce and Labor. The latter regards it as the most complete and valuable presentation of facts ever made on the subject.

Since February Dr. Fichberg has traveled through Europe gathering data. Most of the undesirable conditions, he says, the steamship companies are able to remedy. One of the greatest evils in connection with the immigration of diseased aliens is the "patching up" by physicians of aliens afflicted with trachoma. Although the companies deny any knowledge of this, Dr. Fichberg says that physicians employed by two lines with stations at Liverpool, in Prussia, Russia and Austria, practice it.

Dr. Fichberg points out that immigrants at German stations are compelled to buy tickets for the United States when desiring to go to England. He claims to have indisputable proof of this, despite the companies' denial. Another evil he calls attention to is the "runner," who influences diseased aliens to attempt to come to America.

TRENTON'S BIG ENTRY LIST.

Hundreds of Fast Horses Will Contest for Cash Prizes.

Trenton, Sept. 15.—Entries for the races which comprise the speed programme for the Interstate Fair closed Thursday, and the final mails brought hundreds of fast horses for the big purses which have been hung up by the association as prize money. The races will open Monday, September 25, the first day of the fair, and will close Friday, September 29, the closing day of the exhibition.

There are eighteen classes in the speed programme this year. There will be three races Monday, three Tuesday, four Wednesday, five Thursday and three Friday. In addition to these Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum is now arranging for exhibition events for the track record of 2.05, made two years ago by Prince Alert.

The dog show will equal the great exhibitions of a like character which are held annually in New York and Philadelphia. The success of this department is assured by the membership affiliation of the Interstate Fair Association with the American Kennel Club.

Regains Confederate Flag.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—An old, shot-pierced, ragged Confederate flag, one of the last in the State of Illinois, has been taken from the walls of Memorial Hall and formally returned to the Thirteenth Regiment of Virginia Volunteers. The flag was captured at the battle of Pooleville in 1862 by the Eighth Illinois Regiment, and was brought to Chicago. At a meeting of the United Confederate Veterans, Camp 8, it was voted that the old flag be returned to the remnant of the regiment from which it was taken during the Civil War.

Plainfield, N. J., September 15, 1905.

The country is safe. New Brunswick Republicans have endorsed Roosevelt.

The Daily Press consists of twelve pages today. The increase in the volume of advertising has made this a necessity.

Thomas W. Lawson knows a lot about insurance company methods, but the revelations of the official investigation must make him stagger.

Chicago has a school of beggers running full blast. In the opinion of the average candidate for public office, nearly every other vote should be a pupil there.

"There is a widespread determination among the people that those who pollute the law shall be compelled to answer for it."—Vice-President Fairbanks.

Very true, but the money is needed for more public schools; can't afford to waste it building jails.

If you are at all interested in municipal matters do not fail to read the contribution of Joseph O. Osgood, chief engineer of the Jersey Central Railroad. His subject is "The Most Practicable Method of Sewage Disposal for North Plainfield." Mr. Osgood's article, for which we are greatly indebted to him, will be found on page nine of this issue.

The Republican party in Essex county has had the courage to throw off the yoke of bossism and rid itself of other baneful influences for the time being at least. This change of conditions is due to the work of Everett Colby, who, after a great fight, in which the corporations were arriagned against him, aroused the people to the rottenness of the "machine" not only in that county but throughout the State. As a result of Colby's successful campaign the party, or, in other words, the "machine," has been compelled to accept a model platform. Here are some of the planks of this platform which should draw support from the general mass of voters, irrespective of party:

"First—A State law and an amendment to the Constitution of the State, prohibiting municipalities from granting franchises to public utility corporations for a longer period of time than twenty-five years in cities of the first and second class, with a provision permitting the grant of franchises for a period not longer than thirty-five years in localities other than cities of the first and second class, if so decided by a vote of the people in the locality affected.

"Second—A law providing for the annual assessment of the value of the franchises of the public utility companies in the streets, and the taxation of the same at local rates.

"Third—A law taxing all railroad real estate—including the main stem—at local rates, and until that is done we are opposed to the fixing of a maximum tax rate, and favor the suspension of the Hillery tax act.

"Fourth—A law affording the members of each party the opportunity at the general election of expressing their choice for the party candidate for United States Senator, until such time as the Constitution of the United States shall provide for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people."

Piano Recital at Y. M. C. A.

Miss Clara Van Fleet and Martin A. Korff will render the following violin and piano recital at the Y. M. C. A. building on Sunday afternoon at 3:40 o'clock: Dodolinette, Berceuse, Ch. Gounod; Chant Sans Paroles, P. Tschaikowsky; Walther's Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger," Wagner; Abendlied, R. Schumann; Elegie, op. 10, Henri Ernst. The regular meeting will be addressed by Mr. Ewing at 4 o'clock. Eva Wells, child soloist, and Martin A. Korff will render vocal and violin solos.

POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Wilson—"That's all."

Dr. Anson W. Anderson declares the fight has only begun.

Don't ask where Charlie Randolph will be in the Common Council.

J. V. F. Dilts says he's through with the game. Can you blame him?

Herbert Buxton will be the nominee for councilman-at-large from the Fourth ward.

The regular organization will have eight out of eleven votes when the roll is called in Common Council on January 1.

A communication signed "A. A., H-2-0," says that the First ward Republicans have held their barbeque. They roasted a Bullock.

Elizabeth is banking upon the Fourth ward of this city for Bob Kirkland. Now wouldn't it be beautiful politics for the local delegation to be divided. Tut, tut!

Two of the most ardent Independents in the Second ward were Lewis E. Timpson and James E. Martine. Grover Cleveland once said that the principles of Democracy were eternal because they are right.

Notwithstanding the decisive victory won last Tuesday by Everett Colby over the Essex county Republican machine, Major Carl Lentz will continue to lead the party arganization. He will direct the campaign for Colby and the other independent nominees named by Wednesday night's convention, and in all probability will be elected next December to another term as county chairman.

The Republican convention of Middlesex county at New Brunswick yesterday placed Andrew S. Church, of South River, in nomination for sheriff. Three entirely new men were named for Assembly—Dr. E. E. Haines, of South Amboy; Dr. Frank Crowther, of Perth Amboy, and William R. Drake, of Stelton. The following county commissioners were nominated by the convention: A. L. Mundy, of New Brunswick; George S. Bunting, of Piscataway; Frank H. Pownall, of Jamesburg; John Hanson, of Perth Amboy, and John E. Motgomery, of South Amboy.

The Hunterdon County Democratic convention was held in the Opera House at Flemington yesterday. I. J. Eyears, of Lebanon, was made chairman, and F. A. Dalrymple, of Milford, secretary of the convention. Considerable interest was manifested in the fight for the nomination of Assemblyman, the candidates being Mayor Oliver C. Holcomb, of Lambertsville, and George K. Srope, of Union township. Mayor Holcomb was nominated on the first ballot, receiving a majority of twenty-two delegates. The other nominations were made without opposition. The nominees are: Sheriff, Elisha W. Opdyke, of Frenchtown; county clerk, Oliver A. Farley, of Clinton township; freeholders, John H. Demott, of Flemington; J. W. Duckworth, of Union township, and Henry Sigafoos, of Holland township.

THE FORUM.

Sunday Observance.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In what degree of religious truth and divine propriety the Sabbath should be lawfully kept, Mr. Murray does not say, nor do we propose to instruct the gentleman—further than to say: The old Mosaic Sabbath was by revelation of divine origin, and as a fundamental part of the law would be fulfilled in His Son, Jesus Christ. Therefore we have the utmost confidence in what God created man can not put asunder, notwithstanding the coverture of the responsibility by Mr. Murray.

Respectfully,
Noah W. Pike.

SAW CRESENT CONSTITUTION.

Visiting Nobles From Salaam, Lu Lu, Mecca and Kismet Shriners.

Crescent Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, was constituted under charter, with 300 members, in Masonic temple, Trenton, last evening. The ceremonies of constitution were by Deputy Imperial Potentate George W. Wiedenmayer, illustrious potentate of Salaam Temple, Newark, assisted by Past Illustrious Potentate Charles A. Benedict, of Mecca Temple, New York.

The entire patrol of Salaam Temple, of Newark, participated in a drill. Deputy Imperial Potentate Wiedenmayer was presented with a cut glass punch bowl. The presentation speech was made by Illustrious Potentate Ginnelly on behalf of Crescent Temple.

Notable nobles present included Joseph E. Miller, of Mecca Temple, New York, representative to the imperial council; George C. Ward, recorder, and Sol. B. Beidelman, chief of Arab patrol of Salaam Temple, Newark, and representatives from Lu Lu Temple, Philadelphia; Mecca Temple, New York, and Kismet Temple, Brooklyn.

PROF. HERRON TO FOUND SCHOOL FOR SOCIALISM

Professor George N. Herron, the Socialistic leader, angered by the publication in Chicago and other western cities of newspaper articles declaring that he and his wife, the former Miss Rand, were to found a colony at Metuchen, in which the doctrine of "free love" was to be taught, and also that he (Herron) was writing a book in which he sought to attack the marriage relation, in New York last night issued a formal statement of denial. Professor Herron breaks his four years' silence at the request of his co-workers in the Social Democratic party who allege that the reports were injuring the movement.

In his statement Professor Herron refers to the endowment of a school for Socialism in New York city. He was unable last night to give the details of this enterprise and said the announcement of the sum bequeathed by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rand, for that purpose would be made within a week by his lawyer, Mr. Hilquit. It was learned that the sum from which the income for this school will be derived is approximately $200,000.

Professor and Mrs. Herron will shortly sail for a foreign land for a long stay.

THIRD TICKET IN SPRINGFIELD.

Owing to Dissatisfaction Citizens to Run Candidates..

There was considerable interest displayed in the primary at Springfield. Dissatisfaction has cropped out in the ranks of both Republicans and Democrats, and it is asserted that a Citizens' or third ticket will be placed in the field.

Pasters were used on both tickets, and there was some cutting. In the Republican box seventy-six votes were cast, while the Democrats polled forty-two. Albert P. Carter, the Republican nominee for the one-year term in the Township Committee, was cut fifteen times, and on twelve of these ballots the voters designated their preference for George W. Parsil, the Democratic nominee.

Jesse H. Cain, a member of the Board of Education, assayed to oppose Olin D. Sickley for the Republican nomination for township clerk, but received only eight votes.

Dr. J. A. Stites, who was the candidate for the three-year term as town committeeman on the Democratic ticket, developed some strength as an opponent to John E. Gunn, the regular convention delegate. The physician's friends mustered nine votes for him, while Gunn's adherents cast thirty-three. The tickets as nominated at the recent party caucuses were successful.

Miss Porter's Party.

A party was given at the home of Miss Anna Porter, in West Third street, last night. The evening was spent with games and music. Among those present were the Misses Lillian Duckworth, Edna Force, Ammy Grannet, Jessie Chamberlain, Hattie Walls, and Hugh Gray, Herbert Fluck, John Fritts, William Firstbrook, and many other friends.

Snow at Kane, Pa.

Kane, Pa., Sept. 15.—Half an inch of snow fell here Wednesday night and this morning. At other places along the Philadelphia and Erie railroad line snow flurries are also reported. The weather is decidedly cold.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

LOVE NEVER DIES.

People talk of love being dead—of the fire being burnt out, and the dream broken through, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"I was over head and ears in love once," they will tell you, "but that's long gone by. It's all past and gone now. My love's dead and buried, and nothing on earth can bring it to life again."

"That's all very well, but sometimes people will take for death what was nothing but a trance."

There is positively no knowing when love has burnt out. You may think it is nothing but white ashes, and the ashes are cold. You congratulate yourself considerably upon the fact that that old love of yours ended as it did, and that you parted before it was too late. Not a mention of her name nor a thought of her has had power to make your heart beat a throb the faster these last six years.

Then, all at once, a sudden meeting—a word, a look, a chance expression, which brings back the past—has power to stir the old romance into life, and to send a spark springing through the ashes till they are all in one red glow.

An old love can and does revive again and again, often in the most unexpected way. How often do we hear of widows and widowers meeting again the loves of their youth, from whom they parted years ago, and marrying them, to the wonder and surprise of all their friends?

There is something in the memory of an old romance that can exercise a wonderful effect upon a heart that might be quite incapable of forming an altogether new attachment.

Most of us, no matter how world-dried and matter-of-fact we may be, have some secret hidden memory of a past romance put away deep down from outside eyes. We may have half forgotten it, but it is there, and indeed it may be debated whether love, if it is the real, genuine article, ever does die at all, or is only in abeyance, waiting to come out if anything should call it.

Perhaps we quarreled with the girl we loved. Perhaps we were too poor to propose, and had to see her carried off by that puppy Jones, whom we longed to kick. Perhaps parents were cruel, or she thought somebody's merits greater than our own. Poor human nature is prone to err!

But one day, when we have been widowed long enough to wear out the patience of our spinster acquaintances, we meet the object of that long-ago romance.

The glow of that old romance that hangs about her has given her a charm to you which no one else finds her to possess, and the old love revives with such alacrity that one can only believe it has been lying in ambush and waiting for the chance for years.

MAKING THE GIRL OF TODAY.

It is not so many years ago that the education of a girl in the United States meant simply mind-crowding as far as the school teacher was concerned. The three R's were drilled into the young idea in company with a half dozen other studies to be increased as womanhood approached, until many a day Miss carried her dozen books to and from school, each a different branch in instruction—all to be acquired from between the pages.

Even ten years ago, if a girl with good, red blood in her body happened to kick at a football or threw a handball, it is a question if the average teacher would not raise her hands in horror at such impropriety. But what a change has come over educators, says Day Allen Willey in the September Pilgrim. Side by side with the advertisements of groups of young soldiers handling rifles, cannon and sabers, or athletes garbed in sweater, are pictures of seminaries and academies, not with views of girls reading or doing other intellectual work, but on the golf field, the tennis court, or pulling away at the sculls in obedience to the commands of the natty coxswain, who, garbed in her tasty white flannels, occupies the stern seat of the pretty cutter. The fact is that pictures of his kind frequently appeal to the up-to-date father and mother far more than the other sort, as they are beginning to realize that education means something more than mind filling, and that the wise teacher gives as much care to the body as to the brain. Yes, such has been the movement in favor of physical training, as it is called, that its growth has been simply wonderful within the last few years. The girls' school which does not provide exercises of some sort for stretching the muscles and quickening the flow of blood, is likely to lose its popularity. Book learning is no longer the main idea in rounding out the character of the girl of today, for she has a chance to get close to nature—to see the real, not the imitation, in becoming acquainted with plant life, the habits of animals and insects—even in the study of geology. In short, it may be said that some of what we call necessary branches have been robbed of much of their monotony and repulsiveness by getting rid of books, at least to a certain extent, in obtaining a knowledge of them.

THE DAINTY GIRL.

"Some girls have the knack of looking nice," said the Plain Person. "I only wish I knew how they manage it. There's Helen Barton, for instance—my brothers always call her 'Her Daintiness'—who's a regular little fraud, for somehow she always makes one think she is pretty, and yet she isn't a bit; she's only well dressed and dainty."

What the Plain Person said was perfectly true. "Her Daintiness" does not possess a shred of real beauty, and yet all her friends admire her, and she generally has the credit of being the best dressed girl in the town.

Perhaps you, like the Plain Person, would like her recipe. So here it is. It consists of nothing more or less than being careful.

Helen Barton has only a small dress allowance, yet she is always smart looking. The fact is that she chooses her clothes well, and takes care of them. She never commits the error of buying anything "because it is so cheap, and is sure to be useful some day," but she makes up her mind before entering a shop exactly what she wants, takes care the she gets it, and she does not waste her money by buying all sorts of tiles, pretty enough in their way, but utterly unsuitable to the rest of her wardrobe, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Helen knows that a girl is well-dressed, however simple, as long as her costume is suitable to the occasion and immaculately fresh.

Accordingly she lately has been wearing, for quite smart occasions, a simple gown of thickish dark blue cotton material with a tiny white stripe. It has a wide embroidery-covered sailor collar, and a pretty vest of soft-looking tucked cambric.

She made it herself, and the cost was little enough, but what it lacks in richness is made up for in dainty freshness, and she really looks charming in it.

Helen's dainty appearance is not achieved without some trouble. Before she puts away her hats she always removes the dust from them, and pulls out the bows, if they require it. It is the same with her dresses.

Those are not just "poked" into a wardrobe till they are wanted again, but they are first overlooked to see if brushing is needed, or a new skirt braid, or, perhaps, a fresh piece of frilling in the neck.

Helen is never seen wearing anything in the least untidy or soiled. Anyone might think that her pretty chiffon tuckers must cost her a small fortune, but chiffen is really economical wear, for it will iron out beautifully when crumpled, and even bear washing.

She says that the white chiffon trimming of her hat has been washed several times, and that she does it herself quite easily.

Another matter Helen is most particular about is that she should be nicely gloved. She always straightens out her gloves when she takes them off and puts them away neatly in a case. She says that she finds that suede gloves can be kept clean and nice for a long time if she occasionally gives them a goo drubbing with bread-crumbs. She puts on the gloves and goes through the process of a dry wash in the crumbs.

ABOUT HOSIERY.

Tans of an infinite variety of shades share the popularity of the white stocking. The greater number of these are plain, but embroidered ones are also to be found, small all-over figures being more used than vines. Champagne and grays are also popular shades of thte season, with shoes to match.

A rich, deep green stocking has been one that has been in demand this summer, worn with green suede shoes, and a bright blue stockings called a "royal," but hardly as deep a shade, being a little darker than the popular "Alice" shade of blue. Colored hosiery of every imaginable shade is worn to match the pretty little fancy colored leather shoes. These are brought out in silk only, as a rule, the colors being uncertain in any other material.

Exceedingly pretty stockings which come only in pale blue and pink are in alternating openwork and solid stripes, the latter embroidered with a delicate vine pattern. These cost $15.

Very comfortable and serviceable stockings in black silk have the heel and sole of cotton, the latter reinforcing the silk well up on the ankle in the back. They cost $1.50 and $1.-75. Whites and tans in the same combination cost $2.26. They wear well.

Openwork clocks at the sides are features of some pretty black silk stockings, and these cost $4.25. With the solid embroidered clock they cost $3 and $3.25. There are clocks to be found on white and colored stockings as well.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

A kitchen table covered with zinc is a great labor saver. It is easily cleaned, and it not injured by cutting meat or vegetables, but it will last a lifetime, and, considering the labor it saves, the cost is an insignificant matter.

A candle may be made to fit any candlestick if it be dipped into very hot water. This softens the wax, and it may then be easily pushed into a candlestick which otherwise would be too small, and it will be neatly and firmly held.

If you wish to stick anything and have no glue in the house, try the following recipe: Take a small piece of cold potato which has been boiled, and rub it up and down a piece of paper with your fingers for about five minutes. It will become the right consistency, and stick as well as the strongest glue.

A few spoonsful of a borax solution added to the hot soapy water in which silver, glass and china are washed will give these articles additional luster. It may also be employed for cleaning hairbrushes in the proportion of three or four spoonfuls to a quart of water, and it should be remembered that the water for this purpose should be only tepid, and there should be sufficient to wet the bristles, but not the back of the brush. The brushes should then be rinsed well in several waters, and be finished with quite cold water.

NEED OF FRESH AIR.

Air is a life preserver. It is the particular friend of man, and he who barricades the doors and windows against this lifesaving friend gives a cordial invitation to disease and death to enter.

Open the doors and windows and let the sunshine in and let the wind blow through the rooms every morning, for they are disinfectants performing labor of a sanitary nature.

Breathe long and deep. Fill the lungs to their utmost capacity with pure air several times each day and keep the home well ventilated night and day and remember that when night comes on all the air you have in or out of the house till the next morning is "night air" and you cannot bottle day air enough within the sleeping room to last through the night, so by all means let the air circulate through the room and thus keep a fresh supply of this life-giving element constantly with you.

More fresh air is required during sleep than when awake, for increased quantities of poisonous products are given off from the lungs and skin at this time, so each respiration renders the air in an unventilated room more unfit to be breathed again.

Keep the windows sufficiently open so the fresh "night air" can come in from one side and the impure air can go out through the other.

The upper sash should be down one inch and the lower sash up one inch for each person sleeping in the room.

CUSTOM.

Custom may lead a man into many errors, but it justifies none.

Custom, though never so ancient, without truth is but an old error.

Custom is the tyranny of the lower human faculties over the higher.

It is hard to abolish a custom once introduced, however foolish or effeminate.

There is no tyrant like custom and no freedom where its edicts are not resisted.

If you are determined to live and die a slave to custom, see that it is at least a good one.

It is of great advantage when the customs of a nation are such as are likely to lead to good habits among the people.

Custom is the sovereign of mortals and of gods. With its powerful hand it regulates things the most violent.

Custom governs the world. It is the tyrant of our feelings and our manners and rules with the hand of a tyrant.

ETIQUETTE.

Invitations—Should be sent a week or more in advance of an entertainment.

The Introduction—A younger woman or a younger man is always presented to an older one.

At a Dinner—The hostess rises first; this notifies the guests that the dinner is finished.

Women Bow—As a rule when introduced to each other.

The Gentleman Rises—If seated, when introduced to either a lady or a gentleman.

A Written Reply—To the hostess is required to a written invitation to a dinner, luncheon, or card party.

First Invitation—From a new acquaintance should always, where it is possible, be accepted.

When Rising from Ttable—At a dinner, luncheon, etc., it is not necessary to replace one's chair.

At the leavetaking—It is permissible, and an act of friendship and courtesy, to shake hands with your hostess.—Exchange.

SENSIBILE PHYSICIAN.

A physician whose mode of treatment has been particularly successful in building up children of weak physique advocates a good rich beef stew, with plenty of bone in it, several times a week. The bone furnishes a jelly strengthening to bones and sinews. For this purpose a piece from the shin or lower part of the round is best. Have the butcher saw the bones, in order to get all the marrow. Cover with cold water, then put on a close lid and simmer several hours. Do not let it boil. Vegetables and seasoning may be added to suit.

The same doctor recommends the use of a punching bag for small boys with narrow chests or a tendency to round shoulders. When a real leather punching bag is out of the question, a very good substitute is any stout bag loosely filled with bran. All exercise should be taken in the open air whenever possible.

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

I was going to say—well, you can imagine what I was going to say, and that I didn't say it or anything like it.

"Well—there she is, Kitty Wilson, over yonder," he said.

I gasped, it was so unexpected. And I turned to look. There on one of the benches sat Kitty Wilson. If I hadn't been blind as a bat and full of trouble—oh, it thickens your wits, does trouble, and blinds your eyes and muffles your ears!—I'd have suspected something at the mere sight of her. For there sat Kitty Wilson enthroned, a hatless, lank little creature about 12, and near her, clustered thick as ants around a lump of sugar, was a crowd of children, black and white, boys and girls. For Kitty—that deplorable Kitty—had money to burn; or what was even more effective at her age, she had goodies to give away. Her lap was full of spoils. She had a sample of every good thing the fruit stand offered. Her cheeks and lips were smeary with candy. Her dress was stained with fruit. The crumbs of cake lingered still on her chin and apron. And Kitty—I love a generous thief—was treating the gang.

It helped itself from her abundant lap; it munched and gobbled and asked for more. It was a riot of a high old time. Even the birds were hopping about as near as they dared, picking up the crumbs, and the squirrels had peanuts to throw to the birds.

And all on Nancy Olden's money!

I laughed till I shook. It was good to laugh. Nancy Olden isn't accustomed to a long dose of the doleful, and it doesn't agree with her. I strolled over to where my guests were banqueting.

You see, Mag, that's where I shouldn't rank with the A. D. I'm too inquisitive. I want to know how the other fellow in the case feels and thinks. It isn't enough for me to see him act.

"Kitty," I said—somehow a 12-year-old makes you feel more of a grown-up than a 12-months-old does—"I hope you're having a good time, Kitty Wilson, but—haven't you lost something?"

She was chewing at the end of a long string of black candy—shoestrings, all right, the stiff looks like—and she was eating just because she didn't want to stop. Goodness knows, she was full enough. Her jaws stopped, though, suddenly, as she looked from the empty purse in my outstretched hand to me, and took me in.

Oh, I know that pause intimately. It says "Wait a minute, till I get my breath, and I'll know how much you know, and just what lie to tell you."

But she changed her mind when she saw my face. You know, Mag, if there's a thing that's fixed in your memory, it's the face of the body you've done up. The respectables have their rogues' gallery, but we, that is, the light-fingered brigade, have got a fools' gallery to correspond to it.

In which of 'em is my picture? Now, Margaret, that's mean. You know my portrait hangs in both.

I looked down on the little beggar that had painted me for the second salon, and lo, in a flash she was on her feet, the lapful of good things tumbled to the ground, and Kitty was off.

I was bitterly disappointed in that girl, Mag! I was altogther mistaken in my diagnosis of her. Hers is only a physical cleverness, a talented dexterity. She had no resource in time of danger but her legs. And legs will not carry a grafter half so far as a good, quick tongue and a steady head.

She halted at a safe distance and glared back at me. Her hostility excited a crowd of children—her push—against me, and the braver ones jeered the things Kitty only looked, while the thrifty ones stooped and gathered up the spoil.

"Tell her I wouldn't harm her," I said to one of her lieutenants.

"She says she won't hurt ye, Kit," the child screamed.

"She dassen't," yelled back Kitty, the valiant. "She knows I'd peach on her about the kid."

"Kid! What kid?" I cried, all afire.

"The kid ye swiped this mornin'. Yah! I told the cop what brought her back how ye took her jest as I—"

"Kitty!" I cried. "You treasure!" And with all my might I ran after her.

Silly? Of course it was. I might have known what the short skirts above those thin legs meant. I couldn't come within 50 feet of her. I halted, panting, and she paused, too, dancing tantalizingly half a block away.

What to do? I wished I had another purse to bestow on that sad Kitty, but I had nothing, absolutely nothing, except—all at once I remembered it—that little pin you gave me for Christmas, Mag. I took it off and turned to appeal to the nearest one of the flying bodyguard that had accompanied us.

"You run on to her and tell her that if she'll show me the house where that baby lives I'll give her this pin."

He sped on ahead and parleyed with Kit; and while they talked I held aloft the little pin so that Kit might see the price.

She hesitated so long that I feared she'd slip through my hands, but a sudden rival voice piping out: "I'll show ye the house, missus," was too much for her.

So, with Kit at a safe distance in advance to guard against treachery, and a large and enthusiastic following, I crossed the street, turned a corner, walked down one block and half up another, and halted before a three-story brown stone.

I flew up the stairs, leaving my escort behind, and rang the bell. It wasn't so terribly swagger a place, which relieved me some.

"I want to see the lady whose baby was lost this morning," I said to the maid that opened the door.

"Yes'm. Who'll I tell her?"

Who? That stumped me. Not Nance Olden, late of the Vaudeville later of the Van Twiller, and latest of the police station. No—not Nance Olden . . . not . . .

"Tell her, please," I said, firmly, "that I'm Miss Murison, of the X-Ray and that the city editor has sent me here to see her."

That did ... Hooray for the power of the press! She showed me into a long parlor, and I sat down and waited.

It was cool and quiet and softly pretty in that long parlor. The shades were down, the piano was open, the chairs were low and softly cushioned. I leaned back and closed my eyes, exhausted.

And suddenly—Mag!—I felt something that was a cross between a rose leaf and a snowflake touch my hand.

If it wasn't that delectable baby!

I caught her and lifted her to my lap and hugged the chuckling thing as though that was what I came for. Then, in a moment, I remembered the paper, and lifted her little white slip.

It was gone, Mag. The under-petticoat hadn't a sign of the paper I'd pinned to it.

My head whirled in that minute. I suppose I was faint with the heat, with hunger and fatigue and worry, but I felt myself slipping out of things when I heard the rustling of skirts, and there before me stood the mother of my baby.

The little wretch! She deserted me and flew to that pretty mother of hers in her long, cool white trailing things, and sat in her arms and mocked at me.

It was easy enough to begin talking. I told her a tale about being a newspaper woman out on a story; how I'd run across the baby and all the rest of it.

"I must ask your pardon," I finished up, "for disturbing you, but two things sent me here—one to know if the baby got home safe, and the other," I gulped, "to ask about a paper with some notes that I pinned to her skirt."

She shook her head.

It was in that very minute that I noticed the baby's ribbons were pink; they had been blue in the morning.

"Of course," I suggested, "you've had her clothes changed, and—"

"Why, yes, of course," said baby's mother. "The first thing I did when I got hold of her was to strip her and put her in a tub; the second, was to discharge that gossiping nurse for letting her out of her sight."

"And the soiled things she had on—the dress with the blue ribbons?"

"I'll find out," she said.

She rang for the maid and gave her an order.

"Was it a valuable paper?" she asked.

"Not—very," I stammered. My tongue was thick with hope and dread. "Just—my notes, you know, but I do need them. I couldn't carry the baby easily, so I pinned them on her skirt, thinking—thinking—"

The maid came in and dumped a little heap of white before me. I fell on my knees.

Oh, yes, I prayed all right, but I searched, too. And there it was.

What I said to that woman I don't know even now. I flew out through the hall and down the steps and—

And there Kitty Wilson corralled me.

"Say, where's that stick-pin?" she cried.

"Here!—here, you darling!" I said, pressing it into her hand. "And, Kitty, whenever you feel like swiping another purse—just don't do it. It doesn't pay. Just you come down to the Vaudeville and ask for Nance Olden some day, and I'll tell you why."

"Gee!" said Kitty, impressed. "Shall—shall I call ye a hansom, lady?"

Should she! The blessed inspiration of her!

I got into the wagon and we drove down street—to the Vaudeville.

I burst in past the stage doorkeeper, amazed to see me, and rushed into Fred Obermuller's office.

"There!" I cried, throwing that awful paper on the desk before him. "Now cinch 'em, Fred Obermuller, as they cinched you. It'll be the holiest blackmail that ever—oh, and will you pay for the hansom?"

CHAPTER XVI.

I DON'T remember much about the first part of the lunch. I was so hungry I wanted to eat everything in sight, and so happy that I couldn't eat a thing.

But Mr. O. kept piling the things on my plate, and each time I began to talk he'd say: "Not now—wait till you're rested, and not quite so famished."

I laughed.

"Do I eat as though I was starved?"

"You—you look tired, Nance."

"Well," I said, slowly, "it's been a hard week."

"It's been hard for me, too; harder I think, than for you. It wasn't fair to me to let me—think what I did and say what I did. I'm so sorry, Nance—and ashamed. So ashamed! You might have told me."

"And have you put your foot down on the whole thing; not much!"

He laughed. He's got such a boyish laugh in spite of his chin and his eyeglasses and the bigness of him. He filled my glass for me and helped me again to the salad.

Oh, Mag, it's such fun to be a woman and have a man wait on you like that! It's such fun to be hungry and sit down to a jolly little table just big enough for two, with carnations nodding in the tall slim vase, with a fat, soft-footed, quick-handed waiter dancing behind you, and something tempting in every dish your eye falls on.

It's a gay, happy, easy world, Maggie darlin'. I vow I can't find a dark corner in it—not to-day.

None but the swellest place in town was good enough. Obermuller had said, for us to celebrate in. The waiters looked queerly at us when we came in—me in my dusty shoes and mussed hair and old rig, and Mr. O. in his working togs. But do you suppose we cared?

IT MADE ME SO PROUD.

He was smoking and I was pretending to eat fruit when at last I got fairly launched on my story.

He listened to it all with never a word of interruption. Sometimes I thought he was so interested that he couldn't bear to miss a word I said. And then again I fancied he wasn't listening at all to me; only watching me and listening to something inside of himself.

Can you see him, Mag, sitting opposite me there at the pretty little table, off in a private room by ourselves? He looked so big and strong and masterful, with his eyes half closed, watching me, that I hugged myself with delight to think that I—I, Nancy Olden, had done something for him he couldn't do for himself.

It made me so proud, so tipsily vain, that as I leaned forward eagerly talking, I felt that same intoxicating happiness I get on the stage when the audience is all with me, and the two of us—myself and the many-handed, good-natured other fellow over on the other side of the footlights—go careering off on a jaunt of fun and fancy, like two good playmates.

He was silent a minute when I got through. Then he laid his cigar aside and stretched out his hand to me.

"And the reason, Nance—the reason for it all?"

I looked up at him. I'd never heard him speak like that.

"The reason?" I repeated.

"Yes, the reason." He had caught my hand.

"Why—to down that tiger trust—and beat Tausig."

He laughed.

"And that was all? Nonsense, Nance Olden, there was another reason. There are other tiger trusts. Are you going to set up as a lady-errant and right all syndicate wrongs? No, there was another, a bigger reason, Nance. I'm going to tell it to you—what!"

I pulled my hand from his; but not before that fat waiter who'd come in without our noticing had got something to grin about.

"Beg pardon, sir," he said. "This message must be for you, sir. It's marked immediate, and no one else—"

TROLLEY STRIKES HORSES.

Car Hits Team Belonging to an Elizabeth Biscuit Company.

Elizabeth, Sept. 15.—A team of horses belonging to a biscuit company of this city was struck Wednesday night by a big trolley car on West Jersey street, this city. The team was knocked down and one of the horses very badly cut up and may have to be killed.

The front part of the wagon was considerably damaged. The driver was knocked to the pavement and badly stunned. It took Dr. Brown more than half an hour to restore him to consciousness. He refused to go to the hospital and did not give his name. It is said he lives in Newark.

Old Editor Returns to Work.

In the absence of Miss Maude Thomas, who publishes the Beaver Herald, the paper is being conducted this summer by I. S. Drummond, a Civil War veteran and an old-time "print," who will be seventy years old this winter. He started in to learn the printer's trade when eleven years old, and has been engaged in active newspaper work for forty years in the West and Southwest. At an age when most men would think they had done enough, Mr. Drummond is doing all the work, editorial and mechanical, in the Herald office, and is issuing a good paper. He lives alone on a claim, five miles from town, and walks in every morning and back in the evening. Nor is that all. He has built a house on his claim, and has raised six acres of corn, five acres of millet, five acres of peas, a good garden, and has planted several hundred fruit and forest trees, which he cares for faithfully. He has done most of the work on his claim himself. He is one of the old soldiers for whom Delegate McGuire secured a pension of $24 a month, under a special bill.—Kansas City Journal.

Editor Arrested for Libel.

New York, Sept. 15.—Norman Hapgood, an editorial writer employed by Collier's Weekly, was arrested yesterday morning in the office of that publication, at 414 West Thirteenth street. The charge was criminal libel, and the complainant, Joseph M. Deuel, justice of the Court of Special Sessions. The charge is based upon an editorial headed "Public Conscience," and published in Collier's Weekly August 5. The reference to Deuel was in connection with the arrest of a young man on a charge of extortion. Broker Edwin M. Post alleged that the prisoner had demanded money from him under penalty of the displeasure of a weekly known as Town Topics, of which Justice Deuel is one of the owners. Mr. Hapgood was arraigned before Magistrate Steinert in Jefferson Market Police Court, and paroled in custody of counsel until September 18.

Quickly Wooed and Won.

Millville, Sept. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Kimberlin are enjoying a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls. Mrs. Kimberlin was Ada W. Jones, a dry goods saleswoman in this city. When she was visiting a month ago in Norristown, Pa., she met Mr. Kimberlin. When she returned home a letter followed her from Norristown, and during the month many letters were exchanged between the two. Mr. Kimberlin called Monday at her home on West Main street. He mentioned to her a trip he intended to take to Niagara Falls, and said he would much enjoy the trip if arrangements had been made for her to accompany him. To make this proper Mr. Kimberlin proposed marriage on the spot, was accepted, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. John H. Magee, and in less than four hours the couple were on their wedding tour to Niagara Falls.

Federation to Build Churches.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 15.—The executive committee of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, meeting here with the Central Verein, approved the plan of embodying in the federation work the operation of the Volks Verein, as approved and outlined by Pope Pius X. The committee adopted a plan, which now goes to the federation convention, which meets in Buffalo, by which headquarters and an immense department of printing is to be established for the purpose of publishing documents on questions arising for discussion.

Record Size Tomato.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Alonzo J. Bryan, a farmer residing between Washington and Port Colden, claims to have the largest tomato grown in Warren county this season. He picked it from his vines Wednesday. The tomato is eighteen inches in circumference and a little more than six inches in diameter.

Prominent Summit Man Dies.

Hyannis, Mass., Sept. 15.—John Frederick Chamberlain, a member of the banking firm of Winslow, Lanier & Co., of New York, died yesterday at his summer home at Craigville. He was sixty-two years old. Death was due to a general physical collapse. Mr. Chamberlain was a resident of Summit, N. J.

Hungarian Premier Out.

Budapest, Hungary, Sept. 15.—Emperor Francis Joseph yesterday accepted the resignations of the cabinet, headed by Gen. Baron Fejervary, the Hungarian premier, at the same time directing the ministers to continue in the performance of their duties until further orders.

STRIKERS AND BOSSES FIRM.

Apparently No Indications of Early Settlement of Trouble.

There are no indications of an early settlement of the job compositors' strike in Newark, according to statements made by Edward Ashton, president of Local Typographical Union No. 103, and William A. Baker, president of the local Typothetae yesterday.

The local Typothetae met Wednesday afternoon, and a representative of the national body told the boss printers that agents were at work securing non-union men throughout the country. In urging the employers not to meet the demands of the strikers, he assured them that the national Typothetae would keep them supplied with help.

Mr. Baker said yesterday that the result of the difference would be that the members of the Typothetae would adopt the open-shop system of employment. Eleven compositors were at work in the Baker shop today. In some cases the bosses themselves have donned overalls and are setting type.

ARCHBISHOP SETON ARRIVES.

Former Rector of Jersey City Church Returns From Rome.

Jersey City, Sept. 15.—Monsignor Robert Seton, of titular archbishop of Heliopolis, former rector of St. Joseph's R. C. church, this city, who is a member of the Pope's household, arrived yesterday morning on the steamer Lombardo of the Italian Line, from Naples. He comes to America from Rome to keep his promise to his former parishioners and friends that if he ever returned to the United States he would bring them the papal blessing.

Archbishop Seton had a pleasant trip across the "big pond." On the pier to meet him were many Catholic clergymen and laymen from this city and its vicinity. The archbishop celebrated a pontifical mass in St. Joseph's church this morinng.

PAY BANDITS.

Oil Companies Said to Have Been Compelled to Purchase Immunity.

London, Sept. 15.—The Petroleum Review publishes a remarkable memorandum presented by the Baku oil producers to the Russian Minister of Finance, M. Kokovsoff.

It declares that owing to the utter helplessness of the police the producers are compelled to purchase safety from the bandits living in the village of Balakhan, Saboontchi, Romani and Zabrat by periodical payments of large sums of money, or that otherwise the whole of the oilfield region would suffer from their depredations.

The producers propose that the inhabitants of these villages, which, they say, are mere dens of robbers, should be transferred elsewhere.

BOY'S BODY RECOVERED.

Brooklyn Lad Drowns at South Bound Brook While Fishing.

South Bound Brook, Sept. 15.—The body of Roy Glover, seven years old, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. M. Glover, of Brooklyn, who was drowned in the Delaware and Raritan Canal near here Tuesday afternoon, has been recovered. The boy, with his parents and grandfather, Samuel Storm, also of Brooklyn, were boarding with Mrs. Henrietta Riddle, of this place.

In company with his grandfather he was fishing in the canal, when he fell into the water. The grandfather was unable to rescue him. County Physician Taylor, after viewing the body, gave a certificate of accidental drowning. The boy's mother is prostrated with grief.

Report Bridge Unsafe.

Cranford, Sept. 15.—After a committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders held a survey of the North avenue bridge over the Rahway River, which has been reported unsafe, County Engineers Jacob L. Bauer and Frank J. Hubbard reported that the top cords of the bridge were overstrained twenty-five per cent. and the bottom cords fifty per cent., and that the details were all bad. It was recommended that additional floor beams and stringers be put in to strengthen the bridge until a new one could be built. A resolution was adopted to repair the bridge at an expense of $400 and to build a new bridge in the spring.

Western Union's Dividend.

The Western Union directors declared yesterday a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the capital stock, payable October 16. Net revenues for the quarter ending September 30, based upon nearly completed returns for July, partial returns for August, and estimated September business will be about $1,900,000. It requires $1,217,021.25 for the dividend.

Errors and Appeals Conference.

Trenton, Sept. 15.—The Court of Errors and Appeals will hold its first conference since the summer vacation at the State House this afternoon. The meeting will be in the new court room in the Senate wing. Cases which have been argued and in which decisions are pending will be considered.

State Schools Down to Work.

Recitations were begun at the State schools yesterday and Principal James M. Green stated that from present indications it would be the most successful year of the institution. A course of lectures on "School Work" is being arranged.

"MARTY" SHOWS UP WELL IN FOX HILL SCORES

Although two players of National fame led the field for the first thirty-six holes of New York's initial open championship at the Fox Hills Golf Club, yesterday, "Marty" O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, the only pro. in the field, sustained the reputation he made at the VanCortlandt tournament as a well-balanced and promising golfer. His score for the thirty-six holes was 156, the rounds being 37, 41, 39, 39.

In his first round going out although O'Loughlin took three puts on three greens, went to the ninth green in 37. The Evening Sun, referring to him, says that "he is a stocky, bushy-topped youth who suggests a football player. He is regarded as the best homebred professional yet evolved here and a future is mapped out for him."

Although O'Loughlin failed to get in on the first day prizes, he still has a good chance to receive a prize before the tournament closes and his play will be watched with great interest.

Among the other golfers from this vicinity who played yesterday were David Patrick, the West Golf Club pro., who returned a score of 82, 79—161; Frank O. Reinhart, 89, 82—171; Robert Abbott, 89, 83—172; Joseph Sherman, Jr., 86, 90—176.

Alex. Smith and Will Anderson, the latter now open champion of the United States for the third time, were close in the race for first honors. Smith led the field yesterday with a score of 147 and Anderson was second with 148. There were forty-three starters, of whom twenty professionals and eighteen amateurs returned cards.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Under the direction of Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, a young men's Bible class will soon be formed at the chapel, the idea being to increase the interest among the young men in the chapel work.

Alfred Wardel, State secretary for the Y. M. C. A., in Vermont, was the guest yesterday of L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist. Mr. Wardel was formerly in the drug business with Mr. Randolph, but for several years has been a successful worker in the Y. M. C. A.

The Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church will mark the return of the fall and winter season and the change of the session from morning to afternoon on Sunday afternoon by a rally, when it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. The session will begin at 2:30 o'clock and special features will mark the programme.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

P. H. S. NOTES.

It was also decided to put a basketball team, of both girls and boys, in the field, this season. Candidates for the boys' team will hold the first practice early next week.

The first meeting of the year of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association will be held in chapel Monday morning, when the principal business of the session will be to fill the places of three directors, made vacant by graduation.

Plans for athletics, good and plenty for the coming year were started this morning at the Whittier School. The session began with a meeting of the athletic association, at which the following officers were elected: Board of directors, president, Morris Timpson; vice president, Edward Harding; secretary, Leland Manning; treasurer, Kenneth Phillips; honorary member, L. R. T. Woodhull.

A Whittier School tennis tournament among the boys, an annual affair, will be started on Tuesday, on Manning's courts on Dunellen avenue, at which the first pairing has resulted as follows: Fleming against Hetfield, Strong against Timpson, Woodhull against Murray, Davis against Phillips, Hubbard against Manning, VanArsdale against Ricketts, William against Thompson and Mack against Clark.

Football Candidates.

The first regular meeting of the candidates for this year's football team was held this morning in the laboratory. Lindsay Best, faculty director and coach of the team, presided. William Douglass, last year's captain, was appointed temporary leader. He appointed the first practise of the year for Monday afternoon on Hope Common. William Flanders was made manager.

N. P. H. S. NOTES

The football team will begin practice tomorrow morning at the Mountain avenue grounds. No coach has been secured.

The athletic association will hold its first regular meeting Monday. Officers of the athletic association will be elected at that meeting.

A special meeting was held by the athletic association at which Arthur VanArsdale was elected manager of the football team. Frank O. Webster, Jr., was elected temporary captain.

"HONEYMOON" WAS ROUGH.

New Plainfield Audience Disgusted with Play Presented Last Night.

There was a much displeased audience at the New Plainfield theatre last night. This is nothing to the discredit of the artistic perception of the audience, for the play presented was the weakest, wishy-washiest and the worst acted of any the suffering Plainfield public has been called to look upon in a long time.

The play was called "The Honeymoon." It is held in some quarters that the moon is made of green cheese. Whether or not this be true of the astronomical moon, the "Honeymoon" is very cheesy indeed. It was hissed roundly by orchestra and gallery, and Manager Counihan himself was so angry over the character of the acting that he scored the management and cast in unvarnished language. Mr. Counihan was imposed upon by the show people, and not the sorest playgoer in the house was one-quarter as wroth and disgusted as he.

Albert Garland Buried.

Albert Manchester Garland, who at one time was employed in the local office of the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company, and who had many friends in this city, died at his home in New Brunswick on Tuesday from an attack of typhoid fever. He was ill but a short time. Mr. Garland was a musician of considerable ability, playing the piano and violin. He frequently furnished music for social events in this city. The funeral services were held from the Church of St. John the Evangelist, New Brunswick, yesterday afternoon.

Firemen's Delegates Home.

Julius J. Stahl, of the borough, who has been attending the annual convention of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association at Atlantic City, will return home on Sunday. Letter-carrier William Demarest, who also attended the convention, returned home last night.

Lucetta Council, Daughters of Liberty, now meet in Odd Ladies' Hall on East Front street.

PERSONAL.

Dr. J. C. Anderson, of West Fourth street, is detained at home with an attack of malarial fever.

Robert Houston, William Hulskamper and Warden Charles Dodd, of Elizabeth, accompanied by Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, of this city, are enjoying today a trip "Down the Bay and up the Hudson" in a naptha launch.

Mrs. Fanny Templin and her sister, Miss Marion Brosius, of Williamsport, Pa., will return home tomorrow after a week's visit at the home of Mrs. Templin's brother-in-law, Herbert D. Templin, of North avenue.

J. Lynch Pendergast, secretary of the Maryland Society and prominent socially in the New York southern set, and who has been spending the summer at the "Homestead" at Fanwood, leaves today for the "Homestead" at Hot Springs, Va., where he will stay for the greater part of October.

The Straw Cady is Dead.

Whoever wears a straw hat today commits a terrible offense against the laws of fashion. The straw was declared sartorially de trop, which is an unpardonable thing in all cultured centers, at midnight last night. One might just as well wear a linen duster to a Christmas dinner as to appear in a straw hat now. There is an unwritten law that no man may recover legal satisfaction for the loss or injury of a straw hat worn after September 14.

Attachment Issued.

On the complaint of W. W. Warnock, the West Front street baker, Justice Mosher has issued a writ of attachment on goods belonging to Mrs. William Thiers, of West Front street, for $28 said to be due him for bread, pastry, etc., sold to the Thiers. Mr. and Mrs. Thiers, it is said, have gone to Virginia, where they intend to reside. The attachment was made by Constable P. V. Weaver. V. W. Nash, Jr., represents the plaintiff.

Tooth Pierced Lip.

While watching some of his comrades practicing in the yard back of the engine house yesterday afternoon, Joseph Clark, of Hose Co. No. 2, was struck on the mouth by a pitched ball. His lip was pierced by one of his teeth, the blow being so hard as to daze him. The injury was attended with remedies in the house medicine chest.

To Address W. C. T. U.

Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, will address the W. C. T. U. meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will also be a special musical programme including vocal solos by Miss Edith Allen Mooney, of Westfield, and violin selections by Robert W. Barnes and Robert Speer.

E. B. Clark Critically Ill.

E. B. Clark, of Crescent avenue, who has been in poor health for some time past, had a turn for the worse a few days ago and is in a critical condition. The members of the family have been summoned home.

Hearing for Tax Protests.

The date fixed for the first session of the Commissioners of Appeal to treat with taxpayers is Tuesday, October 24, in the Common Council rooms.

FARMER FIGHTS OFF TWO BOLD ROBBERS

KNOCKS ONE HIGHWAYNAN SENSELESS AND ESCAPES FROM THE OTHER.

John Barrett, a farmer of New Germantown, while driving along the turnpike road between Bound Brook and Somerville last Wednesday night, was held up by two men who attempted to rob him. Barrett, however, had a large hickory club in the wagon, with which he beat off the highwaymen as they attempted to climb into his wagon. The farmer could not recognize the men, who wore masks over their faces. One of them, he says, he knocked senseless into the road.

Seeing his companion fall, the other man, who had been trying to catch hold of the horse's bridle, discharged a pistol and ran into a clump of bushes by the raodside. Fearing that the two robbers had confederates nearby, Barrett whipped up his team and drove into town with the horses in a white heat. Some men about the hotel offered to go back and look for the thugs, but Barrett said he could not do so. He had to be in New York early this morning.

He said the man he knocked off the wagon with the club was probably badly injured. Barrett is a peach grower, who drives to Newark and New Brunswick almost every night with a load of peaches. It is thought the men who attempted to hold him us last night are from Bound Brook and have been watching the farmer pass through this section nightly.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Middleton O'Malley Knott, Sr., of Castlebar, Ireland, is expected to arrive in this country on October 1 on the steamer Lucania, to visit his son, Dr. Middleton O'Malley Knott, Jr., of Putnam avenue. He is over seventy years of age, yet is able to follow a pack of hounds in a chase as easily as one much younger in years.

Barbecued a Steer.

The ox roast at Mt. Zion M. E. church, colored, last night was a great success. A big crowd attended it. The roast was a big steer, brought in from the country by Adam Fritts. Two expert barbecuers from Newark prepared it, and did the carving. The fire was on the lawn, and the serving was done inside.

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

NO. 9—Most Practicable Method of Sewage Disposal For North Plainfield—By Joseph O. Osgood, Chief Engineer Of The Central Railroad Of New Jersey.

As to the necessity for sewers in North Plainfield, there can hardly be two opinions. The cesspools which are our only reliance for disposing of the liquid and semi-liquid waste products from our buildings are in some cases entirely inadequate for the purpose and have become a nuisance which cannot be entirely abated until some system of sewers is established. In this respect we are placed at a disadvantage in comparison with the adjoining city, and the growth of the borough is seriously retarded. The problem of disposing of the sewage from the few closely built up districts which we now have is already becoming a serious one and requires early solution. We need sewers, and in the most thickly settled portions of the borough we cannot have them too soon.

A brief study of the subject by the writer some years since indicated that there were on unusual difficulties attendant on the construction of a proper system of sewers for the borough, and that in this respect we could hardly do better than to follow, in general, the example of the city of Plainfield.

Green brook and Stony brook now take all the street drainage and can continue to do so with comparatively small expense for rain water drains and storm sewers. By keeping the sewage free from surface and ground water, the amount of sewage to be disposed of and consequently the size of the sanitary sewers can be kept down to a minimum. While this cannot be determined in advance of surveys, it is probable that the main sewer for the borough will follow the nearest street parallel to Green brook and will be intersected near the junction with Stony brook by another main sewer draining so much of the southwesterly part of the borough as cannot well be carried through the cross streets to the main sewer along Green brook.

If the borough were to remain stationary in population, it might be possible to establish sewage disposal works near the junction of the brooks, where they could be reached with very little, if any, pumping, but in view of the future growth of the borough this would prove but a temporary expedient at best.

Unfortunately there does not appear to be below this point any piece of land within the borough limits to which sewage could be conveyed by gravity and which is sufficiently above the brook to permit of a gravity system of disposal works, such as is made use of in Plainfield. This being the case, we must count on pumping the sewage to some suitable locality where it can be purified and the water from it turned into the nearest stream.

Doubtless the simplest and most economical disposal of the sewage would be to pump it into the mains of the Plainfield system under an arrangement with that city. This would be practicable so long as the Plainfield mains and disposal beds were of sufficient capacity to take care of an additional sewage flow, provided the matter could be arranged between the city and the borough.

Should this prove inexpedient for any reason, an independent disposal plant to take care of the borough sewage will be required. For this, it is only necessary to find a few acres of flat ground fifteen feet or more above the brook, on which disposal beds can be constructed similar in general character to those in Plainfield, with such improvements as the progress of the art may suggest. The sewage pumped to these beds would flow through suitable settling basins or septic tanks and thence after liquefaction and preliminary purification, pass through double or triple contact beds in which the liquids would be thoroughly aerated and most of the remaining organic matter converted into inorganic substances by the action of bacteria and the oxygen of the air. From these beds the liquid, now pure in appearance and so changed as not to cause offence to the eye or nose, might pass into any stream not used for drinking purposes, or if further purification were desired, could then be passed through a sand filter and made entirely inocuous.

The whole process can be carried on with no more offensive odors than we now encounter daily in our streets and back yards when our cesspools are being emptied, with the great advantage that the plant can be entirely isolated from the public and need not trouble anyone. There has been much improvement in the methods of sewage disposal in the last ten years and the process is now much better understood than formerly.

The tendency is, for good reasons, more and more toward the purification of sewage near the place where it originates instead of carrying it a long distance to a large stream or tide water. Indeed, it is no longer permitted in New Jersey that sewage shall be turned into even the larger streams without preliminary purification.

The processes for sewage disposal which now find most favor are those that do away with chemicals and permit natural agencies to have free play. An ideal arrangement would doubtless be to turn the sewage over the ground at intervals and plough it in, making use of such fertility as its decay would impart to the ground, but this is rarely practicable on a large scale.

The method of intermittent filteration requires less ground, but to operate successfully the ground must be of special quality and must have suitable drainage, conditions which are not to be found in this case.

In each of these two methods, bacteria and the oxygen of the air are the active agents of the purifying process. The method now used in Plainfield and the many other variations of the same general method used successfully elsewhere, depend on the same natural agencies, but provide conditions more favorable for their action, so that the process is performed in much less time and requires correspondingly less space for its operation.

LOVE BEST AFTER TWENTY-FIVE

In considering a question like this one must narrow it down as far as possible, for climate exercises an immense influence on physique, mind, morals and emotions, and, therefore, rules which apply to the women of southern countries do not apply in the least to American women, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

At the present moment let us consider the matter as relating to ourselves. A young girl is fascinated by a man of fashion, by his dancing powers, or even by his very fetching mustache, and she allows her sentiment to overpower her good sense.

Often a girl is captivated by a pair of speaking eyes and a ready tongue, and she mistakes her desire to be loved for love bestowed upon her.

Probably the object of her affections feels her attraction, but has not yet learned what true love means, and in such a case the honeymoon is apt to be a period of disenchantment, when the wife finds the husband a mere boy, who indeed can play the part of Romeo, but who is otherwise uninteresting and in no way one whom she can honor and respect. Then the tragedy of life begins for her.

The women of 25 or 30 judge men from a different standpoint and is capable of a depth of feeling quite impossible to a girl of 18 or 20. Emotions with her are held in check by judgment and experience, and, when she gives her heart, her love is more intense and more lasting.

This is the reason why second marriages are often so much happier than first. Very generally a girl accepts the first man who pays her attention, and is too young to know what love really means.

Her second marriage, which probably occurs while she is somewhere in the thirties, is the result of a strong magnetic attraction, and she gives to him a love and devotion which she could not possibly have given to the husband of her youth.

If it should happen that a woman marries a third time she generally does so from motives of prudence. She does not now expect ardent love, and, in fact, cannot give it, but she wants a companion and friend in her declining years, and, therefore, bestows her hand on some one whom she knows is worthy of her affection and respect.

There are, of course, many cases of people who have married very early in life, and who have been lovers until old age, but these are comparatively rare. If we were to make inquiries on a large scale we should probably find that in nearly every case the happiest and most enduring love was that of women who married after the age of 25.

Certainly, it is a suggestive fact that a man's second wife and a woman's second husband, generally, is more devotedly loved than the first.

TAKES HER HUSBAND BACK.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—After having successfully traced her husband from New York to this city and caused his arrest upon the charge of deserting her and running away with another woman, Mrs. Mary J. Netz took him home with her and forgave him.

Mrs. Netz said that about June 3 her husband and the woman disappeared. Netz, who is a fancy cake baker, and the woman had been employed in the same bakery, and only three days before their disappearance, Mrs. Netz said, he had introduced the woman to her.

CUTS OUT GAMBLING.

Ricketts Squelching Get-Rich-Quick Schemes and Handbooks.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Public Printer Ricketts has begun the work of renovating the Government Printing Office. He is determined that all get-rich-quick and gambling schemes can no longer be operated.

The first step was taken yesterday when Mr. Ricketts announced the banishment from the big printery of all racing handbook systems and his intention to delve into the money-lending combines among the employes, which are generally known as "symposiums."

It is asserted there are several "symposiums" in the Government Printing Office, and the backers are reaping big financial gains without labor or much risk. Several men get togther and each man deposits a certain amount of money in the "symposium" fund. From this fund money is lent to other employes at high rates of interest and the profits are divided among the originals.

Consternation has been caused in the big printing office, it is said, by Mr. Ricketts' determination to clean out all forms of gambling.

JAPS NOT HOSTILE.

Recent Outbreaks Were Not Against the Foreigners.

Tokio, Sept. 15.—There is no basis for the reports that the recent violence here was directed especially against Americans, either in act or language. The conviction is deepening that the demonstrations were not against foreigners or Christians, but simply against the Government. In the specific cases where Americans suffered the attacks were wholly accidental.

Yokohama is quiet. The foreign section of the city sustained no damage.

During the disturbances here nine persons were killed and 793 injured. Four hundred of the casualties were among the police. All the dead and injured were Japanese.

Even the sensational newspaper, the Yorodzu, now publishes an appreciation of President Roosevelt for his services in connection with peace.

The fire and explosion on Admiral Togo's flagship, the Mikasa, still mystifies the experts.

FINED $300 FOR FLIRTING.

Clerk Punished for Inviting Woman to Drink.

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—Harry Peyton, who says he is a Missouri Pacific Railroad clerk, was fined $300 in a police court on a charge of having attempted to flirt with Mrs. A. W. Ecoff and annoying her at Union Station.

She is twenty-five years old and is a woman of good appearance. "I had gone to the Union Station," she said, "to meet my husband, who was coming into the city from Ferguson, Mo. This man accosted me twice, asking me to 'go over to Pine street and take a drink.' I told him I was there to meet my husband and asked him not to speak to me again, but he persisted. He was very offensive."

Peyton testified that Mrs. Ecoff had first accosted him, and that he had lifted his hat and passed on. He denied that he had attempted to flirt.

JAP SOLDIERS ANGRY.

Chefoo Rumors of Mutinous Symptoms Among Troops.

London, Sept. 15.—A despatch to the Express from Chefoo says grave rumors are current in the Japanese colony there regarding the alleged dissatisfaction in the Japanese army and navy over the peace terms.

It is asserted that there are alarming mutinous symptoms in several infantry regiments at Osaka. The soldiers, according to the rumors, have held meetings at which they protested against the terms and denounced the Government. Rigorous measures of repression have been adopted. Many of the soldiers have been arrested. The loss of the battleship Mikasa is attributed to a similar cause.

The correspondent disclaims responsibility for the stories.

NO SEA ARMISTICE.

Not to Apply to Maritime Seizures, London Hears.

London, Sept. 15.—An announcement that the protocol of the armistice between Russia and Japan provides that the right of maritime captures is not suspended pending the ratification of the treatry caused a flutter at Lloyd's. The insurance rates on steamers bound for Manchurian ports, which were only 20 shillings per cent., have risen to from 30 to 50 guineas. A few vessels with Russian cargoes already cleared for Chinese ports were insured at peace rates.

The underwriters are indignant at what they consider the high handed action of Japan, and are discussing the question of protesting to the Japanese Government.

SHERIFF STOPS LYNCHING.

Walks Unarmed Into Crowd and Overawes It.

Winchester, Ky., Sept. 15—Prompt action probably saved Samuel Hisle from lynching here yesterday by a mob which surrounded the jail.

Sheriff McCord, arming his deputies and leaving them in charge of the prisoner who was shrieking for mercy, walked along and unarmed into the mob. He announced that his men were armed and would shoot to kill. Overawed, the crowd gradually dispersed.

HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY A FAMOUS TUREMAN

HE IS FOLLOWING THE FOOTSTEPS OF HIS FATHER.

When the history of the American turf has been written the narrative will accord a due meed of praise to the late William C. Whitney and fittingly acknowledge the extent to which the turf is indebted to that sportsman. In the years to come breeders and horsemen will learn to appreciate more fully the extent of the influence for good which Mr. Whitney exerted so untiringly in behalf of the sport to which he was so much attached. Carrying into the domain of sport those qualities which had contributed so much to his success in other lines of life, Mr. Whitney exhibited during his all too short turf career the same energy, perseverance and breadth of views which characterized his business and public life. Labor and expense were secondary considerations with him when it became a question of securing the best strains of blood and the most perfect racing material. No man ever took up the sport with more whole souled enthusiasm and actuated by truer sportsmanlike instincts. The example which he set was of inestimable value to the turf world. Of him it may indeed be said, "He should have died hereafter."

His labors resulted in the formation of the great stud which was discovered last October when the magnificent collection of great sires and peerless stud matrons was dispersed. Not altogether, for Harry Payne Whitney, following in the footsteps of his father, bought in many of the choicest of the lots offered, and these are now located at Brookdale Farm, L. I., where the mighty Hamburg and the aristocratic Sandringham are the lords of the harem.

Mr. Whitney has a firm faith in the future of racing, and cites, as a proof of his belief, that it is on an assured footing, the fact that yearlings last spring were sold at higher prices than they have brought under the hammer for many years, and that, too, at a time when there was considerable agitation concerning the loss of revenue derived from bookmaking.

During the Saratoga meeting Mr. Whitney made a trip to Scotland to enjoy a month's shooting on the moor, which was leased for a number of years by his father. This in some places was held to be an instance as showing lukewarmness in his adherence to the sport of racing, but there is absolutely no foundation for belief of this nature. The conduct of the stable was left in the most trustworthy of hands. The same cordial relations which prevailed during the lifetime of William C. Whitney between the owner of the stable and John W. Rogers exist between Harry Payne Whitney and his trainer. Mr. Whitney has absolute confidence in the ability and judgment of the Louisiana horseman, and is quite content to leave his interests in such capable hands.

It is interesting to note that he has faith, which he intends to hold until it is proved to him to the contrary, in the ability to produce thoroughbred stock in this section of the country. It is his intention to give a fair trial to the stallions and mares at Brookdale Farm, and he believes that yearlings can be produced there which will hold their own with the best from the "blue grass" State. He is fortified in his opinion by the fact that three Futurity winners were foaled at Brookdale.

Before succeeding to the possession of the inmates of the magnificent private stable, which stands at the head of the chute at Sheepshead Bay, Harry Payne Whitney figured as an owner. It was not a large stable. In company with Herman B. Duryea he had a half interest in one horse, Irish lad. A race horse of the very highest class, Irish Lad proved a most remarkable remunerative investment for the two partners. He was worth a stable full of horses of ordinary class, and has left for himself a name in turf history.

Thoroughly patriotic, an American to the core, Mr. Whitney believes that the best American horses, such as Sysonby, Artful and Hermis, could fully hold their own with any horses in the world. Closely associated with his father, acquainted with every detail in the breeding of thoroughbreds, and gifted with a natural fondness for horses, Harry Payne Whitney is qualified in every way to take up the position on the turf made vacant by the death of the late William C. Whitney.

Russia's Hope.

Moscow, Sept. 15.—The Gazette declares that the whole of Russia is on the brink of a catastrophe similar to that at Baku. It urges a military dictatorship for the Empire similar to the one established in Poland in 1863. It says that nothing else will save the country.

Sister Dies of Fever.

New Orleans, Sept. 15.—There were forty-three new cases of yellow fever in New Orleans Wednesday, with four deaths, among the latter being Sister Celina of the Mount Carmel Convent.

WHAT IS REALLY WORTH SEEING AMONG THE MANY ATTRACTIONS NOW ON THE BOARDS

Opie Read, the well-known author and playwright, has this to say of "Checkers," the play about which there has been so much talk and which is booked for an engagement at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night: "The best test of a play is what the people want. Plays have been criticized because it was said that they were intended to be popular. The critics who think that, believes that art must be so high as to be objectionable. But Shakespeare wrote for the people, and as Brander Matthews remarks in a recent paper in Scribner's Magazine, 'Nothing other than something written for the people has ever been vital enough to live.' This play of 'Checkers' is by far the best play that I have seen in many a long day, both in character and in dialogue. And for intellectual wholesomeness it is far superior to any of the English importations, the horsy 'Great Ruby' or the improbable 'Price of Peace.' There are more good characters in 'Checkers' than in almost any other play of its class, and speaking about class I don't know exactly where to class it, except as a character play. Of course it has a horse interest which, for all, is very close to a human interest, in that nearly all people, including our friends from Kentucky, are interested in horses; but the horse part does not constitute the entire theme, nor involve the most interesting of the action. One would expect the play to be along conventional lines, but very successfully it dodges convention and in places rises superior to anything like reminiscence. It is not a melodrama. It is a peculiarly human entertainment, with easy, graceful and natural situations. From beginning to end there is not a 'loud curtain.' I was very much surprised, which always means more than agreeably surprised. Without question it is not only one of the best plays of the season, but will continue to be prominent and engaging for many seasons to come. Human nature is its real theme, and in every action there is interest. Summing it all up I should think that the average tired playgoer would here find refreshment. Shortly after the rise of the curtain you discover that the dialogue, instead of dragging, stimulates constant expectancy—being early taught that something bright is going to be said—and throughout the entire performance there is no disappointment. It is rare that you hear as good dialogue—indeed to find it one must go further back than the stage carpenter's play with which we have become so familiar. In short, I think 'Checkers' is one of the choicest, strongest and prettiest representations of everyday life that I have ever seen on any stage."

For solidity of purpose combined with novel surprises and features of most charming song and hilarious fun interest, much has been written concerning the standing of "Happy Hooligan's Trip Around the World," a musical comedy of strength and enthusiasm. In fact, according to reliable information it is conceded that this, the very latest, comes upon the scene of seemingly perpetual favor, has arrived at a most enviable position, and has succeeded in dispensing such large chunks of pleasure to those who attend the theatre for the sole purpose of filling themselves with song and merriment, that it is small wonder our amusement constituents are inclined to mark its advent here at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, as a very special accasion for rejoicing. "Happy Hooligan's Trip Around the World," in accordance with the announcements, brings with it a perfect hurricane of genuine surprises, among which are a number of musical gems of rarest quality, and which were especially prepared with a view to introducing a bevy of bewitchingly gowned girls, arrayed in stage finery far beyond the fantastic and picturesque gown ideas of the usual appointment. The story unfolded in "Happy Hooligan's Trip Around the World," through the fun-making endeavors of skilful actors, is said to be one of side-splitting import and to contain the essence of real farce comedy with its snappy complications and perplexities always in the foreground, and with proper regard for wholesome, invigorating fun and frolic. Much attention has been bestowed upon the scenic details, which are made a conspicuous adjunct to a production of uniform elaboration.

An attraction of more than ordinary merit, namely, "Marching Through Georgia," comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow, matinee and night. This is the latest play from the pen of that prolific young author, Daniel L. Hart, who is responsible for numerous dramatic successes. "Marching Through Georgia" is founded on Gen. Sherman's famous march to the sea, and the many soul stirring events of that memorable invasion have been utilized by Mr. Hart. A sane, logical, natural heart-reaching story of devotion, loyalty, heroism, self-sacrifice and patriotism, besprinkled with a vein of dainty, delicious, delightful comedy, all brilliantly incorporated into four acts of intense and original scenes—climaxes of power and strength—exploited by a carefully chosen company of artists, enhanced by a bewilderingly beautiful scenic equipment are among the many promises held out by the management of "Marching Through Georgia." Special bargain matinee.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of George V. Hobart's new musical vaudeville, "The Ham Tree," in which they introduce the famous delineators of darkey comedy, McIntyre and Heath, as stars, will be presented at the New York theatre next Monday evening, the 28th inst. This piece is really a great musical comedy, written about the popular vaudeville sketch McIntyre and Heath have been doing for several years, constructed in three acts with scenes which show a Southern hotel, a railroad crossing in Delaware and a reception room in a Fifth avenue mansion. McIntyre and Heath and Belle Gold play colored types. All others are white and are represented by such well known players as Alfred Fisher, David Torrence, W. C. Fields, the tramp juggler, Jobyna Howland and Carolyn Gordon. The chorus of this company consists of sixty very beautiful young girls from 18 to 20 years of age, every one of whom is a remarkable dancer. Popular prices, ranging from 25 cents to $1, will continue to prevail at the New York during the McIntyre and Heath engagement.

In "The Catch of the Season," by Seymour Hicks and Cosmo Hamilton, at Daly's Edna May figures as a 20th century Cinderella, and has attractive songs and dances. She plays the role of Angela, daughter of Sir John Crystal, who is relegated to the background by two jealous and older step-sisters. The Duchess of St. Jermyns is giving a coming-out ball for her young son, the Duke, and all the Crystals are invited, but the step-sisters say that Angela must stay at home, as she has nothing to wear, and for various other good and sufficient reasons. The evening of the ball, while all is preparations in the Crystal mansion, the young Duke drops in, meets Angela, and is promptly smitten with her. Poor Angela has no chance, however, of going to the ball and she is in a state of necessary resignation when the 20th century fair godmother comes along in the person of a kind hearted rich old aunt, who knows how things have been going in the Crystal household and who has made up her mind that Angela shall not be vanquished so easily by her step-sisters. The aunt fixes the young girl up in splendid manner and takes her to the ball. The conquest of the young Duke is renewed and then delightful fairy-like romances is pursued thereafter to a happy conclusion.

Nat. M. Wills, one of the most popular comedians, won new honors at the Majestic theatre, New York, last Monday evening when he appeared at the star in "The Duke of Duluth." This operatic farce by George Broadhurst, with music by Max S. Witt, was given a great welcome, and its merits are such as to insure it a successful run at the home of musical comedy successes. Mr. Wills has taken a long step forward as a comedian in this play. Mr. Broadhurst, whose skill as a writer of farces is well known, has provided Mr. Wills with a novel character and supplied a succession of laughable episodes in which he is he thief, and always funny, figure. The scenes are laid in the wonderful Island of Wot, where Mr. Darling Doolittle, of Duluth, arrives by means of a submarine. A deliverer has been looked for by the troubled Wotians; and with the most innocent intentions in the world, and having no desire for work of any kind, Mr. Doolittle is seized upon as the leader, and is forced into affairs of state, compelled to marry a fat princess, and so perplexed that he assumes various different identities in passing from one difficulty to another. He kept the audience laughing every instant he was on the stage. Several of his songs made positive hits, among them being "Strenuous," "If My Man Could Do It For Me," and "Rosita" (an Italian "coon song").

David Warfield's tremendous popularity in Charles Klein's play, "The Music Master," has never been more emphatically demonstrated than Saturday night, September 2, at the Bijou theatre, when, after his summer rest, this Belasco star took up the course of success just where he left it last June. It was his 291st performance in New York as the old musician, and the immense audience were as deftly moved, whether to delighted laughter or quiet tears, as during the ten months of his first season here. After his strong scene in the second act, Mr. Warfield was compelled to make a speech—but as that was a nightly occurrence last season it was only to have been expected last Saturday night. David Belasco was present and the artistic atmosphere of the entire play and the ease and effectiveness with which it moved showed the careful direction of his masterly hand. He, too, was called for after the second act, and received an ovation surpassing even that of the star himself. Each member of Mr. Belasco's popular organization received the warmest greeting. Marie Bates was the same delightful Miss Houston; Minnie Dupree was as charming and effective as ever as the old musician's newly found daughter. Taking it all in all, Saturday night's reopening of the Bijou was an event for Mr. Warfield and the entire Belasco company, giving assurance of the same great prosperity and popularity during the second New York year of "The Music Master."

"Of all the plays of the week which came in with all sorts of flourish, this was the one which scored the most legitimate hit," said Acton Davies, the critic of the New York Evening Sun, in his review of "The Prince Chap," the new play which opened the regular season at the Madison Square theatre, New York. "The Prince Chap" is relieved by much good and bright comedy and tears give way to smiles So gently and so frequently do the bits of humor break through the pathos of the play that it resembles an April day with rays of sunshine intermittently breaking through the showers. The story concerns William Peyton, a young American sculptor, a big hearted fellow, "a sort of prince chap," as he described himself to the little girl who had been left in his care by a model whom he had befriended, and he tells her of Princess Alice left behind in America. Three years later, when Claudia, which is the name of the child, is eight years old, the old sweetheart, "Princess Alice," arrives in London with a mind poisoned against Peyton by stories that the ward was in truth the child of the sculptor, she demands as a proof of his innocence that he send little Claudia away. This he refuses to do, and Alice Travers marries another man. Ten years later, as a widow, Alice reappears and attempts to renew the old feeling between them. But in the meantime Claudia, the model's daughter, has become eighteen and it is revealed to Peyton and Claudia, who has grown up with "daddy," that the Princess Alice has gone out of their dream.

Klaw & Erlanger's splended production, "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," has made a sensational hit at the Broadway theatre, its scenery and costumes surpassing in every way anything ever before staged in this country. But scenery and costumes are but an incident to a most interesting fantastic story told by a great company. A pumpkin famine is caused by a malicious sprite known as the Corn Dodger. The only crop has been raised by a Vermont boy, Joe Miller, in some mysterious manner. Ike Cannem, the proprietor of a canning factory in Bermuda, arrives to obtain possession of this crop. At the same time the Ancient Mariner comes from the bottom of the sea on the same quest, being sent by Davy Jones, who keep a boarding house for reformed pirates. The pirates have made the life of Davy unhappy with their demand for pumpkin pie. Both Cannem and the Ancient Mariner are anxious to secure not only Joe Miller's secret, but the pumpkins he has raised. They arrive to learn from the village baker, John Doe, that Joe has cut them up for "jack-o'-lanterns." The Wicked Corn Dodger transforms Joe into a "pumpkin-head," an odd creature with head and body of pumpkins. Then the Ancient Mariner abducts Joe and Doe, the baker, to Davy Jones' locker, conveying them there through a magic spring that communicates with the bottom of the sea. Joe's sweetheart, Pearl Prince, and their companions, Sally Simpkins and Johnny Farnum, follow. The Corn Dodger is made captive by Cannem, the latter's purpose being to can him. At the bottom of the sea the pirates are anxious to convert Joe into pumpkin pie, but he is saved by Mother Carey, a good fairy, who arrives at the proper moment with her band in the guise of a submarine fire brigade. Then the scene shifts to Bermuda, where annem's canning factory is first shown. Here the pumpkin-boy, with the exception of his head, is cut up to serve as filling for pies for the guests of a hotel. The head is thrown overboard, and appears in the moon as it rises on the surface of the waters. With his magic powers the Corn Dodger undoes all his wrong, transforms the pumpkin head into Joe again and all ends happily.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Off Year in Politics.

This is what is regarded as an "off year" in New Jersey politics, when voters take advantage of the chance to clean house without imperiling party interests. The leaders of both parties realize the conditions and are anxious to secure nominees of character and ability, whose official records cannot be attacked and who are free from the suspicion of being dominated by private interests.—Trenton Times.

New Jersey's Governors.

The first State contest between the new Republican party and the Democratic party in New Jersey was in the gubernatorial election in 1856, when Newell, Republican, was elected by a majority of 2,657 in a total vote of 99,149. Three years later Olden, Republican, was elected by a majority of 1,601. Joel Parker, Democrat, was the successful candidate in 1862, with a majority of 14,597, but the State swung back to Republicanism in 1865 with a majority of 2,789 for Marcus L. Ward. Then followed a line of Democratic Governors—Randolph, Parker, Bedle, McClellan, Ludlow, Abbett, Green, Abbett and Werts—nine successive Democratic administrations, covering a period of twenty-seven years. In 1895 the election of John W. Griggs broke the Democratic spell, and Voorhees, Murphy and Stokes, Republicans, have followed in succession in the Governorship. The combined Republican and Democratic vote of 99,149 in 1856 was swollen to a total vote of 432,438 in 1904, an increase of 333,289 voters. Since the adoption of the present State constitution there have been elected one Whig Governor (Charles C. Stratton, in 1845), thirteen Democratic Governors and eight Republican Governors. To equal the Democratic record the Republicans have to elect five more Governors during the fifteen years to elapse after Governor Stokes' term shall end, and there are at present prospects of completing the record.—Newark Advertiser.

Situation at Bound Brook.

Consolidation of Federal, State, county, township and borough elections, as demanded by the last Legislature (please the people it will be the very last Legislature of that kind) is so obviously opposed to all ideas of local or home rule entertained by the good folks who came before and founded a government of, for and by the people, that the trial trip on November 7 seems likely to show strong public favor for the old fashioned way of voting by hand, sending the fake machines to the junkshop and consigning all machine promoters and grafting legislators to political oblivion. Interest in the conglomerated election to take place November 7 seems so strong that much machine manipulation will be required, and will doubtless be attempted, in order to suppress an honest expression of the will of the people. Right at home, however, we feel all right. Senator Samuel S. Childs stands so high in the estimation of the people that his re-election by an increased majority seems certain, and strong determination is shown that the principles advocated by Mr. Childs shall also be truly represented in the State Assembly. The borough candidates for Chosen Freeholder both bear the popular name of Smith, in this respect presenting a play perhaps as entertaining as the one having 2 Marks among other attractions. The winning Smith will have the longest and loudest laugh and we expect to participate in the general hilarity of the event. Appreciation of Bound Brook's rapid growth in business facilities and marked improvement of home surroundings is made manifest by an almost unanimous call for Hon. Richard H. Brokaw, the mayor to whose fine executive ability, clear judgment and ready tact many of these up-to-date improvements are creditable, to again serve in the position he has so ably filled. The mere mention of W. H. Alpaugh in connection with the office of collector carries strength to the ticket, and the popularity of Assessor Charles McNabb, Freeholder J. G. Smith, Councilmen Henry Nolty and J. J. Maier, Justice R. T. Brampton, Constable Thomas Cullen, Commissioner of Appeals James Vosseller and of County Convention Delegates Runyon Field, William Lair and Stanley Brampton assure success to the ticket and to all paying subscribers of the State Centre-Record, which all may have for $1 a year. Let us have peace!—Bound Brook State Centre.

Forgetful Bridegroom.

Baltimore, Sept. 15.—The ceremony which was in process of uniting Miss Mollie Kesler to Morris Greenberg came to a sudden halt at the climacteric point Tuesday night. The interruption came at the moment when the rabbi asked the groom for the bridal ring. Greenberg fumbled in his vest pocket, but the ring was not there. Then he went through all his pockets, while beads of perspiration poured from his brow. Suddenly he remembered that he had left the ring on his dresser at home. After explaining to Rabbi Schaffer, he dashed from the McCulloh Street Temple, while the spectators, unaware of what was causing the delay, looked after the departing groom in astonishment.

An hour later Greenberg, breathless, came back, and the ceremony was completed.

LITERARY.

The October Century, which will be issued on the one hundred and twenty-sixth anniversary of the battle of the Serapis and the Bonhomme Richard, will contain the first detailed and authoritative account ever published of the recovery of the body of John Paul Jones, written by General Horace Porter, LL. D. It is to the unselfish zeal and patriotism of General Porter that the United States owes the recovery of the remains of its first naval hero. While ambassador to France, General Porter, on his on initiative and at his own expense, began a personal search for John Paul Jones' body, in June, 1899. The details of this search, its final success, the rigorous verification of identity, are all covered in General Porter's story, which is to be fully illustrated from photographs.

It is seldom that a single number of the magazine contains so much material likely to arouse discussion and lead to conclusions of importance as the September number of the Atlantic. President H. S. Pritchett considers the momentous question which is now so much discussed in academic centers, "Shall the University Become a Business Corporation?" W. S. Rossiter, of the Census Bureau, discusses "The Problem of Federal Printing," pointing out the conspicuous costliness and waste of the printing that is now done by the government, with some brief suggestions for reform. In the first of two papers upon "President Roosevelt's Railway Policy," William Z. Ripley discusses "The Problem" with an incisiveness that should interest every American citizen. In his notable series of papers upon "The Tenth Decade of the United States," William Garrott Brown comes in the September installment to the discussion of "Lincoln's Policy of Mercy."

The practice of archery as a pastime has been popular in England ever since the days of its greatest glory, when Robin Hood, the bold outlaw and master bowman, and his merry clan roamed through the glades and glens of the king's woods "where the game did most abound," as freebooters and troublers of the realm. Of course archery has never flourished in modern times with that vigor which it displayed when the bow held the supremacy among weapons of warfare, but it has yet, and always will have, many ardent promoters, and when the present popular instruments or recreation are but museum relics, the twang of the bowstring and the swift flight of the feathered shaft will still possess their fascination for the human race.—Albert Rankin Clark, in Recreation for September.

McClure's has always something tha compels attention, something immediate and significant that is important to all Americans. The September numebr adds to an unbroken series of "McClure's Articles" an illuminating study of commercial piracy, the first half of Miss Tarbell's study of the Kansas Oil War, and an excursion into the marvels of modern biology, "Prolonging the Prime of Life," which is an authoritative account of the discoveries of a group of scientists who have determined that old age is a disease. Color printing has never achieved more perfect results than in the eight full-page reproductions of Lungren's paintings of the Grand Canon of the Colorado, which accompany William Allen White's description of the wonders "On Bright Angel Trail," a bit of descriptive writing which may well take place with the classics of our language. Eugene Wood, George Randolph Chester, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, Jean Webster, Arthur Train and Norvell Harrison supply a round of short stories stirring, humorous, light or serious to fit every mood.

This story is told for the encouragement of the young. Among the thousand and one questions that United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge has been asked in regard to his book, "The Young Man and the World," which the Appletons publish this month, was the query:

"Senator, how did you learn all those things you tell young men in your book?"

The Senator's eyes twinkled. "What is the best way to learn?" he asked.

"Experience," hazarded his questioner.

"Exactly," replied the Senator.

"But, Senator,' you point out all sorts of mistakes that it is wise for a young man to avoid."

"Yes?"

"How did you learn about those mistakes?"

"Well," replied the Senator thoughtfully and conservatively, "it was not by observation."

"To Account Conscience." This account was opened by the United States Government in 1811. It would not be fair to infer from this fact that the American conscience had its awakening at so late a date in the country's history, but that year witnessed the first return to the Government, as the result of the "still small voice," of money of which it had been defrauded some time before. President Madison found on his desk one morning an unsigned letter in which the writer confessed to defrauding the Government of two dollars, for which his conscience had made him suffer sorely. This amount was enclosed with the request that it be turned into the National Treasury, the writer expressing the hope that this full restitution and repentance would restore a clear and easy conscience. Up to date the amount received from those who have defrauded the Government and become conscience stricken is $400,000.—Lippincott's Magazine.

The newspaper man looms big and strong in our vigorous modern life, taking often a man's part on many fields to which duty has sent him. Not frequently, he is pictured effectively and justly in fiction by a pen that has had itst raining in actual newspaper work—the modern school of the novelist. We have a fine example of just this sort of intelligently vivid character drawing in a new story of action, "The Fortress," by a young newspaper man, Will Levington Comfort. This strong, human novel appears complete in the September issue of Lippincott's Magazine. Mr. Comfort won his spurs in the States, and when he left the office of the Pittsburg Despatch to go to Manchuria as war correspondent he was chock full of energy and bristling with experience. Of course he succeeded, and all who follow the news columns will read with fascination the spirited tale of love and war that grew out of this young reporter's dash for Port Arthur. It breathes the air of battle.

MOUNTAINEER'S BIG FAMILY.

Kentucky Couple Parents of Twenty-six Children.

Marion Kennard Vanderpool and his good wife, a typical Kentucky mountain couple, who make their home in the hills of Whitley county, are the parents of twenty-six children, twenty-one of whom they reared to the estate of manhood and womanhood, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal. The remaining five died in infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderpool, though both far down on the shady side of life, and despite the hardships of poverty and the cares of rearing their large family of sons and daughters, are still hale and hearty. Their home is one of comfort and convenience, and is still the roof tree of several sons and daughters, while to those of the family who have drifted away the latch string still hangs on the outside. Each year there is a family reunion, when most of them gather about the old Whitley county home and partake of the parental hospitality and spend a time beneath the roof that sheltered them from the cradle to manhood and womanhood.

Mr. Vanderpool, though now past sixty-two years of age, is as hale and hearty as many a man of middle age, and is still dissatisfied with a day's toil unless he has accomplished as great a task as the most industrious of his sons. His good wife, the mother of his phenomenal family, is small of stature, weighing only ninety-eight pounds. She, too, boasts of wondeful health and strength.

Mr. Vanderpool was born and reared in Whitley county, within ten miles of where his present home now nestles in a mountain valley. When sixteen years of age he was married to Cynthia Miles. A year later a child was born to them, and each year thereafter for twenty-six years, until the family became one of the largest known in the history of modern times.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderpool are now the grandparents of forty-four grandchildren, most of whom reside in Whitley county and are often at their home.

RIOTERS WERE COOLIES.

Disturbances in Yokohama Caused By Lower Classes.

London, Sept. 15.—The mob that rioted at Yokohama on Tuesday night was chiefly composed of coolies, boatmen and outcasts. The rioters attacked the police kiosks, the custom house and the residences of officers.

FOR ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The Allentown Fair is by all odds one of the most unique exhibitions of the country. Its attendance is simply enormous, and why, you ask? Everything is complete to the minutest detail. The entertainments are exceptionally fine. The live stock show has no equal. The fruit and vegetable exhibits are among the finest procurable, and with the genuine good time always found at Allentown, there is no reason why the fair should not be popular. On the days of the fair the New Jersey Central will sell reduced rate tickets to Allentown and special trains will be run from various points. 9-6 e o d

A Wonderland.

Trenton and its fair are famed and why shouldn't it be for no greater attraction than this fine exhibit is known in these parts. It is the old fashioned county fair in every particular and in every branch and department there is a completeness that obtains at no other exhibition. This year many new and attractive features have been arranged for which will make the fair a still greater drawing card. The dates of the fair are September 25 to 29, and during that time the New Jersey Central will place reduced rate excursion tickets to Trenton, including admission, on sale at all of its stations in New Jersey. 9 13 eod td

ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The New Jersey Central will run low rate excursion to Allentown for the Fair on September 21st. Special train leaving Plainfield at 7:55 a. m. Returning from Allentown at 6:30 p. m. Round trip tickets $1.50. The Fair is bigger and better than ever and for a good time you should go. 9-6 e o d

LOVE COMPULSORY IN THIS CONTRACT

FRENCH PROPOSAL THAT PARTIES SHOULD LOVE ONE ANOTHER.

Cupid, who has never had a show in France, has at last appealed to the law. It is proposed to make love a prerequisite of marriage. Some Frenchmen are greatly alarmed over the prospect of being forced to love their wives.

The French marriage law is the strictest in the world and Frenchmen don't want it made any more severe. It is not only strict, but is enforced strictly, and there is no doubt that the French husbands would have to observe any statute requiring men to love their wives.

Love has never had any part in the marriage law of France. Marriages over there have been business contracts. Of course, husbands and wives have loved each other, occasionally, but that hasn't been a part of the agreement. In most cases it is smply a matter of dollars and cents. A Paris correspondent says that there is a strong movement in favor of making love a part of the marriage agreement. Heretofore the marriage code has confined itself to requiring that the contracting parties owe each mutual esteem, fidelity and succor.

It is interesting to find the French trying to put love into the marriage code, just at a time when Americans are trying to get it out, together with the word obey for the bride.

An eminent playwright, M. Paul Hervieu, however, thinks that people who enter the bonds of wedlock should be required by law to love one another. Mr. Hervieu expressed his views before a parliamentary committee formed to consider certain reforms in the code, and apparently a majority of the members are inclined to share his view, on the ground that it is in the interests of morality for the law to recognize love in matrimony.

French people as a rule marry because it is to their mutual interest. In aristocratic marriages love is seldom even taken into consideration. It is purely a question of convention, of decorum, of mutual convenience.

Among the middle or bourgeoise classes marriage is principally a question of money. A manufacturer, a lawyer, an official, an officer, or a merchant looks forward, in contracting a marriage, to finding in the shape of his wife's dowry value corresponding to the position he holds or the annual income he derives from his profession or business.

One of the first cares of a French father is to provide a dowry for each of his daughters, and according to the value of the dowry he can command a more or less suitable husband for his daughter. The larger the dowry the more exacting will he become as to the status of a possible son-in-law.

Such marriages are nearly always arranged by the parents or near relations on both sides. The young Frenchman who decires it is time to marry seldom fixes his choice on any particular girl. He allows his relatives to look around for him. He manages to obtain by various well known artfices a view of the person who is suggested to him as a suitable "parti," and if she is sufficiently presentable to please him, and the two families can come to terms as regards money matters, the proposal is made in due form.

A few weeks later the marriage takes place. The girl, it will be seen, has scarcely been consulted, but such is the manner of her bringing up that sne is generally quite content to leave matrimonial matters in the hands of her father, and to accept the husband he has selected for her.

The desire to obtain a quid pro quo in marriage extends even to the masses, to peasantry, and the working classes. A small peasant farmer who is the proprietor of five acres of land and ten cows would consider he had made an extremely bad bargain if he were obliged to marry his son to the daughter of a man who owned but three acres and six cows.

Nevertheless it is a remarkable fact that the proportion of unhappy French marriages is comparatively small.

SEIZE TEN COREAN VILLAGES.

Serious Riot at Seoul—One Gendarme Killed.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 15.—Corean newspapers received Wednesday tell of a serious riot at Seoul in protest against the expropriation of fifty square miles of riverside land, embracing ten villages and 15,000 houses, by Japanese on the score of military necessity.

The villagers went en masse to Seoul to protest, and were attacked by Japanese gendarmes. A riot followed, in which one gendarme was killed and many Coreans were wounded.

Subsequently a mixed force of Japanese soldiers and gendarmes went to the desired land and drove out the inhabitants. The dispossession of the villagers has caused much distress.

Exceptional Fall Clothing Exhibit.

Suits for Men and Young Men - $10 to $35

We're ready for the man or young man who is thinking of a new Fall Suit. All the new fabrics—all the latest fashion kinks.

Our efforts to excel as Manufacturing Clothiers were never so strikingly apparent as in our present Fall Showing. Even the most casual observer must notice the exclusive patterns, the snappy styles and the superior fit and hang that raise M. & B. Clothing to the level of most custom-made garments.

Experience has taught thousands of clothing buyers that every dollar spent at the Marshall & Ball store is certain to bring full returns in style, fit, wear and comfort.

Boys' Suits - $3 to $10

M. & B. excellence is no less marked in our Boys' Clothing than in our apparel for men. There is no Manufacturing Clothier that gives the same attention to making clothing for the youngsters as Marshall & Ball. And thoughtful parents appreciate it. Our assortment of styles and materials is complete. We are especially prepared to fit stout boys.

Our Boys' Suits, with extra trousers, at $5 are unusually worthy. They're cheviots, in Norfolks and double-breasted styles.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

W. S. Terhune & Son, of North avenue, have many real estate bargains to offer if you want to buy.

All wagon jobs done by W. J. Conroy are turned out to the entire satisfaction of his customers. Somerset street.

Chamois skins—the English call them wash leather, for an obvious reason—in fine quality and all sizes at P. B. Hodge's pharmacy.

This is the time to make contracts for painting and papering. Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, can quote you attractive prices.

Don't let your watch run down for want of cleaning. It will cost you little to have William Brown, Watchung avenue, look it over regularly.

Lovers of the dainty and perfect in bread and cake and pastry find joy in the output of D. Demolli & Co's French bakeshop, West Front street.

Expert workmanship and honest dealing mark the carpentering done by Louis Beck, South avenue. Give him your contracts and results will please you.

The social season is approaching, the time for weddings and celebrations. Don't forget that J. Hervey Doane, the jeweler, has just the thing for presents.

There are no preservatives or other queer things in Endress' meat. The finest quality of beef and poultry, mutton and veal only finds room in the Endress store. West Front street.

Morris Abrams, of West Front street, has for several years been one of Plainfield's leading shoe dealers. He handles only the best make of shoes and his stock includes every size and the latest styles for men, women and children, and a feature is the low prices.

If you want to save money trade with Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers and sea food dealers. You will always find the meats and fish purchased here to be the best and at such prices that will astonish you. Orders received by telephone are promptly attended to.

Have you purchased your fall shoes yet? No? Well, go to Van Arsdale's store, East Front street, and see a display of footwear that will speedily decide you to do so. Every style, old fashioned comfort shapes and swagger models, are there —at proper prices.

It is not too early to think about a fall and winter suit, and M. Weinberger, the West Front street clothier, has an exceptional stock of men's and boys' clothing of the latest styles, proper weight and right prices. Inspect this stock before purchasing elsewhere. A full stock of men's furnishings is also shown.

The Gayle Hardware Company is offering a large stock of refrigerators, woodenware, clothes baskets, wash tubs, wringers, enamel ware and tinware at very low prices. As most women are now engaged in canning fruit, don't forget that at this store you can get Royal and Mason fruit jars, jelly glasses and rubbers cheap.

NEW METHODIST HYMN BOOK.

It Contains Songs by Scott, Hay, and Kipling—To Be Used Next Sunday.

The new Methodist Hymn Book, over which there has been so much discussion for the last five years, will come into general use in the Methodist Episcopal churches throughout the United States on next Sunday. It contains more than 800 old and new hymns. Most of them are written by John Wesley, with Isaac Watts next, and a considerable number by Fanny Crosby, the blind authoress.

A new departure has been made by selecting hymns written by authors who were never known as religious writers; among them are Sir Walter Scott, John Hay, and Richard Watson Gilder. Rudyard Kipling's "Recessional" also appears in the book.

The last Methodist hymn books were compiled in 1878. For some years there has been much discussion over the words "washed in the blood of the Lamb" and other similar phrases. The setting of hymns to popular tunes was also objected to, but the negroes in the South, who are mostly Methodists, insisted on having the old Southern tunes that were in use before the war.

THIS CANADA'S FAT YEAR.

Paying Up of Bills to Follow Garnering of Crop.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Byron E. Walker, general manager of the Bank of Commerce, upon his return from the Canadian West, said that the enormous crop in the West and an unprecedented increase from all the natural resources of the country would enable Canadians to square themselves financially.

"All through lean year," said Mr. Walker, "we spent money in Canada freely as though we were sure of a fat year from sea to sea that would put us square again. Now the fat year has come, and the West has the fattest share of it. Western merchants look to this year as the big paying-up year. For years they have been giving credit to settlers, not merely for buying of implements and machinery, but also for investment in large holdings of land."

PERSONAL NOTES.

The Empress of Germany's private wedding present to her relations always consists of a very plain travelling clock for she values chiefly among all other virtues that of punctuality.

The Nizam of Hyderabad, whose title in full is "His Highness Asaf Jahn the Nizamut Mulk Nizam-ul-Daula (Sir Mahbub Ali Khan Bahadur) is the highest in rank and probably the most interesting prince of the Indian Empire. He comes of an ancient family, whose representatives have always been important in the politics of Asia, because of their astute diplomacy. Just now the Nizam is making elaborate preparations for entertaining the Prince and Princess of Wales wno will visit his country toward the end of this year.

Dr. N. Walling Clark, president of the American College at Rome, who is visiting this country, will return home early in September.

Bishop James M. Thoburn, D. D., is to deliver the missionary lectures at Boston University School of Theology the coming winter.

Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican National Committee, rose to that position in just nine years from a newspaper reporter receiving a very small salary.

Assistant Secretary of State Loomis starts this week for a vacation trip, going to Canada, and it is possible that upon his return he will relinquish his post to undertake a special mission to Brazil in connection with the preparation of certain treaties in which the President is very much interested.

Miss Jean Reid, the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James' daughter, is going to be a big success. All the house parties invited by Lady Warwick to meet the Whitelaw Reids were full of praise of Miss Reid. She is very bright, thoroughly natural and, although not exactly pretay, she has a perfect carriage and wears her clothes well.

J. Pierpont Morgan, who has already received a number of decorations, is about to be created a commander of the Legion of Honor by the French Government. This is in acknowledgment of his recent presentation to Paris of a fine bronze statue of Benjamin Franklin, who not only spent eight years in Paris as the envoy of the United States, but likewise erected on the house which he occupied the first lightning conductor ever seen in France.

MITCHELL HINTS AT STRIKE.

"Union Prepared to Move On to Victory," He Says.

Mahanoy City, Pa., Sept. 15.—Five thousand mine workers paraded here Wednesday in honor of President John Mitchell, who was given a rousing reception. Every colliery in the Mahanoy Valley was closed, the ten thousand employes making a holiday of it. There were only two banners in the procession. They bore these inscriptions:

"We honor our two good Presidents, Roosevelt and Mitchell," and:

"We demand recognition of the union and an eight-hour work day. Come, Mr. Baer, let us reason together."

President Mitchell's speech after the parade was a virtual reiteration of former addresses. He came out squarely for recognition of the union and an eight-hour work day. "The union," he said, "is now stronger than at any time in its history, and is prepared to move on in one solid phalanx to victory in its fight for right as it did in 1902. We shall demand decrease in hours and an increase in wages."

Independent Telephone Company Would Compete With Monopoly.

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—The Federal Telephone Company, which controls the most extenstive independent system in the United States, is endeavoring to secure a franchise for an independent company in New York city, with the view of competing with the monopoly.

Frederick S. Dickson, president of the Federal Company, said today that the lines controlled by the company would soon be in operation from Pittsburg to Philadelphia and Baltimore, as well as from Cleveland by way of Buffalo, and to Rochester and Syracuse.

NEW BADGE FOR G. A. R.

Movement for Change in Design of Order's Emblem.

William K. McAllister, general agent in Denver of the Southern Pacific, is at the head of a movement for a change in the design of the badge of the Grand Army of the Republic. According to Mr. McAllister, the badge is imperfect from a heraldic standpoint.

In an open letter to Commander-in-Chief King, Mr. McAllister says:

"Allow me to ask you to place the Grand Army badge upon your left breast, where it rightfully belongs, then glance at the badge and you cannot fail to note that the ribbon or flag suspending the star from the crossed cannon is displayed with the 'Union' at the bottom of the flag. You will also observe that the eagle is looking or flying toward the East instead of toward the West. We all understand that the eagle in its flight represents the 'course of empire,' which is forever westward. If we consider this matter from the standpoint of true heraldry, as well as from the standpoint of proper balance of the emblem which the Grand Army has chosen as its standard, we must realize that there are several important features which have a bearing on the symbol typifying the organization of which you are its commander-in-chief, namely, and reading from top to bottom:

"First—The eagle representing the 'course of empire' taking its flight toward the East.

"Second—The crossed cannon placed out of 'action,' emblematic of peace, and signifying that the war has ceased.

"Third—The flag of our country with the Union at the bottom, a sign of distress.

"Fourth—It has been suggested by Mr. Beath that the flag carried in the right hand, with the arm used as a staff, shows the flag displayed properly, and if we deem this to be true, then the representation of the flag itself in the badge may possibly be correct, but I respectfully submit to you that the carrying of the flag in the right hand is proper only when armies are upon a war footing and engaged in actual warfare. It is the standard leading the troops and inciting them to deeds of valor. But, on the other hand, when peace has been restored and the warring nations have extended to each other the right hand of fellowship, then the flag is borne in the left hand, leaving the right to hold the olive branch of peace.

"Fifth—The star, signifying light, seems in your emblem to be the only feature properly 'set,' and which may be taken as a proper guide."

SOUVENIR POSTAL CARDS.

Popular Misapprehension That Makes Many of Them Unavailable.

A law was enacted by Congress a few years ago which provided that cards of the same size and weight as the ordinary postal cards might be sent through the mails as ordinary postal cards provided a one-cent stamp was affixed.

Many of the printed cards sold as souvenir postal cards meet these requirements, and can be written upon and sent through the mails with a one-cent stamp affixed. The trouble is, however, that not all, or, indeed, most of the souvenir postal cards do meet the government requirement. Many of them are much bigger than the ordinary cards, and they are made of leather and wood and almost everything else.

All of these cards are mailable as merchandise at the rate of one cent an ounce, but if anything is written upon them then they require letter postage, which is two cents an ounce. The leather cards, which are so popular this season, are of about the same size as the ordinary cards and would be mailable if not written upon, and if it were not for the fact that they are much thicker than the ordinary postal cards. This bars them from the mails except as merchandise, and if written upon letter postage must be paid.

The wooden souvenirs are generally much larger and heavier than ordinary postal cards and generally weigh more than an ounce. Upon these, if there is any writing, four cents in stamps must be affixed.

These few facts cover the government regulations, and if everybody were familiar with them and obeyed them they would save much trouble and more souvenirs would reach their destination. But the trouble is that to many people all souvenirs "look alike," and they affix one-cent stamps to big and little, write their messages on the back and dump them into the letter boxes. The great majority of them do not reach their destination, and then there is sorrow and disappointment.—Portland (Me.) Press.

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On September 17, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 9 13 td

MINISTERS JOIN FORCES AGAINST SUNDAY GOLF

In Open Letter To Country Club They Say It Would Be "a Blow To Good Morals."

A STRONG PROTEST

Clergy Declare "Step Would Weaken Their Hands"—Club to Act on Tuesday Night.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association has taken a stand against Sunday golf. At a meeting last night at the Y. M. C. A., attended by a large number of the clergy, an open letter was addressed to the Plainfield Country Club, asking that body of representative citizens not to make any amendment to its constitution which will allow play on its links on Sunday.

In all the churches tomorrow the pastors will refer to the contemplated action and will tell their congregations why Sunday golf will have an evil effect. The letter follows:

To the Plainfield Country Club:

The undersigned pastors and other Christian ministers of Plainfield assembled this evening, appeal to their friends, the members of the Country Club, to hold unchanged the present constitution of the club, so far as relates to the use of the links and the club house on Sunday.

We do not assume to be better citizens or better Christians than those who advocate the proposed change, but we cannot help feeling that the contemplated action, if taken, will be a blow to religion and good morals (far from the thought and purpose of the movers) from which Plainfield will not recover. We urge no personal convictions as to whether this or that form of amusement or bodily exercise on Sunday is or is not a violation of Divine commandment; but we are profoundly convinced that the consequences cannot but be vastly evil, if a large body of prominent citizens deliberately resolve to provide for any use of the Lord's Day which must tend to make it less esteemed as a day of worship and sacred rest. Whatever may have been and may continue to be the individual views and practise of its members, the club in its organic character has hitherto stood for Sabbath observance. We pray you, let not the tremendous weight of your concerted action now be thrown on the other side.

As your servants in religious word and work, we feel that we may appeal to you to take not a step which we believe will sadly weaken our hands. Give still to your ministers, to Sunday school teachers, to Christian parents, the help of your powerful influence against the rising tide of secularism, which already taxes the strength of the church as never before.

We recognize the caution with which you propose to proceed. We believe that you sincerely intend to guard against wild license of indulgences in the use of the liberty which you claim in the Sunday opening of the club house and grounds. But it remains true that the amendments, if adopted, will constitute a complete change of front on the subject involved, and will transfer the great force of your conspicuous example from the side of defence to the side of assault:

We shall be most glad and thankful if your consideration for the conscientious scruples and deep anxieties of multitudes of your fellow citizens may cause you to stand as you have stood in the past—to maintain as a club "the hedge" of the Lord's Day unbroken.

SPECIAL MEETING OF COMMON COUNCIL

NECESSITY FOR A SESSION NEXT WEEK.

It is quite likely that a special meeting of the Common Council will be held early next week, as there are several matters of importance to be decided. One of these is the petition of the Mono Investing Company for a permit to erect a storage warehouse on Fillmore avenue, which was presented the first of the month to Building Inspector Doane. He referred it to the fire and buildings committee and it was understood that a decision would be given at an adjourned meeting to be held on September 5. There being no quorum, no meeting was held, and the matter is still in the hands of the committee, while the company is anxious to go ahead with the work.

The contract has been awarded to a large New York firm, which will build the entire structure. The company is desirous of getting the foundations built before cold weather arrives. It is understood that the committee has acted favorably on the petition, and only Common Council action is necessary.

Another matter to be considered is the appointment of Frank Dunham as an assistant to the tax collector. He is now serving temporarily at the recommendation of the Board of Assessors, and it is hoped by that body that the Common Council will make the appointment permanent.

There are a number of other matters that were left over from the regular meeting which should be acted upon before the October session, and there is every reason to believe that a special meeting will be held within a few days.

SEASON OF MISSIONS FOR BAPTIST WOMEN

PARK AVENUE CHURCH ANNOUNCES PROGRAMME.

The members of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church have arranged an interesting programme of events to be held during the coming year at their various homes. The Foreign Missionary Society will take up the study of "Africa." On October 13 there will be held the smi-annual meeting of the Eastern Association, and commencing November 7 there will be a study of missions in Africa. The subject will be "Geography of Africa," and Mrs. A. E. Finn and Mrs. Thomas A. Cuming will be in charge.

The other subjects, leaders and dates for meetings are as follows:

December 5, "History of Africa," Mrs. C. K. Compton and Mrs. J. C. Morrison; January 2, "Peoples and Religions," Mrs. C. W. Tennant and Mrs. James Larue; February 6, "Condition of Women," Mrs. Nelson Runyon and Mrs. Von Brakle; March 13, annual meeting; April 3, "Christian Missions," Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson and Mrs. Harry Johnson; May 1, "Slavery and the Liquor Traffic," Mrs. Walter Freeman and Mrs. Frederick Dorman; June 5, "Medical Missions," Mrs. Harry Moore and Mrs. Shreve.

The Home Missionary Society has also arranged a programme of meetings for the study of home missions, and these will be held at the homes of the leaders as follows:

September 19, rally and roll call, Mrs. Charles Dayton; October 17, sewing meeting, Mrs. Charles Dayton and Mrs. Udell; November 21, "Settlement Work," Mrs. Walter Freeman and Mrs. Charles Stover; December 19, "Hawaiian Islands," Mrs. Wheaton Lowry and Mrs. Chamberlain; January 16, "Training School in Chicago," Mrs. George E. Hall and Mrs. Peter Wyckoff; February 20, "Recent Work Among the Indians," Mrs. S. Arthur Krom and Mrs. G. W. V. Moy; March 13, annual meeting; April 17, "Foreigners Within Our Gates," Mrs. Frank T. Ostrom and Mrs. A. D. Thompson; May 15, "Philippine Islands," Mrs. John H. Doane and Mrs. Harry Runyon; June 19, Missionary tea.

Co. K Meets for Drill.

Co. K will hold its first drill of the season on Monday night and a full attendance is desired. The members will also hold a business meeting to talk over plans for the fall and winter.

MARTY'S WINNING PLAY

Seventeen-Year-Old Plainfield Boy Takes Two Prizes At Fox Hills Links.

INTERESTED GALLERY

Finished Third in Yesterday's Golf Tournament—One Native Born "Pro" in the Contests.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the seventeen-year-old pro of the Plainfield Country Club, found a prominent place among the best golfers at the Fox Hills tournament yesterday, finishing a tie with John Hobens, of Englewood, with a total score of 303, for third place. He was the sensational scorer of the day. He played with the wisdom of a veteran and in the afternoon tied the record for the course with 72. This won $25, as the best afternoon score, and with a 75 in the morning, made the best two rounds of the day, which earned another $25. Anderson won the $25 for the best morning score, with 73. O'Loughlin's card brought him into a tie with John Hobens for third and fourth money.

In the morning O'Loughlin drove into the pond at the twelfth, but recovered by getting a 5. He lost a stroke on the fifteenth by foozling a brassy shot and took three puts on the seventeenth green. The incidents reveal the great pace he struck. He used a 44-inch shafted driver, and so did Anderson, for in the high wind the open champion thought he could control the ball better than with the 49-inch shaft. Smith stuck to his 51-inch club. O'Loughlin's score was 156, 147—303. The winner of the Anderson and Smith tie will receive $150 and the loser $100. The others divided and received their quotas in gold. O'Loughlin and Hobens halved third and fourth, $125.

Among those who finished in the unplaced division were David Patrick, Westfield, 161, 156—317; Robert Abbott, Plainfield, 172, 166—338; Joseph Sherman, Jr., Westfield, 176, 165—341. Frank O. Reinhart, who made a score of 171, 84, withdrew before completing his play.

EXPLOSION'S VICTIM DIES FROM INJURIES

LINCOLN GILES SUCCUMBS TO TERRIBLE WOUNDS.

Lincoln Giles, of 242 East Second street, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning as the result of injuries received in an explosion of gas in the cellar of Patrick Trainor's grocery store, Westfield, Tuesday night, September 5. His death was unexpected as he was believed to be steadily improving. During last night he had a turn for the worse and he passed away at 10 o'clock this morning.

The injured man had been employed as a clerk at Trainor's store and the night of the explosion he went to the cellar to get a tub of butter. He struck a light while still on the stairway and the explosion followed immediately. The side wall appeared to have been holding the gas as it escaped from a pipe and one section of it was demolished, causing a loss of $6,000.

Mr. Giles was born in New Market and was about forty years old. At one time he was in the milk business at Bound Brook. Afterward he moved here and at various times engaged in the bakery business on Park avenue, and in the West End. He also clerked for James Love, the West Front street grocer, and for three years run a bakery wagon for W. W. Warnock.

Mr. Giles is survived by a wife and three children.

Hot After Reynolds.

The police are making a determined effort to run down John Reynolds, the young man who disappeared from the East Fifth street boarding house Thursday evening with $200 worth of his fellow boarders' jewelry. Postal cards describing the stolen stuff will be sent to police departments and pawnshops all over this section. Advances made on the stolen stuff will be repaid.

Sportsmen Protect Game and Fish.

Game Waden G. M. Hawkins, of Elizabeth, was in Plainfield yesterday calling on friends, and incidentally left copies of the fish and game laws for 1905. Mr. Hawkins says that he finds very few violations of the laws, a majority of the fishermen and huntsmen being anxious to abide by them and thus help to preserve the sport.

CRITICIZE "CIT" SIGNERS

Regulars Say Those Who Voted Primary Act Improperly.

"RIDICULOUS," SAY CITS

Some of the Critics Believe Law Has Been Broken — Mr. Van-Winkle's and Mr. Honeyman's Views.

Among the signers of the call for the Citizens' meeting Monday night are several men, Democrats as well as Republicans, who are said to have voted at the primary election. Their affiliation with the independents has aroused the indignation of some of the regulars on both sides, who hold it is improper, at least, for them to vote at a party primary and then support an independent movement. Some of the critics hint that the action is illegal. The criticised citizens say the stand taken by the enemy is ridiculous.

Those who are attacked are Alburtus Swaim, Charles W. Harden, Andrew Love, Sr., John T. Case and John H. Van Winkle, Sr. The latter was interview in regard to the matter this morning.

"There is nothing improper, and most certainly nothing illegal, in my voting at the primary and joining in a citizens' meeting, and you know it; and so do they. It is a ridiculous charge."

Mayor Smalley does not believe the action is illegal, but he regards it as a very discreditable proceeding.

"It is only putty men who would do such a thing," he said. "It isn't illegal, I suppose, but the man who does that sort of thing doesn't know enough to know his own mind. Why, I can get an affidavit from one of the signers to the call that he is going to vote for me. He came to me voluntarily and pledged himself. He didn't know what he was signing."

The Press reporter asked A. V. D. Honeyman what his opinion was as to the propriety of signing two calls for nominating conventions, and he said:

"The Citizens' meeting is not a 'primary' under the law. It is a meeting of an independent body of citizens to consider what is best to do for the interest of the voters and taxpayers of their community. I have no more doubt that signers are as much within the scope of their legal and moral duty as citizens to call a meeting for a conference, to state their position on public affairs at that meeting, and to endorse certain nominations or to make new ones if they see fit, than I have that the sun shines and water runs. If I had voted at the Republican primary in the borough I should have also signed the call for a Citizens' meeting with no hesitation. I take for granted we yet live in a free country, where every voter is entitled to express his opinion upon public questions at a gathering called for that purpose, and that he is responsible therefor solely to his own conscience and not to any political bosses. Of course, the bosses don't like the aspect, and will set up a 'squeal,' but this is to be expected, and the more they 'squeal' the more it shows that their feelings are hurt. I want to see the bosses overthrown, and every means to bring it about is to be encouraged. Every good citizen will help along such a movement with pride."

MR. OWENS INCREDULOUS.

Young Man Said to Be Shrievalty Possibility Hasn't Heard of It.

John P. Owens, who is said to have been considered as a possible candidate for sheriff on the Democratic ticket by the leaders of the party in Elizabeth, does not appear to have heard anything about it. He looked incredulously at a Daily Press reporter who spoke of it this morning, and refused to believe that the newspaper man was not joking.

"Well, if the nomination was offered to you, would you accept it?" asked the reporter after vainly trying to make Mr. Owens believe his name had been mentioned in slate-making circles.

Mr. Owens continued to laugh.

"Oh, don't mention my name in connection with politics," he said.

"Well, but would you accept?" persisted the reporter.

Mr. Owens laughed again.

"Drop it," he said, "who would mentioned me for sheriff?"

TWO WIVES WANT ESTATE

Contest In Orphans' Court Exposes Millstone Man's Infidelity.

WHITMORE MUCH WED

Wife No. 1 Died and Now Father and Brother of Testator Fight Wife No. 2 for His Property.

A remarkable case of conjugal infidelity was exposed in the Somerset County Orphans' Court at Somerville yesterday. Shephen W. Whitmore, a well-to-do farmer, died at his home at Millstone about six months ago. He resided with a woman who supposed herself to be his wife. Her maiden name was Bona Koch. After his death she appeared before the Surrogate, claiming the right of administrator on Whitmore's estate.

The father and a brother of the dead man alleged that he was married to another woman at the time he wed Bona and that she was not his widow. Then they claimed they were entitled to the letters of administration. A hearing was given in the Orphans' Court at Somerville yesterday.

The evidence showed that the deceased was married in 1889 to a woman by the name of Hattie C. Green, at Middletown, N. Y. Several years later he married Bona Koch. Hattie C. Green, wife No. 1, died in Philadelphia about eight months after his last marriage.

At the time of her death Hattie Green, wife No. 1, was passing as the wife of another man, and was living with him in Philadelphia. There was other evidence of a spicy nature, indicating, it is said, that Whitmore was a pattern after Hoch, of Chicago, who had forty wives, and, it is said, that Bona Koch was one of Whitmore's innocent victims.

Whitmore's brother was present at his marriage to Bona Koch and, it is alleged, said nothing about the former wedding.

Next Friday the lawyers in the case will argue the matter and Judge Schenck will render his decision as to who is entitled to letters of administration.

ESPISCOPALIANS OPEN NEW PARISH HOUSE

GRACE CHURCH'S FINE BUILDING TO BE USED FIRST TIME TOMORROW.

The handsome new parish house of Grace church, now practically completed, will be used tomorrow for the first time when the Sunday school will meet in the new building. This structure, which cost about $20,000, is a model parish house, and has every modern improvement. The building is of gray stone, the same material used for Grace church, and the interior is a handsome hardwood finish.

The new building is provided with Sunday school rooms, the rector's study, a place for the colored mission, a thoroughly equipped and up-to-date kitchen and a modern heating plant. Charles M. Wilson was the contractor, and it is largely due to the earnest efforts of the rector, Rev. E. V. Stevenson, that the building was erected. With such a large and growing parish the needs of a better equipped parish house were apparent to Mr. Stevenson soon after he came here. He then started the movement which resulted in its construction.

CHURCH SOCIETY ACTIVE.

Warren Chapel Ladies' Aid Holds First Fall Meeting.

The first fall meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Warren chapel was held yesterday afternoon with forty members present. Plans for the coming season were discussed. It was decided to prepare a Christmas box for colored ministers in Pennsylvania, and to that end sewing meetings will be held at the chapel every Wednesday afternoon to make articles for the box. It was also decided to hold an all-day sewing meeting and luncheon on Wednesday, October 4.

Mrs. Joseph W. Gayett was in charge of the devotional services yesterday. The subject was Japan, and two papers were presented, one by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, on "The Religion of Japan," and another short paper by Mrs. William Demarest. Refreshments were served after the meeting and a social time enjoyed.

Sunday School Rally.

The Trinity Reformed church Sunday school will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, instead of in the morning. A Sunday school rally will be held.

SUNDAY GOLF MEANS EUROPEAN SABBATH

ISAAC L. MILLER JOINS IN PROTEST AGAINST COUNTRY CLUB PROPOSITION

In the following communication received today from Isaac L. Miller, the writer joins in the protest, against Sunday golf, made in these columns by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and William D. Murray:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Although not a member of the golf club, I desire as a resident for many years of Plainfield to add my protest to those of Dr. Chambliss and William D. Murray against the proposed opening of the links on Sunday afternoon.

I entertain great respect for the opinion of those, many of them my friends, who think otherwise, and would not have it thought for a moment that I arrogate to myself superior knowledge on the subject, or that I wish to assume the position of being more conscientious than those favoring the proposed change in the rules. Nevertheless, it seems to me that there is a prevailing tendency to disregard the sanctity of Sunday.

If I understand the matter correctly the proposed amendment does not look to the opening of the clubhouse as on other days of the week nor for the attendance of caddies, but it is greatly to be feared that the barriers now existing being removed, it will be merely a question of time before the usual accessories of dinner parties and other entertainments will be adopted thus converting Sunday into a gala day, closely resembling that of continental Europe, a condition of things which we would all deplore, and as it might be difficult to obtain the repeal of the proposed amendment, is not wise to allow the present condition of affairs to remain?

Y. M. C. A. DATE BOOK UNTIL NOVEMBER 1.

LIST OF EVENTS MAPPED OUT BY MR. MANNING.

Announcement is made by General Secretary J. H. Manning, of the Y. M. C. A., of a number of interesting events arranged to be held at the association building between now and the last of October. Tomorrow afternoon R. L. Ewing, of New York, will speak in the large hall on "The Young Men of India." There will be special vocal and instrumental music.

On Monday night a reception will be given to Charles A. Boardman, the new physical director. There will be an informal entertainment and refreshments will be served.

The evening gymnasium class will begin its work on Tuesday night, September 26, at 8:15 o'clock, and the following afternoon at 5:40 o'clock the business men's class in the gymnasium will open.

Sunday afternoon, October 1, at 4 o'clock, W. D. Murray will address the men's meeting on "The Value of Bible Study."

A reception to students in the educational department has been arranged for Monday night, October 2, at 8 o'clock, when an attractive programme will be presented. The Bible Study Department will open on Monday night, October 9, and on Monday night, October 16, at 8 o'clock will begin the sale of Star Course tickets. The course this winter promises to exceed that of any previous seasons and especially strong attractions will be brought here.

READY TO BUILD.

To Start on Twenty Dwellings on Monday.

Edwin Williams, a New York promoter, who plans the erection of twenty modern houses in the borough, says that he will break ground on Monday at Somerset street and Codington avenue, and that the work of construction will be rushed along. At present he has plans for twelve houses and the remaining eight will soon be completed.

Mr. Williams says that he has purchased the vacant lot adjoining the home of John G. McLaughlin, on Somerset street, and will erect a house there, and also another house at Westervelt and Summit avenues, where he says he has purchased a lot. The houses will be constructed chiefly of brick.

Barn Destroyed by Fire.

Frank Young's barn at Murray Hill, occupied by John Lovejoy, who kept his horses, harness, wagon and hay there, was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon, causing a loss of $300. The cause of the fire is a mystery. There was no insurance. The neighbors did all in their power to help Mr. Lovejoy, but the barn and contents were destroyed before the flames could be gotten under control.

WOODS ON PEACE UNION

Fourth District Congressman Tells Of Work Abroad.

IMPORTANT DUTIES

Proposition Made by American Delegates — Roosevelt's Name Applauded.

Congressman Ira W. Wood, of the Fourth New Jersey District, embracing Somerset, Warren and Mercer counties, who has been attending the Interparliamentary Peace Union, which has just closed its sessions at Brussels, tells in a letter of the work of the conference and the reception accorded the delegates. The Interparliamentary Peace Congress was an enthusiastic body. There were 180 delegates present. Every country of Europe, with the exception of Russia and Turkey, was represented. There were also present for the first time delegates from some of the South American republics. The American delegation included nineteen Congressmen—the largest representation that has ever come from the United States to any of the thirteen meetings of the Peace Union that have been held.

The sessions of the congress were held in the chamber of deputies of the Palais de la Nation, the legislative halls of the kingdom of Belgium. The stairways and corridors were tastefully decorated with palms and flowers in honor of the occasion, and all parts of the spacious and luxuriously furnished capitol were placed at the disposal of the congress. The deliberations of the congress covered two days, with morning and afternoon sessions each day. The proceedings of the conference were for the most part in the French language, but some of the more important resolutions and propositions were translated into English for the benefit of the American and English delegations.

The main business of the congress was the consideration of the two propositions submitted by the American group. One of these propositions related to the subject of general arbitration treaties for the settlement of international disputes and embraced a rough draft of such a treaty which had been prepared by President Bartholdt. The other proposition contemplated the establishment of an international congress, to be held periodically for the consideration of all international questions, and the codification of a system of international law which should be binding upon all the nations represented and for the enforcement of which the armed forces of all the signatory powers should be available.

The proposition proposed that their congress consist of a senate, in which each nation should be represented by two members, and a chamber of deputies, in which the representation should be proportionate to the amount of foreign commerce of the various nations interested. Both of these propositions were referred by a vote of the conference to a special commission to be appointed by the council, with instructions to report upon the same within three months.

It is somewhat remarkable and significant of the trend of public opinion in these modern times that these propositions of such a radical character and that might well be regarded in many quarters as revolutionary, should have received the formal consideration and action that were accorded them. Numerous receptions and excursions were given to the delegates and their families.

The name of President Roosevelt, whenever mentioned, was received with great enthusiasm. The role that he has played as peacemaker in the Japanese and Russian negotiations has not only centered upon him the attention of the world, but has made him one of the world's heroes.

The next meeting of the congress will be held at London in 1907.

Hunting Holdup Tramp.

Investigation of Leo Leek's story of a bold holdup on South avenue, in Fanwood, Thursday afternoon, has convinced the police that the lad told the truth. It was not believed probable at first that a tramp would stop the boy where he did in broad daylight, but corroborative facts have been found to support the story. A tramp answering Leo's description of the thief was seen in several places along the Central Railroad, and the officers are on his trail. Although the city police have nothing officially to do with the crime, Acting-Chief Frederickson is hunting the man down.

Campers' Reunion.

A reunion of the boys who went to the Y. M. C. A. camp this summer is to be held at the association on September 26. Final arrangements for the affair will be made this afternoon by Howard Freeman, Stuart Freeman, Walter Caldwell and Sidney Mackey.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

His friends in Dunellen are disappointed over H. S. Garretson's failure to become one of the five nominees for the county commission put up by the Republicans at the county convention. Mr. Garretson was regarded as a candidate for several months before the convention, and the delegates from the borough went down with the expectation of voting for him for the nomination. Something kinked the programme, however, and Mr. Garretson's name was not seriously considered. Still, this section is gratified that it is represented on the commission ticket in the person of Assessor Bunting. He will be enthusiastically supported by his neighbors and friends.

James Jackson, the colored lad found in possession of Daniel Gray's stolen bicycle, has been relieved of the suspicion of having stolen it. He showed the authorities a bill of sale for the wheel from a New Brunswick dealer, and Recorder Campbell has ordered the charge against him dismissed. The wheel, however, goes back to Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Flanders, of Highbridge, Pa., who lived in the borough ten years ago, visited some of their friends in New Market Thursday, while on their way to New York, where their residence will be in the future. Mr. Flanders has secured a responsible and highly lucrative position with a commission house there.

Mrs. W. J. Davis, of Ocean Park, Cal., a former resident of the village, will return home Monday after an extended stay with relatives in New Market. Mrs. C. T. Rogers and Mrs. W. C. Ackerman will accompany her to make a long visit in California.

Changes in the hours of worship will go into effect at the Presbyterian church tomorrow. Morning service will begin at 10:30 o'clock; Bible school will meet at 2:30 o'clock, and evening service will start at 7:30.

Wesley Skillman has started on a two weeks' vacation. He has completed his summer service on the Point Pleasant branch of the Central.

Clarence Whitford, who recently married a New York girl, is expected to visit his father, Dr. M. J. Whitford, on his wedding trip soon.

Entries are being received for a pool tournament to be started in two weeks in Alberts' pool room. A money prize will be offered.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Baptist church, will resume meetings tomorrow night, after the summer suspension.

It is expected that the Guild of Holy Innocents' church will reorganize for the fall next week.

The registry list contains 409 names, so far. This is about fifty less than last year.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle will occupy his pulpit at the Methodist church tomorrow.

The mission services at the Catholic church will come to a close tonight.

The wash set by the firemen for last night was postponed, without date.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A clever game was worked successfully at several houses Thursday by a fakir accompanied by a crippled boy. The cripple made a house to house canvass, begging for money. At the end of the block the man would meet and relieve him of the money given him by sympathizing housewives. The pair knew enough not to try the game in the village proper, for fear of arrest.

The registry list for the November election is larger this year than usual, numbering 325. Several more names will be added at the next meeting of the Board of Registry, and it is expected that the total registry this year will reach 330.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be: Sunday school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by the pastor, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15; evening sermon, 7:45.

Albert MacCauley has broken ground for a house on the corner of Stout and Westfield avenues. Several other houses will soon be under way in this part of town.

Mr. and Mrs. William Woods, of Taunton, Mass., are spending a week with Mrs. Woods' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Buckley, of Bartle avenue.

The work of cleaning up the debris of the Union avenue bridge, which was wrecked by the freshet of two weeks ago, is about finished.

The traveling public are beginning to register their annual fall kick over the open trolley cars, especially during the early morning hours.

A meeting of the Township Committee was held last night in the town rooms. Only the regular order of business was transacted.

Tickets for the benefit dance to Duncan Munroe, which will be held Thursday night of next week, are selling fast.

George Harper, a former old resident here, but now residing at Southport, L. I., has been visiting friends in town.

No improvement is noticed in the electric light service being given by the Public Service Corporation.

There will be dancing tonight at Rapp's pavilion. Music will be furnished by Naylor's orchestra.

Mrs. William Sharp is visiting relatives and friends in New York.

MAYOR COLLINS DIES SUDDENLY

THRICE MAYOR OF BOSTON; CONSUL GENERAL TO LONDON.

Boston, Sept. 16.—Mayor Patrick A. Collins died suddenly yesterday at Hot Springs, Va., where he had gone on his vacation. The announcement came in a telegram to Michael P. Curran, his private secretary, at city hall. It was from the Mayor's son, Paul Collins, and was simply as follows:

"Father died this morning. Will wire later."

In 1873-'74 Collins was chairman of the Democratic committee of Boston and was appointed judge advocate general of Massachusetts by Gov. Gaston in 1875. He went to Congress in 1882 and was re-elected in 1884 and in 1886 refused a third term, but was re-elected again. In 1888 he was made permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention.

Then came Collin's appointment as consul general to London, in which office he won no little fame and contributed no little amount to the honor of Americans in Great Britain. It was during this period, comprised between the years 1893 and 1897, that he made his famous answer to the British sneers regarding President Cleveland's good will to England. He had expressed that sentiment at the inaugural banquet in Hotel Cecil the night of May 4, 1896. He was facing what a dispatch termed "a rather impudent English audience" and his words elicited considerable groaning and "ironical laughter." He paused a moment in his speech and then said:

"There is no antagonism between the United States and any well-meaning state on earth. If the rest of the world understood the United States, as well as the United States understands the rest of the world, there would never be any danger to peace between my country and other nations."

Collins was elected mayor of Boston thrice, his re-election in December, 1903, being by a plurality of over 27,000, the largest plurality a candidate for that office had received up to that time.

Noted as an orator throughout the land he will be remembered in Democratic history as the man who made the magnificent speech seconding the nomination of Grover Cleveland for president in the convention of 1892.

Miss Sadie Hyler, of West Front street, is visiting Mrs. Clarence VanCleef, of South Branch.

Eugene O'Reilly, of North avenue, who has been very ill with dysentery, was able to be out yesterday for the first time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Newcorn, of West Front street, who have been in the south, are expected to return home tomorrow.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggsts or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane, and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to license inns and taverns and to regulate and prohibit the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors," approved February 10, 1892, as amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That said ordinance be amended by adding thereto a new section as follows, to wit:

Section 27. That in order to enable the Common Council more effectively to regulate the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors within said city as they deem most conducive to the public good, the place in which any applicant for license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, or for license to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors, under any of the preceding sections of this ordinance proposes to carry on his business under such license, is hereby required to be accurately set forth in the application for such license, and to be within the territory comprised within the following boundary lines, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the city line at Green brook distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet northeasterly from the center line of Watchung avenue; thence running southwesterly along said city line to the center line of Grove street; thence southeasterly along the center line of Grove street to the center line of West Front street; thence southwesterly along the center line of West Front street to a point distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly from the center line of Central avenue; thence southeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of Central avenue distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly therefrom to the tracks of the main stem of the Central Railroad of New Jersey as the same now lies; thence northeasterly along said tracks to a point on said tracks distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly from the center line of Park avenue; thence southeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of Park avenue and distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly therefrom to a point in said course distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southeasterly from the center line of West Fourth street; thence northeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of West Fourth street and East Fourth street and distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southeasterly therefrom to a point in said course and the projection thereof distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet northeasterly from the center line of Watchung avenue; thence northwesterly in a straight line to the point of beginning.

Provided, nevertheless, that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not prevent the granting of any renewal of any license lawfully in force at the time this section takes effect to the same person who shall have been the lawful holder of such license continuously from that time to the time of such renewal.

Adopted by the Common Council August 7, 1905.

And readopted September 5, 1905, notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor.

Attest: J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

To David Arthur, Jr., and Mrs. David Arthur, Jr., his wife:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein John F. McIntyre is complainant and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, demur or answer to the complainants bill on or before the sixteenth day of October next, or in default thereof, such decree will be made against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by David Arthur, Jr., to the complainants on lands in the Borough of North Plainfield, Somerset County, New Jersey, said mortgage dated June 11, 1900, and registered in he Clerk's office of Somerset County, in Book (V No. 4) of Mortgages for said County, on page 157, etc.

And you David Arthur, Jr., are made a defendant because you claim to own an interest in said mortgaged lands.

And you Mrs. David Arthur, Jr., are made a defendant because you are the wife of David Arthur, Jr., above named, and because you claim or may claim an inchoate right of dower in and to said mortgaged lands.

Dated, August 15, 1905.

INTER-STATE FAIR AT TRENTON.

September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29.

The great Inter-State Fair will be held on September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, on the Fair grounds, near Trenton, N. J., on the New York Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to the Fair grounds, including coupon of admission, at greatly reduced rates, from stations within a wide radius, and special trains over the New York, Belvidere and Amboy Divisions will be run through to the grounds, thus avoiding street-car transfer.

As in previous years, every department will be replete with superior and instructive displays. The blooded stock exhibit will be particularly fine, and the daily programme of races contains the speediest classes obtainable. The management of the Fair has put forth extraordinary efforts to make this year's exhibition even greater than last year's record-breaking display. 9 16 3 s w

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On September 17, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 9 13 td

It is now up to Westfield to defeat Summit and win the series with the Lackawanna League boys.

The West Ends, of Somerville, will play their last game of the season today with the Hopewell team.

"Phil," Smith, who pitches for Plainfield today, is not only considered a good twirler, but he is a good sticker as well.

Though defeated for the county championship, Westfield has many loyal supporters who will always stand by the management and the team.

The fact that Manager Daab is anxious to give "Phil." Smith an opportunity to pitch today, shows his local interest and he has the support of all loyal fans in his plans.

There should be a sufficient local pride to pack Crescent Oval this afternoon with loyal rooters. It is an excellent opportunity to see a good game with a local player in the line-up.

The Denmanites have won one game since they began playing with the Daabsters, nearly two months ago. No wonder Westfield feels the blow. Things were not like that in olden days.

There are three heavy hitters on the Westfield team—Bertwhistle, Wall and Robertson, yet they have not been able to bring their team to victory. Last week Robertson failed to get a hit.

Comparing the Plainfield and Westfield teams in hitting, Manager Denman must admit that the Daabsters are much the stronger man for man. The eighth inning in the last contest proved this.

At the beginning of the series, Manager Denman felt too confident of winning the series, and even went so far as to say that in only one or two respects did the Plainfield aggregation distance his team.

The Westfield Standard of this week arises to remark editorially as follows: "The baseball pennant will go to Plainfield. It is not good taste for losers to enumerate reasons why. Westfield accepts the situation as it is, knowing she has played a fast and furious team, but the end of the next year's season will see the bunting back in town, recaptured by as fine a line of ball as these parts ever saw."

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Joe Pointer, 2.05¼, is now in the stable of Walter Cox.

The pacer Bolivar is the standby of the Butler stable so far this season.

The new half-mile track at Monroe, Mich., was inaugurated with a matinee.

It is reported that Albany, N. Y., will be a candidate for grand circuit honors next season.

S. S. Blackburn is reported to have recently refused an offer of $7,000 for The Friend, 2.05¼.

Delight, by Allerton, has been a workout mile in 2.15 for Joe Thayer at the Lexington (Ky.) track.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Fairy Tales for Children, Part I.

Aesop.—Fables.

Andersen, Hans Christian—Stories and fairy tales.

"It is out of the question to criticise Hans Christian Andersen—is he not the personal friend of the children of the world?"

Asbjornsen, P. C. —Fairy tales from the far North.

"In Asbjornsen's tales the English reader will find in its quintessence the genius and temper of the Norwegian peasant."

Aulnoy, M. C.—Fairy tales.

"The spirit of the stories is essentially characteristic, as we read them we seem to move and live inside a Watteau picture."

Bain, R. N., comp.—Cossack fairy tales and folk-tales.

Bain, R. N., comp.—Russian fairy tales, from the Shazki of Pelevei.

Baldwin, James.—Story of the golden age.

"Grecian myths and legends charmingly remolded and woven into a continuous story with the life of Ulysses for the main thread."

Baldwin, James.—Story of Roland.

"The legends of Charlemagne become under Mr. Baldwin's magic touch a fairy tale of romance and chivalry."

Baldwin, James.—Story of Siegfried.

"Mr. Baldwin has given to the Siegfried and other myths the attractive weirdness of the northern light."

Carryl, C. E.—Admiral's caravan.

Carryl, C. E.—Davy and the goblin; or, what followed reading Alice's adventures in Wonderland.

Craik, Mrs. D. M. M.—Fairy book; the best popular fairy stories selected and rendered anew.

Dodgson, C. L. (Lewis Carroll.—Alice's adventures in Wonderland.

"The most delightful o fall nonsense books and one that has already become a classic. Every child should know it by heart."

Dodgson, C. L. (Lewis Carroll.)—Through the looking glass, and what Alice found there.

Gibbon, J. M. and Canton, W.—True annals of fairy land.

Griffis, W. E.—Japanese fairy world; stories from the wonder-lore of Japan.

"Told in a simple manner fit for children."

"The brothers Grimm, the famous folk-loriats and philologists have given to two generations of children an endless variety of German fireside tales."

Hauff, William. —Fairy tales, from the German.

Hawthorne, Nathaniel.—Wonder-book for girls and boys.

"No praise can be too high for the purely classical, and simple joyous style in which these old Greek myths are retold."

SLEW BOY; EXONERATED.

Thief's Two Companions, Inmates of Reformatory, Give Testimony.

The inquest in the case of Joseph Zarritch, the boy who was accidentally shot and killed by Edward W. Jewett, a stationer, of Main avenue, Passaic, was held in that city yesterday.

The boy was shot after he had entered the stationery store through a transom. Several previous attempts had been made to rob the store, and Mr. Jewett was sleeping, August 20, in a room back of it to guard his property, when he was aroused by a noise.

Armed with a revolver, he came upon young Zarritch. In the struggle that followed the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet entered the boy's mouth and inflicted a fatal wound.

At the inquest Stephen Herina and George Durack, the twelve-year-old boys who were arrested as accomplices of Zarritch, testified to the many robberies in which they and Zarritch had been concerned. They alleged that Zarritch was the ring-leader.

The jury found the shooting was accidental. Herina and Durack have been sentenced to the Reformatory.

Slander Caused Suicide.

New York, Sept. 16.—"It was a slanderous report that drove my child to her death," said Lorenzo D. Berry, a boss carpenter of West Medford, a suburb of Boston, yesterday, after he had identified the body of the young woman who shot herself at the Hotel Manhattan on Wednesday, under the name of "Miss A. W. Wildey, of Washington," as that of his daughter, Ellen Berry.

Mrs. H. G. Lapsley, Howard Lapsley, her son, and Miss Josephine Lapsley, who have been spending the summer abroad, have just completed a coaching trip through England.

Small wonder that Roosevelt takes so much interest in insurance matters. Legislative investigation shows that the New York Life gave $50,000 towards his election.

In another column we publish a letter addressed by the ministers of Plainfield and North Plainfield to the Country Club relating to the proposition to allow open house and play on the links on Sundays. The protest coming as it does from ministers of the gospel should, and will undoubtedly, command the thoughtful attention of every member of that influential organization. Sunday golf opens the door for Sunday baseball and all other sports and is a dangerous precedent to be set by a body of people representing the best type of citizens and Christians. The Daily Press joins the clergy of the city in their plea against any change in the club's constitution or rules which would bring about the suggested innovation.

AGED ENGINEER INJURED.

Elizabeth, Sept. 16.—Benjamin Moore, said to be the oldest railroad engineer on duty in the United States, was severely injured Thursday afternoon in the yard of the New Jersey Central Railroad shops at Elizabethport, by falling off the tender of a drill engine which he runs at the shops. Two of his ribs were fractured by the tumble and he was also hurt internally. Because of his advanced age, seventy-six years, he may not pull through.

He has been an engine driver for the Central Railroad for fifty-five years and resides at Roselle. Until advancing years caused him to grow feeble, he ran passenger trains over the Central's main line. He is probably one of the best known railroad men in the country.

FRAUD ORDER ISSUED.

Huestis & Co. Named by Postoffice Department.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Through the complaint of B. H. Warren, Commissioner of Agriculture of Pennsylvania, submitted by Senator Boise Penrose, the Postoffice Department has issued a fraud order against "Huestis & Co.," of Jersey City.

This firm advertised to "make a pound of good butter from a pint of milk and only a teaspoonful of our preparation."

Charles Huestis, a young man about twenty-six years old, was getting a dollar from each of the farmers who answered the advertisement. Besides not obtaining the wonderful results promised, the farmers were inviting trips to the "pen" on the charge of adulterating butter.

A Peculiar Robbery.

Elizabeth, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Reider, who lives at 616 East Jersey street, complained to the police authorities yesterday that her house had been entered and about $20 worth of goods taken. Police Chief Tenney, after making an investigation, informed the reporters that the crime, in his judgment, was committed by a member of the family. Unless a specific charge is made by the woman against the suspected party, who, the chief says, is a female, the police will take no further action in the affair, which they believe to be the outcome of a family quarrel.

No More Convict Mail Bags.

Trenton, Sept. 16.—The inmates of the State prison have stopped making mail bags, because of the law prohibiting the use of convict labor on Government contracts. A local factory, employing 100 persons, has taken up the work.

Serve for the Honor.

Plainfield is one of the eleven cities where the members of the Board of Aldermen serve without salary. East Orange, which is about the same size as Plainfield, paid $5,690 in salaries to its aldermen last year, the members being paid at the rate of $2 for every board or committee meeting they attend. Now East Orange is considering an ordinance to put the aldermen on the salary basis, as they are in this city, paying them $300 a year. We pay $200 a year.—New Brunswick Home News.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Grand mission at Washington Hall, South Plainfield, will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. All are invited to attend the lectures given by the Paulist Fathers, of New York City. Mission exercises every day, both morning and evening. The mission will last one week. Lectures free to all. An interesting feature of the mission will be the "question box," and any question put into it at the door of the church, by those who attend, will be answered publicly each evening, in a clear and charitable manner. Only questions that pertain to religion, to the doctrines and practises of the Catholic church, to moral and spiritual affairs of general interest, will be answered. Every one, Catholic or non-Catholic, is free to ask questions. The questions should be written plainly and put into the "question box" at the door of the church. No signature is required. All are welcome. A splendid opportunity to here what the Catholic church really teaches and what she does not teach, a charitable explanation of plain facts for fair minds, pertaining to the all-important questions of eternal salvation.

The Rev. T. E. Vassar, of Newark, will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church tomorrow morning in exchange with the pastor. Services in the evening as usual, with preaching by the pastor. Christian Endeavor service at 7 p. m.

Miss Ethel Thorne, of North Long Branch, is visiting her uncle, O. E. Thorne.

IN SOMERSET COURT.

Miss Suydam's Assailant Pleads Guilty.

In the Somerset County Criminal Court at Somerville yesterday Francis Smith was arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty to criminally assaulting Margaret D. Suydam, of Franklin Park. Sentence was suspended for one week.

Nelson G. Taylor, charged with taking a horse from Jacob L. Hoagland at Harlingen, was also arraigned on allegation, and pleaded not guilty. E. P. Johnson was assigned to defend him.

Miss Elizabeth Long Weds.

A number of Plainfielders attended the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Long, of Somerville, a niece of Dr. M. B. Long, and Harry Sampson Crouch, of New Brunswick, in the marine room of the Hotel Astor, Thursday. Rev. A. B. Sears, pastor of the Livingston Avenue Baptist church, New Brunswick, performed the ceremony. Miss Clara Long, daughter of Dr. Long, was bridesmaid. The bride is well known here. Mr. and Mrs. Crouch will spend their honeymoon in Old Point Comfort. They will live in New Brunswick.

Miss Holcombe's Promotion.

Miss Annie Laurie Holcombe, a former teacher in the North Plainfield High School, sails today on the steamer Caracas for San Juan, Porto Rico. She has accepted a position as critic teacher in the Normal School at Rio Piedras. School opens there on September 25, and closes in June, with the same holidays we have here. The best wishes of Miss Holcombe's many friends go with her.

Jersey Jurist's Son Buys Newspaper.

Lakewood, Sept. 16.—Leslie R. Fort, son of Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, of East Orange, has bought the Lakewood Times and Journal from Henry H. CENTRAL EMPLOYE IS PLACED UNDER ARREST

CONFIDENTIAL CLERK IN ELIZABETH FREIGHT TRANSFER STATION ACCUSED

Elizabeth, Sept. 16.—William H. Walsh, a confidential clerk and bookkeeper for the Jersey Central at the company's freight transfer station here, was arraigned as a prisoner in police court yesterday on a charge of obtaining money from the company under false pretenses. The complaints against him were made by Edward E. Keerwin, of Elizabeth, a division superintendent of the company, who was backed up in his allegations by William R. Bennett, general freight agent of the Central at Elizabeth and vicinity.

The specific complaints against Walsh are that he deliberately falsified the pay roll and credited mythical employes with having earned certain amounts, for which checks were made out and cashed at Elizabeth and Newark, and that Walsh afterward obtained the money paid on all these checks and converted it to his own use. He pleaded guilty to all the charges.

Judge Mahon said he could not take bail on the charges. This would have to be offered in the Court of Common Pleas, which would fix the amount of bail. Meanwhile Walsh is being held as a prisoner at police headquarters.

The amounts said to have been obtained by Walsh were as follows: Check for $16.45, made payable to James Caperon and cashed at Newark June 20; one for $6.39, made payable to William Siplo and cashed at Elizabethport by John Wall; a check for $33.77, made out to John Harris and cashed in August at Elizabethport by J. J. Jones. It was intimated by the railroad officials that there are more of Walsh's pilferings to be exposed. The prisoner is a well-groomed and prosperous looking man. He is about forty years old, and has been several years in the company's employ.

The attorney for the railroad was present and all the parties had a conference with Chief Tenny and Police Judge Mahon in the chief's private office before Walsh was formally arraigned. The prisoner was regarded as Freight Agent Bennett's right-hand man at the transfer station here, and had full charge of the business whenever Captain Bennett was absent.

PRINTERS ARE FIRM.

Both Sides Express Satisfaction with Conditions.

That the differences between the Newark job printers and the striking compositors, who are fighting for an eight-hour workday, will resolve themselves into a long-drawn-out contention, was indicated by the stand taken by both sides yesterday.

"We do not intend to make a single concession," said William A. Baker, president of the local Typothetae, speaking for the bosses.

"We are satisfied with the situation and think we will win out," said Edward Ashton, president of local Typographical Union No. 103, in expressing the sentiments of the strikers.

One more shop, not in the Typothetae, and in which only one man is affected by the strike, has signed the agreement for the eight-hour day. Those shops which belong to the employers' association, however, have not as yet taken any steps toward an agreement. Mr. Baker said yesterday that he and other employing printers were getting all the labor they needed, and that so far as the Typothetae is concerned no effort will be made to effect an agreement on the basis set forth in the strikers' demands. The employes claim, however, that help is not so plentiful as the bosses say it is.

Lord Roberts Isn't Coming.

London, Sept. 16.—Field Marshal Lord Roberts' visit to America has been postponed and will not be made this year. He received an invitation to address the annual meeting of the Board of Trade while in New York, to which he replied regretting that he is compelled to postpone his visit on account of official and other engagements not permitting him to leave England at the time he expected to cross the Atlantic.

State Liquor Dealers.

The New Jersey State Liquor Dealers' Association at its annual convention held at Paterson elected these officers: President, Thomas C. Hayes, Newark; vice president, George T. Carroll, Elizabeth; second vice president, Henry D. Reaves, Passaic; secretary, William J. Burke, Orange; financial secretary, Albert Cast, Hoboken; treasurer, C. C. Engle, Trenton; sergeant-at-arms, Robert Mulligan, Bayonne.

Baptists' State Convention.

Preparations have been begun for the annual Baptist State Convention to be held in Elizabeth in October. It is announced that 250 or 300 delegates will be in attendance from various parts of the State. This will be the first time in the history of the Baptist denomination its State convention has been held in Elizabeth, and a generous welcome will be extended.

Charles A. Reed, of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, will return home today from a week's business trip.

AMUSEMENTS.

Charles H. Greene, the manager of "Marching Through Georgia," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight, was making the trip from Alpena to Bay City, Mich., last season. His company was to open with a matinee and the train was about an hour late and steadily losing more time. Mr. Green knew there would be a splendid matinee in Bay City and was in a hurry so as not to keep the audience waiting. The train was making about forty miles an hour, but it seemed to be the slowest train on earth. Mr. Greene told the conductor what he thought of a road that couldn't retain its schedule. The conductor took his remarks as a personal insult and told Mr. Greene if he didn't like the speed of the train he could get out and walk. Mr. Greene, never known to be at a loss for a word, quickly replied, "I would, only they don't expect us until this train gets in."

Willette Kershaw,
Leading Woman in
"Marching Through Georgia."

Lew Fields' big company of comedians and singers and show girls continues to thrive at Mr. Fields' sumptuous theatre on West 42d street. "It Happened in Nordland," the marvellously successful musical comedy by Victor Herbert and Glen MacDonough, which enjoyed a run of more than 200 nights last winter, is still proving a powerful magnet with the public. This is indicated by the fact that it will remain in evidence throughout the season now opening. Mr. Fields himself has positively the best part in his extended career in New York in the role of the lost boy, and he plays it with the admirable unction that marks him as a character actor of exceptional ability. Miss Blanche Ring, the well known comedienne, who is the principal newcomer in the organization this season, brings to the role of Queen Elsa in "It Happened in Nordland," a charming personality as well as a delightful talent, and accordingly makes a capital coworker with Mr. Fields. Harry Fisher as Baron Sparta, the Prime Minister, has made an extraordinary comedy hit; Miss Grace Field has all the prettiness and pertness any one could ask for in the soubrette role; and such widely known performers as Harry Davenport, Joseph Herbert, Joseph Carroll, Gertrude Whitty, Julius Steger, Mona Desmond, William Burress and Pauline Frederick are notable figures in what may be termed an all-star cast.

"Checkers'" promised engagement here will be played at the New Plainfield theatre Monday, September 18. The company comes here direct from its ninth engagement played in New York City within two years. And by the way of showing the grip the play has on theatregoers of that city, it will return to New York soon to play engagements at four New York theatres. It will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre with the original company with the exception of Hans Robert, whom the management succeeded in securing for the title role.

Hans Robert

Manager Counihan makes the welcome announcement of a production here of "A Message from Mars," the much heralded comedy written by an hitherto unknown American, Richard Ganthony. It scored a two years' run in London and a two seasons' success at the Garrick in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dickson and children, of this city, have been visiting relatives at Willow Grove.

To Sarah J. French, Mary Louise French Smith, Sarah Margaret Shepard, Henrietta Whitney, George H. Whitney, Louis M. French, Roxanna D. French, Harriet A. French, Elston M. French, William A. French and David H. French:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that Mountain Water Company has paid into the Court of Chancery the sum of Fifteen Hundred Dollars ($1,500.00), the amount awarded to you by Commissioners appointed by the Honorable J. Franklin Fort, Justice of the Supreme Court of this State, as damages caused by the partial diversion of waters of the brook known as Green Brook by said Mountain Water Company from lands belonging to you, the parties interested in said award not having been able to agree as to the distribution thereof, said money having been paid under a petition filed in said Court of Chancery by Mountain Water Company, praying that said monies might be distributed according to law by the said Court of Chancery.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

To brighten a shabby carpet put a teacupful of vinegar into a pail of warm water, and wash the carpet entirely over with a cloth rung out of the vinegar and water. Of course this washing must be preceded by a careful brushing, and the carpet must merely be made damp. When the whole has been rubbed over, let it get quite dry, if possible, before it is walked over.

To clean rust from irons rub them with sweet oil, and leave them, with enough oil to soak into the rust, till the next day; then rub off the rust with unslaked lime, says the Philadelphia Telegraph. Remember that deeply rusted steel will never regain its original polish, so that it is a good plan to look at steel articles which are not in frequent use at least once a month, and to have them cleaned if necessary.

A successful way to remove grease marks from books is to sponge the soiled leaf carefully with benzine and tnen put it between two sheets of blotting paper, and pass a hot flat-iron over it.

If you want to know whether eggs are fresh, put them one at a time into a basin of cold water. If they remain at the bottom they are all right, if they float they are of doubtful freshness, and if they float at the top they are certainly bad.

If a lamp wick sticks and cannot be readily turned up or down, try pulling out a thread at each edge. This will generally remedy the matter without further trouble.

To clean oily bottles put a few strips of blotting paper in the same bottle with a little vinegar and the same quantity of warm water. Then add a piece of washing soda, shake a few times, and after removing the paper, rinse in warm water.

CUTTING BREAD.

Cutting bread has ever been a trial to many housewives. It is too easy to get the slices too thick or too thin; besides the danger of cutting oneself instead of the bread. But now a person has come forward with an arrangement that looks very much as though it will do away with the old troubles. To a wooden board about ten inches long and six inches wide is attached a metal frame, perhaps an inch from one end. In this is a slit, through both sides, wide enough to hold a bread knife. The wooden slab has a groove on a line with this slit, to receive the knife when cutting the bread. Next to this groove is the little piece of tin; so bent and arranged that it can be slid back and forth and regulate the thickness of the slice. The end of the loaf rests against this, and is kept in place by it. Quite simple, isn't it? And I'm told it works quite as well as it ought to. At that rate it will not be long before there is one in every home.

SHORT SKIRTS WORN ABROAD.

Many American women are distressed because, judging by their experience in Europe last year, when there was "nothing doing" in the way of short skirts, they decided not to put many such costumes in their trunks this season. Now news comes from Carlsbad and other equally fashionable watering places that short skirts have received fashion's sanction and are much worn during the daytime. The physicians abroad have become rabid on the subject, and there is some talk of a police ordinance against the wearing of trains. It is a good thing for the reformers that fashion stands in with them, for otherwise the talk about cutting off women's skirts would probably not be taken in a serious light, and women would refuse to be deprived of their flounces.

Omelet Celestine.

Whip three tablespoons of quince jelly and one tablespoon of whipped cream to a froth and lightly stir in six macaroons crushed to a powder. Make a plain omelet, faintly sweetened and flavored with almond extract. Cook to the folding point, spread with the jelly mixture, fold as directed in preceding recipes and slip to a heated plate. Garnish the top with whipped cream and crystalized cherries.

Pepper Catsup.

Cut into small pieces four dozen red peppers, adding a quart each of cider vinegar and cold water, two grated roots of horse radish, six chopped onions, two tablespoons of mustard seed and one of salt. Allow the catsup to boil gently for about ten minutes and then stir in one cup of brown sugar, letting it cook for one hour longer. Thin slightly with tarragon vinegar and bottle cold.

Peach Marmalade.

If you have a quantity of poor peaches among the good ones, use thes for marmalade. Cut them up, and, if ripe enough, press through a potato ricer or mash fine with a silver spoon. Add an equal amount of sugar to the pulp, the juice of one lemon, and a dozen peach kernels. Cook very slowly half an hour, stirring frequently to prevent burning.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

Obermuller took it and tore it open. He smiled the oddest smile as he read it, and he threw back his head and laughed a full, hearty bellow when he got to the end.

"Read it, Nance," he said, passing it over to me. "They sent it on from the office."

I read it.

"Mr. Fred W. Obermuller, Manager Vaudeville Theater, New York City, N. Y.

"Dear Obermuller: I have just learned from your little protegee, Nance Olden, of a comedy you've written. From what Miss Olden tells me of the plot and situations of 'And the Greatest of These'—your title's great—I judge the thing to be something altogether out of the common; and my secretary and reader, Mr. Mason, agrees with me that properly interpreted and perhaps touched up here and there, the comedy ought to make a hit.

"Would Miss Olden take the leading role, I wonder?

"Can't you drop in this evening and talk the matter over? There's an opening for a fellow like you with us that's just developed within the past few days, and—this is strictly confidential—I have succeeded in convincing Braun and Lowenthal that their enmity is a foolish personal matter which business men shouldn't let stand in the way of business. After all, just what is there between you and them? A mere trifle; a misunderstanding that half an hour's talk over a bottle of wine with a good cigar would drive away.

"If you're the man I take you for you'll drop in this evening at the Van Twiller and bury the hatchet. They're good fellows, those two, and smart men, even if they are stubborn as sin.

"Counting on seeing you to-night, my dear fellow, I am most cordially,

"I. M. TAUSIG."

I dropped the letter and looked over at Obermuller.

"Miss Olden," he said, severely, coming over to my side of the table, "have you the heart to harm a generous soul like that?"

"He—he's very prompt, isn't he, and most—"

And then we laughed together.

"You notice the letter as marked personal?" Obermuller said. He was still standing beside me.

"No—was it?" I got up, too, and began to pull on my gloves; but my fingers shook so I couldn't do a thing with them.

"Oh, yes, it was. That's why I showed it to you. . . . Nance—Nance, don't you see that there's only one way out of this? There's only one woman in the world that would do this for me, and that I could take it from."

I clasped my hands helplessly. Oh, what could I do, Maggie, with him there, and his arms ready for me!

"I—I should think you'd be afraid," I whispered. I didn't dare look at him.

He caught me to him, then.

"Afraid you wouldn't care for an old fellow like me?" he laughed. "Yes, that's the only fear I had. But I lost it, Nancy, Nancy Obermuller, when you hung that paper down before me. That's quite two hours ago—haven't I waited long enough?"

Oh, Mag—Mag, how can I tell him? Do you think he knows that I am going to be good—good! that I can be as good for a good man who loves me, as I was bad for a bad man I loved!

CHAPTER XVII.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Maggie, dear: I'm writing to you just before dinner, while I wait for Fred. He's down at the box office looking up advance sales. I tell you, Monahan, we're strictly in it—we Obermullers. That Broadway hit of mine has preceded me here, and we've got the town, I suspect, in advance.

But I'm not writing to tell you this. I've got something more interesting to tell you, my dear old Cruelty chum.

I want you to pretend to yourself that you see me, Mag, as I came out of the big Chestnut street store this afternoon, my arms full of bundles. I must have on that long coat to my heels, of dark, warm red, silk-lined, with the long, incurving back sweep and high chinchilla collar, that Fred ordered made for me the very day we were married. I must be wearing that jolly little, red-cloth toque caught up on the side with some of the fur.

Oh, yes, I knew I was more than a year behind the times when I got them, but a successful actress wears what she pleases, and the rest of the world wears what pleases her, too. Besides, fashions don't mean so much to you when your husband tells you how becoming—but this has nothing to do with the bishop.

Yes, the bishop, Mag!

I had just said, "Nance Olden—" To myself I still speak to me as Nancy Olden; it's good for me, Mag; keeps me humble and forever grateful that I'm so happy. "Nance, you'll never be able to carry all these things and lift your buful train, too. And there's never a hansom round when it's snowing and—"

And then I caught sight of the carriage. Yes, Maggie, the same fat, low, comfortable, elegant, sober carriage, wide and well-kept, with rubber-tired wheels. And the two heavy horses, fat and elegant and sober, too, and wide and well-kept. I knew whose it was the minute my eyes lighted on it, and I couldn't—I just couldn't resist it.

The man on the box—still wide and well-kept—was wide-awake this time. I nodded to him as I slipped in and closed the door after me.

"I'll wait for the bishop," I said, with a red-coated assurance that left him no alternative but to accept the situation respectfully.

"Oh dear, dear! It was soft and warm inside as it had been that long, long ago day. The seat was wide and roomy. The cushions had been done over—I resented that—but though a different material, they were a still darker plum. And instead of "Quo Vadis," the bishop had been reading "Resurrection."

I took it up and glanced over it as I sat there; but, you know, Mag, the heavy-weight plays never appealed to me. I don't go in for the tragic—perhaps I saw too much of the real thing when I was little.

At any rate, it seemed dull to me, and I put it aside and sat there absent-mindedly dreaming of a little girl-thief that I knew once when—when the handle of the door turned and the bishop got in, and we were off.

Oh, the little bishop—the contrast between him and the fat, pompous rig caught me! He seemed littler and leaner than ever, his little white beard scantier, his soft eye kindlier, and his soft heart—

"God bless my soul!" he exclaimed, jumped almost out of his neat little boots, while he looked sharply over his spectacles.

What did he see? Just a red-coated ghost dreaming in the corner of his carriage. It made him doubt his eyes—his sanity. I don't know what he'd have done if that warm red ghost hadn't got tired of dreaming, and laughed outright.

"Daddy," I murmured, sleepily.

Oh, that little ramrod of a bishop! The blood rushed up under his clear, thin, baby-like skin and he sat up straight and solemn and awful—awful as such a tiny bishop could be.

"I fear, miss, you have made a mistake," he said, primly.

I looked at him steadily.

"You know I haven't," I said, gently.

That took some of the starch out of him, but he eyed me suspiciously.

"Why don't you ask me where I got the coat, Bishop Van Wagenen?" I said, leaning over to him.

He started. I suppose he'd just that moment remembered my leaving it behind that day at Mrs. Ramsay's.

"Lord bless me!" he cried, anxiously. "You haven't—you haven't again—"

"No, I haven't." Ah, Maggie, dear, it was worth a lot to me to be able to say that "no" to him. "It was given to me. Guess who gave it to me."

He shook his head.

"My husband!"

Maggie Monahan, he didn't even blink. Perhaps in the bishop's set husbands are not uncommon, or very likely they don't know what a husband like Fred Obermuller means.

"I congratulate you, my child, or—or did it—were you—"

"Why, I'd never seen Fred Obermuller then," I cried. "Can't you tell a difference, bishop?" I pleaded. "Don't I look like a—an imposing married woman now? Don't I seem a bit—oh, just a bit nicer?"

His eyes twinkled as he bent to look more closely at me.

"You look—you look, my little girl, exactly like the pretty, big-eyed, wheedling-voiced child I wished to have for my own daughter."

I caught his hand in both of mine.

"Now, that's like my own, own bishop!" I cried.

Mag—Mag, he was blushing like a boy, a prim, rather scared little schoolboy that somehow, yet—oh, I knew he must feel kindly to me! I felt so fond of him.

"You see, Bishop Van Wagenen," I began softly, "I never had a father and—"

"Bless me! But you told me that day you had mistaken me for—for him."

The baby! I had forgotten what that old Edward told me—that this trusting soul actually still believed all I'd told him. What was I to do? I tell you, Mag, it's no light thing to get accustomed to telling the truth. You never know where it'll lead you. Here was I—just a clever little lie or two and the dear old bishop would be happy and contented again. But no; that fatal habit that I've acquired of telling the truth to Fred and you mastered me—and I fell.

MY ARMS FULL OF BUNDLES.

"You know, bishop," I said, shutting my eyes and speaking fast to get it over—as I imagine you must, Mag, when you confess to Father Phelan—"that was all a—a little farce-comedy—the whole business—all of it—every last word of it!"

"A comedy!"

I opened my eyes to laugh at him; he was so bewildered.

"I mean a—a fib; in fact, many of them. I—I was just—it was long ago—and I had to make you believe—"

His soft old eyes looked at me unbelieving. "You don't mean to say you deliberately lied!"

Now, that was what I did mean—just what I did mean—but not in that tone of voice.

But what could I do? I just looked at him and nodded.

Oh, Maggie, I felt so little and so nasty! I haven't felt like that since I left the Cruelty. And I'm not nasty, Maggie, and I'm Fred Obermuller's wife, and—

And that put a backbone in me again. Fred Obermuller's wife just won't let anybody think worse of her than she can help—from sheer love and pride in that big, clever husband of hers.

"Now, look here, Bishop Van Wagenen," I broke out, "if I were the abandoned little wretch your eyes accuse me of being I wouldn't be in your carriage confessing to you this blessed minute when it'd be so much easier not to. Surely—surely, in your experience you must have met girls that go wrong—and then go right for ever and ever, amen. And I'm very right now. But—but it has been hard for me at times. And at those times—ah, you must know how sincerely I mean it—at those times I used to try to recall the sound of your voice, when you said you'd like to take me home with you and keep me. If I had been your daughter you'd have had a heart full of loving care for me. And yet, if I had been, and had known that benevolent fatherhood, I should need it less—so much less than I did the day I begged a prayer from you. . . . But—it's all right now. You don't know—do you?—I'm Nance Olden."

That made him sit up and stare, I tell you. Even the bishop had heard of Nancy Olden. But suddenly, unaccountably, there came a queer, sad look over his face, and his eyes wouldn't meet mine.

I looked at him, puzzled.

"Tell me what it is," I said.

"You evidently forget that you have already told me you are the wife of Mr.—Mr. Ober—"

"Obermuller. Oh, that's all right." I laughed aloud. I was so relieved. "Of course I am, and he's my manager, and my playwright, and my secretary, and—my—my dear, dear boy. There!" I wasn't laughing at the end of it. I never can laugh when I try to tell what Fred is to me.

But—funny?—that won him.

"There! there!" he said, patting me on the shoulder. "Forgive me, my dear. I am indeed glad to know that you are living happily. I have often thought of you—"

"Oh, have you?"

"Yes—I have even told Mrs. Van Wagenen about you and how I was attracted to you and believed—ahem!"

"Oh—oh, have you!" I gave a wriggle as I remembered that Maltese lace Maria wanted and that I—ugh!

Memorial for Brunswick Church.

New Brunswick, Sept. 16.—Two stained glass windows have been presented by Miss Emilie Smith Coles, of New York, to the First Reformed church, of this city. One is in memory of the three uncles of Miss Coles, who were George, Warren and John Harvey Ackerman, sons of Jonathan Combs Ackerman and Maria Smith. The window represents "The Ascension." The second in memory of the aunts of Miss Coles, who were Jane Combs Ackerman Bucknell and Mary Smith Ackerman Hoyt, daughters of Jonathan Combs Ackerman and Maria Smith. The subject of this window is "The Resurrection."

Bridegroom, 78; Bride, 70.

New Brunswick, Sept. 16.—That Cupid is no respecter of age was clearly demonstrated at the parsonage of the First Methodist church at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, when the Rev. Joseph F. Shaw, pastor of the First M. E. church, united the hearts and hands of John Treen, of Woodbridge, aged 78, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dickerson, of Oak Tree, near Metuchen, aged 70.

H. C. Brose, of the borough, has been detained at home this week by illness.

STATE FAIR PLANS ELABORATE.

Preparations for Big Exhibit, at Trenton, Are Now Complete.

Clear weather and people are the only requirements lacking to make the Inter-State Fair, which opens Monday, September 25, at Trenton, a complete success. Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum has finished his labors, and those who have made entries in the various departments are busily engaged dressing the grounds and buildings of the association for the exhibition of 1905. Every detail of work about the grounds and buildings has been completed, and it is the proud claim of the association that the one hundred acres of building-dotted land was never fresher or more attractive than at this time.

Dogs for the feature dog show are arriving by every incoming train, and the promise of the association that this department would be a notable one is already realized. The animals are from every section of the East and are of the finest breeding possible. It is estimated that there will be fully 1,500 dogs shown.

The hundreds of horses which are to test their speed for the cash prizes in the speed department are housed in the Fair grounds stables, and the track is constantly filled with the animals which are to cause excitement in the eighteen races of the speed programme.

The fifteen artists who are to provide a vaudeville show daily in front of the grandstand have arrived in Trenton and they are busy at the Fair grounds arranging for the presentation of their acts. The vaudeville acts are the best obtainable from the field of the United States and foreign countries, and among them are such thrilling offerings as daily flights by the famous Lewis Air Ship, the Haman Sky Rocket, and sensational high-wire and bar artists, funny clowns, graceful tumblers and other specialties to please all classes and all ages of human life.

The Midway at the Fair of 1905 will present the very best attractions now on the road. One of the feature shows will be the band of Igorrotes. These are real wild beings direct from the Philippine Islands and have created genuine sensations wherever they have been shown.

The departments for the display of fancy work and home products of every character will far surpass the collection of last year, and every woman will be able to learn something of real worth by a visit to Exhibition Building No. 1.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PRIMARIES.

All Anti-Machine Republicans Had to Swear in Their Votes?

The Newark Evening News Thursday contained the following letter:

"Sir—The writer of this letter has just returned from the borough of North Plainfield, where the political situation is very warm. The present Mayor is very anxious to perpetuate himself in office, and from the way the primaries were conducted yesterday he seems to be determined to be nominated and elected as Mayor of North Plainfield, whether the people wish it or not. They have challenged all the Republican voters who have ever said anything against the present administration, and particularly those who have been active in the recent Citizens' movement.

"Here are a few instances: A prominent man, who has lived in the borough for many years, and who is one of the largest taxpayers and a strong Republican, was challenged and compelled to swear in his vote. Another Republican, and one who ran for office on the Republican ticket in the last election, was challenged, and had to swear that he was a Republican. A Republican lawyer went to the polling place, and, without asking for a ballot, was handed a Republican one, which he cast after taking the oath. This was the usual thing at the polling places. There are many Republicans who were disgusted and refused to go to the primaries at all. I heard one Republican say that it served them right, and that if the citizens did not wake up soon they would'nt be treated any better. The present primary law is sadly deficient in many respects, and if a few machine men want to defeat the people's choice for the nomination they often accomplish their purpose.

"If the citizens of the borough of North Plainfield care to put an end to the years of quarreling they have had, and to get rid of machine rule, or rather misrule, it is about time that a good ticket is put in the field this fall. JUSTICIA.

"Newark, N. J., Sept. 13, 1905."

Independent Order of Goats.

They Mourn Their Loss.

Perth Amboy, Sept. 16.—When Michael Griffin, a tramp, who was killed here several days ago on the Central Railroad, was buried in the city poor ground, constables were the only mourners. They had taken him to the county jail a number of times, each time receiving a fee of $2.50. Griffin's only relative, a brother, is a boatman and could not be found. The city constables sent a large floral piece.

MRS. MULFORD'S FUNERAL.

Revs. J. O. McKelvey and J. R. Bryan Officiate.

The body of Mrs. David H. Mulford, widow of the late David H. Mulford, of this city, who died at the home of her son in Chicago, this week, was brought here this morning. The funeral services were held at the undertaking rooms of A. M. Runyon & Son, on Park avenue, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. J. R. Bryan officiated. The interment will be in the Methodist cemetery.

Up to twelve years ago the Mulfords resided here. At that time they moved to Vineland, owing to Mr. Mulford's health. He died soon afterward. Since then Mrs. Mulford made her home with her son, Leonard Mulford, in Chicago. When in Plainfield the Mulfords lived in Crescent avenue and were members of the First M. E. church.

MISSION STUDY MEETING.

Conferences Only for Training Classes.

Those in charge of the training classes for Bible study at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church want to correct the impression that the meetings to be held and addressed by Don O. Shelton and Rev. Mr. Diefendorfer are open to the public. They are only for class leaders, and both men will endeavor to teach them the use of text books for the study of missions.

Mr. Shelton will talk on home missions on Tuesday night, September 26, and Mr. Diefendorfer will talk on foreign missions on Thurdsay night, October 5, instead of the 6th, as previously announced. The illustrated lecture to be given at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Friday night, October 13, by Mr. Vickery, will be open to the public.

Mr. Diefendorfer's class will meet at the Y. M. C. A.

AN ANTI AUTOMOBILE FIGHT IS NOW PLANNED

CITIZENS OF NORTH BRANCH TO FORM ORGANIZATION FOR PROTECTION.

North Branch, Sept. 16.—On account of the frequent accidents caused by reckless automobiling in this vicinity a meeting of citizens was held in Rupell's hall last evening for the purpose of arousing sentiment against the abuse of the use of public highways by those who operate automobiles. The purpose is to form a permanent organization until something is to be done to obviate the danger of traveling on the public highways from those who recklessly run automobiles.

The following officers were elected: Dr. James D. Van Derveer, president; Dr. H. V. Davis, vice president; J. Edward Glaser, secretary, and John G. Sutphen, treasurer. The sentiment against the danger of accident by automobiles was voiced and subscribed to by those present in the following resolutions:

"Whereas, We, as citizens of New Jersey, have built and maintained our public roads at a great outlay of money and labor, and claim that we should have the right to use the same freely, and without unnecessary obstruction or danger; and

"Whereas, We are deprived of this right by reason of the manner in which some automobilists operate and run their machines, especially on the country roads, in utter disregard of law, or the right of the public to use the public highways, endangering the lives of those with whom they come in contact; and

"Whereas, In consequence of the danger many are deprived of the use of our public roads; therefore, be it

"Resolved, First, That we unite to form an association to act in accord with other associations formed, or that may hereafter be formed, in this State having the same objects in view, viz.: Self-protection and the restoring of our rights to the free and reasonably safe use of our public roads.

"Resolved, Second, That as occasion requires, we will adopt legal means if necessary, to abate the evils above set forth and to obtain our just rights."

The next meeting will be held at Hupel's hall, September 28.

POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Dr. M. J. Whitford, Theodore Brantingham and Nelson M. Giles, of Piscataway, and Dr. P. W. Brakeley, of Dunellen, were placed on the Middlesex Republican County Committee.

Prominent Newark Democrats are seriously discussing the advisability of the indorsement of Everett Colby for Senator by the Democratic county convention, which will probably be held on the night of September 25.

Congressman Ira W. Wood, who was a delegate to the trade peace conference, and who recently returned home, has received the congratulations of the Trenton Republican Club, of which he is president, upon his effective work and admirable resolutions commending President Roosevelt.

John I. Blair Riley, chairman of the Warren county Republican executive committee, has issued a call for a county convention to be held in Phillipsburg at 11 o'clock Friday, September 29. The delegates elected at the primaries last Tuesday will nominate candidates for State Senator, Assembly, sheriff, clerk and two coroners.

Suit Over Coal Bill.

Papers were issued by Justice V. W. Nash in the contract case of DeWitt C. Ivins against Sumner Bowman, of West Seventh street, to secure the payment of a $58 coal bill. This morning the defendant settled the claim. V. W. Nash, Jr., represented Mr. Ivins.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

P. H. S. NOTES.

Joseph Gavett has a movement on foot to sell silver P. H. S. flag pins to the students of the school at twenty-five cents each.

Among the new faces at the Plainfield High School are two Spaniards who will also probably be candidates for the football team.

Football practice starts Monday for the Plainfield High School team, and every man should be out at Hope Common, who has played or thinks he can play the game.

The regular class in drawing for pupils at the Plainfield High School was started yesterday in the regular room in the Whittier School building, in charge of Miss Bennett.

Walter Rugen, of last year's baseball team and graduating class at the Plainfield High School, will enter Rutgers next week. He will be a candidate for the baseball team there next spring.

A large sized gathering of High School fellows, in charge of Malcolm Davis, will be present at Crescent Oval this afternoon, and will give cheers and sing the school song to spur Phil Smith on to victory.

The first meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association will be held Monday, for the purpose of electing three new directors, which places were made vacant by the graduation of Harry Thompson, Chester Briggs and Howard Craig.

The first issue of the P. H. S. 'Oracle" will most likely be issued on Wednesday, October 1, and as the first number of the term, will be extra fine. The Oracle board will meet on Monday in one of the rooms of the Plainfield Public Library.

Miss Ellen Niles and Miss Lena Bass, who have been spending the summer in Europe, will return to their duties at the Plainfield High School on Monday. In their absence Miss Fuller and Miss Dorothy Waldo, graduates of the school, have been filling the places of the absentees among the faculty, respectively.

The meeting of the seniors at the Plainfield High School, which was to have been held yesterday, for the purpose of choosing colors different than the present ones, orange and white, was laid over, in order to give the boys of the class an opportunity to attend the first football meeting of the season yesterday. A class meetings, for the same purpose, will probably be held on Monday, when I. W. Travell will be present and give the class some advice as to the choice of colors.

At the first meeting for football candidates, there were nineteen fellows present, all of whom seemed enthusiastic to form a better team than last year's. Mr. Best in addressing the candidates, said that the same class of teams as last year would again be played and he hoped for even a better showing than last year's team made. Of last year's team, J. Douglass, Ralph Taylor and George Bently are working, Gurth Williams is at Blackhall school, Harry Shrager will enter Rutgers and Emil Jahn will enter Syracuse University. The only veterans remaining are Flanders, sub. quarter, S. Freeman, guard, Captain William Douglass, half-back, and Rockwell and Loizeaux, ends. Among the new men are Guy Fountain, Arthur Fluck, Gideon Fountain, Fred Martin, Joseph Jones, Malcolm Davis, Philip Smith, Herbert Smith, Vincent Meany and Samuel Reid.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Crescent Avenue church Sunday-school will resume afternoon sessions tomorrow.

Rev. Dr. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, has returned from his vacation.

Rev. Arthur Crane, whose home is in the south, is visiting his brother, J. Henry Crane, of East Fifth street.

R. L. Ewing will tell about the young men of India at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Eva Wells and Martin A. Korff will render vocal and instrumental solos. A piano and violin recital will be given at 3:40 o'clock.

Tea in Daughter's Honor.

Mrs. S. C. Lane, of 636 West Third street, gave a four-o'clock tea Friday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Huola Lane, who returns to Cheyney Institute for the coming term, beginning Tuesday, September 19. Those present at the tea were Miss Annie Brodnax, Miss Blanche Coles, Miss Lizzie R. Kinley, Miss Marie Nash, Miss Maggie Cobbs, Miss Sadie Graham and Miss Mary Randolph.

Dr. McBride to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Samuel McBride, of New York, will preach in the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow morning.

GAVE ITS MONEY AWAY

New York Life's Funds Went To Help Elect Roosevelt.

PERKINS' ADMISSIONS

Legislative Probe Reveals Some Startling Facts—$150,000 for the Republican Party.

George W. Perkins, vice president of the New York Life Insurance Company, and partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., testified yesterday before the legislative insurance inquisition in New York that contributions to the amount of about $150,000 had been made by the New York Life to the national Republican campaign fund in the last three Presidential campaigns.

The facts were elicited through Mr. Hughes ordering the company's officials to produce a certain check, which Mr. Perkins, who was summoned by subpoena to explain it and other transactions, acknowledged had been given to Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the National Republican Committee, in 1904, as the company's contribution to aid in the election of President Roosevelt.

Similar contributions, Mr. Perkins said, had been made to both the McKinley campaigns from the same source.

With an appearance of the utmost frankness and sincerity, the witness defended the company's action as a stroke of good business in behalf of its policyholders, whose interests, he believed, would have been seriously jeopardized on each of those occasions in the event of success by the opposition party.

It appeared that the check had been charged to the New York Life's Hanover Bank account, and that so far as the books were concerned there was no indication of its purpose. The entry was marked simply, "By ord. P't.," which meant by order of the president, John A. McCall.

Mr. Perkins acknowledged that he and Mr. McCall were perhaps the only officials of the company cognizant of the transaction and its purpose. The matter had not been passed upon by the finance committee. Under further interrogation he admitted that under the New York Life's administrative system nobody questioned the right of Mr. McCall to order the payment of checks in this manner on his own responsibility and without explanation of their purpose.

TENNIS RECEPTION.

Champion Paul R. Collier Gets Y. M. C. A. Medal

With song, story and music, the Y. M. C. A. tennis enthusiasts honored Paul R. Collier, winner of the recent tournament among the association members, at a reception last night. Mr. Collier is champion of the association by virtue of his victory.

A round dozen young men attended the affair. It was very informal and each of those present took part in the programme. Francis K. Anderson, who is an Elizabeth newspaper man, sang an original parody on "Under the Shade of the Old Apple Tree." In spite of this, the party had a good time. Theodore Gavett and Monroe Long played mandolin selections, and Martin Stutsman and Robert Hand recited. The others told stories.

Boys' Secretary Robbie presented Collier with the prize offered for first place, a handsome silver medal. He made a speech that caused the modest champion to blush.

"We look forward to the time when you will play against Larned on the Country Club courts," said Mr. Robbie, "and we expect you to be as successful there as you have been here."

Refreshments were served midway in the affair.

Martine Persuaded to Talk.

Hon. James E. Martine has been invited to attend the Democratic County Convention to be held at Belvidere, Warren county, on Thursday, September 21, at which time it is expected that Johnston Cornish, of Washington, will be nominated for State Senator. Mr. Martine will address the convention after the nominations are made.

Month for Reformation.

John Thompson, a machinist, was brought before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning for non-support of his wife. The magistrate scored Thompson, but gave him a month in which to mend his ways. He will get the limit of the law if he doesn't brace up and reform in the time allowed him.

Water Boy Run Over.

Edward Scott, ten years old, son of Job Scott, water carrier of the gang employed in improving the Rockview Park property, fell under the wheels of a dirt cart this morning in trying to mount the vehicle while in motion. He was severely bruised but escaped serious injury.

Mrs. James Parker, Jr., of Pittsburg, is visiting her sister, Mrs. McClean Parker, of West Seventh street.

John Bushnell and family, of Central avenue, are home from Mt. Pocono, Pa. They like the mountain resort so well that they will build a cottage there next season.

ELOPERS ON THE STAGE

"Meet Me At St. Louis," Sang He And Jeanette Did So.

NUPTIAL KNOT TIED

Parents of Eloping Couple Will Bestow the Blessing—"We're Happy," Write Eloping Couple.

"Meet me at St. Louis, meet me at the fair," sang pretty Jeannette Seaman, who is well known here, as she went about her home, on Suydam street, New Brunswick, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Seaman. True, there was no fair now at St. Louis, but the young woman had received a letter from an absent lover and he wrote asking her to "meet him at St. Louis." That she did meet him has just been revealed in a letter that was discovered in her bedroom by her mother several days after she had suddenly disappeared. The news has lately come to her parents, too, that the young woman is now the bride of the young man, George Bullock, a former resident of New Brunswick.

There were few prettier young girls than Jeannette Seaman. There were still fewer who had greater talent for elocution and amateur theatricals. For several seasons her services were in demand in nearly every amateur production that was given in New Brunswick. The same was true of George Bullock, a promising young man, who, until three months ago, lived in New Brunswick with his parents. Then they went West and he accompanied them.

While the young folks were busy with their amateur productions they found time to fall in love, and they did so with all the ardor of youth. The young woman is hardly seventeen, and the young man has recently celebrated his twenty-first birthday. He corresponded with Jeannette regularly and finally prevailed upon her to come to St. Louis to meet him to be married. The letter giving her the directions, and stating that $40 was inclosed for carfare, was found after the departure of the girl.

The parents of the girl were opposed to the idea of her marriage, principally on account of her youth. This was also true of his parents. They thought that the absence would prove a cure to the love of the young folks, but it was ineffective. When Jeannette met George they immediately sought out a complacent preacher and the nuptial knot was soon tied.

Mr. and Mrs. Bullock are now traveling with a theatrical company with which they both have an engagement for the winter season.

The parents of the young woman, though regretting her haste in getting married, are disposed to make the best of it, and they will bestow the usual parental blessing the next time they have an opportunity, which will be some day when the company stops in New Brunswick on a "one night stand." Meanwhile the bride and bridegroom sent word they are both happy and enjoying themselves.

Attachments Issued.

N. Douglass Drake, counsel for Marchant Brothers, milk dealers, secured a writ of attachment in Justice Mosher's court yesterday on goods belonging to Mrs. William Thiers, of West Seventh street, and Constable Peter V. Weaver served the papers. The action was taken to recover a milk bill of $29.76. Justice Nash also issued another attachment yesterday on the same goods for W. W. Warnock, the baker, who seeks to recover $24 for bread, pastry, etc. V. W. Nash, Jr., represents Mr. Warnock.

Rebuilding Paxinosa Inn.

The work of rebuilding the hotel at Paxinosa, on the mountains near Easton, Pa., is now under way. The hotel was destroyed by fire early in the season.

Dinner to Club.

Theodore Gavett, of Third place, entertained the Sagamore Club at dinner Thursday night. Covers were laid for twelve.

Call For Citizens' Meeting.

To the Citizens of North Plainfield:—

The undersigned, acting upon the request of fellow-voters and in behalf of the Citizens' movement in the Borough, hereby invite all the voters of the Borough, who believe that personal and party interests should be subordinated to the public welfare, and who favor an administration of local affairs on purely business principles, to meet in the Somerset Street schoolhouse, North Plainfield, on Monday evening, September 18, 1905, at eight o'clock, for conference, and, if it be deemed advisable, to prepare a platform and arrange to nominate by petition candidates for Borough offices on a Citizens' ticket.

IN MANY CHURCHES PASTORS MAKE PROTEST AGAINST SUNDAY GOLF

Effect Would Be Disastrous To The Moral Tone Of The Community, They Say

NO NEED FOR IT

Proposition Before Plainfield Country Club Is Attacked by the Divines of the City and Borough.

In nearly all, if not in all, the churches yesterday some reference was made to the movement on foot to introduce Sunday golf at the Plainfield Country Club. Several of the pastors made short addresses, while others devoted their sermons to a protest against the innovation. The remarks of the ministers, while temperate in tone, were in firm terms, each one of them taking occasion to point out the evil effect of such a plan.

Dr. Zelie's Remarks.

Supporters of the Sunday golf idea are not the only ones in this city who need talking to on Sabbatarian observance, declared Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday morning; some of those who oppose the Sunday playing proposition are doing other things to cheapen the Sabbath. In his discourse, however, the divine added a strong protest to the ministerial defences raised against the proposed advance of the Country Club on the American Sunday.

Dr. Zelie's text was "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." In part, he spoke as follows:

"I ask this question about this matter: Does it mean a greater and better life for us if it is carried through? I think this town was sought out by most of the people in it, because it seemed to give promise, more than most cities, of a larger life; I mean larger in the better and higher interests. Family after family have come here to make a trial of this place, not knowing whether they would stay or not, and have stayed on, in large measure, because so far this community had courageously set its face against the kind of action we are now considering. They have valued the freedom from just the sort of burden which many other places have taken upon themselves.

"In all that has been said for the proposed change at the Country Club I have not once heard it said that it is for higher and better and more Christian needs. The issue stands just here: Better for all, or pleasanter for some? If this change is made we shall all have to give up more than will have to be surrendered by those who desire this proposition carried through. For one, I am not willing to give it up, so long as there is anything I can say or do toward keeping it.

"I hope this matter will be settled not on the score of friendship and good fellowship—that would be a poor settlement. I think it might go without saying that I stand on terms of cordial respect and friendship with those who differ with me heartily on this question, and that I intend to. But if it is true that business is business, it is more true that moral business is moral business, in which it is best for each of us to get to the banner of his own conscience and his own conviction and stay there—and do what we do on those grounds and no other. It need not surprise us that so good a liberty as we have had all these years should be a thing to battle for.

"And it may be a distinct gain to us that this subject is up again if it makes those of us who oppose this proposed action revise our own heretical use of the Lord's day. There are many who oppose this particular license who, on their own part, so keep this day as to make others see no reason why they should not take their pleasure on the golf links.

"There is much to be said, and said to both sides, on this controversy, and not only to the one side. Restraint and abatement of Sunday pleasures are just as needful in other directions as in that of the golf club. If the former situation can be kept as it was, and I hope and believe it can be, it will be a call to all of us and not only to a part of us to do something generous toward the keeping of this day. The greatest advance we can make today is to put all our energy into holding things where they are."

Dr. Schenck's Protest.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, just before the sermon yesterday morning had this to say regarding the subject:

"The question of Sunday golf is again agitating the public mind—the question whether the Plainfield Country Club shall open its house and grounds on the Sabbath.

"The constitution of the club now guards against such a contingency. An amendment is being sought which shall allow the opening of the clubhouse on Sunday for persons occupying rooms therein, and the links for informal play after 2 o'clock.

"The following considerations are offered in support of closed grounds on the Sabbath day:

"First. The entire day belongs to God and is to be used in a manner which will please Him. He commands its observance and says, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.' There is no warrant in Scripture for a half-day.

"Second. Golf in the afternoon, with its worldly conversation, would impair the influences of the morning service and dull the spirtual sense of the most devout.

"Third. The tendency would be toward increased laxity and it would not be long before the whole day would be appropriated and the Country Club, now a family club, would become a sporting club.

"Fourth. The example of Sunday golf would be incalculably harmful. The position of Plainfield among the cities of our State is unique. The standing of the Country Club is high. If the flag be lowered here on the subject of Sabbath observance the effect would be felt far and wide.

"The fact that our grounds have been closed on Sunday has been a constant protest against violation of God's holy law by those who would make a holiday of His holy day, and who would substitute personal preference for public obligation. Self-denial for another's good is infinitely more noble than self-gratification when it involves another's peril. The great apostles said 'If meat make my brother to offend I will eat no meat.'

"And then is it fair to the founders of the Country Club and to the Christian men and women in it who believe in the sanctity of the Sabbath and who oppose the innovation on principle? Pass the amendment and you compel them to withdraw from the house which they have built or to compromise with their consciences."

Rev. Mr. Finn's Stand.

Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptsit church, made the following remarks to his congregation:

"The question of Sunday golf, now before the Plainfield Country Club, is one of vital importance, not to the members of the club only, but to the whole city, because of its bearing upon the sacredness of God's holy day.

"Heretofore this club has maintained a high standard of action upon the question at issue, and has commanded the respect of the entire community. To lower that standard and bring about the beginnings of Sabbath desecration in our midst, would be deplorable and far-reaching in its influence.

"Let those into whose hands is committed the settlement of this question ask: 'Will Sunday golf playing help our city morally or religiously? Will it stimulate in our children a greater respect for God, His Book and His day? Will it make us nobler, better, truer citizens of this commonwealth? Will it give us a fairer name among the cities of the State? Will it increase our influence for righteousness?' 'But,' you say, 'Physical development is essential to health.' Is not moral and religious development vitally related to health? There cannot be perfect physical development in a morally corrupted community. The desecration of God's holy day always has a deteriorating effect upon morals.

"We admired the courage of King Alfonso for issuing recently the decree against Sunday amusements. Shall we bind ourselves to a custom that Spain has found to be unprofitable? Rather let every organization of thoughtful men, such as we find in this club, continue to guard this day as the pension system of the Almighty by which rest and family intercourse come to millions, as a day sacred to the Almighty Himself."

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, did not make any reference to the proposition to open the Plainfield Country Club golf course on Sunday, yesterday. He said prior to the services that his communication in The Daily Press during last week and the article appearing on Saturday, signed by the clergy, expressed his sentiments.

Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace church, did not preach on the subject yesterday, but at the morning service he stated his position in the matter. He said that he felt it was one of majority choice and he was opposed to the proposition before the Plainfield Country Club to open the course on Sunday because he thought the greatest good to the greatest number would result by keeping the course closed on that day.

SUNDAY GOLF ARGUMENT

Proposition Not "An Entering Wedge" Say Influential Men in Letter to Daily Press

THE BEST SOLUTION

To Pass Amendment Means That Club Goes Before Country As Having Met Serious Question Bravely.

Editor The Daily Press:

Several members of the Country Club, influential citizens, and men who are known personally to prefer that the club should be entirely closed on Sunday, have stated that tney would be inclined to support the amendment to the constitution which is to be put to a vote on the 19th of this month, if it were not for the fear that its adoption may prove to be but an "entering wedge."

The "entering wedge" argument is not logically sound. It is not our purpose to urge anyone to vote for the amendment who has conscientious scruples against any form of exercise or recreation on Sunday afternoon. But for those who can vote for the amendment as honest, conscientious men we wish to point out the fallacy of that particular argument or reason for voting against it.

It is an indisputable fact that many members will vote for the amendment in its revised form who would have voted against it in its original form. Why? Because they see nothing wrong in recreation on Sunday afternoon, provided no one is obliged to do work on Sunday in order to make that recreation possible. They know that they themselves recreate Sunday afternoons now. They walk, they ride bicycles. Some of them even drive their horses or operate their automobiles. They cannot consistently differentiate between those things and quietly knocking a ball over a field. Therefore, when the restaurant privileges on Sunday afternoon were eliminated from the proposed amendment, their last objections were removed.

Others will vote for the amendment because they see in it an effort on the part of the Plainfield people to get together on a question as to which there always has been and always will be an honest difference of opinion. They recognize the tendency of modern times toward a more and more liberal observance of the day. They wish to see this tendency checked in some way, if not in their own way. They recognize as an historical fact that the views of even the most earnest Christian people have changed in the last fifteen years. Their own fathers and mothers do things today on Sunday afternoons which they regarded as sinful a generation ago. Therefore they really welcome this proposed amendment, because it gives them and other serious people a chance to vote for something which in this day and generation they can conscientiously support. For them it is a compromise—not with principle—but with people who just as honestly could vote for a still more liberal form of Sunday opening.

Now, suppose the amendment were to open the club all day on Sunday. Both these classes of people would vote "no." No one for a moment believes that the amendment would pass. But suppose the present amendment does pass; and next year the attempt is made to open the club all day Sunday. Will the situation be any different from what it would be if an all-day Sunday proposition were made now? Clearly not, unless voting members in the meantime change their views and become in favor of a wide-open club. And if two-thirds of the voting members ever are of that way of thinking, of course the club will become a wide-open club, and nothing can prevent it.

The "entering wedge' argument is therefore quite unsound. The article in the constitution relating to amendments remains unchanged; it will always require a two-thirds vote to effect a change on the Sunday question.

On the other hand, it is a fair supposition that if the men who can honestly vote for this amendment, do so (though preferring a club entirely closed on Sunday), their frank, conciliatory attitude will be respected by scores of members who could conscientiously vote for an all-day opening, but who care little for anything except Sunday afternoon opening, and who would stand shoulder to shoulder with the more conservative element in preventing any further concessions.

In other words, a vote for this

JAMES E. MARTINE IS ABOUT TO WED

MISS JULIA E. RODMAN WILL BE HIS BRIDE.

James E. Martine, the "farmer-orator of New Jersey," is about to be married, formal announcement having been made in the nature of wedding invitations issued today. His bride will be Miss Julia Edgar Rodman. The ceremony will take place in Grace church on Saturday, October 7.

Miss Rodman is the daughter of Mrs. Bessie Bayard Lorillard Rodman and the late H. Scott Rodman. Her mother was the only daughter of the late Jacob Lorillard, of New York. Miss Rodman is well known in society. She is a member of the Plainfield Country Club and is actively interested in the parish work of Grace church.

Mr. Martine has been a resident of Plainfield for forty years and is about as well liked as any man in the city. He lives with his sisters on the Martine homestead, Cedarbrook farm. Ever since he was eighteen years of age he has been an active figure in the councils of New Jersey's Democracy. Never a campaign has come or gone but that he has taken a prominent part as a speaker. Several times he has been the party's nominee for a high office, but as in the case the last time when he was the opponent of Congressman Fowler, he has met with defeat. In every case the popularity of the man, however, made him run away ahead of his ticket.

The wedding will take place at noon on the day set, Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, an uncle of the bride, will officiate, assisted by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. A reception will follow at Cedarbrook farm.

SHE WANTED THE PATROL WAGON AT THE HOUSE

BUT MRS. HARRISON RANDOLPH WAS MIXED REGARDING ITS FREIGHT.

The telephone bell twinkled at police headquarters Saturday night and a feminine voice vibrated over the wire.

"This is Mrs. Irene Randolph, of West Fourth street," said the voice. "Send the patrol wagon to my house; my husband is drunk and acting something awful. Send down at once—right away. I can't stand it another minute."

Cop Overbaugh and Driver Tom O'Gorman went out on the wagon after Mr. Randolph. They met Mrs. Randolph on the street. She was very wobbly on her feet and full of noise and giggles. Overbaugh put her into the wagon and went in to have a look at Mr. Randolph. He found the accused quiet and steady, and a light broke on him.

"It's you for the coop, my girl, and not your husband," he said to the complainant after investigation had disclosed the fact that Mrs. Randolph was the one who had raised all the fuss.

Judge Runyon gave her short shrift this morning.

"It will cost you $5 or twenty days in jail for calling that wagon out," he said. Mrs. Randolph, quiet and contrite, paid the fine.

"PLAY BALL!" NOT THERE.

Mr. Leader and His Strong Voice Carried Away by Philadelphia Flier.

One of the regular features of the games at Alls Oval was missing Saturday afternoon. Not once throughout the contest did the familiar "one 'ike!" "two 'ikes!" "three 'ikes!" roll in stentorian tones from the left field bleachers, and the game began without the usual booming "play ball!" of other days. Just about the time the game started the voice, which is owned by A. J. Leader, of Duer street, a thirty-third degree fan and past grand commander of the rooter division, was grumbling discontentedly in the Bound Brook waiting room of the Central Railroad.

Mr. Leader cut his work short Saturday in New York and hustled to the depot to get the Philadelphia express that reaches here at 3:45. He was particularly anxious to lend the support of his enthusiam and lungs to Phil Smith. Mr. Leader heaved a sigh of contentment as he settled himself in his seat and opened a newspaper. When Mr. Leader looked about him again the train was rolling into Bound Brook. A long freight train and an interesting article in the paper had caused him to overlook his own station.

He didn't get to Plainfield until a quarter of five. Saturday's game is now a painful subject with Mr. Leader, and must be broached delicately in his hearing.

ARCANUMITES ORGANIZE

Thirty Councils Of New Jersey In Revolt Elect Independent Officers.

CHOOSES NEW NAME

To Discard Title of Royal Arcanum for Association of the State of New Jersey.

Thirty councils of the Royal Arcanum, representing, it is asserted, two-thirds of the entire membership of that order in New Jersey, have combined, through their representatives, to enter a new protest against the rate schedule recently adopted by the Supreme Council, in respect to the benefit funds of the order.

At a meeting held at Sunset Hall, Newark, Saturday night, more than 125 delegates of local councils of various sections of the State agreed to combat, with similar organizations in other States, the decree of the Supreme Council.

Through some oversight neither Plainfield Council, No. 711, nor Greenbrook Council, was invited to attend the session. Consequently there were no delegates from here. A prominent member of the order in this city said today that Plainfield would gladly have joined forces with those in revolt had it been invited to do so.

Within a week after the new rates were announced by the Supreme body of the Arcanum, Plainfield Council made formal protest. A suggestion offered by Treasurer Daniel W. Littell against the new rates was unanimously approved. This was the first protest in this State against the order of things.

It was charged at this meeting that many more local bodies would have been represented if the circular that had been issued at the direction of the Nutley conference, several weeks ago, had been permitted to come up for discussion at council meetings. It was intimated that hostile officials of some of the councils had refused to bring the conference appeal before their respective bodies.

The object of the meeting was to effect a permanent organization of representatives of the New Jersey councils that are opposed to the new rates, and who favor either a restoration of the old rates or a modification of the tables recently adopted, so that they may be made more favorable for the old members of the order. Newark, Jersey City, Bayonne, Hoboken, Paterson, Elizabeth, Trenton and other important centers of the States were represented.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and these officers chosen:

President, David T. Howell, of Newark; first vice-president, H. W. Van Benthuysen, Paterson; second vice-president, Charles Miller, Hoboken; secretary, W. H. Labah, Jersey City; corresponding secretary, Charles Armstrong, Nutley; treasurer, C. J. E. Nolte, Jersey City.

The committee of fifteen named at the Nutley conference in July was continued as the executive committee of the organization, and because it was not permissable to use the name of the Royal Arcanum without the consent of the Grand Council, it was decided to name the organization the Association of the State of New Jersey.

It was reoprted that similar organizations had been formed for the purpose of fighting the new rates in the States of New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhode Island, Michigan and several others. The representatives of these States are to meet tomorrow morning at the Hotel Manhattan, New York, and a delegation was appointed to attend this conference. The delegation will include David T. Howell, of Newark; H. W. Van Benthuysen and John Farrell, of Paterson; J. T. Callahan, Jersey City, and James Gallagher, Hoboken.

Talk of secession from the order was strong in the conference, and a resolution was offered to the effect that if it should be the sense of the inter-State conference at Manhattan tomorrow to secede, the representatives of the New Jersey movement should pledge its support. After discussion it was concluded that the adoption of such a radical resolution would be premature, and that a wiser plan, for the present, would be to advocate the taking of legal action to enjoin the Supreme Council from enforcing the new rates.

Another meeting of the association will be held at Newark October 7.

A Good Play.

Thoroughly wholesome in plot and admirably acted, "Marching Through Georgia" scored a well deserved success at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. The company handled their roles capably and their lines were good. The play abounds in interesting situations, all of which were presented strongly. The audiences showed appreciation with lavish applause. Both of them were very large.

CHISELED OFF INNER DOOR OF STEEL SAFE

NEGRO WORKMAN ROBS GAYLE HARDWARE CO. OF CASH AND CHECKS.

A strange negro, giving his name as George Smith, was hired as a man of all work by the Gayle Hardware Co., West Front street, last Tuesday. He was put to work on the second floor. On this floor is the company's safe. Saturday afternoon J. P. Laire, the manager, found the inner door of the safe in an empty box on the upper floor.

Mr. Laire hurried over to the safe. The outer door, which is left unlocked, was not injured. The other had been chiseled off. One hundred dollars in cash and checks amounting to about $150 were missing. The negro did not return after leaving for lunch.

None of the men at Gayle's knows anything of Smith. Mr. Laire asked him nothing about himself when he was hired. Nobody heard him at work on the safe.

REINHART APPEARS ON LOCAL LINKS AGAIN

RESULTS OF PLAY AT THE COUNTRY AND PARK CLUBS.

Despite the fact that there are still many members away on their vacations, there was a large field at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday to take part in the weekly competition. Each week returning members are found enjoying their favorite sport, while the social features at the club house are greatly enojyed by all. The course is in fine condition and playing is a real pleasure.

Frank O. Reinhart, who has not been prominent at the club this year, figured in the honors for the golf committee cup on Saturday, taking the first three points with a net score of 77. The other three points were divided between Arthur Murphy and Dudley H. Barrows, each returning a net score of 81. These scores do not affect the standing for the cup, E. B. Schoonmaker still holding the lead with 13 points.

The best scores returned on Saturday were as follows:

Frank O. Reinhart, 74, plus 3—77; Arthur Murphy, 86, 5—81; Dudley H. Barrows, 80, plus 1—81; W. P. Boggs, 102, 17—85; C. B. Andrews, 101, 13—88; L. H. Van Buren, 107, 13—94.

Another event of the afternoon was a putting and approaching contest, mixed foursome. Miss May Holly and Frank O. Reinhart were the winners, with a score of 12, while Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and Arthur Murphy and Mrs. Weber and E. T. Barrows were tie for second place, with a score of 13.

Play for the president's and Park Golf Club cups was continued at the Park Golf Club Saturday, there being a large field out. J. B. Betts won first honors for the handicap cup, Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll and Samuel Townsend finishing second and third, respectively. For the scratch cup Raymond B. Carroll won first honors, and Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll finished second and Reuben Knox third.

These scores were posted for the two cups:

J. B. Betts, 114, 27—87; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 96, 8—88; Samuel Townsend, 108, 18—90; Reuben Knox, 106, 13—93; Raymond B. Carroll, 90, plus 4—94; John L. Watson, 110, 16—94; Leon R. Thurlow, 107, 13—94; Alex Gilbert, 108, 12—96.

MRS. TEMPLIN BURIED.

Funeral Services Conducted by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

The funeral services of Mrs. Emily Y. Templin were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of her son, Howard B. Templin, 216 East Second street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The floral tributes were beautiful, including wreaths and cut flowers.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mrs. Templin was a member for several years, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections, and spoke at some length regarding the devoted Christian life of the departed, concluding his remarks with a fervent prayer.

The remains were taken on the 8:44 train this morning to Doylestown, Pa., for interment in the family plot.

Miss Emmons' Wedding Day.

The marriage of Miss Grace Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, of Jackson avenue, to Arthur Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, will be celebrated at Trinity Reformed church on Wednesday evening, October 11.

WESTFIELD CHEERS UP

Pirates Manage to Get Another Game With Some Assistance.

HELD FAST BY SMITH

Schoolboy Had Them at His Mercy—Kiernan and Dalton Let In All Pirate Runs With Wild Throws.

Aided by two bum chucks and Mr. Waller's ingenuity at critical junctures, the dismayed Pirates gathered themselves together long enough at Alls Oval Saturday afternoon to hand us a wallop. We were jarred 4 to 2.

P. Smith, the schoolboy phenom, was on the firing line for the Commuters. To relieve the suspense in high school circles and South Plainfield society we will hasten to say that the youthful Mr. Smith had nothing whatever to do with losing the game. Phil worked through the try-out with flying colors so high that C. Denman and his cohorts were moved to remarks of rude disparagement. Whenever a Westfield team has its feelings hurt by a twisler, C. Denman and G. Mallen pronounce him a dub and other things like that, although it is never explained why he can't be thumped. Phil deserved the high praise encrusted in the rude and sarcastic comments of the satirical Pirates. He delivered the goods with the package unpunctured, full weight and first quality.

As a cold and frigid matter of fact, the kid outpitched Red. The latter was whanged for twelve hits, several of which came in strings; Phil was thumped only seven times, and every one but two bumps was comfortably separated from its brethren. He fanned Mike Rochford, who was back in the game in right, and Flynn. The latter gent, who is a trusty thumper, wiggled his stick uselessly twice. G. Mallen and Mr. Waller were also whiffed on occasion, but these instances are more intersting than instructive. Red whiffed no more, and issued but one less pass—which is one.

But for two very saffron errors by Kiernan and Dalton the kid would have shut the Pirates out so hard they wouldn't have known they were in the game except as a sideshow. In both the innings in which the Pirates tallied wild throws chased in the brace of runs. They were chucks that wern't passable by the most forgiving saint in Fandom; each of them simply converted an easy out into two tallies. It was a ball hit by the pestiferous Mr. Mallen that did the damage in each case. George didn't get a hit and even whiffed, as insinuated before, but he converted himself into a hoodoo and cunjered us good and plenty. George is nothing if not resourceful.

Aside from the chucks, though, the Commuters backed Phil up in scintillating fashion. Kiernan made a dazzling stop on the gallop, recovering himself at an angle of forty-five degrees in time to make a great fling. Wally Cosgrave beat a smashing high drive to the edge of the woodland in his backyard and plucked the round thing from the edge of Homerville. Pete Cregan went through a breathbating performance at full gallop from deep left almost to mid center. But our heroes were very wasteful of themselves on the lines. It is a tough record when a team gets twelve hits and only two tallies. We had so many chances to pile marks on the enemy and came close to doing it so many times that the crowd felt just as if we had been liberal and gave the game away. This feeling is not so far wrong, no. But let us not repine. We have the pennant, and Phil's glory shone despite the final and ultimate decision.

Talking of the phenom's glittering fame, it was a brilliant and inspiring assemblage of youth and beauty that gathered to do him honor on the bleachers. Pretty young things in fluffy creations and some flutters chirruped encouragingly at the hard-working youth and said he was just too lovely for anything, and did you see how he struck out that big, horrid, rough-looking Westfield pitcher? Other faithful strugglers in the learning mill of the phenom's own sex grew loudly joyous when a Pirates failed to thump safe, and implored their playmate never to forget that he could put it all over them; that they, the Pirates, were a bunch of stiffs, and would now discover they were up against the real thing. There is no getting away from the fact that institutions of learning are great places for developing chaste and limpid language.

Among the retinue of the infant twirler was Pa Smith. Pa patted the phenom on the head encouragingly whenever he came in, and warned him not to drink too much water in a hurry and said other useful and heartening things. In the fifth, when the Pirates got their first thump, Pa assured Phil that he was still a real

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Burglars paid another visit to the 'Plains and Fanwood borough during the early hours of Saturday morning. This time the house selected at the 'Plains was the home of Ira G. Walker on Stout avenue. Entrance was gained by forcing a window on the ground floor. The burglars secured but little as Mr. Walker has gained an experence from two previous visits, within the past three years, that the only way to discourage the continued visits was to have a safe place for his money. This trip the intruders only secured a watch and a small amount of pocket change. The borough house entered was the home of William E. Knight. The burglars fared no better here, as Mr. and Mrs. Knight had left for a week's hunting trip in Maine on Friday and all their silverware and other valuables was in safe deposit vaults. The only souvenir of the trip was a watch, the property of the caretaker of the place. This makes the third robbery here within three weeks and the people are beginning to be alarmed, and it would not be well for anyone to be seen acting in a suspicious manner about the village or borough at present as residents are becoming aroused and would no doubt do the shooting first and ask the questions later. It is only about three years ago that the borough had a regular epidemic in the burglar line and it is believed that the present work is being done by the same gang, who no doubt make it a business of going about the country, selecting the smaller towns, with little or no police protection, to do their work in.

A number of their friends from Plainfield tendered a surprise party Saturday night to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gray, who recently started housekeeping on Prospect avenue. The affair was so quietly arranged that host and hostess were completely taken by the onslaught and surrendered at once. The evening was pleasantly spent enjoying dancing, music and refreshments until the last trolley was near due for the homeward trip.

Charles Machen, while driving near Hollingsworth's mill yesterday afternoon, collided with an automobile belonging to Samuel Parsells, of New Brunswick. One of the front wheels was wrecked; the auto escaped damage. The accident was due to the narrowness of the roadway and the chauffeur attempting to turn out for a bad spot.

Phil Smith lost a hard game Saturday against Westfield. It is the opinion of the local cranks, with the support back of him that the Daabsters are in the habit of giving a pitcher, Phil would have won his game easily, as he more than held his own with "Red" Waller.

The management of the West End team, of Somerville, whose lineup includes several of the members of the old 'Plains team, tendered the team a banquet Saturday night.

Two new arrivals in the borough are a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Fancher, and a junior station agent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. George Woods and family, who have been living for the past year in the Parks cottage on Park avenue, have removed to New York.

"Christian Culture" was the topic discussed by the B. Y. P. U. members at the weekly meeting held last night in the church parlors.

Judge Clark is wearing a badly lacerated face, the result of an encounter with a stick of wood he was cutting Friday.

The regular weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

The local ball team defeated the Gillett team Saturday afternoon by the score of 5 to 2.

Mrs. Benjamin Clark, who has been quite ill for a week, is reported as improving.

Mrs. John Lyndall has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

There is scarcely any chance of a resubmission of the New Market school proposition inside of a month. The board meeting will have to be held and following that the legal advertising period must elapse.

J. H. Snell has purchased two lots from the Central Land Improvement Company—Nos. 33 and 34, block No. 5. The deal was made through Major Howard K. Bird, the real estate agent.

A meeting in the interest of Rev. W. W. Casselberry's proposed manual training class will be held this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Walters have been entertaining Madison Apgar, of High Bridge.

Miss Jeanette Lake and Miss Nellie Dodwell are singing in the Presbyterian church choir.

Miss Mary Pitcoff, of Raritan, has returned home after visiting friends in the borough.

Miss Mary Baldwin has entered the evening class at a Plainfield business college.

Miss Mabel Cole is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Burton, of Paterson.

Miss Edna Tinsman has become a member of the Methodist choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Grieb visited friends in Rahway Saturday.

Miss Edna Baldwin has returned from a visit out of town.

Miss Edith Boice has returned from a stay at a resort.

L. L. Block, the butcher, has purchased a new horse.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The opening services of the Catholic church mission were held yesterday morning and evening in Washington Hall. There was a good attendance.

The next bi-monthly borough meeting will be held in Temperance Hall tonight. A full attendance of all interested is desired.

Mrs. W. B. Manning has returned home after spending most of the summer with her daughter at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manning, of Newark, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Manning yesterday.

Rev. T. E. Vassar, of Newark, preached in exchange with Rev. J. A. Cubberley yesterday morning.

H. J. COCHRAN WINS TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

HE DEFEATS GLENNEY AND BROWN IN SEMI-FINAL PLAY.

H. J. Cochran is now the holder of the title of tennis champion of the Plainfield Country Club, winning the honors Saturday in the final play with Wylie Brown, whom he defeated 6—2, 7—5, 6—3. He also won a handsome cut glass cigar jar with a silver top, offered by the president of the club, George P. Mellick.

During the week one remaining match in the second round was played, when Wylie Brown beat Howard Carter, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4. This brought Brown into the finals, as Cochran beat W. T. Glenny on Saturday, 5—7, 6—4, 6—1. Then Cochran beat Brown, 6—2, 7—5, 6—3, winning the championship.

This is an annual event at the club and has always attracted considerable interest, not only among tennis players, but other as well. The winners of the title since 1900 are as follows: 1900 Kenneth Bulkley; 1901, T. M. Day, Jr.; 1902, Kenneth Bulkley; 1903, H. Duncan Bulkley; 1904, Frederick W. Goddard; 1905, Henry J. Cochran.

John Carney, of Lincoln place, is visiting relatives at Monticello, N. Y.

FOR ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The Allentown Fair is by all odds one of the most unique exhibitions of the country. Its attendance is simply enormous, and why, you ask? Everything is complete to the minutest detail. The entertainments are exceptionally fine. The live stock show has no equal. The fruit and vegetable exhibits are among the finest procurable, and with the genuine good time always found at Allentown, there is no reason why the fair should not be popular. On the days of the fair the New Jersey Central will sell reduced rate tickets to Allentown and special trains will be run from various points. 9-6 e o d

"Young Couple" Footed 154 Years.

Rev. J. F. Shaw, pastor of the First Methodist church, New Brunswick, was called to his study Wednesday night by a servant, who told him a "young couple" wished to be married. Dr. Shaw found the party awaiting him to be John Treen, of Woodbridge, and Mrs. Sarah Dickerson, of Oak Tree, near Metuchen. They had come to New Brunswick by trolley. By no stretch of imagination could they be called a young couple, for Treen is seventy-eight and Mrs. Dickerson seventy-six. Both have been married before, and they were attracted by the sympathy growing out of similar bereavement. Treen is fairly well off. The couple were in festal array, and the ceremony was performed at once, Dr. Shaw omitting the usual question as to age and consent of parents. Mrs. Shaw and Loren Holdridge, of Los Angeles, Cal., guests at the parsonage, acted as witnesses.

A Wonderland.

Trenton and its fair are famed and why shouldn't it be for no greater attraction than this fine exhibit is known in these parts. It is the old fashioned county fair in every particular and in every branch and department there is a completeness that obtains at no other exhibition. This year many new and attractive features have been arranged for which will make the fair a still greater drawing card. The dates of the fair are September 25 to 29, and during that time the New Jersey Central will place reduced rate excursion tickets to Trenton, including admission, on sale at all of its stations in New Jersey. 9 13 eod td

TRINITY SCHOLARS' RALLY.

Short and Simple Programme Marks Opening of Fall Work.

Simple exercises marked the rally of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large, 417 scholars answering the roll-call.

Superintendent F. E. Smith made a short address welcoming the school to a new year's work. Miss Jessie Martin sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Hazel Martin. W. C. Leek led the singing and Miss Lillian Force presided at the piano.

Auto Broke Down.

An automobile owned by Mr. Apgar, of Somerville, and in which were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Betts, of the borough, another woman and the owner, broke down yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock on West End avenue, after an extensive run through Somerset county during the day. Mr. Apgar spent nearly three hours trying to repair the machine. He was compelled finally to have it towed to F. L. C. Martin's garage, where the necessary repairs were made.

Parish House Opened.

The Sunday-school of Grace P. E. church held its first afternoon session since early summer in the new parish house yesterday afternoon, the first use to which the structure has been put since its completion. Neither the rally nor the opening of the building was marked by special exercises.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Captain Driscoll once more displayed his cleverness as a player by his fine work on bases.

Captain Driscoll was surprised at Smith's showing and says that he has all the makings of a fine twirler.

Louis Wiltse will return home from York, Pa., today. A report is in circulation that he will be interested in the Plainfield team next season.

It is likely that the last game of the season will be played on Crescent Oval on Saturday, October 21, between Plainfield and the New York Giants.

One consoling fact remains, "Phil" Smith did not have any part in the plays which lost the game. By rights he should have won it and scored a shutout.

A movement is on foot to arrange a "stag" reception and entertainment for the Daabsters at the close of the season, giving all the fans a chance to attend.

You could have bought "Red" Waller for a three cent piece when Smith fanned him. Mallen felt just as cheap when he chopped the air three times.

Manager Daab was more than pleased with Smith's work and gave him great praise for his masterly pitching. He felt very sorry that Plainfield lost.

Manager Denman said before the game: "I think it is a mistake to advertise 'Phil.' Smith so much. It is sure to hurt the interest in the game." Wonder what the "Dove of Peace" thinks now?

Kiernan and Leonard made sensational stops of hot grounders, and no one regretted the loss of the game more than "Happy," who contributed to the defeat by a wild throw. Dalton lost his head and gave Westfield two runs by a wild throw when he could easily have retired the side by touching a runner to second.

Notwithstanding the hearty applause given Smith during the game, he did not lose his head and he pitched the last inning just as well as the first. One scratch hit in five innings is a record to be proud of. "Jack" O'Neill was more proud of Smith and remarked after the game that he is a comer. The young twirler obeyed the veteran catcher strictly as to signs.

ROD AND GUN.

The members of the Plainfield Gun Club will meet at Harry Dreier's store on Thursday night to arrange for an all-day shoot to be held on the club grounds on Saturday, October 21. It is expected that a number of crack shots from all parts of the country will participate. It is now proposed to have six events and handsome prizes will be offered in each.

Belated Laws Printed.

Trenton, Sept. 18.—The last section of the laws passed by the Legislature last winter were issued by the printer yesterday and were distributed by John W. Weseman, custodian of the State Capitol building, who has charge of the work. Under the laws the statutes should have been printed and issued by July 1. The last three bills were not acted on by the Governor until August 7. The laws have been issued in sections and distributed as fast as printed. The completed volume has yet to be bound and put in shape for final distribution.

ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The New Jersey Central will run low rate excursion to Allentown for the Fair on September 21st. Special train leaving Plainfield at 7:55 a. m. Returning from Allentown at 6:30 p. m. Round trip tickets $1.50. The Fair is bigger and better than ever and for a good time you should go.

Sooty Chimney.

Residents in the vicinity of the house at 316 East Seventh street, occupied by Mrs. Lena Helstrom, saw smoke pouring out of the windows Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Helstrom was not home, and fire headquarters was telephoned that there was business for it in the house. Chief Doane hustled down with a hose company to discover that a lot of soot prevented a chimney from doing its duty.

Borough Councilman Morris C. VanArsdale has gone to Lima, Ohio, where he will visit relatives for two weeks. Mrs. VanArsdale has been visiting there for several weeks and she and her husband will return home together.

Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, will meet tonight. There will be a special programme.

The members of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., will visit the Elizabethport Lodge, tonight.

good boy and would get an extra cooky when he got home. This cheered Phil considerably and helped him hold the fierce and ravening Pirates in subjection.

Scoring in the first inning having become a habit with the Commuters, Pete Kiernan started matters with a sharp infield hit. Wally pushed him along neatly, and Dan Connolly, after Dalton had popped, proved himself once more the king of timely hitters by singling swiftly to left. Cregan ended it with a whiff. That rap of Dan's was the last bit of real timely hitting the Commuter's turned off. Hit after hit came and man after man galloped madly about the bases, but the welt that was needed to open the way from third to home was a missing quantity. Even the second tally in the ninth came in only after some travail and on a fly-out. Some hard luck mauled us on the alleys. In the Sixth Leonard, with Dalton on third, hit to Wahl, who had to jump five feet off his bag to get it. Without moving an inch Wahl slung the ball for home to catch Dalton, and Leonard had oodles of time to make the bag. Henning, standing back of short, declared him out. He said Joe played for the bag and touched it before he threw home. Even Joe looked amazed at the decision, but the ump refused to change it. Driscoll made the third out with a right-field fly and another chance to score fell overboard. In the seventh Jack O'Neill started to plug another attack by overrunning second base on a neat bunt by Smith. The out robbed the flinger of a hit, for without Jack's unrestrained gallop neither would have been nailed.

McCormick paved the way for the Pirates' first two marks in the seventr with a drive to center for the halfway station. Mallen hit a cinch to Kiernan. Pete had time to nail Mike at third and chucked to Leonard, and thereupon the round thing buried itself in the thickest part of the leftfield bleacher crowd. Everybody was in when it came back. Barry popped and Cotter went out, third to first.

Wahl opened the ninth with a weak sort of double to right. Rochford singled to center, and Wahl kept on coming. Wally Cosgrave closed on the ball in center like a streak and slammed it for home with a steely wing; exit Joe. McCormick flied out to left. Things were looking thus comfortable when the pesky Mallen welted one to Dalton. The Kid could have had Rochford on second, but slung to first, a mile wide of Driscoll's clutch. Rochford registered and Mallen went to third. Barry brought him in with a rightfield whizzer. Cotter died, second to first.

Things opened well for us in the windup. Dave planted one in center, and Jack neatly dittoed in left. To feed further the excitement of a hopeful populace they executed a brilliant dual pilfer. Smith delivered a left field fly and Dave beat the thrown in with a swift sprint. Kiernan pushed Jack to third with a welt to first, but McCormick shut the fireworks off with a red hot stop of a sizzling grounder from Wally's bat that looked like a sure thing hit.

Two Weeks to Move It.

Harry Johns and Mobus Brothers, building movers, have successfully completed the work of moving C. W. McCutchen's brick building from Park avenue to the lot on West Second street, adjoining the New Plainfield theatre. It required just two weeks for the work and not a single accident occurred during that time. There were many doubts expressed as to whether the building could be safely taken that distance, owing to the fact that it is such an old structure. However, the contractors braced the building at the top and bottom and middle and took no chances. As a result of the successful effort, several persons have won wagers made that the building could be moved without falling apart.

Plainfield, N. J., September 18, 1905.

How could the Westfield team expect to win the Union county championship when the Daabsters beat the New York Nationals out of their boots?

Ever since The Daily Press was established James E. Martine, whose approaching marriage is announced today, has spent much of his time in its offices, where he is held in high regard. We extend congratulations.

Over in Essex county the Democrats are bewailing the fact that Colby has stolen their thunder. By compelling the Republicans to espouse equal taxation and other popular ideas, he has robbed them of anything to make a noise over. But even so, they are better off than the Democrats here, who can't get men to run for office.

Eugene Merrill, of Utica, N. Y., has two cork legs and is a shoemaker by trade. He advertised for a wife and received 111 aceptances. If advertising will get a poor man with two cork legs 111 wives, we confess our utter inability to estimate the number of wives advertising would secure a well-to-do man with two good legs.—Asbury Park Press.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Four new members were received on confession and one by letter at the communion service in Hope chapel, last night.

The regular monthly sewing meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held in the parlor of the church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The church of St. Nicholas' Roman Catholic parish, Atlantic City, was dedicated yesterday in the presence of many church dignitaries, including the Rt. Rev. Bishop McFaul, in whose episcopate the church is. There were also present the Hon. Mgr. Falconio, Papal Delegatte at Washington, representing the Pontiff, and the Rev. Father Geraghty, of the Augustinian order, which had charge of the dedication.

There will be a special Sunday-school rally at Hope chapel on Sunday, October 1, when G. H. Squires will return. There will be special speakers and the new primary room will be dedicated with special exercises. Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of the chapel, has charge of the arrangements. The teachers of the school met at the home of Mr. Howard Saturday night to discuss plans for the fall and winter.

Montclair Elks' Fair.

Montclair Lodge of Elks, the youngest lodge in New Jersey, will hold a fair during the week beginning October 16. The fair as planned will be the largest ever held by an Elk Lodge in the United States. Already over $20,000 has been expended toward making the bazaar a success. Nearly $10,000 is to be given in prizes, and it is hoped that enough will be cleared from the fair to warrant the erection of a $50,000 Elk Lodge Building for the Montclair Lodge, next spring. The plans will soon be out for this structure and ground will probably be broken in April. Already much money has been contributed, but it is the wish of the executive committee to have the home entirely free from debt.

Naughty Boys.

John Brown, Fred Brown, Elmer Probasco, all colored; John Boyle, William Boyle and Fred Cavalier, ranging in age from thirteen to seventeen, were arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning, charged with throwing stones at Hyman Mann, of Lee place. The magistrate suspended sentence on their promising to be good.

amendment, instead of being a vote for an "entering wedge," is the most likely way of preventing for years to come a club in Plainfield which is open all day on Sunday. To pass this amendment is to go before the country at large, not as a club which has fallen from its high standard on a serious question, but as a club which has met a serious question bravely. The Plainfield Country Club, open only for a half day, and under every possible safeguarding restriction, will be a more powerful agency for good than it ever has been. It will be a unique example among clubs of its kind. Few are left which are closed all day on Sunday. We know of none which is open for a half day and under such restrictions. This club cannot long remain closed in any event. The sentiment for at least a partial opening is constantly growing. With this amendment in its constitution the club will stand for Sunday observance far more forcibly than it ever has before, in the eyes of a fair, broad-minded community, which recognizes that no rule or set of rules can be laid down to regulate what all of us may or may not rightfully do on Sunday.

O. T. WARING,
WALTER GASTON,
HENRY L. HALL,
PAUL TAYLOR BROWN,
A. G. HOOLEY.

September 18, 1905.

Edtior The Daily Press:

One of the arguments advanced in letters of the opponents of opening the Country Club on Sunday afternoons, and publisned by you, is that if playing golf on Sunday is sanctioned by any organized body, the playing of baseball on Sunday is liable to follow, and that the responsibility of leading others into temptation will be upon the Country Club.

Without entering into discussion here as to the merits of the case, I wish, simply as a matter of justice, to say that to my personal knowledge baseball is habitually played in this city on Sundays in more than one locality, was indulged in yesterday and has been for several years.

Under these circumstances, if the Country Club is opened on Sunday afternoons, it will be manifestly unfair to hold the club morally responsible for any Sunday ball playing which may take place in the future.

EVARTS TRACY.

Sept. 18, 1905.

Editor, The Daily Press:

So much has been said about the proposed change of the constitution of the Country Club that, though not a member of the club, I have finally become interested. On the main question I cannot hope to throw any light. However, when one who favors the change asks "Why should one who does not care to play golf on Sunday vote to prevent those from playing who wish to play?" I think he implies that the one who does not care to play should vote for the change to accommodate others. But this is not a case where either party has a claim on the friendly favor of the other.

Each person on joining the club was aware of the rule prohibiting Sunday use of the links. If thinking of it at all, one was pleased and satisfied to have it so, and hoped and intended to keep it so; while the other, wishing it otherwise, consented to the restriction and took the risk of its being permanent. Now if because of education, habit, taste, policy, religion, or doubt of its legality, anyone opposes the change, or if anyone opposes it because of a fear that the change of rule will, sooner or later, bring about a change in the habits and character of the membership and of the company which will be met on the grounds and at the clubhouse, his right is to vote for such a club as he joined and such a club as he wants; and no one has any claim upon him to waive his choice to oblige others.

This claim has been made so often and so boldly that, in the interests of reason and fairness, I protest; and I hope no one will be led by such a specious claim to be accommodating in a matter where neither ethics nor friendship require accommodation. One who, nevertheless, believes in the Golden Rule.

SIMPLEX.

Martine Favors Amendment.

Editor, The Daily Press:

To our fathers the great interest in athletics of today would seem ridiculous. But more and more with the progress of civilization and culture are athletic and out of door sports being recognized not alone as a pleasure but a physical necessity, so it is not well to hinder their national progress. These thoughts are prompted by the agitation in our local community for the opening of our beautiful golf course from 2 p. m. on Sundays. That there is honest opposition to this plan is well known, but the stock arguments in use is that we will make an European Sunday of the Sabbath and that general demoralization would ensue. We have but to look around us, both outside and inside the Country Club, to find that many of the most valued members of both club and city have been reared under the so-called European influences, and not to their detriment but to the community's welfare. The eager wish and demands of business on the average man make recreation impossible during the week day; so why prevent or try to make impossible the knocking of an innocent ball over God's green sod on Sunday? I firmly believe this proposition is in the interest of good citizenship and good morals. Let us have a trial; if it shall prove unfortunate the step can readily be rescinded.

J. E. MARTINE.

Engineer Killed Under Wheels.

Larry Westerfield, engineer of a freight train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was killed at Annandale yesterday afternoon. He walked along the running board of the engine while the train was in motion to reach for a train order which a telegraph operator on the station platform was about to hand him. In making a grab for the paper Westerfield lost his balance and fell under the wheels.

AGAINST SUNDAY GOLF

Warren chapel, referred to the matter at the morning service, speaking against the proposition. His objections were based on three main points, namely, moral grounds, the effect on the community and a violation of the laws of the State. He elaborated on each point and concluded by saying that he sincerely hoped that the golf course would not be opened on Sunday.

Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke at some length on the matter at the morning service. He said that there is too much tendency toward the secularzation of the Sabbath and he believed that a laxity of morals follows a profanation of the Sabbath. His text was "Hold fast that which thou hast," and he spoke especially of the effort now being made on the continent to recover the lost Sabbath. He said that all were beginning to see the evil effects of too much freedom in this direction and he thought it would be a serious mistake to allow the local golf course to be open on Sunday.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, spoke at the morning service on the question of Sunday golf. His chief thought was centered in the attitude of Jesus toward established religious observance, and he said that he wished to take the same attitude on the observance of Sunday. "It is an observance that contributes toward the highest attainment of Christian civilization," said Mr. Howard, "and it is our part to protest against all that might tend to destroy its influence and to support every movement which seeks to fulfill its high purpose. I believe that my position is consistent with Jesus' attitude and that it is necessary to take sides with any movement which tends to destroy the observance of Sunday."

Rev. George Mooney, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, took occasion to refer to the question at the morning service. He said that it was a matter that interests the entire community when the good order is threatened. With the permission granted to a few to break the Sabbath a potent argument is put in the mouths of many. Let down the bars for Sunday golf and it will not be long before there will be Sunday baseball, and then will come the open saloon. He said that he hoped the proposition to open the golf course on Sunday would be defeated so that it would never come up again for a vote.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, made a brief reference at the morning service to the effort to open the local golf course on Sunday afternoon, and in no uncertain tones opposed the movement. He said that he sincerely hoped that the proposition wiuld be defeated.

THE ELIZABETH AND RARITAN.

Projected Public Service Trolley Line Results in Controversy.

The Elizabeth Board of Aldermen Friday night, after a long debate, passed in part, on its second reading, an ordinance granting the Elizabeth and Raritan River Street Railway Company, a branch of Public Service, a franchise to operate a double track electric railway along Rahway avenue, in that city, from the new county courthouse to the line of Linden township. The company will pave between the tracks and three feet on each side, and sprinkle the avenue from April 15 to September 15 daily from curb to curb. Persons over ten years old shall pay five cents fare from Elizabeth to any part of Linden township or borough and persons under ten years three cents. Transfers shall be given to all intersecting lines and school children given thirty-three tickets for $1, to be good between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. The company also agrees to clean away snow and ice from its tracks.

Public Service will not agree to run cars until 2 a. m. nor to accept the franchise for a shorter period than fifty years. The aldermen want to make the franchise for thirty-five years. There will be no receding, they said, from these two stipulations. These two disputed sections were referred back to the committee on streets and parks to report at a special meeting, to be held Friday night.

THE SIMPLE LIFE FOR JAMES B. DUKE?

GIVES AWAY HIS AUTOMOBILES— SCHOOL INSTEAD OF MANSION.

When James B. Duke, of Raritan, president of the American Tobacco Company, married Mrs. McCreedy last November, he laid aside his aversion for automobiles and purchased three big flyers at a cost of $25,000, just to please his bride.

Since Mr. Duke has brought action against his wife for divorce he has also taken measures to separate himself from the automobiles.

During the past week he has given away one of his big machines to a young man who is said to be an employe of his New York office.

Today he discarded his automobile for his carriage and drove over his estate behind a spanking team of bays. The extensive work of preparing a site for the $1,000,000 mansion which Mr. Duke intended for his bride is still going on. A big steam shovel, two locomotives, a train of cars and a large force of men are now at work excavating a thirteen-acre tract for a lake and building the terrace which is to serve as a site for the mansion.

It is believed that after this work is completed the work of building the mansion will be indefinitely postponed and that Mr. Duke will stick to his present elaborate bachelor quarters.

It is rumored that Mr. Duke will eventually emulate the example of his father, the late Washington B. Duke, by erecting an institute of learning on the site he formerly intended for the mansion.

AMUSEMENTS.

There will be the charm of love, the joy of laughter and the thrill of sensationalism at the New Plainfield theatre tonight when "Checkers," the new race track play, with Hans Robert in the title role, will be presented here. "Checkers" has proved one of the few great successes of the last two seasons in New York, Boston, Chicago, and also in Philadelphia. It has just finished its ninth engagement and will play four more engagements in New York this season, a unique record for popularity. It has been described as "a breezy, realistic, convincing and amusing comedy-drama, which appeals directly to an American audience." It will receive an elaborate production on the stage of the local theatre, and the story will be interpreted by a very large company, including for principals, besides Mr. Robert, Miss Katherine Mulkins, Miss Lydia Dickson, Miss Maude Dickerson, David Braham, Jr., W. T. Clark, Howard Smith, Frank Monroe, Wallace Worsley, Ella Sothern and Myra Mae Reynolds The story in brief is that of a nervy brilliant young American who has been following the race track for a living, falling in love with a charming girl from the West, being persuaded by her to abandon his hazardous habits, his endeavoring to do so, his failure, his plunge back to the track, his triumph, his vital assistance rendered at a crucial moment to his sweetheart's father and a happy ending for all concerned. A scene unequaled in stage annals is promised for the third act. It represents the betting ring in the full blast of speculation on Derby Day in Washington Park, Chicago. Professional bookmakers who have seen the play pronounce it the most thrilling race track effect ever presented on the stage and Jacob Litt, the theatrical manager whose production of "The Suburban," is known to playgoes far and near, declares that the betting ring scene in "Checkers" is the greatest race track scene he has ever had the good fortune to witness.

"Tom, Dick and Harry," the new musical comedy which is booked for a performance at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, is one of those pieces that is certain to appeal to all classes of theatre-goers. "Tom, Dick and Harry" serves to introduce Bickel, Watson and Wrothe, the three comedians who were all the rage last season in "Me, Him and I." This season, thanks to the ocmbined efforts of A. H. Woods, who presents them, and Harry Williams, Aaron Hoffman and Egbert Van Alstyne, who are responsible for the play, these incomparable comedians have a vehicle to display their unique talents to perfection. "Tom, Dick and Harry" is not a meaningless humorous concoction served on a golden dish without the usual seasoning. It is a comedy in every sense of the word and was created for the purpose of placing these exceptional artists before the public in a manner befitting their respective ability. The music and every bit of dialogue, business, etc., is part and parcel of "Tom, Dick and Harry." There are no interpolated numbers.

Alberta Gallatin, starring this season under the management of Kane, Shipman & Colvin in "Cousin Kate," a beautiful society comedy, has not always been seen in comedy roles. In fact she is one of the most versatile actresses of the modern stage. She is generally conceded to be the greatest "Rosalind" of the age and her portrayal of that character and her work while supporting Richard Mansfield, Joseph Jefferson, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Henry Miller and E. H. Southern has greatly endeared her to people in the East, while her appearance as "Nell Gwynn" in "Under the Restoration" and "Mrs. Alving" in Ibsen's greatest of dramas, "Ghosts," has made for her fully as great a name throughout the South and West. "Cousin Kate" is booked at the New Plainfield theatre for Friday night.

PETITION FOR NEW LAKE.

Dam at Morristown Would Make Pond Fifteen Miles Long.

The citizens of Essex, Passaic, Union and Morris counties are discussing the probability of a new lake to be made by inundating the great meadows lying in the Passaic Valley from Morristown to Little Falls. A lake covering the meadows and marshes named would be fifteen miles long and six miles wide. The surrounding country is the most picturesque in the State. Petitions are being circulated and have been signed by many wealthy and influential residents of the four counties, urging the State to supply the water. One of the greatest advantages of the new project would be to cover a large tract of land that is now nothing more than a mosquito breeder. On 2,200 acres of this land the farmers are able to harvest the hay crop only in very dry seasons, which has happened but once in four years.

The subject has been brought before the State officials who have jurisdiction in the premises, and the promoters say that a way will be found to enable the State to help the great enterprise along. A dam at Little Falls and some smaller dams elsewhere will impound enough of the overflow waters of New Jersey's almost inexhaustible watershed to keep the water of the new lake always fresh and sweet.

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Do not leave scrubbing brushes with the bristles turned up, or the dampness from them will run into the body of the brush and loosen the bristles in their sockets.

A glass decanter may be cleaned by breaking up eggshells into small pieces, putting them into the decanter, which is half filled with water, and thoroughly shaken.

When housecleaning the bedroom wash the toilet ware with soap and water, and then fill the vessels with boiling hot soda water; put them out in the air and leave them filled for half a day until thoroughly disinfected.

Ordinary writing ink may be removed from carpet or colored stuffs as follows: Soak up as much as possible with a blotter, then apply milk with a soft clean rag, allowing the milk to soak thoroughly into the stain. It will draw out the ink most successfully.

Never put summer clothes away in a soiled condition. They may be needed in a hurry when the first warm days of spring occur, and then there is much discomfort. Linen and muslins should be packed away unstarched, however, to prevent their becoming yellow.

Chloride of lime and water will remove ink stains from silver if well rubbed on the stains and then washed off at once, the silver being then polished as ordinarily. The solution for the purpose is four ounces of chloride of lime to one and a half pints of water. This may be bottled and kept ready for use.

Wicker furniture which has been varnished will not take enamel until the varnish has been washed off with boiling water in which there is a little washing soda. After it dries rub it thoroughly with a piece of flannel dipped in turpentine, and after this has been aired for twenty-four hours rub with sandpaper, after which the wicker may be either painted or dyed satisfactorily.

GIFTS SHE MAY ACCEPT.

You are aware of that positive and widely accepted unwritten law that from an undeclared lover a girl may accept only perishable articles It is not a question of cost, for the roses he gives here in December may cost as much as a new hat, and the concert tickets might even glove her for six months.

Nor is it a question of uselessness only, for she may not accept jewelry, expensive pets and pictures. In fine, she may only take articles which perish in the using—swiftly fading flowers, chocolates which tomorrow will be but a sweet memory, tickets to secure an evening's enjoyment. Books are sometimes held an exception, and certainly may be given without offense to an invalid or traveler, but even then they must be inexpensive.

To an old friend a little latitude may be allowed, admits the Weekly Welcome. Sometimes the custom of giving a little weekly remembrance at birthdays or Christmas has been kept up between two since childhood, and it would only be fussy and prudish to stop it unless some special reason arises.

But while such things as we have described may be given and received in mere politeness or friendship, without the least ulterior intention, it is not always so. There are many generous young fellows who like to please all their lady friends impartially, and from whom the little gift may safely be accepted. But if a man concentrates all his attentions upon one, cuts his best flowers for her with a liberal hand, remembers her alone when Saraste of Beerbohm Tree is in their town, then she may well ask herself whether or not she is prepared to accept him as a lover.

If not, she had much better make a gentle effort to quench his hopes, difficut though it may be. It is quite evident in that case that his gifts have a meaning and unless she is a mere flirt desirous of adding a scalp to her string she will seriously make up her mind whether or not she will encourage him by taking them.

No right-minded girl will accept anything of use or value from a man to whom she is not engaged. In fact, it is wrong for a man to offer it, because he must know quite well that it is not permissible and only creates an embarrassing situation. Unhappily, there are girls greedy and silly enough not only to accept but even to seek gifts. If they know how they lowered themselves even in the eyes of the donor they would surely writhe with shame.

Sometimes the refusal of a gift gives a shy lover just his needed opportunity to speak. "Well, if you won't have the brooch will you let me buy you a ring—do, Maggie, dear!" was the way one lover found himself suddenly able to put the question which had been hanging on his lips for weeks. Or the refusing of the gift enables a girl to put a definite stop to troublesome attentions without allowing them to get as far as a proposal.

Fair Closed on Sunday.

The Interstate Fair Association directors have decided to close the fair gates on Sunday at the request of Judge Relistab, of the Mercer county criminal court.

It is generally understood that the Democrats will place in nomination for State Senator Judge J. William Crane, of Elizabeth. This would be a creditable, dignified nomination.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

but, luckily, he didn't notice. He had taken my hand and was looking at me over his spectacles in his dear, fatherly old way.

"Tell me now, my dear, is there anything that an old clergyman can do for you? I have an engagement near here and we may not meet again. I can't hope to find you in my carriage many more times. You are happy—you are living worthily, child? Pardon me, but the stage—"

Oh, the gentle courtesy of his manner! I loved his solicitude. Father-hungry girls like us, Maggie, know how to value a thing like that.

"You know," I said, slowly, "the thing that keeps a woman straight and a man faithful is not a matter of bricks and mortar nor ways of thinking nor habits of living. It's something finer and stronger than these. It's the magic taboo of her love for him and his for her that makes them—sacred. With that to guard them—why—"

"Yes, yes," he patted my hand softly. "Still, the old see the dangers of an environment that a young and impulsive woman like you, my dear, might be blind to. Your associates—"

"My associates? Oh, you've heard about Beryl Blackburn. Well—she's—she's just Beryl, you know. She wasn't made to live any different. Some people steal and some drink and some gamble and some . . . Well, Beryl belongs to the last class. She doesn't pretend to be better than she is. And, just between you and me, bishop, I've more respect for a girl of that kind than for Grace Weston, whose husband is my leading man, you know. Why, she pulls the wool over his eyes and makes him the laughing-stock of the company. I can't stand her any more than I can Marie Avon, who's never without two strings—"

All at once I stopped. But wasn't it like me to spoil it all by bubbling over? I tell you, Maggie, too much truth isn't good for the bishop's set; they don't know how to digest it.

I was afraid that I'd lost him, for he spoke with a stately little primness as the carriage just then came to a stop; I had been so interested talking that I hadn't noticed where we were driving.

"Ah, here we are!" he said. "I must ask you to excuse me, Miss—ah, Mrs.—that is—there's a public meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children this afternoon that I must attend. Good-by, then—"

"Oh, are you bound for the Cruelty, too?" I asked. "Why, so am I. And—yes—yes—that's the Cruelty!"

The Cruelty stands just where it did, Mag, when you and I first saw it; most things do in Philadelphia, you know. There's the same prim, official straight up-and-downness about the brick front. The steps don't look so steep now and the building's not so high, perhaps because of a skyscraper or two that've gone up since. But it chills your blood, Maggie darlin', just as it always did, to think what it stands for. Not man's inhumanity to man, but women's cruelty to children! Maggie, think of it, if you can, as though this were the first time you'd heard of such a thing! Would you believe it?

I waked from that to find myself marching up the stairs behind the bishop's rigid little back. Oh, it was stiff and uncompromising! Beryl Blackburn did that for me. Poor, pretty, pagan Beryl!

My coming with the bishop—we seemed to come together, anyway—made the people think he'd brought me, so I must be just all right. I had the man bring in the toys I'd got out in the carriage, and I handed them over to the matron, saying:

"They're for the children. I want them to have them all and now, please, to do whatever they want with them. There'll always be others. I'm going to send them right along, if you'll let me, so that those who leave can take something of their very own with them—something that never belonged to anybody else but just themselves, you understand. It's terrible, don't you know, to be a deserted child or a tortured child or a crippled child and have nothing to do but sit up in that bare, clean little room upstairs with a lot of other strangelings—and just think on the cruelty that's brought you here and the cruelty you may get into when you leave here. If I'd had a doll—if Mag had only had a set of dishes or a little tin kitchen—if the boy with the gouged eye could have had a set of tools—oh, can't you understand—"

I became conscious then that the matron—a new one, Mag, ours is gone—was staring at me, and that the people stood around listening as though I'd gone mad.

Who came to my rescue? Why, the bishop, like the manly little fellow he is. He forgave me even Beryl in that moment.

"It's Nance Olden, ladies," he said, with a dignified little wave of his hand that served for an introduction. "She begins her Philadelphia engagement tonight in 'And the Greatest of These.'"

Oh, I'm used to it now, Maggie, but I do like it. All the lady-swells buzzed about me, and there Nance stood preening herself and crowing softly till—till from among the bunch of millinery one of them stepped up to me. She had a big smooth face with plenty of chins. Her hair was white and her nose was curved and she rustled in silk and—

"Clever! My, how clever!" she exclaimed, as though the sob in my voice that I couldn't control had been a bit of acting.

She was feeling for her glasses. When she got them and hooked them on her nose and got a good look at me—why, she just dropped them with a smash upon the desk.

I looked for a minute from her to the bishop.

"I remember you very well, Mrs. Ramsay. I hope you haven't forgotten me. I've often wanted to thank you for your kindness," I said, slowly, while she as slowly recovered. "I think you'll be glad to know that I am thoroughly well—cured. . . . Shall I tell Mrs. Ramsay how, bishop?"

I put it square up to him. And he met it like the little man he is—perhaps, too, my bit of charity to the Cruelty children had pleased him.

"I don't think it will be necessary, Miss Olden," he said, gently. "I can do that for you at some future time."

And I could have hugged him; but I didn't dare.

We had tea there in the Board rooms. Oh, Mag, remember how we used to peep into those awful, imposing Board rooms! Remember how strange and resentful you felt—like a poor little red-haired nigger up at the block—when you were brought in there to be shown to the woman who'd called to adopt you!

It was all so strange that I had to keep talking to keep from dreaming. I was talking away to the matron and the bishop about the playroom I'm going to fit up out of that bare little place upstairs. Perhaps the same child doesn't stay there very long, but there'll always be children to fill it—more's the cruel pity!

Then the bishop and I climbed up there to see it and plan about it. But I couldn't really see it, Mag, nor the poor, white-faced, wise-eyed little waifs that have succeeded us, for the tears in my eyes and the ache at my heart and the queer trick the place has of being peopled with you and me, and the boy with the gouged eye, and the cripple, and the rest.

He put his gentle thin old arm about my shoulders for a moment when he saw what was the matter with me. Oh, he understands, my bishop! And then we turned to go downstairs.

"Oh—I want—I want to do something for them," I cried. "I want to do something that counts, that's got a heart in it, that knows! You knew, didn't you, it was true—what I said downstairs? I was—I am a Cruelty girl. Help me to help others like me."

"My dear," he said, very stately and sweet, "I'll be proud to be your assistant. You've a kind, true heart and—"

And just at that minute, as I was preceding him down the narrow steps, a girl in a red coat trimmed with chinchilla and in a red toque with some of the same fur blocked our way as she was coming up.

We looked at each other. You've seen two peacocks spread their tails and strut as they pass each other? Well, the peacock coming up wasn't in it with the one going down. Her coat wasn't so fine, nor so heavy, nor so newly, smartly cut. Her toque wasn't so big nor so saucy, and the fur on it—not to mention that the descending peacock was a brunette and . . . well, Mag, I had my day. Miss Evelyn Kingdon paid me back in that minute for all the envy I've spent on that pretty rig of hers.

She didn't recognize me, of course, even though the two red coats were so near, as she stopped to let me pass, that they kissed like sisters, ere they parted. But, Mag, Nancy Olden never got haughty that there wasn't a fall waiting for her. Back of Miss Kingdon stood Mrs. Kingdon—still Mrs. Kingdon, thanks to Nance Olden—and behind her, at the foot of the steps, was a frail little old-fashioned bundle of black satin and old lace. I lost my breath when the bishop hailed his wife.

"Maria," he said—some men say their wives' first names all the years of their lives as they said them on their wedding day—"I want you to meet Miss Olden—Nance Olden, the comedian. She's the girl I wanted for my daughter—you'll remember, it's more than a year ago now since I began to talk about her!"

I held my breath while I waited for her answer. But her poor, short-sighted eyes rested on my hot face without a sign.

"It's an old joke among us," she said, pleasantly, "about the bishop's daughter."

We stood there and chatted, and the bishop turned away to speak to Mrs. Kingdon. Then I seized my chance.

"I've heard, Mrs. Van Wagenen," I said, softly, and oh, as nicely as I could, "of your fondness for lace. We are going abroad in the spring, my husband and I, to Malta, among other places. Can't I get you a piece there as a souvenir of the bishop's kindness to me?"

Her little lace-mittened, parchment-like hands clasped and unclasped with an almost childish eagerness.

"Oh, thank you, thank you very much; but if you would give the same sum to charity—"

"I will," I laughed. She couldn't guess how glad I was to do this thing. "And I'll spend just as much on your face and be so happy if you'll accept it."

I promised Henrietta a box for tonight, Maggie, and one to Mrs. Kingdon. The dowager told me she'd love to come, though her husband is out of town, unfortunately, she said.

"But you'll come with me, won't you, bishop?" she said, turning to him. "And you, Mrs. Van?"

The bishop blushed. Was he thinking of Beryl, I wonder. But I didn't hear his answer, for it was at that moment that I caught Fred's voice. He had told me he was going to call for me. I think he fancied that the old Cruelty would depress me—as dreams of it have, you know; and he wanted to come and carry me away from it, just as at night, when I've waked shivering and moaning, I've felt his dear arms lifting me out of the black night-memory of it.

But it was anything but a doleful Nance he found and hurried down the snowy steps out to a hansom and off to rehearsal. For the bishop had said to me: "God bless you, child," when he shook hands with both of us at parting, and the very Cruelty seemed to smile a grim benediction, as we drove off together, on Fred and

OYSTERS R HERE.

There are plenty Blue Points, Rockaways etc., this season, and they are fine.

Another nice way to Fry Oysters than that we mentioned last Monday is to dry them in a napkin; then heat "SFAX" VIRGIN OLIVE OIL in a frying pan. Season the Oysters with pepper and salt, and then dip each one into egg and cracker crumbs. Place them into the hot oil and fry a delicate brown. Serve them crisp and hot.

Beware of the many adulterated cotton seed oil brands with which our market is flooded and which only cause indigestion.

Insist upon having

as it is guaranteed ABSOLUTELY PURE by the French and U. S. Governments. Better than the best and just as cheap. In Gallons, Quarts, Pints and Half-pints.

EGGS FOR "NAN PATTERSON."

Manager of Show Caused Riot by Presenting Another Woman.

"Nan Patterson" was billed to appear at Freehold Thursday night at the head of a vaudeville troupe, consisting of eleven persons. There was a large audience in the theatre when the curtain was rung up, all anxious to get a glimpse of the woman accused of the murder of Caesar Young.

As the show progressed and "Nan" did not appear, the audience became restless and unruly. There were repeated calls for "Nan Patterson" from them. Finally, the manager introduced a woman he said was "Nan Patterson," but the audience hissed him, and there was a shower of eggs for the woman.

The persons in the audience knew what the real "Nan" looked like from pictures of her published in the newspapers. The shower of eggs broke up the show, and although the police were called in, they were powerless to quell the disturbance. More eggs were thrown at members of the company when they came out of the theatre to go to their hotels.

OBJECT TO P. O. SERVICE.

Whitehouse, Sept. 18.—To reach its destination, a distance of less than a mile, a letter mailed at the post-office at Bedminster, addressed to a person at Far Hills, must make the journey to Summit, some twenty miles from Far Hills, and back again to the latter place. That is why the people of Bedminster are dissatisfied with the postal service there. The mail from the Bedminster postoffice does not go in the Far Hills office to be distributed, but is taken over to the Lackawanna station at Far Hills by a regular carrier and put on the train there. A letter from Far Hills to Bedminster also goes by way of Summit.

Citizens of Bedminster have been talking in regard to this for some time and they are going to form a deputation to wait on Congressman Wood about it. They believe it is high time to have something done when it takes almost a day for a letter to go a mile.

Miss Minnie Mehl, of Liberty street, has returned from her summer vacation, spent in Maine.

Herbert Conover, of the borough, has accepted a position in the office of the Manganese Steel Safe Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Eden Boice, of Central avenue and West Third street, have returned home after visiting friends at Roselle and Loraine.

Sydney Gilbert, of the West End, has recovered from a severe injury to his left hand, the result of an accident in one of the Garwood shops.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Harry B. MacDonald, William R. Sullivan and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas by order entered on the twenty-first day of June, 1905, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, said improvements being the macadamizing of:

Albert street, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front street to the southeasterly curb line of Dunellen avenue;

under the ordinance of said city, entitled "An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the city of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 6, 1903, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefitted by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said Ordinances, the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benfits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislaters required to said report and ture, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the third day of October, 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.
Dated September 5, 1905.

Tom, Dick and Harry—
At New Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, September 19.

Those in search of genuine, rollicking fun should not miss going to see "Tom, Dick and Harry" at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. This is a musical comedy in which Bickel, Watson and Wrothe, who were the stars of "Me, Him and I" last season, appear. The music of "Tom, Dick and Harry" is by Egbert Van Alstyne, the man responsible for "Navahoe" and other popular ditties, while the book and lyrics were written by Aaron Hoffman and Harry Williams, two competent writers.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

P. H. S. NOTES.

Class '06 Chose Colors.

The class of '06, Plainfield High School, met this morning and adopted orange and blue as its colors. Those of last year were orange and white, but as the school color is blue, one of the requirements of future classes will be the use of blue in combination with some other color.

Miss Niles to Remain Abroad.

It is quite generally understood that Miss Ellen Niles, the oldest member of the Plainfield High School faculty, now in Germany studying, has been granted another year's leave of absence, and that she will not return home till next fall.

Dishonest Railroad Clerk in Jail.

William C. Walsh, the confidential clerk at the Jersey Central transfer station at Elizabeth, who was arrested on three charges of alleged swindling of the company by falsifying the payroll, and to which accusations he pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge Mahon in the Elizabeth police court, was Saturday morning committed to the county jail, having failed to secure a bondsman. He will be rearraigned in the Court of Special Sessions before Judge Vail next Wednesday, when he may be sentenced, if he still pleads guilty.

Strikers Cause Trouble.

Trouble ensued when the Singer Manufacturing Company, of Elizabeth, brought 100 strike breakers to the works this morning. The police were called out. A few black eyes was about the only damage.

—Neuman Bros. are still offering peaches for canning and table use. This fruit is the pick of the orchards and the prices are reasonable.

DAABSTERS DEFEAT M'GRAW'S MIGHTY MEN

N. Y. CHAMPIONS' COLORS LOWERED BY THE HOBOKEN TEAM.

The New York champion Giants were defeated yesterday at St. George Cricket Grounds, by the Hobokens, by a score of 7 to 1. The Jerseymen made three runs in the opening inning, one of them being scored on a close decision over which the Giants kicked vigorously.

In the third inning Connolly hit safely to right. Browne went after the ball leisurely and the crowd hissed him. In the fourth, when Browne went to the bat he was hissed again. He then lost his temper and in striking at the ball his bat slipped and flew into the diamond. Then Deegan accidentlly hit Browne with the ball and Browne in turn threw his bat at "Willie." An uproar followed, which was quickly quieted by the police.

The Giants then made a determined effort to win the game, but Deegan was in the best of form and they were only able to score one run in the ninth. The Hobokens pounded Elliott for eleven hits, including two doubles and two triples, earning all of their runs. The score:

Kiss Cure Rheumatism?

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Anna Hill, a young and attractive widow, is not of the opinion that a kiss is a cure for rheumatism. She further asserts that sentimental massage does not alleviate pain. So she has caused a warrant to be issued for Dr. E. T. Alford, whom she charges with prescribing these things when she called him into her apartments on professional business. They both live at No. 70 East Thirty-sixth street. "It is all spite work," said the doctor. "I objected to the noise in Mrs. Hill's apartment and this is the way she comes back at me."

Dying Newark Pastor Resigns.

Rev. H. H. Barbour, pastor of the North Baptist church of Newark, who has been suffering for a long time from a cancer of the stomach, tendered his resignation yesterday. It is more than a year since the pastor has been able to attend to church duties, although he at times, while in bed, wrote sermonettes, as he called them, which were read from the pulpit at the Sunday services.

Drowned In His Own Well.

Mrs. Neil Burgess, the actor's wife, and herself a good actress, died at the Highlands of Navesink yesterday morning. Mrs. Burgess was stricken with paralysis about a year ago, and suffered another stroke early yesterday. Her husband and their young son, John Burgess, were with her at the end.

NOT ANGRY AT ROOSEVELT.

Even Japes Dissatisfied with Peace Terms Admire Him.

London, Sept. 18.—The Standard's correspondent at Tokio says he is authorized by Marquis Ito to make the following statement:

"The Marquis has observed with the deepest regret that the American press has been betrayed into a grievous misconception regarding the recent disorders in Tokio, Yokohama and elsewhere. He emphatically denies that there exists among his countrymen even the semblance of ill feeling against America—much less against President Roosevelt—in connection with the peace terms.

"Dissatisfied as some of the Japanese are with the terms, only one sentiment prevails about the action and attitude of President Roosevelt, namely, sincere appreciation of his noble and disinterested exertions in behalf of peace and humanity."

Constitution Breaking Up.

Boston, Sept. 18.—The Herald today says: "The ancient frigate Constitution, familiarly known as 'The first ship of the American navy,' which has for years been one of the most valued possessions of the Charlestown Navy Yard, is in danger of 'turning turtle,' and it is learned that the good ship cannot last many years in its present state. The frigate is leaking badly, and the hold fills so rapidly that it is necessary to use a power pump frequenlty. One of the ttaches of the yard said today that the officials did not care to risk placing the ship in dry dock to make repairs, as the vessel would crush with its own weight."

CITS ENDORSE DEMOCRATS' MAYORALTY NOMINEE

Much Enthusiasm At Borough Meeting Which Selects William J. Conroy.

MR. HONEYMAN SPEAKS

Arraigns Mayor Smalley and the Present Administration—Mr. Swackhamer Also Makes Address.

In an atmosphere surcharged with enthusiasm, and antagonism to the present administration, the borough Citizens' enunciated their principles and named their standard bearers last night. The meeting, held in the Somerset street schoolhouse, was attended by about 150 voters, and men prominent in borough affairs lent their weight to the gathering, on the platform as well as on the floor.

W. J. Conroy, the Democratic candidate, was endorsed for mayor; Charles E. Ball and T. E. Currin, Republicans, were placed in nomination for Council; W. E. Mattison, D. D. Smalley and C. D. McNabb were named for justices of the peace; and George Kirch for commissioner of appeals. The primary law, particularly that section of it which requires an oath of allegiance to the party candidates, was bitterly denounced, in the speeches and in the platform adopted. Marked enthusiasm for Mr. Conroy and implacable opposition to Mayor Smalley were manifested.

From first to last, the meeting was a hot and fierce attack on the borough executive. Smalley was the burden of all the denunciations and every statement that was launched at him and his administration evoked plaudits.

Even the denunciation of the primary law seemed to have been conceived solely in anger over the plan of the present administration to use wholesale challenges at the recent primary under the new law.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. H. K. Carroll. Seated on the platform were S. S. Swackhamer, former Mayor H. E. Needham, Assessor J. H. Cooley, Rev. W. E. Honeyman and E. A. Overton. Ex-Mayor Charles Place, Councilman Van Winkle, former Freeholder Andrew Lutkins and Mr. Conroy were on the floor.

Mr. Honeyman and Mr. Swackhamer made the principal addresses. The former reviewed the Mayor's official acts and conduct in strong language and opened the assault on the primary law. He painted Mayor Smalley as all that is bad in official life, short of actual financial corruption. His speech is printed in full below.

Charles Harden asked for the floor when Mr. Honeyman finished and spoke briefly in support of a united assault on the Mayor. He was a Republican, he said, but refused to recognize Mayor Smalley as such.

Ex-Mayor Place arose and moved the appointment of a nomination and platform committee. Dr. Carroll appointed Mr. Place, Andrew Love, Sr., former Mayor Needham, Councilman Van Winkle, Alburtus Swalm, Councilman Krewson, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, J. T. Case, Horace Conover and Edward Hutchinson. The committee retired to a room downstairs for conference.

When the committee filed out Mr. Swackhamer was introduced. He delivered a vigorous speech, along lines similar to those followed by Mr. Honeyman. He was unusually eloquent and caught the spirit of the audience with the skill of a naturally endowed orator. His periods were wildly cheered and his stories were rewarded with laughter that shook the building.

He caused some dubious looks by starting his speech with a declaration of personal friendship for the Mayor, but the guns he opened on Mr. Smalley when he had made it clear that he hated the Mayor's acts and not the Mayor himself delighted his auditors and caused them to forget that he could find it in him to wish any good to Smalley at all. He made a point on perpetual candidacy count by reading Smalley's open letter to The Daily Press last January declaring his unalterable determination to decline a renomination.

He referred to the attacks made on him after the choice of W. J. Conroy for Mayor had been announced by the Democratic committee. Conroy was chosen, he said, simply because it was discovered that a "large body of independent Republicans were ready to support the Democratic nominee if that nominee was Conroy," and they felt that the best interests of the party and the public good would be conserved by the union. There was no thought of personal gain, and scorned to reply to the attacks of those who hid behind the anonymity of the newspaper columns. Like Mr. Honeyman, the Democratic leader reviewed the charges against the administration. In touching on the Goodwin case, he intimated that the docket of Recorded Doud's court was doctored to meet the necessities of the certiorari action.

After Mr. Swackhamer's speech, the resolution and nomination committee reported through Mr. Place. Platform and nominations were adopted by acclaim. The former was as follows:

1. National and State politics to be so far divorced from borough business affairs, that good men only shall be nominated and elected to borough offices.

2. Opposition to the perpetual candidacy of one man for the mayoralty.

3. A Borough Council, independent in its conduct, acting only for the public interests, and not to be under the personal control of the mayor.

4. The imprisonment of private citizens without warrant, when not guilty of a crime, not to be tolerated.

5. The preservation of our excellent school system without interference by any political boss.

6. Free speech and free action, on the part of all our citizens, without boycotting in business.

7. Appointments not to be made on the Board of Health for any reason except efficiency.

8. The Borough Recorder to be one who will endeavor to do justice and practice equity in the disposition of business, instead of exercising arbitrary authority.

9. Useful public improvements to be undertaken by the Borough Council, when the whole public will be benefitted, but not otherwise.

10. The good name of the borough not to be further soiled by permits for prize-fights, or by any exhibition which tends to degrade public morals.

11. The repeal of the obnoxious provisions of the primary election act of 1898 and its supplements, which forbids a voter to cast his ballot at such primary, if challenged, unless he enters into an oath of allegiance to a party ticket. To accomplish this we call upon all candidates who are nominated from this county for the Legislature to pledge themselves to endeavor to secure such repeal at the next legislative session.

The eleventh plank was submitted separately, to give possible dissenters an opportunity to register their objections. There were none. Mr. Place, in moving the addition of the plank, spoke strongly against the law. He declared that neither Tweed nor Croker, in their palmiest days, "would have dared to put so iniquitous a law on the statutes of New York or the ordinances of New York City."

As soon as the plank went through a resolution authorizing the executive committee of the party to sound legislative candidates on it was passed with a rush. The chairman of the committee was instructed to ascertain if the Assembly and Senate nominees will accept the plank and work for the repealer.

The nominees were presented after the following preamble was read by Mr. Place:

"Inasmuch as W. J. Conroy, who has been put regularly in nomination by the Democratic party, is a man of integrity, sound business judgment and abundant capability to become Mayor, to put into operation needed reforms and to re-establish the good name of the borough, and inasmuch as it is inadvisable to place three tickets in the field, we cordially endorse W. J. Conroy as candidate for Mayor."

The mention of Mr. Conroy's name was received with sustained cheers.

Mr. Place reported the choice of the following executive committee: T. S. Armstrong, David Bodine, J. J. Stahl, Charles Harden and A. V. D. Honeyman. The committee was accepted as named.

When the nominations were disposed of, Dr. Carroll called Mr. Conroy to the platform. The candidate was accorded a fervent reception. He spoke briefly in a level tone.

"I do not know whether this is the happiest moment of my life, but it certainly is one of the most interesting. This is not an ordinary primary gathering; men of influence and culture are here, of high and known reputations. As for myself, I am an unknown quantity to you. I have a record still to make. If I am elected I will give you a thorough business administration. Every man in office will have to account for every dollar expended. This administration has been called progressive. I promise you a better one. In this fight you will find me with you on the firing line. And we will use smokeless powder. The issues will not be befogged. But my campaign will be clean, no mud will be thrown."

The cheering that followed Mr. Conroy's speech recalled old-time party conventions. It was fully a

HAD NO REGARD FOR PRIESTLY DIGNITY

RIBALD DUNELLENITE MUST ATONE IN JAIL FOR SAD IRREVERENCE.

For insulting two priests, John McGirr, of Dunellen, must spend ten days in the Middlesex county jail at New Brunswick. John heightened his offense by displaying an overdeveloped load and scorning the clerics on Sunday.

He appeared at the house of Rev. Father Dunphy, rector of St. John's R. C. church, Dunellen, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and made a nuisance of himself right away. Father Dunphy's gentle remonstrances appeared only to increase his disregard for decency. Father Elias Younan, a mission priest who has been conducting special services at St. John's church, is a guest at the rectory. Father Younan is a large man. McGirr turned his careless wit on him.

"You missed your calling," he said; "you ought to be a cop on the Bowery."

Father Dunphy abandoned gentle measures and sent for Marshal Mohan. Late Sunday night McGirr had sobered sufficiently to be arraigned, and Recorder Campbell had hm brought up.

"Are you sober enough to realize what you've been doing?" asked the recorder.

"I've made a —— fool of myself, aint I?" said McGirr ingenuously. "But I've been punished for it; I'm turribly thirsty."

The Recorder thought a little more punishment would be good. "Ten days," he said.

"Must I go back into that place?" asked John sadly when the marshal took hold of his arm. "Will I ever get a drink again?"

PUBLIC SERVICE SAFE IS CRACKED

MASKED MEN GOT NEARLY $400 AT PERTH AMBOY—GAGGED WATCHMAN.

Four masked men entered the car barns of the Public Service Corporation at Perth Amboy just before dawn yesterday and after gagging and binding the watchman, William Wood, blew open the safe and made off with Sunday's receipts, between $300 and $400.

The robbers asked Wood if he was a married man, and after getting an affirmative nod, told him they had no desire to harm a married man and would not do so if he would keep quiet.

Wood managed to convey to the intruders that he was suffocating, and they immediately cut a hole in the bag they had thrown over his head, so that he could breathe more easily.

One of the robbers was at least six feet tall, another was small of stature, while the other two were of medium size.

Fresh wagon tracks seen at the car barn were traced toward Metuchen, in which direction it is believed the thieves went.

Half an hour after the safe was blown open the fire alarm rang for a blaze which ruined the saloon of Jacob Houser, at 75 Smith street, Perth Amboy, doing damage to the extent of $4,000.

S. S. TEACHERS' FEAST.

Eat Delicious Cake at Anniversary Feast.

Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, entertained the members of the Primary and Junior Sunday School Teachers' Union yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the celebration of the organization's tenth anniversary. It was originally planned to hold the affair on the lawn and porch, but the inclement weather prevented and the festivities were enjoyed in the house.

The programme was of an informal character, consisting of vocal and instrumental music by Lawrence and Elmer French and Miss Voorhees. The successes of the union during the past year were recalled, and of those present two were charter members—Mrs. J. A. Powlison and Miss May E. Howlett.

After the entertainment refreshments were served, a feature being a large birthday cake presented by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins. She always makes and presents a cake to the union at its anniversary meeting, and it is one of the enjoyable features.

Dr. Hedges Is Home.

Dr. E. W. Hedges, of Crescent avenue, returns today from a six weeks' vacation spent in touring California.

—Bartlett pears for the table and canning, also Damson and other plums, green gages, etc., are being offered by Neuman Brothers. This fruit is very choice.

SAYS CLERIC WAS CRUEL

Mr. Lane Accuses Rev. Mr. Francis Of Ill-Treating Canine.

STOPPED DOG FIGHT

And Owner of One Says Minister Went Too Far with Peace Measures—Sues for Damages.

Because, it is alleged, he used cruel and unusual means to separate fighting dogs, Rev. George A. Francis, of East Fifth street, must face a suit for damages, brought by John Lane, a neighbor, who owns one of the dogs.

According to the plaintiff's allegations, his dog, a valuable bull, became engaged in a battle with another dog of the neighborhood in Rev. Mr. Francis' sight. The clergyman separated the animals. Mr. Lane declares he used a poker and a cane on the bull to accomplish the separation, and for the damage alleged to have been done by these drastic instruments of peace he seeks compensation.

The case is to be tried before Justice Mosher on Thursday. William Newcorn will represent the plaintiff. Reed & Coddington will represent the defendant.

Rev. Mr. Francis paid no attention to Mr. Lane's strictures on his conduct in connection with the dog fight at first, but was moved to vigorous action by the institution of the suit. He is preparing a strong defense and will contest the suit stubbornly.

Both sides are warm over the matter and a lot of interesting testimony is expected to develop at the hearing. The hearing will be before a twelveman jury.

RECEPTION TO NEW Y. M. C. A. DIRECTOR

MEMBERS GATHER IN HONOR OF C. A. BOARDMAN—OFFICERS SPEAK.

Members of the Y. M. C. A. gathered in the small hall of the association last night to greet Charles A. Boardman, the new physical director.

President J. W. Gavett introduced Mr. Boardman in a brief speech, and the latter responded to the introduction with an outline of the work it is hoped to do in the department during the coming year. He emphasized the increase of efficiency and membership it is aimed to accomplish.

Mr. Gavett spoke a second time on the departmental work. It was the aim, he said, to increase the membership to 1,000, which is 400 more than at present. Under present conditions and with Mr. Boardman at the head of the department, he said, there was every reason to look for a great advance in the work.

Boys' Secretary Robbie also spoke. He dwelt on the relationship of the physical director to the association work in general. E. K. Smith, of Orange, a parlor vaudeville performer, and the Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished entertainment. Refreshments were served.

BOLD FLAT THIEF.

Frightened from One Apartment, He Goes Upstairs and Tries Another.

While Mrs. John Schorb, of Somerset street, was sitting in her flat early Sunday night she heard a noise in the parlor. She went into the room and thought she heard somebody move down the hall as she entered. A few minutes later she heard steps from the flat above, occupied by Harry Zimmerman. Thinking Mr. Zimmerman was at home, she paid no attention to them.

Later, when the Zimmerman's, who had been out, returned they found their apartment had been ransacked. Only some small change was missing.

Schorb and a companion saw a stranger enter the house from across the street, but the former thought nothing of it. The man evidently had been in Mrs. Schorb's parlor when she heard the noise, and slipped out and upstairs as she came into the room. There is no clue to the bold thief's identity.

Wedding This Afternoon.

Miss Cornelia Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, of Watchung avenue, and William Tallamy, of West Front street, will be married at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, by Rev. G. B. Shaw, pastor of the church. A reception will be held afterward at the home of the bride's parents.

Plan Sunday Golf Fight.

An informal meeting of a number of those who favor the opening of the Plainfield Country Club golf course on Sunday afternoon was held at the Casino last night.

WILL FRELINGHUYSEN BEAT SENATOR CHILDS?

COLONEL IS SAID TO BE STRONGER THAN LAST CAMPAIGN.

According to Major Dungan, says The New York Tribune today, there is no doubt that Senator Childs will be renominated by the Democrats of that county. The major makes the interesting addendum to that statement that the "fight is going to be a warm one." There was nothing in this last remark even to suggest that Senator Smith likes the good company of "a large cold bottle and a small hot bird," but Somerset is a small county, and there are a good many real warm political birds in that corner of the State, as the outcome there has fully convinced the State leaders more than once.

Against Senator Childs, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen will be nominated by the Republicans. The contesting tickets will be the same as they were three years ago, when Mr. Childs won out by the slender majority of 312. At that time there were factional disturbances among the Somerset Republicans which it is now said have been cured. In fact, it is estimated that some of the Democrats up that way are not well pleased with the outlook for Mr. Childs—at least, they were not, according to common report, until they learned that Mr. Smith had counselled harmony—some of them call it "hominy"—and hastened to assure them that they could now defeat Colonel Frelinghuysen just as easily as they defeated him three years ago if they would all pull and haul together. The friends of Colonel Frelinghuysen apparently are not worried by the outlook. They evidently believe that the old factional kinks have been straightened out, and that Colonel Frelinghuysen will this time be able to turn the election tables on Mr. Childs. It is positively known that some of the Republicans who three years ago opposed the colonel will support him this year.

NEW TAX BOARD'S PAY SAID TO BE ILLEGAL

BODY IS WRONGLY NAMED IN BILLS MAKING APPROPRIATIONS.

Trenton, Sept. 19.—People about the State House are discussing the discovery, which has just been made, that about $10,000 has been paid in salaries and expenses to the new Board of Equalization of Taxes since April 1, without any proper appropriation having been made therefor. That it was the intention of the Legislature last winter to make a proper appropriation for the board is evidenced by the fact that included in both the deficiency and appropriation bills is an item to cover the salaries and expenses of the board. In the former the amount is $13,533.34, and in the latter $23,200, but, unfortunately, both items designate the board as the Board of Taxation of New Jersey, whereas the law creating the board distinctly declares that it shall be called "The Board for the Equalization of Taxes of New Jersey." It is, therefore, claimed that no appropriation was legally made for the new board, as there is no such board as the Board of Taxation of New Jersey.

The matter is now up to the comptroller, and if he should decide that he has no authority to pay money to the board, its members and employes will have to wait for their money until the next Legislature can meet and straighten out the muddle, or cease to perform their duties.

PARTITION PROCEEDINGS.

Special Master Van Winkle Takes Testimony in Coon Case.

The testimony of witnesses in the partition proceedings in Chancery, in which David E. Coon is complainant and Maggie M. Coon and others are defendants, has been taken for several days past before John H. Van Winkle, special master in chancery, to whom the matter was referred by the Chancellor.

This action partition is sought of two tracts of land owned by Israel J. Coon in his life time, situated in Warren township in Somerset county. Codington & Swackhamer, of this city, represent the complainant.

Tobin on U. S. Grand Jury.

George J. Tobin, of this city, has been chosen a member of the United States Grand Jury, which convenes at Trenton today and remains in session until its labors are completed. It is an especial honor to be drawn for the Federal jury, and it is seldom that Plainfield is represented. Some time ago former Mayor Charles J. Fisk was a member. Mr. Tobin is the only representative from Union county.

PREVENT SUNDAY GOLF FIRST, THEN BASEBALL

R. COLES TREADWELL WRITES ON A CURRENT AGITATION.

The following letter on "Sunday golf" was received today:

Editor The Daily Press:

In last night's Daily Press the friends of Sunday golf set forth a grandly headed and much worded letter supporting their position. But if any thinking person can make out any really sound argument in the whole article he must, indeed, be blessed with an intellect far beyond the average.

In another letter attention was called to the fact that Sunday ball is played in Plainfield as a regular thing. I am glad that this has been brought out, for although no "big" games are played here on that day, it is wrong to allow any whatever.

But let us deal with one thing at a time. Today we face the question of open links on Sunday. Tonight it is to be put to vote, and if those who oppose the Sunday opening are true to their convictions, we need not fear the outcome.

Then, and only then, when this question is settled, let us root out Sunday ball, and if the law is not enforced, let us move in closer and see why not. The reason our city government is no better is clear: all reform work thus far has lacked consecrated effort. Only when the Christian voters realize the small value of party in relation to clean government, when party lines are shattered, and ballots are prayer-sped, may we expect clean politics.

It is a known fact that some club members, realizing their own prestige, are endeavoring to keep the opposition from voting tonight, asking in a considerate and friendly way that such remain away from the meeting if their principles interfere with their voting for the amendment. Let me say right here that such show a selfish, scheming and cowardly spirit and are fit subjects to make cowards of those whom they would influence.

Let tonight be the beginning of true reform. Remember, a wilful omission is every bit as bad as a sinful commission. Will the Christians of the Plainfield Country Club back up their belief by voting down the measure, or, like Peter, will they, while not betraying their Lord, follow afar off and deny Him?

14th to Gather in Rahway.

The annual reunion of the 14th New Jersey Volunteers will be held on the grounds of Thomas Potter, in East Hazelwood avenue, at Rahway, today. The Rev. Thomas C. Mayhem, of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, of Rahway, will deliver the address of the day. The 14th New Jersey Regiment was taken from Middlesex, Monmouth and Union counties. Daniel G. Urmston, of Company E, the Rahway company, is president of the association, and J. C. Patterson, of Ocean Grove, is the secretary. There are not more than half a dozen members of the regiment alive in Rahway. The members of Barry Post, No. 27, G. A. R., will also be the guests of Mr. Potter today.

Walter Swift Place's Wedding.

The cards have been issued for the wedding of Miss Marion Eugenie Sproulls, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Eugenie Sproulls, of New York, to Walter Swift Place, of the borough on Thursday night, September 28, in the Church of the Archangel, New York city. A bridal supper will be served after the ceremony at the Claremont Hotel.

Non-Contract Suit.

George J. Tobin won his contract case against James Trimmer before a twelve-man jury in Justice Hand's court yesterday afternoon. He was awarded a full verdict, $60, and costs. The defendant contributed to his own defeat by coming into court over a half an hour late. Reed & Coddington were the plaintiff's lawyers.

Company K's Drill.

Company K held its first drill of the season in the armory on West Front street last night. There was a large turnout and Captain Martin was much pleased at the showing. Two new members were elected at the company meeting.

Alvin Schloss Dead.

Alvin Schloss, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Schloss, of 326 East Front street, died this morning. The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon from the home at 1:15 o'clock. The interment will be in Elizabeth.

"Checkers Draws 1,500."

"Checkers" played to "standing room only" at the New Plainfield theatre last night. Every seat in the big house was taken long before the curtain rose. It's a great show played by a great company.

SCHOOLS IN FULL SWING

Superintendent Maxson Reports To Board Of Education.

AT WORK PROMPTLY

Teachers Are Commended—Tells How Delays Are Avoided When the Schools Open in the Fall.

An adjourned session from the September meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education was held last night, when the chief business was that of passing upon bills and receiving Superintendent of Schools Dr. Henry M. Maxson's report of this year's enrollment of the schools. In his report Dr. Maxson said:

"I wish to commend especially the promptness and good spirit with which pupils and teachers have begun the work of the year. Each year efforts are made to systematize matters so that the schools shall open in the fall with a swing and with a vim, with no loss of time or energy. The school supplies are bought in June and distributed to the various buildings. All the promotions are arranged and thep upils assigned to definite rooms in June, so that when the school opens in the fall the pupils know exactly to what rooms they are to go, and the teacher knows the names of the pupils that will belong to her.

"On the day before school opens teachers meet the principal in the building, get the supplies for their room and make all their plans for the opening day. If anyone had stepped into the school room this year an hour after school opened he would have found the pupils studying and work going on almost as if there had been no vacation. The result is that there is no loss of time and work starts in with a vigor that adds much to the success of the pupils in their new grades."

DAN SHEA WEDS.

Miss Mamie Casey at Noon Today Became His Bride.

Miss Mamie Casey, daughter of Patrick Casey, of West Third street, and Daniel J. Shea, of West Fourth street, were married at St. Mary's church this forenoon at 11:45 o'clock by Father Bogan, in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine. Her attendant was her sister, Miss Lizzie Casey, and the best man was Charles Flynn. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was given at the home of the bride's father, and later in the afternoon the couple left for a wedding tour, which will include Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will live at Grant avenue and West Fourth street.

UNION'S VALUATION $55,259,909.

County Board of Assessors at Work Today.

The Union County Board of Assessors is in session at Elizabeth today, when it is hoped to complete the work. The board convened at 10 o'clock this morning, and it is expected that the rest of the day will be occupied with the business. A feature of the session was the announcement of the total valuation of Union county. This is $55,259,909.

Another matter of importance was the levying of an additional assessment of $300,000 on property in Linden township along the water front of Staten Island Sound.

Funeral of Lincoln Giles.

The funeral services of Lincoln Giles were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home in East Second street. Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The pall-bearers were four brothers of the departed and the interment was in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

Robbed by Sneak Thief.

A rear door in H. A. Todd's house at 108 East Third street was left open last night. This morning a pocketbook containing $6 was missing from the dining room. When the sneak thief got in is unknown. The discovery was not made until 8 o'clock.

Boroughites to Wed.

Miss Hattie Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Lewis, of Somerset street, and Harry Davis, also of the borough, will be married tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. An informal reception will follow.

Thirty-two in Y. M. C. A. Orchestra.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra, at its rehearsal last evening, took in six new members, making the complete membership thirty-two. The first concert will be given the latter part of October.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the South Plainfield Baptist church, deserves credit for keeping up its regular services throughout the summer, and during August sustaining the Sunday evening services while the pastor was away on his vacation. While five members recently moved from here to Plainfield, still the attendance and interest are good.

The regular monthly school trustee meeting was held yesterday afternoon at New Market. W. H. Manning attended from here. The trustees are doing their best to bring about such appointments and progress as will expediate the building of the necessary school buildings. It is not their fault that the work of building is not yet begun.

It is said that a man living in Newark who owns propery on Plainfield avenue has offered to build ten houses on that avenue provided a trolley line is built thereon from Plainfield to this town.

The new Grand Jury of the Middlesex county court was sworn in and charged today by Justice Fort on the opening of the September term.

Miss Edith Van Nuis, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Nuis, of Piscataway, has been seriously ill for several days past.

Samuel Goff, who sustained a serious injury recently from the kick of a horse, visited friends here Sunday and yesterday.

Albert Springer went fishing for a large snapper in the lake yesterday but was not successful in securing it.

The weekly prayer and conference meeting at the Baptist church will be held tonight at 7:30.

Mrs. R. B. Manning has been entertaining her sister, Mrs. Mackee, of Newark.

PRINTERS AT ELIZABETH.

Outlook There for No Disturbance Over Eight-hour Day.

The Elizabeth printers' union has not nor will it order a strike in Elizabeth for the eight-hour day unless a general sympathetic strike is ordered, which is highly improbable. An agreement was drawn up and signed by the employing publishers and printers in the spring of this year, at which time the eight-hour day was conceded the men, to take effect January 1, 1906. The agreement continues until January 1, 1910. When the present agreement expires no attempt will be made to have the work hours reduced further, according to a statement made by a prominent union printer at Elizabeth yesterday. Eight hours is considered a fair day's work for the wages received.

The printers at Elizabeth are now working eight and one-half hours a day. Prior to the agreement, signed last spring, the men were working nine hours.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cardner, of Orange place, are spending two weeks in Providence, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. David Townsend, of Bound Brook, have been visiting Joel D. Manning, of Plainfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown, of Grove street, have returned from Asbury Park, after a few days' sojourn.

Chester Decker, of West End avenue, has taken a position with Neuman Brothers, the Watchung avenue grocers.

E. M. LaForge, of New Brunswick, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Peter VanFleet, of East Third street, has returned home.

Fifty Years a Minister.

In his maiden charge at New Market, next Sunday, Rev. George W. Clark, of Hightstown, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination as a minister. A number of old Piscataway residents remember when Rev. Mr. Clark became pastor of the New Market Baptist church a half century ago, and several of them are expected to join in the celebration. An interesting programme has been arranged for the event.

Old New Marketer Dead.

Hiram H. Kelley, one of the best known and oldest residents of New Market, died at his home there yesterday. Mr. Kelley had been ill for some time. He is survived by a widow and a grown daughter. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

—The auction sale of the property at Webster place and Putnam avenue, owned by Frederick Woodruff, of Newark, advertised for Saturday, was postponed by Charles H. Lyman indefinitely. Due notice will be given of the new date.

AFTER THE RUSH OF THE DAY

When you get home and the evening meal is over you can feel the day's wear and tear disappear under the spell of Regina music. All you have to do is to sit and listen. And the whole family will enjoy it too. It rests tired mothers and soothes fretful little ones. A Regina Music Box plays all kinds of music. There are thousands of steel tune-discs that last forever and you can have just what you want—classical or popular, sacred or secular music. The tone of a Regina is rich, deep, mellow—real music, not tinkling. It's simply and strongly built. A child can "run it" and there will be no repair bills.

Our Easy Payment Plan

places a Regina in your home for $1.00 now and a small payment each month—so small you'll never miss the money. Ask us to explain.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS.

If you have never tried Thorp's foot relief get a bottle and you will never be without it.

A. LeVine, the Watchung avenue tailor, is strictly up-to-date and all work is guaranteed.

I. N. Wyckoff, the West Front street painter and paperhanger, is ready to quote you right figures on work.

A. E. Hoagland, Park avenue, is second to none as an expressman. He does his work properly and promptly. Satisfaction certain.

There is no room for dissatisfaction with the carpentering work of M. D. O'Keefe, West Fourth street. He is a thorough workman.

Don't leave your clothing in the hands of incompetent or unsatisfactory launderers. Mary A. Brown, West Second street, does laundry work as it should be done.

Give your pores a chance to do their full duty as waste pipes for the system. Clean them out thoroughly with a Turkish bath at Brookside Sanitarium, Somerset street.

William Hand & Son, of East Second street, do a general trucking and moving business and goods will be moved to all parts of the country safely and at reasonable prices.

Users of Marchant Bros'. milk and cream agree that they have never gotten better. There is no better to be obtained. Purity and richness characterize the Marchant products. Office, North avenue.

There is no better or more satisfying smoke than M. C. Dobbins' new cigar, the Ultra Pura. Plenty of the Nickel Yaras for their old friends. All kinds of smoking and chewing tobaccos. Park avenue.

Special values are a feature of each day at Peck's, West Front street. Peck values are always noteworthy in comparison with those offered in other places. Those who appreciate fine quality in dry goods enjoy a tour through Peck's.

An account at the Plainfield Trust Company is an account that is well placed. The Trust Company offers more than usually excellent facilities for banking. Its customers will have still more to be pleased with when the handsome new building on Park avenue is completed.

Don't overlook the sale of regular goods at cut prices at A. M. Griffen's hardware store. There is offered a large assortment of up-to-date kitchen furnishings at reduced prices. Now is the time to have your heaters and furnaces put in order. Tinning, heating and plumbing also contracted for by Mr. Griffen.

Woodhull & Martin are making a great drive in their furniture department and an excellent opportunity is offered to secure bed outfits, dining room chairs, tables, couches, mattresses, while a sale of sample beds is attracting many buyers. The firm is also offering a large stock of housefurnishing specials, preserving kettles, jelly glasses and enamelled ware, all at very low prices.

BLEW UP POST OFFICE.

Robbers Flee, with the County's Hounds on Their Trail.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 19.—Bloodhounds are being used to track three robbers who at 4 o'clock yesterday morning blew open the safe at the post office at Carrolltown, Cambria county, and secured $300 in money and $100 in stamps, the money being the property of Postmaster Frank N. Donohue, who conducts a grocery in connection with the office. Nitroglycerin was used to blow open the safe, and the charge tore out the front of the building and broke all the panes in windows across the street.

The concussion almost hurled Mrs. John Stoltz out of her bed over the post office. She gave the alarm and the robbers fled. Armed posses of citizens quickly gathered in response to her cries and started in search of the burglars. Later in the morning the bloodhounds owned by Cambria county, and held at the jail for just such work, were taken to Carrolltown and put on the scent. The robbers had five hours' start. Ten dollars in change was taken from Mrs. Stoltz by the robbers. A skeleton key admitted the thieves to the post office.

Senator Platt Ill.

San Francisco, Sept. 19—Since the arrival in San Francisco of Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, he has not left his apartments at the Palace Hotel. Sunday he remained in seclusion, denying himself to visitors. Indisposition and the need of rest and quiet were given as the reason.

—Miss Mary Jahn, of Scotch Plains, has taken the position of typewriter and stenographer in the local office of the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company, succeeding Miss Ada Van Doren, who has taken a similar position in the law offices of Reed & Coddington.

Exposure to a sudden climatic change produces cold in the head and catarrh is apt to follow. Provided with Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against nasal catarrh. Price 50 cents at druggists or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York, will mail it. The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses and cures. Cream Balm quickly cures the cold.

Williamsport won the Tri-State League championship.

The Daabsters certainly supported Smith well, showing that they were anxious to score another victory.

The Philadelphia Giants won the championship series with the Royal Giants at Atlantic City last week.

"Paddy" Cotter paid Smith a great compliment for his masterly pitching, saying that he was certainly a surprise.

Manager Daab knows a good ball player when he sees one, and in consequence he had no hesitation in giving Smith a try-out.

Louis Wiltse is very popular with the local fans and they would like to see him appear with the Daabsters before the season closes.

At first "Red" Waller felt a little chagrined at being opposed by a High School boy, but after the game he remarked that Smith certainly performed well.

The Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team defeated the Elizabethport Stars on Saturday by a score of 2 to 0, in the first of a series of five games for the city championship.

Westfield cannot get much glory out of Saturday's victory, when it is considered that they received their runs on two pretty rank errors. It was far from being an earned victory.

Unless Manager Daab is successful in his efforts to re-arrange his schedule the Plainfield team will play the ninth game of the series of ten at Recreation Park on Saturday. It is to be hoped that an arrangement may be made whereby the fans can see Summit and Dover here.

When it is considered that Plainfield's baseball team is recognized as one of the strongest in the country, the fans have every reason to feel proud. They share Manager Daab's feeling expressed after the game which won the championship, when he said to his players: "Boys, I am proud of you."

Louis Wiltse returned home from York, Pa., yesterday, for the fall and winter. He says that he had a successful season, winning fourteen out of nineteen games pitched. He considers the Tri-State League equally as strong as the Eastern League. Louis is anxious to do a little work for the Plainfield team if Manager Daab desires his services and would especially be pleased to pitch against the Giants here.

Miss Frances Cuthbertson, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles W. Runyon, of West Fourth street, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roll and infant daughter, of New York, are spending two weeks with Mrs. Roll's father, Paul Symons, of East Third street.

Miss Lillian Snodgrass, formerly of this city, and a graduate of the Plainfield High School class '05, but now of Perth Amboy, has entered the Women's College at Baltimore.

TEMPERANCE WORKER ADVISES BOYCOTT

MISS EMMA BOURNE RECOMMENDS DRASTIC MEASURES.

"Don't patronize stores where liquor is sold and buy wine, whiskey or beer to be entered on the bill as groceries or dry goods," was the advice Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark, State president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, gave to the delegates in attendance upon the annual session of the W. C. T. U. of the county in New Brunswick. Mrs. Bourne made a vigorous address, in which she paid her respects to people whose temperance is all outward show.

Mrs. William Perrine, of Cranbury, called the attention of the delegates to the experience of the Cranbury Association, when it called the attention of the judge of the county to the union's charge that two Cranbury hotels, applicants for licenses, had not the requisite number of license application signers. Mrs. Perrine declared that the judge informed the messenger that to raise the point would only delay the granting of the licenses, but would not prevent it, since the hotels had always been licensed, and as soon as applications in proper form were presented the licenses would be granted.

"What can we do under such conditions?" asked Mrs. Perrine.

"Watch and pray," was Mrs. Bourne's reply. "That judge can't live forever."

A campaign was planned on the part of the New Brunswick delegates to put a stop to "growler" trade with saloons, with children as the purchasers.

TENNIS TOURNEY.

State Championship in Women's Singles This Week.

The championship tournament of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association for women's singles will be held on the courts of the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club, West Eighth street, Bayonne, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Play will begin at 2 o'clock on Thursday and Friday afternoons and 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. The committee, however, reserves the right to call matches in the morning by posting notice thereof on the bulletin board the preceding day. First and runner-up prizes will be awarded.

Entries must be received before 9 o'clock tomorrow morning by Sydney L. Smith, chairman, 139 West Eighth street, Bayonne.

Sydney L. Smith will act as referee and the following tournament committee will be in charge: Mrs. Sydney L. Smith, chairman; Mrs. A. H. Church, Mrs. Eads Johnson, Miss Jeannette Hobson, Miss Grace Leman, Emile Frank, Elliott C. Moody and Sydney L. Smith.

HURLED CONTROLLER AT BOY.

Angry P. S. C. Motorman Injures Dunellen Lad in Peculiar Manner.

George Apgar, a fifteen-year-old Dunellen boy, made a joking remark to the motorman of a P. S. C. car at the Dunellen loop Sunday afternoon. The trolley man didn't like it and made a sharp reply. The boy retorted in kind. The motorman lost his temper, and snatching the controller from the motor box hurled it at the lad.

The metal part of the contrivance struck the boy on the ankle. Yesterday morning the ankle began to swell, and intense pains began to shoot through it. The boy was compelled to take to his bed and medical aid was summoned. It is feared the ankle bone has been cracked.

Athletics for State School.

Trenton, Sept. 19.—At the opening exercises of the State Normal and Model schools last week, Principal James M. Green urged the students to formulate plans at once for the organization of athletic teams, social clubs, literary clubs, clubs for music and the like. He spoke of the fraternal advantages of these phases of school life and characterized them as mediums which greatly contribute to the welfare of the institution outside of the educational features. Relative to athletics, Dr. Green said he was not particularly ambitious that the athletes of the school should be expert, but he looked rather to the participation in healthy sport for general physical betterment.

Bullet in Heart Seven Years.

Cadillac, Mich., Sept. 19.—Charles B. Nelson, aged thirty-one, died Sunday after carrying a bullet in his heart since 1898. He was shot while sitting in a Chicago park by some one whose identity was never disclosed. Quick consumption was the immediate cause of death. Nelson had frequently submitted to X-ray examinations, which showed the location of the bullet, and he had been on exhibition in museums. Mrs. Nelson died in Milwaukee Monday. It is said she committed suicide upon hearing that her husband was dying.

Graft in Jap Navy.

Tokio, Sept. 19.—Embezzlements to the amount of 320,000 yen ($165,000) by three naval paymasters have been discovered. These embezzlements extended over a considerable time. A feeling of uneasiness prevails as to the administration of the navy. The affair is likely to be used as a weapon of attack upon the Government.

Plainfield, N. J., September 19, 1905.

The thanks of The Daily Press are due Mrs. G. W. F. Randolph for a contribution of $5 for the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, and for $1 for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp.

When the Newark Evening News said, in commenting on the result of the primaries, that "Between the influence of MacMurray as city clerk and McCardell in his dual capacity as State labor inspector and foreman in the great Pond Tool Works, the other citizens of Plainfield seem to have no show whatever," it stepped far from the truth. A great body of representative Republicans, men who pay big taxes and have considerable property interests, took part in the elections and it would be an insult to say that they did not vote for what they considered the best for the city. Neither MacMurray nor MacCardell is a political dictator and neither could be if he wanted to in this city. The primaries were fair and aboveboard and the result proved that the Republicans did not believe that the municipality is as boss-ridden as it has been painted. It will be conceded that MacMurray can derive no great benefit from his public office. He is the local head of the largest manufacturing concern and receives the biggest salary paid to any man whose business duties are here at home. McCardell also holds a lucrative position and like MacMurray has no need of holding public office for ulterior purposes. Sober-minded Plainfielders will take issue with some of the State press comment which has pictured this city as being in the depths of political bossism.

WATCH FOR FOREMAN.

Jersey Central Engineers and Firemen Honor Head of Roundhouse.

John Krouse, of Elizabeth, was presented with a solid gold Waltham watch and chain, valued at $75, in Mai's Hall, Elizabeth, Saturday night by the engineers and firemen of the Newark and Elizabethport yards of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. There were forty-three engineers present and forty-three firemen. A delegation was present from the Raritan River Railroad Company.

Mr. Krouse has been in the service thirty-eight years. He is the foreman of the engine roundhouse at night, and because he has always shown a disposition to assist the engineers to have their locomotives in good order when leaving the shops at night he has won their esteem. The presentation speech was made by Westley Alpaugh, engineer of the fastest train on the road, the Philadelphia and New York Royal Blue flier. George Rowland, of Elizabethport, also made a few remarks, as did William McCloud, who conceived the idea of the presentation to Mr. Krouse. Engineer H. G. Jones, of Newark, spoke of the Jersey Central as being up to date, and said that the management was universally kind and thoughtful to its engineers and firemen.

RABBIT-CHASING DOG CAUSES MUCH TROUBLE

MUST REPUTED OWNER OR CUSTODIAN PAY FINE IN CASE?

Somerville, Sep.t 19.—If a man who owns an old hound dog leaves it in the custody of another man, who, in turn, allows it to run at large until it is caught by a deputy game warden in the act of chasing rabbits, in violation of the State game laws, who pays the penalty?

That is the complicated question which Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen will be called on to decide at a hearing tonight in the sensational case of Deputy Game Warden Miller against Policeman Robert Henderson, of this place. Miller caught the dog chasing a rabbit on the Frelinghuysen estate here last week, and held it a captive for the purpose of locating its owner. Miller subsequently discovered that the animal had been in possession of Henderson, and swore out a complaint against him. Henderson repudiated the ownership of the dog, and became much vexed at Miller's action. The men met on the street and a wordy war followed. Miller warned Henderson that if he did not appear before a justice of the peace and pay the $20 fine imposed for the offense he would compel him to pay the additional cost of a suit. The policeman defied the warden, who went before Justice of the Peace Sutphen and caused a warrant to be issued for the policeman's arrest. Henderson was arrested by Constable Dennis W. Wyckoff and taken before Justice of the Peace Sutphen, who paroled him for a hearing tonight.

The case now involves itself into a three-cornered fight. Henderson claims that the hound is owned by Philip W. Tunison, a prominent business man of the town, who left it in his charge to be trained. Tunison, on the other hand, repudiates the ownership, and says that, while the dog formerly belonged to him, that Henderson, after having it in his possession for a year, laid claim to it for its board and keep when he attempted to sell it to another man several weeks ago. Tunison will fight to fix the responsibility of the dog's offense, and, likewise, the fine on Henderson. The dog is valued at $12, which is $8 less than the fine.

POLITICAL TIPS.

How long will harmony last in Somerset county?

Unless the wheel of fortune turns again, it looks very much like John W. Murray, Jr., for the collectorship.

If Johnston Cornish runs for State Senator from Warren county, he ought to be bound down to a reform platform.—Newark News.

It will be remembered that Childs won for Senator and Frelinghuysen was defeated in Somerset county in an off year. And this year is just a little more off than was 1902.—Newark News.

Excepting City Clerk MacMurray, probably Mayor Buckle ought to be the happiest man over the result of the primaries. He was in it heart and soul and the returns must be pleasing to him.

Ernest R. Ackerman has the proud distinction of being one of the few men agreed on by the Republican party for an important office long in advance of an election. As a State Senator he would honor Union county.

The Rahway Democrat says: "The matter of adopting the provisions of the new school law to have nine school commissioners appointed by the Mayor, instead of elected, is being agitated. This requires a vote by the people, and it is thought it could be done at the coming election. The difficulty in getting adaptable men to become candidates for the positions has been a great incentive to this feeling."

The result of the primary election throughout the county leaves the shrievalty nomination still an open question, so far as the Republicans are concerned. Dr. Lawrence, of Summit, and Capt. Kirkland, of Elizabeth, both claim to be in the lead, and the chances for Rahway's candidate, W. H. Wright, being the lucky one are by no means slight. Rahway's eleven delegates will stand by him to the last.—Rahway Advocate.

It is said in Elizabeth that if Robert Kirkland is defeated for the shrievalty nomination at the Republican convention, the Democrats will name Charles Moore, of that city, for the office. Like Kirkland, Moore is extremely popular at the county seat and would make a record-breaking run. His nomination would be a wise move for the Democrats to make in the event of Dr. Lawrence being selected as the choice of the Republicans for Sheriff Coriell's place.

In its account of James E. Martine's approaching nuptials, the Elizabeth Daily Journal, Republican, said yesterday:

"Mr. Martine has retained through all the years of his active political life the respect and good will of men of every political stripe. No man ever met defeat with more composure. No man rallied to the support of his party with more energy than Martine. His political aspirations brought only the well-concealed chagrin of defeat on several occasions, notably in 1904 when, after a vigorous and trying campaign he was defeated in his race for congress by Hon. Charles Newell Fowler. Nominated for the Senate in 1902, he was defeated by United States Judge Joseph Cross. He was defeated by Charles J. Fisk, of the New York banking firm of Harvey Fisk & Son, when he ran for mayor of Plainfield, and by ex-Governor Foster M. Voorhees in a senatorial contest."

Kicked to Death by Horse.

The body of Charles Edwards, a well-known character of Westfield, was found in a horribly mangled condition in a box stall at the stable used by Archibold & Scudder, on Prospect street. The body lay behind a horse, which had kicked Edwards to death. The dead man's head was horribly mangled, and his body terribly bruised. County Physician Westcott was notified, and he allowed Undertaker Connoly to remove the body. The dead man was a son of the late Joseph Edwards, a respected citizen of Locust Grove section. The deceased was born and always lived in Westfield. He had been separated from his family, who live in Brooklyn.

STATE OUTLOOK WORRIES BOSSES

MAJOR LENTZ TOO SURE OF COMBINE'S STRENGTH IN ESSEX.

That there are breakers ahead for the Republican party in New Jersey is the opinion of several State officials and G. O. P. leaders in Trenton. They already give evidence of being greatly worried over the tremendous success of the Colby uprising in Essex county. The success of Colby and eleven Assemblymen who are a unit with him came like a bombshell in State Republican councils.

The situation had seemed very serene. Lentz was boss of Essex and could deliver a Senator and eleven Assemblymen; Baird was boss of South Jersey and had as many members and five or six Senators at command; Asa Francis ruled Monmouth; Strong controlled Middlesex, and Wakelee owned Bergen. All that was necessary was to divide the spoils among these bosses, not forgetting Secretary of State Sam Dickinson, of Hudson, although he would have no legislative representation. All the fat is now in the fire. There will be votes enough to carry equal taxation through the Assembly anyway, and there are signs that the Senate will yield. The anti-boss sentiment is felt everywhere.

Governor Stokes was led to believe that Colby had no hopes whatever. In fact, Major Lentz assured everybody that Colby's candidacy was a bubble he would prick whenever he found a spare moment. Governor Stokes told him to beware, and above all things to put up a candidate against Colby. The reply was that better results could be obtained by having half a dozen candidates in the field to find the right man to run. The Governor was reassured and supposed Lentz would win.

Just how sorry he is nobody knows. There are men in Trenton who say his grief is not at all heartrending. He has not had much personal affection for Major Lentz at any time, and he has regarded Senator Dryden and the McCarters with doubt more than once. Like other Pennsylvania railroad men, he would prefer to see less power in Essex and more in South Jersey. And like all the State officials, he is bitter in his private criticism of the folly which has lost the county to the combine and thrown a firebrand into State councils.

Senator Dryden is to come up for renomination in the Legislature a year from next January. Instead of having twelve votes sure in the Republican caucus, he is now without a single one that can be counted upon. The eleven Assemblymen elected this year will be re-elected next year, sure as anything that can be predicted in politics, and they and Mr. Colby are under pledges to vote only for a man as Senator who is the choice of the whole party.

They agree to endeavor to pass a law by which such choice can be ascertained at a popular vote. This is certainly a long way from assuring Senator Dryden his full vote. Who would oppose him? Some people think Governor Stokes would be the man. Some think former Governor Griggs. Colby is a strong possibility. It is safe to say, however, that there are no plans. Nothing is known, and this is what worries the State bosses, small and large.

The taxation question also worries them. And so does Colby's investigation and crusade against the lobby. And many other things. Altogether, there is a scared lot of statesmen in Trenton.

INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE AT CATHOLIC MISSION

The first of a week of lectures on "Living Subjects" was delivered Sunday night at Washington Hall, South Plainfield, by Father Walsh, of New York. In spite of the rain the audience taxed the seating capacity of the place. These lectures are in the interest of morality, character and citizenship and are intended for all earnest thinking persons.

An interesting feature is the question box, which is placed at the door. Any question put into the box concerning religion or morality will be answered each night publicly in a frank, kindly manner. Here is an opportunity to hear what the church has to say about the great questions of life.

The opening lecture by Father Walsh answered the question "What Is Life?" He spoke of the surpassing dignity of man as compared with all visible creation, and traced this dignity to the rational immortal soul. It is in virtue of this soul, he said, that man becomes a participant in the Divine nature, a temple of the Holy Spirit, a child of God and heir of Heaven. The soul is of God, tends to God. The body is of the earth and tends to things earthly. The story of this conflict between body and soul is what has made the history of men and nations.

To the question that arises in all minds, "Why has this soul that tends Godwards been placed in a body that tends earthward?" "Why did God permit this inevitable conflict?" Father Walsh answered that this is the means God has chosen to give the soul an opportunity to prove its superiority to earthly things, and its love of God. And how does the soul do this? By restraining those passions which are contrary to the dictates of reason, conscience and revelation, to decency, character and manliness. The reward of this free service begins in this life and lasts forever.

One comes away from such a discourse feeling that he is a better man. He understands that whatever be his station in life, he is far more than an intelligent animal worker. He gets some idea of his inborn nobility and dignity, of his origin and his destiny, and his daily life must become more useful and more cheerful.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Fairy Tales for Children, Part 2.

Horwitz, C. N.—Fairylure.

"Wonder ' tales and fairy stories from the Swedish and German."

Horwitz, C. N.—Swanhilde.

"Adaptation of the Swan maiden, with other German stories."

Howells, William Dean.—Christmas every day and other stories.

"Mr. Howells shows in these tales an unexpected tenderness lurking in a corner of his capacious heart—a tenderness for children under a veil of humor that is particularly attractive."

Jacobs, Joseph, ed.—Celtic fairy tales.

"Interesting selections with bright suggestive notes by the editor, a former president of the English folklore society."

Jacobs, Joseph, ed.—More Celtic fairy tales.

"Very artistic in binding and illustrations."

Jacobs, Joseph, ed.—English fairy tales.

"Little people who want 'real' fairy tales told simply and graphically will enjoy this volume."

Jacobs, Joseph, ed.—More English fairy tales.

"Folk-stories from various sources, delightfully retold for children."

Kipling, Rudyard.—Jungle book.

"Rousseau's writings gave Voltaire a yearning to go down on all fours, and a perusal of Mr. Kipling's book has left me merely undecided as to which I should rather be, a seal or a mongoose. Zangwill."

Kipling, Rudyard.—Second jungle book.

"Nothing could be of more absorbing interest to children; yet so artistic a book should not be confined to them alone. When one encounters work as original, as imaginative, as masterly as this, no words can convey the idea of the thing itself."

Kipling, Rudyard.—Just so stories.

Kingsley, Charles—Heroes; or, Greek fairy tales.

"Classical myths retold for children in Canon Kingsley's charming English."

"An instructive, scientific and moral story written in the guise of a fairy tale for twelve-year-old land babies."

Laboulaye, E.—Fairy tales of all nations.

Laboulaye, E.—Last fairy tales.

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Blue fairy book.

"Mr. Lang's sympathetic nature makes all children congenial to him, and he has remained child enough to pick out with infallible taste just what they like."

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Brown fairy book.

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Crimson fairy book.

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Green fairy book.

"Compiled principally from the Grimm brothers and Madame d'Aulney, but drawing also from sources as remote as China."

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Red fairy book.

"Collection of fairy stories from various languages."

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Violet fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Yellow fairy book.

"Collected from Russian, German, French, Icelandic and Indian folklore."

Mac Donald, George.—Light princess, and other fairy tales.

"These writings for children are remarkable for spirituality, grace and delicacy of touch."

Mathews, C. — Enchanted moccasins, and other legends of the American Indians.

"The collection deserves a place beside the stories of the Grimm brothers. Full of the freshest poetry of the race."

Perrault, C. A. M. C., Comtesse d'.—Old fashioned fairy tales.

Pyle, Howard.—Wonder clock.

Ramaswani-Raju, P. V.—Tales of the 60 mandarins.

"Chinese and East Indian legends."

Ruskin, John.—King of the Golden river; or, the Black brothers.

"A Styrian legend setting forth in classic English prose the world old story that happiness lost by avarice is to be won by virtue only."

Stockton, Frank R. — Floating prince, and other fairy tales.

"Containing among other tales, The floating prince; The reformed pirate; The Gudra's daughter; Deride; or, The giant's quilt, etc."

Swift, Jonathan.—Gulliver's travels.

"As a delightful story book this also has been appropriated by the children."

Thackeray, W. M.—Rose and the ring; or, the history of Prince Bulbo.

"A story rich in humour and delightfully grotesque situations."

Wright, M. O.—Tommy-Anne and the three hearts.

"A charming nature book for children."

Lipton Injured.

London, Sept. 19.—Sir Thomas Lipton met with a painful accident while attending the King's review of Scottish Volunteers at Edinburgh yesterday. He was thrown from the saddle and kicked in the face by his horse.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FASHION POINTERS.

If authorities high in sartorial degrees can be relied upon as true prophets, we are in the last days of full sleeves—at least those with a suggestion of bagginess. The newest sleeve, possibly, is the one that wrinkles with a little looseness from the shoulder down for a few inches and is then tight fitting and ends at the elbow in cuff or frill. Hip yokes continue to be worn, and run into unbroken lines in front panels. The gown is made of brown cloth touched up simply with a little embroidered collar and the braid and buttons.

A very useful adjunct to the evening toilet is the princess skirt cut very low and round in the bodice, fastening at the back and cut and boned to fit the figure without a wrinkle. Such skirts are made of silk flounced with lace, the frills being tied with Louis bows of ribbon or crossbarred near the foot with ribbon velvet or ruchings of chiffon.

The latest dressing gown to be introduced is built on very simple lines. Challie is an excellent material for it. It has a crossed front fastened with a single big button at the waist or above and invisible fastenings below. The neck turns back with a collar of the same material bordered with coarse lace. A silk sash or wool rope girdles the waist.

A new belt has a center of white linen embroidered in silk with Turkish designs. This is bordered with kid and the kid forms straps at the ends, which fasten with a kid buckle. Girls are getting up very original belts of this order for themselves. A belt of white linen worked with blue and finished with pale blue kid is very lovely with a summer frock.

Just a glimpse is sometimes obtained of incoming trimmings for fall. A new lace has inset medallions of string-colored canvas embroidered in the center.

An ivory-colored thick lace rabat is finished with pendants in the shape of flowers, the stems forming a fringe.

To remove facial eruptions be sure that the liver is working actively and that a simple diet is chosen.

Rice possesses more nutriment than wheat, oats or barley. It will sutain life longer than any other starch producing plant.

The daughter of today has no choice against her mother, says a social scribe. Woman no longer practises the art of growing old gracefully. She prefers to remain young.

To clean cork carpet wash all over twice a week with skim milk or polish with beeswax and turpentine as you would a stained floor. The latter method darkens the cork and gives it a rich appearance.

Glass Dishes.

Once in awhile put the glass sauce dishes and the tumblers into a warm suds and with a new nailbrush give them a scrubbing. This takes the dust and grayish look off them, and after they are rinsed in hot water and dried they sparkle almost like cut glass.

Poison in the House.

It is an excellent plan to keep poison in fluted bottles so as to be able to recognize even in the dark by the touch the nature of their contents. But, whatever you do, refrain from placing bottles containing poison among those containing tonics and medicines.

Dangerous Door Knobs.

A dirty door handle is an obvious offense against sanitary principles. Constant contact with the hand means contamination sooner or later. It is conceivable that a dirty door handle would convey disease, and there is thus ample reason why door handles should be kept as clean as possible.—London Lancet.

The Hands.

The hands need moisture, and the skin must be fed. The hands also need exercise, not exercise with certain fingers nor with certain muscles, but regular exercise for the whole hand. Let the hands be soaked daily in a warm, rich, soapy water, and let them be treated to a paste nightly, and they will retain their beauty, even through the roughest work.

Children's Falls.

If a child is injured or stunned by a fall or a blow take him at once to the open air. Lay him flat on his back, the head slightly higher than the body. Put cold water or ice about the head and prepare a hot mustard bath for the feet. If the child remains in a stupor it may be necessary to apply warm water to the body. The same treatment should be given to an adult, though it can be more heroic.

Dress For the Office Girl.

Spend more money on your office outfit than on your Sunday frock or your party gowns. You wear the office dress six days to the Sunday dress one, and there is a wonderful moral support in working in a well fitting waist and a well hung skirt. A smartly made and fitted shirt waist suit with plenty of fresh neckwear is the ideal office attire and commands more respect from the employers and fellow workers than retired Sunday gowns refurbished and overtrimmed. Dress does not make the man, but it often holds a desirable position for a woman. — Woman's Home Companion.

LITERARY.

The readers of Appleton's Booklovers Magazine will have an opportunity to enjoy the colored plates again in the October number. This feature, temporarily suspended, has been restored and "Four Paintings" by Willard L. Metcalf, and an "Appreciation" of his work by Roval Cortisson, form an important item in the make-up of the magazine. "Battery Park," "Apple Blossoms," "The Young Oak," and "Autumn" are the titles of the pictures, and they are selected from nineteen of the artist's latest and best paintings, made on the Damariscotta river in Maine. The colored plates in Appleton's Booklovers Magazine have an individuality all their own, and an enviable reputation. It was at the request of many of their readers that they were restored.

Miss Katharine A. Cary enjoys the unique distinction of being the first person from the western world in all history who has been received into the intimacy of the Chinese imperial palaces. Miss Carl painted four portraits of the famous Empress Dowager of China, and for nearly a year resided at court, attended all fetes, and saw the Empress Dowager, on terms of pleasant and intimate companionship, almost daily. She has written the story of her experience, the first chapters of which will be published in the October's Century, together with Miss Carl's portrait of the Empress Dowager, of which the original is now in the Nation Museum at Washington. Portrait sketches of the young Empress, the secondary wife of the Emperor, and other ladies, with drawings made by Miss Carl illustrating scenes at court, will accompany the article.

The problem of domestic service is attacked in earnest by the Good Housekeeping magazine, which announces in the September issue its joining forces with the Woman's National Household Alliance, a new organization headed by Mrs. Louise Healy, of New York. Three new and highly useful departments open in this issue of Good Housekeeping—Little Gardens Indoors, by Clarence Mores Weed, author of The Flower Beautiful; Handicraft, with new ideas and designs for home decoration, by Berthe Mirbaeau, and The Piano, containing an illustrated interview with Harold Bauer. The magazine opens with a spirited story with a very decided point, by Alice Ward Bailey, and dealing with the servant problem. Swami Abhedanda, of India, president of the Vedanta society, of New York, writes inspiringly of Ideals of the Hindu Household.

The beginning of the hunting season is marked in the September Scribner's by the frontispiece in color by Oliver Kemp, which depicts a surprised moose hunter; and a very entertaining article, "Heads and Horns," by William T. Hornaday, the great authority on Natural History, describing the most wonderful horns of wild game, collected from all over the world, and fully illustrated from the author's own collection. The lover of wild life will find here a full account of the record horns, as well as of the most beautiful ones. George Bancroft, the historian, left a very complete collection of diaries and letters of his long life as American diplomat and as an historian of world-wide reputation. He was from his youth brought in contact with the most noted men here and in Europe. The first installment of these letters and diaries, which are edited by M. A. DeWolfe Howe, has to do with his student days in Europe, early in the nineteenth century. He went to the German universities in 1818, and was among the first American students in that pioneer band.

Comparison of the City of Today with the City of the Future is a cheerful exercise. And plenty of material for the comparison is offered in the September Everybody's. There is, for instance, the intensely modern biography of Jamse R. Keene, the great Wall Street magician, whose contests with Jay Gould and with "Standard Oil" are brilliantly described by Mr. Lawson in a particularly absorbing instalment of his "Frenzied Finance." It is a chapter from the very heart of the life of today, this story of a man, according to Mr. Lawson, "of infinite strategy and daring." Perhaps a no less amazing financial genius is that of Mrs. Ella Rawls Reader, the attractive young woman who handles millions as coolly as dominoes, and who just escaped being dictator of a republic. Juliet Wilbor Tompkins has studied the wonderful woman financier at close range, and begins, in this issue, her authentic history of Mrs. Reader's career. To Mr. Russell's powerful history of "The Greatest Trust in the World" is added, in this number, a postscript of peculiar interest—the last word, for the present, on that commercial monster, the Beef Trust.

Where Wives Are Wanted.

Sir William Mulock, Postmaster General of Canada, while on a visit to London made the following statement: "We are in need of capable housewives, especially in the Northwest territories. You must understand that the men do not always bring wives and families with them. A great many of the bachelors who have taken up land are carrying it on at a disadvantage. There are thousands of comfortable homes in the West awaiting suitable women, and very few who go there remain unmarried."

AMUSEMENTS.

"Tom, Dick and Harry," otherwise, Bickel, Watson and Wrothe, the three exceptionally funny comedians who starred last season in "Me, Him and I," will hold sway at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. This is one of the most ludicrous and entertaining shows on the circuit today. "Tom, Dick and Harry" is under the direction of A. H. Woods, the well known theatrical manager who knows what the public desires and caters to their wants regardless of time and expense. Without doubt Messrs. Bickel, Watson and Wrothe are a trio of the cleverest funmakers on the stage today. Their humor is of the clean cut wholesome kind and as they dominate the performance, which is of an exceptionally excellent brand, laughter is incessant. "Tom, Dick and Harry" is not one of those plotless, silly concoctions. It is an adroit piece, ably constructed and admirably produced. Mr. Woods has surrounded his droll stars with a company of rare merit. Action is rampant, the music is tuneful, diversified and of the jingling order. The attraction is provided with a chorus that is large in numbers and fair of face and figure. Besides the "girls" possess excellent voices and can act. "Tom, Dick and Harry" is one of those shows that happen in town only on rare occasions. The creators had only one aim in view when they constructed the piece and that was to drive dull care—etc. And in this respect they have more than succeeded. That Messrs. Bickel, Watson and Wrothe will play tomorrow night to banner business at the New Plainfield theatre goes without saying. They deserve every bit of success for they are the real thing in the mirth-producing line.

In the entire course of the play "Cousin Kate," in which Alberta Gallatin is starring this season, there is not a single note that touches bruskness. It is a pure modern comedy and its author, Hubert Henry Davies, has, in the making of it, constructed a piece the like of which is but seldom encountered for beauty of rhetoric and pretty sentiment. The first curtain rises on a modern English home which is sadly troubled by the fact that the man to whom the daughter of the house is engaged has run away. "Cousin Kate" has been sent for to set things straight. She comes, but on the way falls in love with a man on the train. The man to whom she has given her maiden love is no less than the one to whom the girl has come to visit is engaged. Desmond, for that is the name of the man whom both ladies admire, forces Kate to confess, after a very beautiful piece of comedy in the second act, that she loves him. Kate then learns his identity and many amusing and interesting complications arise until at last all is set at rights by the young girl confessing to Desmond that she loves a minister better than he. Purporting to be doing a most generous act Desmond releases her from her promise, sends her to her minister, while he, himself, sets out to find Kate, and learn from her just how soon their marriage can take place. "Cousin Kate" is booked at the New Plainfield theatre for Friday night.

New attractions are being added weekly to the big bill at the New York Hippodrome to round out the production of "A Yankee Circus on Mars" and "The Raiders." During the season, the leading specialists in Europe will be seen on the Hippodrome stage. The circus performance has been acclaimed by the thousands who have seen it to be the most wonderful that has ever been produced in America. Mlle. Therese Renz, on her superb stallion, Mazeppa, presented to her by Emperor Franz Joseph, of Austria, is the talk of the town, because of her high-school riding act. Her Loie Fuller dance on horseback, with the beautiful lighting effects, is the most effective climax ever witnessed in a circus ring. No less a sensation are the Cottrell-Powells in their feats of horsemanship on bareback. Riding two spirited horses, one foot on each, Miss Louise Powell balances her daring companion in all sorts of positions; the act, concluding with Mr. Cottrell standing unsupported on her shoulders, the horses in the meantime galloping around the ring. The chorus and ballet songs and dances continue to receive the applause which they have merited as leading features of the production, which taken as a whole deserve the praise of critics, who say of it, "all other shows are sideshows in comparison."

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The senior class of the North Plainfield High School will hold its first meeting tomorrow.

The final change in the seating capacity of the chapel was made yesterday, the seniors holding the foremost seats.

Among the visitors at the High School yesterday were Harry Thompson and Martin Stutsman, '05, and Alden Moore, '03.

The vote among the seniors to change their colors to old gold and blue from orange and white, was almost an unanimous one.

Hereafter Principal Travell will enforce the rule that the colors of every class must include one of the school colors, red and blue.

The first football practise, arranged for yesterday afternoon, had to be called off on account of wet grounds. Candidates will assemble either today or tomorrow on Hope Common for the first scrimmage.

Miss Lena Bass, who has been spending the summer abroad in training her voice, returned to her duties at the Plainfield High School yesterday. Miss Dorothy Waldo, who has been substituting for Miss Bass, will return to college in a few days.

The directors of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association elected these officers today: President, Stuart Freeman; vice president, Malcolm Davis; treasurer, Paul Collier. Joseph Gavett was elected manager of the football team for the year.

A meeting of the North Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held yesterday, at which the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, John Peacock, '06; vice president, Leslie Powlison, '08; secretary, Leo E. Kenney, '06; treasurer, Frank O. Webster, Jr., '06.

A meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held yesterday morning. It was in charge of Lindsay Best, faculty director. Out of eight nominated for directors of the association, the following were the necessary five to be elected: Malcolm Davis, Philip Smith, Stuart Freeman, Paul Collier and William Douglass. The new directors will meet in a few days with Mr. Best to elect officers of the association.

—Hill & Shupp feel that an apology is due for the non-appearance of Mr. Lew Leever, who was to sing at their Saturday evening concert. A telegram came just before concert time, stating that Mr. Leever was taken suddenly ill and would be unable to appear. He will, however, be at this week's concert and at that time we shall try and make up for the disappointment last Saturday evening.

Wants One With a Baritone Voice to Please a Finicky Neighbor.

WANTED—"A Rooster with a Baritone Voice," read an advertisement in a Yonkers paper yesterday.

R. C. Phillips, who keeps a grocery store at No. 205 Elm street, New York, said one of his neighbors had objected to a rooster he owned because it crowed in a tenor key, and had him summoned to the Court of Special Sessions in the morning on a charge of maintaining a nuisance.

The judge told Phillips to get a rooster with a more musical voice, and Phillips inserted the advertisement.

CITIZENS PICK CONROY

minute before quiet was restored.

Dr. Carroll begged for a moment before adjournment and paid a high tribute to the personal character of the candidate.

"He is a true man in every fibre of his being," he said. "There is no fear that the votes of his fellow citizens will cause his head to swell or fill it with schemes of bossism."

Dr. Carroll made an earnest plea for non-partisan municipal elections. He denied that there was any reason whatever for party lines except on State and National issues.

The meeting adjourned at 10:05 o'clock. Before the chairman's gavel fell Mr. Honeyman announced that Spencer's Hall had been hired as headquarters and would be open every Thursday night for rallies and campaign cheer.

This was the speech delivered by A. V. D. Honeyman:

"Fellow-Citizens of the Borough:

"Theodore Guyler, in his charming 'Talk on 'Webster and Lincoln,' tells a good story about Abraham Lincoln's first political speech. He was running for an office, and in beginning his campaign he went to the village where his opponent lived. As he entered the town he saw his opponent's house had a lightning-rod on it, something Lincoln had never seen before, and was told it was put up to prevent the house from being struck by lightning. No other house in the town was thus protected. Lincoln knew his opponent did not bear the best moral character among his neighbors, and when, at the joint debate that was held that night, his opponent asked his hearers, plaintively, 'if they were going to throw him overboard for an unheard-of man,' Lincoln quietly listened, and when he arose said: 'Neighbors, friends, I acknowledge that you don't know much about me here. I have never had many opportunities, and I am not much known to the people of this section, but I thank God that I've never led such a life in this community that I have got to put lightning-rods on my house to protect me from the righteous vengeance of the Almighty!'

"When a 'perpetual candidate' for mayor is up for the fourth term, and needs to put up on his house the lightning-rod of an oath-clad primary election, and, to get keen pointers on top of the rod, has to challenge the votes of men who have grown grey in the Republican party, lest about seven votes might topple over his rod, I begin to suspect he knows he is a pretty bad sort of a mayor! Or, if he does not know it, it is high time he is told. And I intend to do it for one tonight, whether anybody else has the hardihood to do the same thing or not.

"The surprising and gratifying result of the contest in Essex county of 'Independence against Ring-rule' ought to fill us with hope, even for our own unhappy municipality. Let us take courage. Let us have heart, for the signs are in the sky that we, too, may emerge from our fetish-worship of a pure autocracy.

"Is it a chimerical idea, or is it within the range of possibility, that here, in this borough, politics can be put upon so high a plane that men of good standing and influence no longer be controlled by those who make up such a 'machine?' Are our best men willing to disclaim hidebound partisanship in local affairs? Will the majority of the voters love their borough and its good name, their homes, and their home government, better than Baal, or are they still to bow the knee to Baal? If the prostration is to continue, we have need, as citizens, to put on mourning and go about our business softly, as prisoners of despair. If otherwise, then I should like to give you, now, two watchwords as a rallying cry: The first is, 'Partisanship subordinated to the public interests in borough offices and business.' The second is, 'The borough to be ruled by all its citizens, and not ONE citizen to rule all the borough.'

"I make tonight one strong, clear, clarion call to citizens of every party to act no longer as 'slaves whipped to their dungeons,' but as free men, in whose veins still runs uncurdled the blood of our Revolutionary ancestors! But, should might still make right, and should the polls again decide that we are to be slaves, let us go to our dungeons with the consciousness of not being afraid to speak our minds nor ashamed to vote our true sentiments.

Justification of Non-Partisan Movements.

"The Citizens' Party, whose record in this borough has already justified its existence, can well afford to stand upon the impregnable rock of a fair distribution of public offices among all parties if only first-class men are put up in strictly local elections. This is the Gilbraltar of my own faith, and I hope it may be yours. This is the basis upon which city, borough, town and township business should be conducted and will be in some near or remote future, as soon as the people of this country arise to the importance of electing men to public offices in local municipalities, not with regard to partisanship, much less to the money they will pay out to bribe the voters, but solely with a view to business efficiency.

"Years ago, when this borough was first organized, such was the will of the sovereign people. I am informed that the first two mayors, at least, each of whom was given two official terms, were nominated at primaries of all the citizens, and were elected without the dissent of opposing partisan nominations.

"In South Orange this has been the case for thirty years, although now in 1905, for the first time in the history of that municipality, an endeavor is being made by the dominant political element, which is Republican, to force that community to vote between a Republican ticket and a Citizens' ticket. In a circular sent out recently by the Citizens' committee of that village—for it still has a village government although with a population as large as North Plainfield—the committee says:

"'The Citizens' committee believes that the business of the village can best be conducted by men selected as representatives for the whole community, and for their individual ability to transact all its business affairs in such a way as to conserve the welfare of South Orange. If the attempt to foist National parties into local politics is overwhelmingly defeated this year, it is not likely to be made again for a long time. Surely it is to be hoped that the 'machine' will not overturn once and for all the good, old-fashioned way of selecting officials in South Orange.'

"The leading newspaper of Freehold, in its issue of two weeks ago, stated that now, for the first time since that town received its charter, the time-honored custom which had prevailed, 'of the voters prior to the election agreeing upon and nominating a ticket composed of members of the different political parties,' was about to be departed from, and it earnestly deprecated this new state of affairs.

"In the borough of Pennington the citizens have agreed upon local candidates, regardless of party affiliation, although whether done this year for the first time or in previous years I am not informed.

"In Somerville, our county seat, where politics is supposed to be dominant all the years round, there never has been a time within my recollection when there was not a plain Citizens' ticket in the field for town commissioners, without recourse being had to the primaries of political parties. They have successfully managed that town and kept it out of any debt except for the public schools and for sewers.

"In other places throughout the State, where the same proper practice does not prevail, the subject is being discussed, and the time is coming—must come sooner or later, if we are to preserve our institutions in their integrity—when a Citizens' ticket shall be as much a matter of course as that the best man, irrespective of his political bias, shall be engaged as the pastor of a church, or to run a department store, or to be called in as family physician. There is no more reason why partisanship in national matters should be considered the sole qualification for a borough mayor, or for members of the Borough Council, than in the case of carrying on the business of a store, a workshop, or a farm. If there is any single reason against this proposition which does not savor of selfishness or personal graft, I should like to have some one present in this audience rise upon his feet and state it.

The Dangers of Partisanship.

"This, then, is what I hope you will place in your platform tonight, as its first plank: The equal right of all parties to hold public office, if only they are fitted for it; and no right in any one man to hold any one office forever.

"In facing our own peculiar situation in this borough, I confess at times to considerable despondency as to anyone's ability to convince the majority of his friends and neighbors that the Citizens' plan is the true one upon which to conduct this coming election. The threads of political antagonisms engendered by national and State campaigns, and the bitterness left through previous contests on various borough questions, run through all the warp and woof of our social and civic life. Some men still want to talk about issues that are dead; others desire the prizes that follow from training with the dominant political party.

"I daresay that twenty per cent. of those who vote in November in this borough to perpetuate the present Smalley regeme will do so with a view to their being benefitted in office, patronage, business, or some other personal thing. Unselfishness is not yet a predominant trait in the minds of all those who walk up to the ballot-machine. Probably twice twenty per cent. will vote according to their prejudices as to individuals on the ticket, and not from the higher consciousness of doing the right thing in the right way, for the Right's sake.

"So, for one I deeply regret that there is so much indifference among many good men in this borough—men to whom we look up with respect and honor—to the present really appalling situation. It is not alone that we have been, and are controlled by an absolute one-man power, which they do not seem to comprehend nor decry, but that so many excellent citizens in both parties are willing that candidates for office shall be nominated by a few, who meet at a private house or office, and then, under our present primary laws (since any ten men have the power to force that ticket upon the ballots laid before the voters), to say that these are 'party' nominations, and ought to be stood by 'for the party's sake.'

"The renomination of the present Republican candidate for mayor was proposed, and the machinery for it all set in action, at a meeting, not of the Republicans of North Plainfield, but of a small coterie of political friends of the Mayor, privately held in the law office of the counsel of the borough in an adjoining city. That such a conference is lawful in itself I will not dispute. Men are permitted to associate themselves together in private ways to discuss what may be advisable to do in the making of nominations, and it is often a convenient method by which to aim toward the achievement of a proper end. But that such a conference can bind Republicans or Democrats, much less independent voters, to any definite political action; that you and I are to be made absolute slaves by such a caucus, I emphatically deny.

Primary Laws Perpetuate the Boss System.

"Under our primary laws, unfortunately, a conference, like that held in ex-Senator Reed's office, has almost the weight of a nominating primary. It puts its self-ordained appointees on the primary ticket, and it requires that other members of the party, who are not satisfied with such a wholly one-sided affair, shall hunt up opposing candidates, and secure the oath of such candidates in advance that they are competent for the respective offices and will absolutely accept nominations to it, if they can succeed at the primaries. It compels a two months' canvass for the office, and, in the meantime, plans for its intendment that there shall be a large expenditure of time and money for a candidate to be elected.

"In other words, a man is obliged to come out and announce himself as a candidate for a certain office, and, in effect, swear that he wants and will accept that office.

"Furthermore, it is decreed by this same primary law—a law now to be enforced in towns, townships, boroughs and villages for a first time in the history of our State—that no voter shall appear at the primary and cast his vote against any of the individuals who may be made candidates by such a self-ordained caucus, unless, in the language of the act, he will swear, if challenged, not only that he 'voted for a majority of the candidates whose names were printed upon the party ticket of the said party,' at the last general election (for which oath there is possibly some ground in reason, but none in righteousness, as a man's life-long advocacy of certain party principles should be his shield), but, what is both abominable, and I believe, unconstitutional, that he 'intends to support the candidates of the said party at the ensuing election.'

"That is to say, in order to defeat an improper candidate, he can only vote at the primary, if challenged, by taking his oath that he will support that unfit candidate should he be nominated!

"I call upon any man within the sound of my voice; I call upon any honest citizen who has self-respect to tell me if good morals require citizens to take an oath that, if they vote against an unfit candidate, and their votes are unsuccessful, they must do their best afterwards to secure that candidate's election.

"William M. Tweed in all his glory never proposed such a preposterous gag-law as this. It is a law that must be wiped off the statute books. We want back our freedom as citizens in place of this slavery.

"I care not what party put such a statute upon the law books of the State. I care not whether it was done at the behest of a so-called statesman of Hudson county, as has been reported, or by an honest mistake as to the rights and duties owed by the State to men who are still free; it is an outrage upon free men. You and I have, therefore, one duty to perform in the matter; it is to resolve, and put it in our platform that we do resolve, to require the candidates on our county tickets for the Legislature to agree that they will use their influence to repeal this iniquitous law; and we should further declare that, if they will not so pledge themselves, we shall not support them at the polls in November.

"I am a Republican in national politics with all my heart. The story in the party that has produced a Lincoln, a McKinley and a Roosevelt. But I yield allegiance to no politician, State or local, who will deprive me of the right to a free, unfearing, uncensored ballot, for the man of my choice. I demand the exercise of that right as an American citizen, and I will fight for it with all the vigor that within me lies, until the time when that just right is no longer denied.

Annexation No Longer An Issue.

"In this community, unhappily, there have been and are now divisions along lines that should have no weight at this election in the selection of proper officials. There is a greater or less line of cleavage between those who, a few years ago, considered and acted upon with finality the proposition then made to disrupt the county by carrying a portion of it away so an adjoining county, which did not need and had not asked for the territory. But that question was settled. The Legislature repealed the act under which power was given to our citizens to vote upon the subject, and, until some further action shall be taken to renew the old question in a legal way, it ought to be buried out of sight, if not out of mind. Probably it would be buried out of sight, if in every conceivable local matter that arises, in the Health Board, in the School Board, in the Fire Department, in the domain of boycotting, and in every other relation and condition, one personality did not thrust itself forward as Emperor.

"There is no occasion to enter, formally, into any long discussion of the public career of the Republican candidate for mayor, who is again foisted upon that party by a self-constituted caucus, and voted for at a primary where Republicans who feel as I do could not consistently antagonize that caucus decree because of the primary laws of this State. That career is known to everybody. No man here, unless he is born an idiot, can close his eyes to the situation which he has created.

Perpetual Candidacy of One Man.

"And on the subject of the perpetual candidacy of any one individual, you know as well as I the dangers of such a principle being set in operation, aside from the actual issues at stake. You know there is no reason to give any fourth consecutive term of office in this borough to any one mayor, unless he comes pretty near to being an angel from another world. You know that the Republican party has other 'fit' men within its ranks to grace the mayor's chair.

"I am sorry for the party which declares that it has no 'fit' man save one, to occupy that chair. I am ashamed as a citizen that any number of people should meet in a by-place and declare that Washington Park and other sections of this borough have only just one 'available' candidate, or, to quote the language of the caucus as published in the newspapers, 'the only available candidate of sufficient weight to size up to the office of mayor.' If this be so, may a kind Heaven help the rest of our citizens to get a little 'weight!'

"No one man in a community has a monopoly of all the virtues of that community. On no one man does the industrial, or business, interests of this particular borough depend. Nor has any one man the right to monopolize public office, term after term, unless his qualifications are altogether extraordinary, and sizes up with a Folk, a Weaver or a Roosevelt.

"Holding this view, I should not vote for Mayor Smalley for a fourth term under any circumstances whatever. And I certainly shall not, when some other man, be he, Republican or Democrat, can be found, who, by strict attention to the business of his office, may give back to the borough the good name which has been filched from it. We have among us not one, but a score of men, whose names are synonyms for business ability and unstained personal integrity, and they are the ones for whom you and I have the right to cast one unbought ballot.

"Nor should I, as a Republican, if I proposed to vote my local party ticket in this particular election, vote for this man as a Republican, when I believe—and that belief is founded partly upon my own knowledge, but also upon information from those poll-workers of both parties who are in the situation to know—that during the past fourteen years, beginning with the time when Hon. Charles Place ran for mayor for a second term in 1891, until now, there has rarely been an election, spring or fall, when, for purely personal reasons, he has not openly knifed some portion of the regular Republican ticket, to accomplish personal ends. It is a fact, notorious and never denied. The universal question after each primary of the Republican party, 'What is Neve going to do about it?' has been as persistent and vexing as that everyday question in India: 'Who's wife is to go next on the funeral suttee?' Is it not time such a political condition came to a pause?

Mayoralty Nominations Once on Higher Levels.

"There was a time, within the memory of everybody, when the proposition that only first-class men should be nominated for the office of mayor, in Plainfield and North Plainfield, so permeated the minds of the people that there was no thought of dropping below any high level even in party nominations. Our sister city has had on its roll of mayors such men as Dr. Charles H. Stillman, Dr. John C. Sutphen, Job Male, L. V. F. Randolph, William B. Maxson, George W. Rockfellow, Charles J. Fisk, Alexander Gilbert and Dr. Olin L. Jenkins; an honored roll. North Plainfield has also had upon its rolls of mayors men of the same general class: John H. Van Winkle, Dr. Jutus H. Cooley, Charles Place, William L. Saunders, Henry E. Needham and John F. Wilson.

"Neither of these men while they held public office were ever held up to scorn by the press of this State. They were men above a suspicion of carrying out selfish ends while they acted as mayor.

"Not one of them, according to any information that we are possessed of, ever gave permission for a prize-fight, and then took no steps to have the participants arrested and put under indictment.

"Not one of them ever crushed out of existence an active and efficient volunteer fire department from mere spite, in order to create a department which he should control, notwithstanding that the cost of the maintenance of such a department was thereby increased three hundred per cent.

"Not one of them ever put his hand upon the public school, and threatened its superintending head that if he supported a particular local ticket he would be 'bounced' from his office; and subsequently laid plans to drive him from a community where he was performing a grand work for the education of the children.

"Not one of them ever selected solely his personal friends to distribute to them the borough's loaves and fishes, whether connected with law or printing, or for any other necessary expenditures.

"Not one of them ever imprisoned a private citizen without warrant, when he was guilty of no crime, except that of protection by his presence and words the real estate belonging to the church of which he was trustee.

"Not one of them ever refused to direct the arrest of men who, in his presence, were guilty of assault and battery, or other breaches of the peace.

"Not one of them fostered the boycotting of the honest business of citizens who thought differently from himself upon local public questions.

"Not one of them used the Board of Health as a football by deposing from office an official in it who performed his full duty, and securing an appointment of a health deputy to carry forward his own private ends.

"Not one of them ever thought it right to take the money raised by public taxation for streets and repairs and apply it to a wholly different purpose.

"Not one of them ever asked or compelled a municipal treasurer, and the treasurer of the school funds, to withdraw the public monies from a strong and secure National bank, because some of that bank's subordinates refused to vote the personal ticket of such a mayor.

"Not one of them ever resigned his position as a director of a bank, because everyone in the directorate was not in harmony with his politicai measures.

"Not one of them ever took upon himself the functions of the committees of the Council and directed public work to be performed or stopped, or a fire department to be suspended or newly constituted, by reason of which any conscientious member of Council found it necessary to resign his office.

"Not one of them ever went to the polls during election day, entering the polling place, and showed voters how to 'cut' their party ticket, when the law requires that any such manipulation should be performed outside of the polling-place.

"Not one of them ever arranged for a wholesale challenge of men who had voted party tickets all their lives, some of whom were veterans in their party's service, on the ground that they might not vote to continue that mayor perpetually in office.

"Not one of them ever confronted fellow-citizens on the street and demanded of them reasons for exercising their free right to vote at elections as they pleased, or their right of free speech in regard to matters of public welfare.

"No one of these Mayors was ever guilty of making a statement in a speech at a public dinner, where the gathering was of some of the most substantial citizens of our neighboring city and of this borough—I quote from the report, the accuracy of which was unchallenged, in The Daily Press of January 29, 1904: 'If I haven't accomplished anything else for the development of the borough, I have done at least three things to be satisfied about. I have put Adam on a diet; I have put the paid fire department on a paid basis; and I have put John Goodwin on the bum.'

"Not one of them ever soiled the good name of his own political party in his immediate bailiwick, by using at a dinner in a public place, and in the presence of reporters, language of which the following is a part: 'The normal Republican majority in North Plainfield is from 250 to 300, depending in great measure upon the amount of funds that are put at their disposal. I do not intend this as a hint to the candidates, but it is nevertheless a fact.'

"Not one of them first made himself as an official obnoxious to a large proportion of his constituents, and then proposed to hold on to office with that grim grip which, for all we know, is a grip until death."

In concluding his remarks Mr. Honeyman suggested the name of W. J. Conroy as a fit nominee.

POLITICAL TIPS.

A meeting of the borough Republican leaders will be held some night this week to consider the advisability of holding a mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall in the near future. The purpose will be to make reply to the speakers at last night's Citizens' meeting.

The Republican City Executive Committee has fixed Thursday night, October 12, as the time for holding the city convention to place in nomination various candidates to be voted for at the November election. As yet the Democrats have not selected the date for their convention.

Opponents of "Opening Wedge" Vote Down Proposed Amendments to Country Club Constitution.

VIGOROUSLY CONTESTED

Total Vote Cast 208 — Majority Favored Scheme But Necessary Two-thirds Was Lacking by Twenty-five Votes.

Unable to marshal the necessary two-thirds vote, the supporters of Sunday golf playing at the Country Club failed to pass the constitutional amendment opening the links on that day at the special meeting in the Casino last night. Although the members in favor of Sunday golf were in the majority by thirty-two votes, they lacked twenty-five of two-thirds. The total vote cast was 248. One hundred and forty favored the amendment and 108 opposed it.

The hall was crowded with members and their friends. At least 400 were in the gathering, nearly half being women. The gallery was filled with the latter. Only active members voted, but associate members and the others present contributed to the spirit of the meeting and helped to swell the applause that greeted the points made for one side or the other. To facilitate the voting the active members were seated together in the front of the hall.

Five speeches were made in the discussion on the question, the speakers being Henry L. Hall, A. H. Atterbury and Thomas S. Day for the amendment, and Craig A. Marsh and George Strong against it. President George P. Mellick was in the chair.

Immediately after Secretary Calkins read the call for the meeting and the amendment was offered, a division of opinion arose over the method of voting. A. G. Hooley moved that the voting be done by ballot. Questions of the constitutionality of the motion were raised, but President Mellick ruled them down. Roger Murray moved an amendment to the resolution, calling for a vote by roll call. After a brief but sharp discussion on the amendment, in which protest was made against an attempt to make the character of the members' ballots known, the amendment was put and lost, 137 to 83. The balloting resolution was then put through. Mr. Hall opened the discussion. So much had been written on the subject in the past six years, and particularly during the past six days, he said, that he did not propose to add either to the literature or the talk. But this he did desire to say: that the proposition offered contained more safeguards than any other ever offered to the club; that it meant exactly what it said; it was not subterfuge, and had nothing masked behind it. He would offer no argument, but wanted to look every one of his fellow members in the face and say, "If you vote for this amendment, you vote for a square deal." (Applause.)

Mr. Marsh followed Mr. Hall. He attacked the amendment as a breach of the law, and assailed Sunday playing as undeniably illegal. Mr. Marsh earnestly warned the members that Sunday playing would hold them open to indictment for misdemeanor punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment, and told them they were to choose whether they were to be law-abiding citizens or law-breakers.

"I am not a golf player," said Mr. Marsh, in opening his speech, "and that has been urged as a reason why I ought not to address this meeting. It seems to me, however, that this fact is a good reason for my speaking, because it insures by impartiality, in that I will not be affected by the action taken on the question. It has also been advanced that I am in the habit of riding horseback on Sunday, as on the other six days in the week. I admit it. I also eat three square meals on Sunday, and I have an undoubted moral right to do both.

"I am here to speak against the amendment because I have three duties: My duty to the club, my duty to the town, and my duty to the bench and bar (laughter) of the State of New Jersey.

"I take it that there is no suggestion of a packed jury here. Every vote cast is to be based on the arguments advanced, and I desire to put a question to the other side of the house. If I prove that the proposed Sunday playing would be a violation of a statute of New Jersey, and prove that habitual violations would make you guilty of indictable misdemeanor (laughter), and prove that the law which gives you the right to pass any amendment forbids you to pass such a one, will you not refuse to do an illegal act? If you give me credit for knowing any law and of being fair-minded, I will convince you of this.

"The law of New Jersey expressly forbids any kind of games or sports or pastimes on Sunday. You may say that this is a blue law—obsolete. That will be untrue. The law that prevents the passing of deeds or notes on Sunday is in that same vice and morality act; it can hardly be said to be dead. It is true that the penalty imposed for violations is only a fine of $1, but is the size of the penalty to be your size your criterion of obedience to the law as a citizen of the State? It may be urged that other clubs play on Sunday. It is no defence to this club or its members to say that other clubs break the law.

"Habitual violation of the law in any place constitutes that place a disorderly house. This is a technical term, as most men understand, but the offence is indictable, and is punishable, I believe, with imprisonment for one year and $1,000 fine. Habitual playing of golf on the links on Sunday, besides violating the act, will make the club a disorderly house (laughter), and members participating in it will be indictable. Moreover, the act giving you power to incorporate expressly forbids you to pass any law or amendment repugnant to the constitution or laws of the United States or this State. Therefore, under your organic law you are forbidden to pass this amendment. Laugh at the crudity of my arguments if you will, but are you citizens who will deliberately violate the law or compel the club to violate it, or are you law-abiding citizens?"

Mr. Day, who arose after Mr. Marsh, said he had no desire to appear in the position of one answering so eminent an authority as the preceeding speaker, but if it was true that the law forbade all pastimes—Mr. Day emphasized this—and diversions on Sunday, it was quite true that the law was obsolete. If it was disorderly for a golf club to indulge in playing, all pastimes were disorderly. The amendment was not illegal; the statute was no longer effective.

George Strong, who is superintendent of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday school, spoke against the amendment on religious grounds, and introduced the question of the honor involved in voting to open the links. He declared the money for the club plant had been paid out by a few men, and that the rank and file, who paid only yearly dues, did not and could not, by such payments, bear the cost of the equipment. Was it right for them, he asked, to use their numbers to say that the links should be used for a purpose not approved by the men who made the club plant possible?

Mr. Atterbury went at Mr. Strong sharply. He did not think it necessary, he said, to reply to the specious and fallacious argument of Mr. Marsh. Every other golf course in the State was open on Sunday (applause). But he did wish to reply to Mr. Strong, because he was familiar with the facts in connection with the establishment of the club. When Mr. Strong and Mr. Marsh said there was any understanding as to Sunday playing with the men who paid out the original cost of the club (Mr. Marsh made reference similar to Mr. Strong's) they were mistaken.

"I didn't say there was an understanding," interrupted Mr. Strong. He broke in on Mr. Atterbury again a moment later, and the speaker lost patience.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. President," he said, "but I have the floor. Mr. Strong may ask questions or reply when I am through." A vigorous burst of applause followed. Mr. Strong made no further interruptions.

"No money was given to the club as a rich man's bounty," continued Mr. Atterbury. "The members received the money for laying out the plant as solvent borrowers. Every dollar of debt was secured by first mortgage bonds on the property. He did not know how the bonds were distributed at this time, but he knew that last year the majority of the bondholders were in favor of Sunday opening, although there was a small majority, figured on the basis of the amount of money involved, against it. But that had nothing whatever to do with the question. The club is a solvent mortgagor. Mr. Strong had said the club couldn't have existed without the money contributed.

"I say that the great mass of members have had just as much to do with getting up and keeping up the club as the men who gave the money originally. It is the small members who have been contributing mostly to the bond redemption fund."

A tumult of applause followed. The sentiment evoked by Mr. Atterbury's brief remarks for the rank and file of the membership seemed by far

DEFER BRIDGE PLANS

ESTIMATE $9,897.50

There is But $7,500 for the Work—Freeholders to Meet Again on Tuesday at Hotel Kensington.

The joint committee from the Union and Somerset County Boards of Freeholders met yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Iroquois to receive bids for the construction of the new county line bridge on West End avenue over Green brook, but as the estimate approximated $9,897.50, a couple thousand of dollars more than the appropriation, the freeholders adjourned to meet Tuesday afternoon, September 26, at the Hotel Kensington, when definite action will be taken. Some of the members wanted to put off building the bridge until next spring when it was thought materials would be cheaper, while others want to go ahead with the work now.

For the superstructure work, William T. Kirk's bid was the lowest, $5,690. Other bids received for this work were as follows: Bogart Corlough Company, $6,333; Swears Sutton Company, $5,735; Owego Bridge Company, $5,750; Canton Iron Bridge Company, $5,950.

Two bids were received for the concrete abutment work, one from William Farrier, of New Market, and the other from Joseph Kingston. Mr. Farrier's bid was the lowest, $4,207, divided as follows: Concrete abutments, $5.75 per cubic foot; about 430 cubic feet; sidewalks, brick arches, etc., $1,685; catch basins, $75 each.

Mr. Kingston's bid for the concrete abutments was $5.75 per cubic foot, and $1,871.55 for the sidewalks, brick arches and $71.25 each for the catch basins.

It was reported that the bids of the lowest bidders might possibly be reduced a little by using cheaper material for construction, but the freeholders do not want to sacrifice the strength of the bridge in this way if it can possibly be avoided. The matter was discussed at great length yesterday but no conclusion was possible. It was then decided to defer action for one week and in the meantime an effort will be made to adjust matters. An appropriation of $7,500 was made for the bridge by the freeholders and they want to keep near those figures.

MISS CAROLINE BULLMAN NOW MRS. CHAS. PALMER

NUPTIAL CEREMONY AT HOME OF MOTHER, MRS. CARRIE BULLMAN

Miss Caroline LeBreton Bullman, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Bullman, of 19 Craig place, and Charles Henry Palmer, of East Second street, were quietly married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Maud Bullman, who was maid-of-honor, and Leslie Palmer, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride's gown was white pan linen, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid-of-honor was gowned in pink dotted mull, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, which was attended by the relatives and immediate friends of the couple. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will reside at the home of the bride's mother. Mrs. Palmer received a number of useful and costly gifts, including cut-glass, furniture and silverware.

Miss Smalley's Wedding Day.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Mills Smalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smalley, Sr., and sister of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, and Henry G. Dunbar will take place at the home of the bride's parents in Craig place, Monday, Oct. 2, at 8 o'clock in the evening. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. They will spend their honeymoon at Ashville, N. C.

New Strawberry Season.

EAGLES' HANDSOME GIFT

Solid Gold Regalia Studded With Diamonds For Dr. Buchanan

A PAST GRAND CHIEF

Freedom Castle Entertaining Knights From Flemington, Trenton, Annandale and Perth Amboy.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at a regular meeting last night entertained large delegations from Flemington, Trenton, Annandale and Perth Amboy, the members of the last named place coming here by stage. In addition prominent officers of the order, including Grand Chief T. C. Schenck, of Passaic; Grand Master of Records A. L. Clark, of Trenton; Edward Ditmars, representing the Supreme Sir Herald, were present.

A feature of the evening was the presentation to Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, the sitting past grand chief of the State, of a solid gold regalia studded with diamonds. The presentation was made by A. L. Clark, representing the supreme chief; T. C. Schenck, representing the supreme past chief and Edward Ditmars, representing the supreme sir herald.

The initiatory team of Freedom Castle, in full costume, conferred the second degree on two candidates, one from Plainfield and the other from Perth Amboy. After the initiatory work there were excellent addresses by the visiting officers and those of Freedom Castle. Past Grand Chief Buchanan also made a strong address on the progress of the order and Freedom Castle.

Freedom Castle has a membership of 170 with a number of applications awaiting action. It is worth $1,500 in property and invested funds.

MISS CORNELIA MILLER, WM. TALLAMY'S BRIDE

TWO WELL-KNOWN CHURCH SOLOISTS ARE MARRIED.

Miss Cornelia Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, and William J. Tallamy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tallamy, of West Front street, were married in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of guests from this city and other places. It was the first large wedding of the autumn season and it was a brilliant affair. The church was decorated with a profusion of golden rod, smilax and palms, all banked about the pulpit platform.

The bride was attended by Miss Bertha Mitchell, of this city, as maid-of-honor; Miss Helen Tinsman, of South Orange, as flower girl; while Lawrence Miller, brother of the bride, was best man. Bertram Tallamy, a nephew of the groom, acted as page, and the ushers were Frederick Tallamy and Louis Tallamy, brothers of the groom.

The bride's gown was of white point d'sprit over white silk. She wore a hat trimmed with white feathers and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The maid-of-honor's gown was of yellow and white organdie and she also wore a hat. Her bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girl wore a dress of white and carried a basket of flowers.

The officiating minister was Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the church, and he used the Episcopal form of service. Robert Humpston, of this city, organist at the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, and a brother-in-law of the groom, played the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bridal party entered the church. The page bore a silver tray upon which were two rings which were used in the service.

As the party left the church the wedding march from Lohengrin was played. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents and early in the evening the couple left the city on a wedding trip. They will be away for one week and upon their return will reside on East Fifth street, between Park and Watchung avenues. The reception was attended only by the relatives and a few close friends of the couple.

The bride and groom are both talented vocalists. Until a year ago Mrs. Tallamy was the soprano soloist at Grace church, and Mr. Tallamy is now the tenor soloist there. They have been prominent in a number of musical productions, notably comic operas given by William Holmes and it was in this way their friendship ripened into love for one another. Both are very popular in a large circle of acquaintances. Mr. Tallamy holds a responsible position with a large insurance company in New York.

SHOT NEGRO FOR INSULT

Southerner Blazes Away At Man For Using Abusive Language to Him.

CRIME AT METUCHEN

C. E. Napp Now In New Brunswick Jail—How the Trouble Arose —A Deliberate Act.

Charles E. Napp, of 42 South Clinton avenue, Trenton, was jailed at New Brunswick last night on the charge of atrociously assaulting Daniel Coleman, a negro hostler employed at the livery of W. S. Rule, at Metuchen.

Napp arrived at the livery yesterday noon en route to Trenton. He was driving Ben Bolt, a pacer entered in the Trenton Interstate Fair races, and had a Shetland pony for his own family.

Napp, it is said, asked Coleman to assist him in unhitching the pacer, which was standing on his hind feet and giving him some trouble. Coleman told Napp he would do it when he got ready, and when hurried out by Mr. Rule he became abusive and made insulting remarks about Napp, to whom he spoke across the pacer's back.

Napp, who is a Southerner, resented the insult, and went to a hardware store in Metuchen, where he purchased a .32 calibre revolver. He said he feared that Coleman had a razor, as the negro had threatened to cut his head off if he stepped into the stable. Returning to the livery, Napp says Coleman repeated the threat, and made a motion as if to draw a weapon from his pocket. He then fired at him, the bullet going through Coleman's left arm and striking a rib just over the heart, where it glanced off.

Napp telephoned to E. L. Kerns, at Trenton, who went to New Brunswick last night to get bail for him. Napp had to go to jail, however. Mayor Litterest, of Metuchen, gave Napp a hearing yesterday afternoon and held him for the Grand Jury.

ABSENTEES DID NOT AFFECT GOLF RESULT

FIGURES SHOW HOPLESSNESS OF FIGHT SAYS MR. CHAPMAN.

The following letter was received this afternoon from George A. Chapman:

Editor The Daily Press:

An analysis of the vote taken at the meeting of the Plainfield Country Club last evening upon the question of amending the constitution to provide for Sunday golf playing on its links, may be profitable.

There were 140 votes cast in favor of the proposition and 108 opposed to it. A two-thirds majority is required to amend the constitution of that club and as 108 ballots were deposited against the proposition, it would have required 217 affirmative votes for the motion to prevail, or 77 more than were polled.

Further, there are 370 active members in the club, 248 of whom were present and voted at that meeting, leaving 122 absentees to be accounted for. If all of these 122 members had been present last evening and only seventeen of them had voted against the amendment, still the motion would have been lost, for the vote would then have stood 245 in favor and 125 against.

GEORGE A. CHAPMAN.

O. F. C. ELECTS.

Frank R. Emmons is Chosen Captain of Eleven.

The Orange Field Club held its first football meeting last night to get a line on the material for this year's team. All members of last year's team were present, also a number of new candidates. The average weight will be about 140 pounds. The record the team made last year was exceptionally good, not losing a game and being scored against only twice. This year the eleven will meet heavier teams.

These officers were elected: Captain, Frank R. Emmons; assistant captain, Everitt Sherwin; manager, John McCullough; treasurer, Harry Hook. The first practice will be held tomorrow night at Concert Park at 8:30 sharp. All candidates for the team must be present in uniform. Any teams wishing to arrange games should address John McCullough, 21 Steiner place, North Plainfield.

Miss Etta Randolph Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac S. Randolph, of West Front street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Etta Randolph, to Louis V. Tallamy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tallamy, also of West Front street.

WAREHOUSE CONTRACT

Signed By President G. W. V. Moy Of Mono Investment Company Today.

TO START WORK SOON

Structure, Modern and Fire-proof in Every Feature, Will Cost About $35,000—25,000 Feet of Space.

Arrangements for the erection of a large and completely modern storage warehouse were completed this morning by the Mono Investment Company. The contract for its construction was signed with the Commonwealth Roofing Company, of Jersey City, general building contractors.

The structure will be located at Filmore and North avenues. It is to be four stories in heighth, and measure 112x60. About 25,000 square feet of floor space will be available for the storage of goods.

Everything about the structure will be absolutely fire-proof. Except in the office, not a bit of wood will enter into the construction. The building will be built of cement blocks, with concrete floors and partitions of fire-proof terra-cotta brick. It is to cost about $35,000.

Three of the floors will be divided into compartments, each of which will be a fire-proof cell in itself. Should the contents of any one room chance to take fire, the flames would be unable, even if they burned unchecked for hours, to find a way through to any other part of the building. The top floor will be left undivided for the storage of larger things and merchandise of general character. A feature of the warehouse will be a number of rooms designed particularly for tht storage of pianos, without taking them to pieces.

Work on the warehouse will begin, it is expected, in ten days. It is estimated that five months will be required to complete it.

The plans for the structure have not yet been approved formally by the building department, but action on them is expected in ample time to enable the contractors to start in ten days.

MRS. LAPSLEY HURT IN LONDON STREET

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAB AND TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

A cablegram to the Evening Sun of yesterday tells of an accident to Mrs. Josephine Lapsley, of this city, who, with her son, Howard Lapsley, went abroad early in the spring, intending to remain for a year. Mrs. Lapsley was knocked down by a cab in Cockspur street, London, yesterday, and was taken to the Charing Cross Hospital. She was suffering from a severe shock and injuries to the head and chest.

Gen. and Mrs. Sterling received a letter from Mrs. Lapsley recently, in which she stated that she expected to be in London on September 18 or 19, and she was undoubtedly the one injured yesterday. No further particulars were given in the cablegram.

No further particulars have been received.

KNOWS NOTHING OF THE SITUATION

FOWLER BACK FROM VERMONT, SAYS HE'S NOT FOLLOWING MATTERS.

The Elizabeth Times said yesterday:

"Representative Fowler is back in town after being away all summer. Mr. Fowler said to a reporter yesterday that he had not kept any track of the political situation in Union county during his absence, and really had no idea as to what was being done. He seemed interested to learn that a big fight was in progress for the shrievalty nomination, and spoke highly of Dr. William H. Lawrence, the Summit candidate, who, he declared, was a very fine man.

"Representative Fowler did not say, however, that he would take any part in the contest. He remarked that Summit was deserving of some recognition from the Republican party, but beyond this was non-committal as to who his preference was for sheriff. He made no allusion to the Senatorship. Mr. Fowler and his son left town again yesterday morning."

A meeting of the Athletic Associations of the Plainfield High School will be held on Monday morning.

TAX RATE IS THE SAME

Plainfield Will Have No Increase To Pay This Year.

COUNTY VALUATIONS

Board Makes Up List at Meeting in Elizabeth—Fanwood Valuations Put Up $19,400—Linden's Big Boost.

There will be no increase in the tax rate. It was announced this morning by the Board of Assessors that the rate would be 2.52, the same as last year.

Increase in real estate values saves the taxpayers from a jump on the rate. There is a higher county tax and a higher city tax, but values have increased to such an extent that the assessors were enabled to hold the rate at the old figure. The rate has hovered about the 2.50 mark for a number of years. It has never been higher than 2.54; in 1903 it was 2.51.

The division of the rate among the different funds will be decided upon by the finance committee of the Council on Friday night, and become public then. Last year the tax was divided as follows. These figures may be changed in various ways, but the table will serve to show the general scheme of division: County tax, .47; State school tax, .17; fire department tax, .25; library tax, .05; city and city light tax, .65; poor tax, .07; free school and bond tax, .72; principal on sewer bond tax, .06; interest on sewer obligation tax, .08. Total, 2.52.

The total amount of taxable property is $10,251,000, an increase of about $300,000 over last year. The total valuation of Union county, which was announced at a meeting of the county Board of assessors in Elizabeth yesterday, is $55,259,909.

Fanwood borough was increased by the county assessors to the extent of $19,400, making a total valuation of about $250,000. The increase was one of the features of the meeting. William R. Stanbery is the Fanwood assessor. In going over his books the board found noted items that in its opinion were too low altogether. Some of the members were in favor of increasing Fanwood $50,000, but it was finally decided that to bring it to the $250,000 mark was enough. Mr. Stanbery did not appear to enjoy the action.

Linden township's assessor also had some explanations to make. He had water front property valued only as high as salt meadow land, and the investigating committee appointed to look into the values was much exercised over the matter. The Linden valuation was increased by $300,000.

The complete list of valuations in the various cities, townships and boroughs of the county is as follows:

Elizabeth	$24,116,699
Plainfield	10,251,064
Rahway	3,441,820
Summit	3,608,000
Westfield	2,932,300
Union	1,927,782
Roselle Borough	1,270,000
Roselle Park	931,000
Cranford	2,049,000
Fanwood	863,200
Fanwood Borough	255,699
Clark	324,400
Garwood	460,275
Linden	1,366,700
Linden Borough	246,200
Mountainside Borough	141,650
New Providence	152,000
New Prov. Borough	220,000
Springfield	402,200
Total	$54,959,989

A Novel Social.

A "Comfortable" Social will be given by the Grove Street Rescue Mission at the Christian church Thursday evening, to which all are cordially invited. The feature of the evening will be the knotting of a pink and blue comfortable with blue worsted on the pink side. Admission will be free. Every one present will be expected to tie at least one knot, with the privilege of tieing as many as desired, at one cent each. For the benefit of those persons who cannot tie knots there will be present young ladies who will tie knots at two cents each. For those who can and will not tie knots they will tie them at five cents per knot. After the knotting of the comfortable it will be sold to the highest bidder.

Hope for Others.

The announcement of the approaching marriage of James E. Martine, the famous Farmer Orator, leads one to think that there is yet hope for Governor Stokes, former Governor Voorhees, Senator Kean and Colonel Samuel D. Dickinson. While there is life, not even a confirmed bachelor need despair.—Newark Evening News.

EXAMINATIONS FOR COUNTY SCHOOL SUPTS.

STATE BOARD HAS SENT OUT THE DATES FOR VARIOUS COUNTIES.

The committee on education of the State Board of Education will conduct an examination of candidates for the position of county superintendents of schools of Mercer county at the State House, Trenton, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. County Superintendent A. W. Hartwell is a candidate for reappointment, and will likely get the place for another term of three years.

The terms of eleven other county superintendents will expire this fall, and the examining committee has arranged the following schedulte of examinations for applicants for the vacancies: Burlington county, Mt. Holly, Court House, Friday, 10 a. m.; Camden county, Camden, Court House, Friday, 12 noon; Gloucester county, Woodbury, Court House, Friday, 2 p. m.; Cape May county, Cape May, Court House, Friday, 8 p. m.; Atlantic county, Mays Landing, Saturday, noon; Ocean county, Toms River, Saturday, at 3 p. m.

Examinations scheduled for Saturday, September 30: Middlesex county, New Brunswick, 10 a. m.; Somerset county, Somerville, Court House, noon; Warren county, Belvidere Court House, 3 p. m.; Sussex county, Newton, Court House, 8 p. m.

The State Board will meet at Newton, Tuesday, October 3, and pass upon the results of the examination. The president of the board will then make the appointments. Each applicant for the examination must be the holder of a State teacher's certificate.

The members of the board who will conduct the examinations are Judge Francis Scott, Paterson, chairman; Edward Russ, Hoboken; Samuel St. John McCutchen, of this city; Everett Colby, West Orange, and Mr. Barraclough, New Brunswick.

The last Legislature passed a law which was approved by Governor Stokes August 7 last, increasing the annual salary of the county superintendents to $2,000.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. John Alster, of East Sixth street, has returned from a month's visit in Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place, have returned from Oriskany Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. William Barton and son, of Brooklyn, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, of Albert street.

Miss Elizabeth O'Keefe, of West Fifth street, is detained at home by a slight attack of paralysis.

Miss Anna Butler, who has been visiting relatives at Junction, N. J., has returned to her home in this city.

Joseph Bogart, of East Sixth street, has returned from Denver, Col., where he attended the annual encampment of the G. A. R.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and daughters, of Grandview avenue, who attended the G. A. R. Encampment in Denver, Col., have returned home.

Miss Minnie Green, of Brooklyn, is the guest of Miss Edna French, of Craig place. Miss Green was formerly a teacher in the borough public schools.

Wallace Morton, of West Front street, who disabled his hand through an accident at the Pond Machine Tool Works, recently, has returned to work.

Mrs. Thurlow and daughter, who have been spending the summer on Putnam avenue, will return to their home in Boston tomorrow and L. R. Thurlow will return to Truell Court.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Hans Hoagland has returned to Plainfield after a three months' trip to Sweden.

—Henry Palmer, colored, was fined $5 for drunkenness and panhandling in the city court yesterday.

—Walter Vail, of Duer street, has resigned his position with the sporting goods house of Spalding Brothers, New York.

—Frank Neal, of West Front street, has gone to Boston, where he has secured a position in the sporting department of the Boston Globe.

—George Leland, of West Second street, has received from his son, Fred Leland, of Bolder, Col., a small bag of gold nuggets which he has been showing his many friends here. Mr. Leland is interested in the Elkhart mine at Cripple Creek, and the gold he sent to his father is a good sample of the fine quality of metal mined in that part of the country.

GETTYSBURG AND WASHINGTON.

Personally-Conducted Tour via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The battlefield of Gettysburg, and the National Capital are attractions so alluring that few would feel like refusing them, especially in the cool fall days. It is to place these two attractions within easy reach of every one that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces a tour over the interesting battlefield, through the picturesque valleys of Maryland, and an entertaining stay at Washington.

The tour will leave New York, West Twenty-third street, 7:55 a. m., and Philadelphia, 12:20 p. m., Saturday, September 23, in charge of one of the company's tourist agents, and will cover a period of six days. An experienced chaperon, whose especial charge will be unescorted ladies, will accompany the party throughout. Round-trip tickets, covering transportation, carriage drives, and hotel accommodations, will be sold at the extremely low rate of $22 from New York, $21 from Trenton, $19 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and full information apply to ticket agents; tourist agent, 263 Fifth avenue, New York; 4 Court street, Brooklyn; 789 Broad street, Newark, N. J.; or address George W. Boyd, general passenger agent, Broad Street station, Philadelphia. 8 30 oaw td

FOR ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The Allentown Fair is by all odds one of the most unique exhibitions of the country. Its attendance is simply enormous, and why, you ask? Everything is complete to the minutest detail. The entertainments are exceptionally fine. The live stock show has no equal. The fruit and vegetable exhibits are among the finest procurable, and with the genuine good time always found at Allentown, there is no reason why the fair should not be popular. On the days of the fair the New Jersey Central will sell reduced rate tickets to Allentown and special trains will be run from various points. 9-6 e o d

A Wonderland.

Trenton and its fair are famed and why shouldn't it be for no greater attraction than this fine exhibit is known in these parts. It is the old fashioned county fair in every particular and in every branch and department there is a completeness that obtains at no other exhibition. This year many new and attractive features have been arranged for which will make the fair a still greater drawing card. The dates of the fair are September 25 to 29, and during that time the New Jersey Central will place reduced rate excursion tickets to Trenton, including admission, on sale at all of its stations in New Jersey. 9 13 eod td

to Provide Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond street

WHEREAS, The city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into Cedar Brook through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Richmond Street and the water flowing into Cedar Brook, as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Richmond Street from East Fifth Street to Cedar Brook, with three inlets at East Fifth Street, three at South Avenue, and six at East Sixth Street, as shown for said portion of Richmond Street on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to carry off the Surface Water in a portion of Richmond Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., November, 1904," (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Richmond Street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials, and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Section 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

Adopted by the Common Council Sept. 5, 1905. Approved by the Mayor Sept. 8, 1905.

J. F. BUCKLE, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

Big or little, painting contracts entrusted to J. C. Hansen, East Front street, are handled properly and expediously. There are no delays and no dissatisfaction.

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundred-fold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk. Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery, Mauch Chunk is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills. The feature of greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switch-back Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly, through the forests, by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture-lands, and along the hillsides until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot of the mountain whence it started. The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on September 24, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment. 9 20 4

INTER-STATE FAIR AT TRENTON.

September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29.

The great Inter-State Fair will be held on September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, on the Fair grounds, near Trenton, N. J., on the New York Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to the Fair grounds, including coupon of admission, at greatly reduced rates, from stations within a wide radius, and special trains over the New York, Belvidere and Amboy Divisions will be run through to the grounds, thus avoiding street-car transfer.

As in previous years, every department will be replete with superior and instructive displays. The blooded stock exhibit will be particularly fine, and the daily programme of races contains the speediest classes obtainable. The management of the Fair has put forth extraordinary efforts to make this year's exhibition even greater than last year's record-breaking display. 9 16 3 s w

Entries for the women's national golf championship to be held at Morris County, October 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14, close with the U. S. G. A. secretary, W. Fellowes Morgan, on October 2. The programme for this event was sent out yesterday. This year there will be an eighteen-hole qualifying round, with thirty-two to qualify. As usual, the championship play will be confined to the mornings, the afternoons being set aside for special events. Here is the programme in brief:

Monday, October 9—Championship eighteen-hole qualifying round, thirty-two to qualify; two low-score prizes from the U. S. G. A.

Tuesday, October 10—Championship first round; afternoon, handicap; for non-qualifiers, prize from Ransom H. Thomas.

Wednesday, October 11—Championship second round; afternoon, bogey handicap, prize from G. G. Frelinghuysen.

Thursday, October 12—Championship third round; afternoon, driving, approaching and putting contests; prizes from R. H. Williams and Robert D. Foote.

Friday, October 13—Championship semi-final; afternoon, scratch four-ball match; prizes from Morris County Golf Club.

Saturday, October 14—Championship final; afternoon, mixed foursome handicap; prizes from Albert H. Vernan and Charles Scribner.

When Alec Smith beat out Willie Anderson in the play-off for the Metropolitan open title at Fox Hills on Saturday, the genial Scot remarked with a twinkle in his eye, "The Lord was with me." To those who followed the match it certainly looked that way.

Mistakes by Smith going out were lucky not to get penalized, so that Anderson, though playing par golf, only led Smith a stroke turning for home, the totals reading 37 and 38. Smith then struck a gait, too fast for even an Anderson to hold, and the former clinched matters when he holed a thirty-foot putt for a three at the seventeenth. The totals were Smith, 74; Anderson, 76. Smith took 33 putts to Anderson's 37.

Offering cash prizes to professionals by ball manufacturers has reached its limit. In the early summer a certain concern gave a "pro" $500 to play with its particular make of ball in the Western championship, and recently it sent out circulars to many of the leading players, offering similar inducements.

Another concern was also "getting busy" in the same way, so that the U. S. G. A. executive committee, considering that further procedure along those lines would be detrimental to the best interests of the game of golf, requested the manufacturers to withdraw their offers. This the ball makers have agreed to do. Had they not, the U. S. G. A. would not have allowed the balls under discussion to be used in the open championship at Myopia this week.

STATE FIREMEN TO MEET.

Ten Cities Will Be Represented at Annual Session.

The annual meeting of the State Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, composed of ten branch associations, will take place at Turner Hall, Trenton, October 30.

Preparations are now being made by members of the Trenton association to entertain the visiting delegations from Plainfield, Newark, Jersey City, Camden, Paterson, Orange, Atlantic City, Hoboken and Elizabeth. Thomas McGinty, of Truck No. 2, Trenton, is vice-president of the State association.

Following the election of officers, which will constitute the principal business of the meeting, there will be a banquet, to which the officers of the Trenton fire department, fire commissions and city officials will be invited.

The officers of the Trenton branch are: C. Boyle, Engine Company No. 3, president; John G. Ford, Engine Company No. 1, secretary, and Samuel Witham, Engine Company No. 1, treasurer.

PATERSON'S NEW ROAD.

Will Bring That City Within 20 Minutes of New York.

After being held up by the Board of Aldermen at Paterson, for nearly a year, the ordinances granting the New York and North Jersey Rapid Transit Company a franchise was passed last night, and the company will at once proceed with the work of constructing the new road from Paterson to Weehawken, connecting with New York by ferry at Forty-second street. It will take about two years to complete the road.

Express trains will run from Paterson to New York in twenty minutes.

The running time on the Erie and Susquehanna roads is from forty to fifty minutes.

Editor Naar Dead.

Trenton, Sept. 20.—Joseph L. Naar, for many years editor of the True American, the leading Democratic newspaper in the State, died last evening. He was stricken Sunday night with apoplexy, and never regained consciousness. He had recovered from a severe illness lasting several months, and had only returned to his editorial duties a few days. He was widely known as an editorial writer, and for years his pen guided the Democratic politics of the State. The funeral will be held next Friday. Mr. Naar was born in 1842 at Elizabethport, in this State. He was educated at the State schools in this city. In 1866, with Moses D. Naar and Joshua S. Day, he bought the True American from ex-Judge David Naar. About twenty years ago Mr. Naar bought the interest of his partners. He was one of the secretaries of the State Constitutional Commission of 1873, serving in that capacity with Edward J. Anderson. He was the secretary of the Commission of 1894. He was private secretary for the late Gov. George C. Ludlow from 1881 to 1884.

Aged Veteran Married.

Colonel George H. Sweet, of Linden, was married Tuesday in Newark by the Rev. Samuel R. Lacey to Mrs. Lena Ross. Sweet is the only surviving soldier in this county of the Mexican War. In the Civil War he was a colonel in the Confederate army. He has been a newspaper editor in New York and a well known Democratic politician in New Jersey. He is seventy-five years old and married now for the third time.

Plainfield's tax rate, as predicted by this paper, remains at $2.52. This is surely something for which every taxpayer can be truly thankful.

If Mr. Duke has any more automobiles to give away, we know of some deserving young men right in town. —New Brunswick Home News.

How about Hugh Boyd, A. H. Boyd and George D. Johnson?

The president of a life insurance company gets more money than the President of the United States, but as the Mobile Register man thoughtfully observes, "the band doesn't play 'Hail to the Chief' every time he shows up."—Newark Evening News.

Where is the fellow who'll write "Hail to the Thief?"

Now that the proposition to play golf on Sundays has been defeated, we can at least expect that our esteemed contemporary will come out and say that such an innovation would be wrong in principle and detrimental to the community. It did have the courage, as the Republican paper, to say after the primaries that there was nothing wrong with the administration of local affairs.

The press of New Jersey will mourn the death of Joseph L. Naar. As the editor of the foremost Democratic paper in the State he was always in the public eye and his editorial expressions in The Trenton True American were considered the orthodox doctrine of his party. Mr. Naar was a gifted man and not the least of his special accomplishments was his knowledge of constitutional law. He will be missed not only by the press but by the party whose principles he championed.

Congressman Charles Newall Fowler paid a visit to Elizabeth, his legal place of residence, yesterday. His presence there is about as well worth a mention as his statement to a reporter that he knows nothing about the political situation. Perhaps if he would stay long enough in Union county to hunt up his opponent in the last campaign, the Congressman could learn something to his advantage. Farmer Jim never pleaded guilty to not being abreast of the times in political affairs.

DIXONS VS. DAABSTERS.

C. A. D. to Try to Do Better Than McGraw Did.

Charles A. Dixon, one of the enthusiastic baseball fans, has organized a team for the purpose of playing Manager Daab's aggregation. He will send a challenge to Mr. Daab in a few days when it is hoped that a date will be fixed for the contest. Mr. Dixon has four pitchers in his line-up—"Warry" MacLaughlin, "Phil." Smith, "Jimmie" Montross and Orra Rogers, and he thinks that any one of the four will be able to defeat the Daabsters with a good team behind the twirler. George Allen has been secured as backstop. The team, which will be known as Pond's, will lineup as follows:

Mrs. Van Orden Dead.

Mrs. Harriet A. Van Orden, aged sixty-one years, died last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Winans, at 288 Stone street, following a long illness. She was a native of New York State and had lived in this State thirty-five years. The funeral services will be held from the home in Stone street Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church, will be in charge. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

NO RIGHT TO ROAD FOR AUTOMOBILES

JUDGE FORT DECLARES NO LAW HAS BEEN MADE FOR THEM AS FOR BICYCLES

Judge J. Franklin Fort, at the opening of the September term of court yesterday in New Brunswick, in his charge to the Grand Jury, raised a point as to whether automobiles have a legal right to public highways. He called the attention of the Grand Jurors to the automobile accident at Dunellen on August 25, in which Mrs. William A. Westphal, of this city, who was riding in the automobile of William Stanbery, which collided with the wagon of Oscar Harrison, was killed. The court referred to the case as one probably of involuntary manslaughter.

The person, said Judge Fort, who drives an automobile upon the public highway and such driving endangers human life, and an accident results and causes death, is guilty of manslaughter. These machines are new in our civilization. They are often driven with great velocity by inexperienced persons and the rule of law when death ensues should be applied vigorously and rigorously.

"If you find that the driver was running the machine at a rate beyond the limit of the law that is one element of negligence. The court is advised that this automobile was on the wrong side of the road. The intention to take life is not necessary to establish manslaughter, but negligent conduct is manslaughter.

"I have not at this time found an act which makes it lawful for automobiles to be upon the public highway, though there is an act which tells the rate of speed at which they may be run. The bicycle was placed upon the highway by an act giving it a right there. But for the purpose of this case you can consider that outomobiles have a right on the highway.

"It makes no difference whether the woman injured and killed is in the automobile or the other vehicle; if there was negligence it is manslaughter. If there was negligence it might be a wholesome thing for the community to indict in a case of that character."

SUNDAY GOLF MEETS DEFEAT

the most spontaneous evinced at the meeting.

C. E. Burke shut off further debate by moving the previous question. Printed ballots were passed among the members, and the vote was taken in alphabetical order, Secretary Calkins calling the roll. Voters in the same letter-group came up to the ballot box together; and the balloting went on without confusion or hitch. It took the better part of an hour to receive and count the vote. Reeve Stockton and Henry McGee were the tellers.

Before the balloting commenced, Secretary Calkins presented the letter of the Ministerial Association to the club on the question, published last week, to President Mellick. The communication was out of order at the time, but on a cordially worded motion by Walter Gaston, one of the leaders in the Sunday playing movement, it was read. There was no comment.

As was expected, applause from the winners followed the announcement of the vote, but it was neither very long nor very loud.

The supporters of the amendment were comforted by the fact that they had a clear majority of votes, although short of all they needed for success. It is the first time in the four attempts to inaugurate Sunday playing that the proposition has won a majority. Last night's vote is forty-nine in excess of the total ballots garnered for Sunday playing at the contest over it in 1903.

"If all the people in the club who favor Sunday playing had been here tonight we would have won easily," said Mr. Gaston after the meeting. "We have over 200 undoubted supporters among the members; the other side brought out practically their whole strength. Most of our missing supporters are out of town."

Voting by proxy is forbidden by the Country Club constitution.

Races at Driving Park.

The Plainfield Driving Association is planning for an attractive programme of matinee speed trials at the driving park on Saturday afternoon, September 23. There will be four classes as follows: Class A, 2:25 paces; Class B, 2:50 trotters; Class C, 2:30 trotters; Class D, double teams. This promises to be a good afternoon's sport and no doubt will attract many lovers of good racing.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The annual county convention of the Women's Christion Temperance Union will be held in the Congregational church tomorrow morning, afternoon and night. An exceptional programme has been prepared treating every phase of the work carried on by the Union. There will be delegations from all parts of the county and luncheon will be served at noon and supper in the evening.

EXPLAINING R. C. FAITH

Father Walsh's Lectures At South Plainfield Mission Attract Attention.

"SIN" HIS TOPIC

Congregation Moved by Eloquent and Touching Discourse—Questions Are Answered.

Again Monday night, in spite of the rain, the Catholics and non-Catholics of South Plainfield came out to attend the mission in numbers which filled Washington Hall. The lecture of Sunday night on the origin and meaning of man's existence was followed Monday night by a consideration of the one thing that destroys man's nobility and destiny—namely, sin.

Father Walsh, after describing the effect of death in a family—the silence, sorrow, grief and tears it brings—said it was strange that men were not equally moved by another death, the death of something closer to them than mother, family, all—the death of the soul. For Christ is not only the way without which there is no going; not only the truth without which there is no knowing, but also the life without which there is no living. And the soul that has turned away from Christ has lost the life which Christ came to give—that soul is dead to God. It can only be brought to life by the grace of God and its own repentance.

The disorder which sin has brought into this world of order was forcibly put forth. God has the untiring service and obedience of the earth and the heavens and all nature. Man only disobeys. So that man may be defined as the only disobeying creature and this disobedience is sin.

The meanness, unmanliness, selfishness of sin were insisted upon, but above these was God's mercy calling man to repent. Few if any present, whatever their religious belief, remained untouched by this great sermon-lecture.

Though dealing with such a subject as sin, and dealing with it boldly, Father Walsh's discourse was remarkable for its delicacy, modesty, refinement of expression.

Only one question was asked, and that was concerning prayers to the mother of Jesus. As this is a question about which there is much misunderstanding, not to say ignorance, Father Walsh spent fifteen minutes explaining the Catholic teaching regarding Mary, the mother of Jesus. It was all so simple and reasonable, the non-Catholics present were surprised and freely confessed that they formerly had a very erroneous idea of the Catholic teaching regarding Mary.

Fairness of Primary Law.

Trenton, Sept. 20.—Gov. Stokes, when asked to express his opinion on the outcome of the Republican primary last Tuesday in Essex county, said that he had consistently kept out of all county contests, and that he did not feel it proper now to express any opinion. He said the primary law demonstrated that it gave the voters full and free scope to express their opinion and to have these opinions properly recorded. The fact that a contest such as Essex had been through could be ended without a charge of unfairness or fraud is the highest compliment that could be paid to the primary law.

Sends Back Trophy.

The adjutant general at Trenton yesterday received from Chief Justice Walter Clark, of North Carolina, the commission of the late Captain Archibald Graham, of the Twenty-fifth New Jersey Volunteers, which the justice picked up on the battlefield on the day of the battle of Fredericksburg. It was forwarded to Captain Graham's widow, who lives in Paterson.

WANTS DIVORCE NOW AFTER THIRTY YEARS

MRS. J. C. VALENTINE CHARGES HUSBAND WITH INDESCRIBABLE CRUELTY

James Clifford Valentine, superintendent of the Valentine Brick factory, Woodbridge, has been made the defendant in a suit for absolute divorce brought by his wife, Mrs. Lizzie Valentine, who charges her husband with such cruel and inhuman treatment that she can no longer live with him.

Mrs. Valentine has filed a bill in the Court of Chancery, in which she says they were married in Elizabeth September 7, 1876, and have since lived in Woodbridge. June 1, 1905, the complainant says, she was compelled to seek refuge with a married daughter in New York City on account of her husband's conduct.

The complainant avers she was in robust health up to November 1, 1904, when her husband's ill treatment began, but since then has become ruined in health and nervous system by her husband's unnatural practises.

Mrs. Valentine claims that she is afraid to live with her husband any longer, and that she has been advised by reputable physicians that to do so will not only endanger her health, but also her mind and her life. She says her husband has assaulted her and treated her with the most indescribable cruelties.

She charges that he has also neglected to provide for her and their children, so that she has had to attempt to supply the means of livelihood for both.

The wife alleges that her husband receives a salary of $30 a week, but that she is without means of support and even has no funds to prosecute this suit. She says her husband owns real estate, stocks, bonds and personal property worth several thousands of dollars. She asks for a separation and also that she be paid a reasonable alimony.

TUNNEL WORK AT NIGHT.

Court Permits Resumption of Work by Pennsylvania Railroad.

Vice Chancellor Stevenson vacated Monday in Jersey City the injunction restraining the Pennsylvania Railroad from carrying on blasting operations at night in a shaft it is sinking at West Hoboken to connect with its tunnel under the Hudson River. The company alleged that the shaft was now so deep that the blasting no longer interfered with the rest of residents of the neighborhood, as was alleged by Mrs. Kate Rutz.

Several witnesses testified that the noises were now no louder than those made by passing trolley cars. The Vice Chancellor said he would temporarily vacate the injunction, but would appoint a commission to investigate and report as to the nature of the noises and how loud they are.

WANT BOROUGH GOVERNMENT.

Lincoln Residents Working on Proposition.

Residents of Lincoln and vicinity held an enthusiastic meeting Monday night, when an association was formed for the purpose of furthering the interest of a borough form of government. Officers were also elected as follows: President, M. F. Wirtz; vice president, Nelson M. Giles; treasurer, George Harris; secretary, N. G. Vreeland.

It was decided to call the place Middlesex Borough, and divide it into five districts—Lincoln, Dewey Park, Beechwood Heights, East Bound Brook and South Side. Petitions were drafted and will now be circulated for signers who favor or do not favor this action. This action is taken so as to get matters in shape for presentation at the next session of the Legislature.

Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, was among those attending the reunion of the 14th regiment, N. J. Volunteers, being held yesterday at Rahway. Mr. Drake is a member of this regiment and it was forty-one years ago yesterday that he was shot in the wrist at the Battle of Winchester, September 19, 1864. In that battle three color bearers and two other members of the regiment were killed. Mr. Drake still has the bullet which entered his wrist and is displaying it today with unusual pride.

ALLENTOWN FAIR.

The New Jersey Central will run low rate excursion to Allentown for the Fair on September 21st. Special train leaving Plainfield at 7:55 a. m. Returning from Allentown at 6:30 p. m. Round trip tickets $1.50. The Fair is bigger and better than ever and for a good time you should go.

9-6 e o d

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Gaines, of Reading, Pa., have returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place. Mr. Gaines is the chief mechanical engineer of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

E. A. Edgar and family, of Fairview avenue, have decided to remove to Florida, where they have taken a plantation at Braidentown, Manette county. Mr. Edgar has been for several years connected with a typewriting company, but owing to his health will make Florida his future home.

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 13, 1905; Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SOME RECIPES.

Almond Custard.

Scald and blanch half a pound of shelled sweet almonds and three ounces of bitter almonds, throwing them as you do into a large bowl of cold water. Then pound them, one at a time, into a paste, adding a few drops of wine of rose water to them. Beat eight eggs very light, with two-thirds of a cup of sugar; then mix all together with a quart of rich milk, and part cream; put the mixture into a saucepan and set it over the fire. Stir it one way until it begins to thicken, but not until it curdles; remove from the fire and when it is cool put in a glass dish. Having reserved part of the whites of the eggs, beat them to a stiff froth, season with three tablespoonsful of sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon extract; spread over the top of the custard. Serve cold.

Tomato Marmalade.

Remove the stalks from four pounds of ripe, clean tomatoes and drop them into boiling water for an instant, to loosen the skins, which may then be removed, after cutting the tomatoes into thick slices. Choose three lemons, cut into thin slices and remove seeds. Dissolve four pounds of loaf sugar in a preserving pan by adding a gill of water and stirring continually, removing the scum constantly from the top and allowing the sugar to boil for five minutes. To this add the tomatoes and lemons, boiling all together quickly and skimming. When the mixture is thick enough to hang from the lifted spoon pour into jars and seal tightly with parchment covers.

Orange With Macaroons.

The yellow rind of one and the juice of the orange, three-quarters pound (about eight) macaroons, four eggs, one-half cup of sugar and a pinch of salt will make a pudding for high days and holidays. Soak the macaroons for a few moments in the milk, beat the eggs and sugar until smooth (the eggs should not be separated), then add the milk and macaroons, beat well, and lastly stir in the orange juice and rind. Boil one hour in a buttered mould or small pail, set on a muffin ring in a pot of boiling water. Turn out and serve with a sauce flavored with orange syrup.

Virginia Fritters.

Put a pint of water, into which has been stirred a teaspoonful of salt, over the fire and bring to a hard boil. Add a teaspoonful of butter, and, without removing the saucepan from the range, turn into the boiling water two cupsful of sifted flour. Stir steadily until it has boiled three minutes. The flour will have absorbed all the water. Turn the paste into the bowl and set aside to cool. When cool, stir into the paste the well beaten yolks of four eggs, and when these are well incorporated with the paste add the whites, which should have been previously beaten to a standing froth. Drop by the great spoonful into deep boiling fat and cook to a delicate brown. As each is taken from the fat drain in a heated colander. These are known in the South as "bell fritters."

FLOUNCES.

Flounces are coming into such high favor that they can be used after any mode of fashion that pleases—singly, in group, scattered or overlapping. It is a fashion in which there is no hit or miss. Flounces are fashionable, and the thing is to have them. Even in the rather heavier materials, that are promised for autumn wear, such as drap d'ete, henrietta, as well as in the soft and silky mohairs, this same fad for flounces and flouncings will appear, and there is no doubt whatever that edgings for those same flounces will be a point where the best dressmakers will display a great deal of individuality and originality.

Ribbons.

Ribbons may be freshened, if not too much soiled, by sponging with weak ammonia water and hanging for a few minutes in the fresh air. They should then be put between pieces of white tissue paper and ironed with irons as hot as can be used without scorching.

Hairbrushes.

After washing hairbrushes they can be quickly and thoroughly dried without injuring the bristles by brushing them briskly with a whisk broom, and there is no better way to dry the hair after it has been washed than to hold up a few strands at a time and with a small whisk broom fan it, letting the broom act at the same time as a comb gently drawn through it. This method is a good substitute for sunlight, which can neither be had to order nor relied upon with certainty.

The Sunday Dress.

There is one section of the dress reform which pleases many, and that is the new fashion of dressing plainly for church. The Sunday dress has really gone out of fashion. It is no longer considered proper to wear one's best clothes to church. The best clothes must be laid away for worldly pleasures—for the theatre or circus—and the plainest gown, or, in fact, the everyday outfit, is to be worn on Sundays. Women of the east have leaned gradually toward this, and for some time it has been noticed by strangers they look exceedingly plain when attending church.—Chicago News.

ROCKEFELLER PUTS UP PRICE OF OIL

WINTER AT HAND AND DIVIDENDS MUST BE INCREASED.

The Standard Oil Company, following its action of last week, again advanced its price of oil yesterday. The new schedules are as follows: Ohio test oil, 8½ cents a gallon; water white Ohio State test oil, 9½ cents; headlight oil, 175 degrees, 10½ cents; Eocene oil, 11½ cents; B. M. & C. naphtha, 11 cents; deodorized stove gasolene, 12 cents; gasolene, 74 to 76 degrees, 14 cents. These prices represent an advance of about ½ cent a gallon all around. Export prices have been similarly increased.

The general Wall street explanation of the increase is that the public is to pay the cost of the great oil fight in Kansas.

At the office of the Standard Oil Company, No. 26 Broadway, a representative of the company said that there is an increased demand for oil abroad, owing to the reduction of the output in the Baku district, the result of the uprising there, where many oil wells have been destroyed.

There has been a great falling off in Pennsylvania production and it is the gradual failure of these fields that led the Standard to invade Kansas. Last month the stock of Pennsylvania oil above ground was reduced about 480,000 barrels. Since the first of the year the reduction has been 2,450,000 barrels.

The Standard always puts up the price of oil when the winter season approaches and the demand for illuminating oil increases. The Standard Oil Company is expected to pay between 42 and 45 per cent. in dividends during the current year. At 45 per cent. Mr. Rockefeller's income from his Standard holdings will be $18,000,000.

FASCINATING THIEF, THIS.

Often Asked to Dinner, He Improved Opportunities to Steal.

Montclair, Sept. 20.—William Thompson, whose real name may be James Wallace, was transferred to the Essex county jail Monday, where he will be detained on a charge of larceny.

Thompson, which is the name he has gone by, has committed many daring thefts, according to a confession which he is said to have made to the police here. His record is three robberies in Newark, three in Hackensack, three in Englewood, and two in the Oranges. He is a handsome young man, apparently well bred, and, according to the police, of university education.

Thompson's plan has been to watch until the men members of a family were absent, then approach a house with a sauvity that impressed the women of the household. As a rule he was either a given-up-for-lost friend, a college chum who had been studying painting in Paris or Brussels, or something else in the way of art in Germany. Among the residences which he has visited is said to be that of Charles Cotton Dana, the librarian of Newark Library.

He was so charming, the police say, that he usually was asked to stay to dinner, or at least to wait awhile. In the interval he helped himself to stickpins and other small valuables and departed, expressing sorrow that he could not await the arrival of his "old college chum."

He was arrested last Friday by Detective Reilly while attempting a robbery here.

TARIFF RATES ISSUES.

Legislators Lining Up for Conflict in Congress.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The tariff reformers and the "stand-patters" are getting ready for an active campaign, which, in the first instance, is to be directed toward the president, and afterward toward Congress. The return of the president to this city at the end of the present month will be a signal for a gathering here of men who will wish to influence his forthcoming annual message to Congress. Some of these men have been invited by the president and others will invite themselves.

The advocates of railway legislation will also be on hand. It is understood that Representative Townsend, one of the authors of the Esch-Townsend bill, has been invited to confer with the president, as have others. The president is known to be as fully determined to have legislation that will provide against discriminations as ever.

Just what the tenor of his annual message to ongress will be is not known, and the greatest interest is felt by those in Congress who are anxiously watching developments in rate legislation. But there is sure to be a lively time over such legislation before the next session of Congress.

10,086 Corporations.

The State Board of Assessors has filed with the State Comptroller the final schedule of assessments against miscellaneous corporations for the year 1905. As completed there are 1,568 miscellaneous concerns, representing taxes due the State of $487,087.54. The total number of corporations, including miscellaneous, railroads, etc., filed is 10,086, with assessments of $3,622,326.77. Last year there were 10,027 corporations and the taxes amounted to $3,701,521.34.

AMUSEMENTS.

Throughout the South and West Alberta Gallatin is considered by theatregoers, press and critics, to be one of the greatest actresses on the stage today. Her presentation of the wonderful character of "Mrs. Alving," in Ibsen's famous play, "Ghosts," has endeared her to them beyond words and she is assured of an ovation whenever she appears in any city where that play was put on. This season she is starring in a piece of an entirely different nature. It is "Cousin Kate," beyond a question one of the cleverest society comedies ever staged. The Hudson theatre, New York, was opened by it and for an entire season it ran there with unprecedented success. In London also the play had a season and was accorded the unstinted plaudits of the entire city. As "Cousin Kate" Miss Gallatin is as charming and delightful as she was sombre and motherly in "Ghosts," and theatregoers are assured of a rare treat in her performance. At the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

Keith's this week provides a full orchestra concert, an in-door circus and a condensed comedy, in addition to an unusually big vaudeville bill The Boston Fadettes, under direction of Caroline B. Nichols, are splendid instrumentalists, and pretty girls to boot; so their contribution to the programme is considerably lengthened by encores. Berzac's Circus, seen for the first time in America at Keith's, is a most amusing and interesting equine act, and a veritable treat for the juveniles. Clay Clement, with the assistance of a capable company, presents "The Baron's Love Story"—a condensed version of the comedy in which he starred for several seasons.

Wagner's "Valkyrie" is now scheduled for its first American production in English by Henry W. Savage at the Tremont theatre in Boston on the anniversary of the first "Parsifal" performance in English last year at the same play house.

Raymond Hitchcock in "Easy Dawson" is proving a drawing card at Wallack's theatre, New York, where he is now in the fifth week of his successful engagement. Though the comedy element predominates in his new play, there are many pathetic scenes in which the comedian is seen to advantage. The principal musical number allotted to Mr. Hitchcock, entitled "The World Goes On Just the Same," has scored a decided hit. It is a humorous satire on the futility of human endeavor, and rendered in the comedian's semi-recitative style is a novelty. Others in the cast are Julie Herne, Flora Zabelle, Jeffreys Lewis, Lovell Taylor, Grace Griswold, Scott Cooper, John Bunny and Earle Browne.

LITERARY.

Collier's for September 16 calls attention to the shameful greed and cowardice of the American newspapers by bringing to light the manner in which editors have killed legislation that was directed to protect the American home from poisonous medicines. It says: "Folly is not the worst attribute of man. Dishonesty and cowardice take precedence. Fool mothers feed Mrs. Winslow's morphine to their infants, but what of those who sell it? Theirs is not emptiness of head, but something worse. Then comes the press, with cowardice and greed. Honor, therefore, to the occasional paper which resists. A bill was introduced in the New Hampshire Legislature to compel patent-medicine manufacturers to label their boxes and packages with the ingredients. The bill was killed by newspaper men, patent-medicine concoctérs, and subservient legislators in alliance.

Many thinkers and students are now investigating the practical questions of psychology dealing with health, happiness and success, and to those the October issue of Suggestion, (Chicago) a magazine of the New Psychology for thinkers, will prove interesting. This magazine deals with psychic research, personal magnetism, memory culture, will power, thought force, suggestive therapeutics, drugless healing, autosuggestion, nature cure, practical hygiene and allied subjects. The department on psychic research and practical psychology is edited by Dr. Stanley L. Krebs, a member of the London Society of Psychical Research.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Sunday-school of Warren chapel will hold a rally on Sunday, when the afternoon sessions will be resumed.

During the next few weeks on Sunday night, Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will speak of his recent trip abroad.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will return to its afternoon session on Sunday and the event will be observed by a rally.

First congress meeting of the new local Christian Endeavor Union will be held tomorrow night at Faith chapel. All representatives and officers are urged to be present.

Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, who spent his vacation abroad, is arranging several lectures to be given before the Men's Club of the church during the fall and winter.

Arrangements are being completed for the annual State convention of Baptists to be held in the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, on October 30. The local churches will be well represented.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, will be held at the residence of Mrs. Jacob Blimm, Sr., 37 Somerset street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Rev. L. L. Strock, pastor of Bethany church, Trenton, was elected moderator of the Presbytery of New Brunswick at the fall session yesterday, in the Dayton Presbyterian church, Trenton. The retiring moderator is the Rev. N. W. Harkness, of the Second Presbyterian church, Trenton, who preached a sermon on "Faith."

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel on Friday night, when the new president will present plans for the fall and winter work and suggest many opportunities for service to every member. Mr. Tugwell enters upon the presidency with a most enthusiastic determination to make it one of the leading Christian societies in the city.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church is planning for a rally social early in October. All the members from "M to R" inclusive are on the committee of arrangements and doubtless an enjoyable occasion may be expected. This will be the first of three socials to be held during the year by this society. The first meeting of the committee will be held Monday afternoon, September 25, at 4 o'clock, in the church.

Commencing on Sunday and continuing through the fall and winter, the morning service at the First M. E. church will be held at 10:30 and the evening service at 7:45. The Sunday school will return to the afternoon session at 2:30 o'clock and rally exercises will be held with a special programme of music and speaking by members of the school. The Epworth League service will be led by E. A. Edgar, who is soon to leave for Florida.

A joint meeting of the Catholic athletic clubs of Italy will be held in Rome early next month, and, at the Pope's suggestion, the series of contests will take place at the Vatican. The old riding school, used for practice by the Noble Guard before their horses were sold, is the place appointed for the games. Pius X. has displayed much interest in the matter, and will confer gold medals on the winners of the several events. It is expected that the Pope himself and a number of the cardinals will witness the games, and this fact has spurred on competition between the clubs. About 5,000 members of the Italian athletic organizations are expected in Rome for the occasion, which will be unique in Vatican annals.

CLOSED PORTALS.

The Elks will meet tonight.

Several members of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., attended a rally meeting at the Elizabethport lodge Monday night. A good sized delegation was expected to go, but the weather dampened the enthusiasm of all but three or four.

Liquor Licenses Renewed.

The liquor licenses of Thomas Brantingham and James Mannion, of Piscataway township, were renewed yesterday by Judge Strong, of New Brunswick.

CHANGES IN LINEUP FOR SATURDAY'S CONTEST

PLAINFIELD AND WESTFIELD TO PLAY NINTH CHAMPIONSHIP GAME.

Encouraged by the victory on Saturday over the Daabsters, Manager Denman and his Pirates have taken on a new lease of life and in the hope of adding another victory to their string will make a change in the lineup for Saturday, when Plainfield will cross bats with the Denmanites at Recreation Park. Of course, "Red" Waller and Cotter will officiate in their respective places. Joe Wall will cover first base, and Flynn will warm the bench, while "Dude" McCormick will try his hand at covering the second station. "Red" Pastor, who, playing for the Lynn, Mass., team, led the short-stops of the New England League, this season, will cover that position for Westfield. He is a familiar figure in local baseball circles and is sure to add interest to the game. The one other change will be that "Billy" Finn, captain of the New London team, of the Connecticut State League, will play left field in place of Bertwhistle, who is to play with the Elizabethport Stars that day. In other respects Westfield will be the same.

As for the Daabsters the lineup will be the same, except that Manager Daab will probably use "Willie" Deegan on the firing line. He is very anxious to win Saturday's contest, not willing that Westfield should take another game if it is possible to prevent. This week's game and the one at Crescent Oval on Saturday, September 30, will close the series with Westfield, and it is up to the fans to give the teams loyal support. No better baseball has been witnessed in any part of the country than the series between Plainfield and Westfield and the baseball public should appreciate it. Manager Denman denies the rumor that "Man Eater" Mullin has been engaged to catch on Saturday, and adds that Cotter will be there with the goods looking for foul-tips.

C. D. FREEMAN ELECTED HEAD OF HUNT CLUB

ORGANIZATION DECIDES TO BECOME INCORPORATED.

The Watchung Hunt Club at a meeting held yesterday decided to become incorporated under the corporate title of "The Watchung Hunt Club, of Plainfield, New Jersey," and the full board of stewards were elected as follows: Charles D. Freeman, Lewis E. Waring, Simeon A. Cruikshank, George P. Mellick, George C. White, C. E. S. Bellows, Paul Taylor Brown, Chauncey Sayre, George S. Ring, Harry Bourne and Dr. M. O'M. Knott.

Among the new members elected were Leon S. Freeman, of Morristown; F. H. Wildey, of Brooklyn; W. S. Brown, of Westfield; Dr. F. C. Ard, of this city, and three men from Montclair. The prospects for the season are bright. The officers will meet in a few days and arrange the schedule of hunts for the fall and winter.

A hunt breakfast will be held at the home of President Freeman, Colonia, on Saturday, October 7. Ths will be an elaborate affair and most of the members expect to participate.

C. N. Fowler's Son Weds.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. MacMurray, of Sandford avenue, were guests today at the wedding of Miss Mabel Barker Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Higgins, of Chicago, and Charles Newell Fowler, Jr., son of Congressman Charles N. Fowler, which took place at noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Waldo Burton, of Lawrence, L. I. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Burton. The guests made the trip from New York to Lawrence and return in a special car.

Kept Slot Machine.

Jules Mastodinato, an Italian, was arrested this morning by Roundsman Flynn, charged with maintaining a gambling slot machine in his store at 310 Liberty strett. He will be arraigned before Justice Mosher this afternoon.

DOUBLE STAMPS in our MEAT DEP'T FRIDAY and SATURDAY.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

Owing to a poor condition of health, Miss Phoebe D. Lovell is not teaching at the Plainfield High School this term.

Nothing definite for publication was given out after the meeting of the Oracle board in the Public Library yesterday afternoon.

At a meeting of the Oracle board yesterday it was decided to appoint reporters for the paper after a two months' general competition.

The senior class of the North Plainfield High School met yesterday and elected these officers: President, Frank Webster; vice president, Miss Marion Overton; secretary, Wilbur Dunning; treasurer, Ralph Kutz.

The report so generally circulated that Miss Ellen E. Niles, the senior member of the faculty in point of service, had been granted another year's leave of absence to study in Germany, is stated officially as incorrect.

The first practise of candidates for the 1905 Plainfield High School football team was held yesterday afternoon on Hope Common, in charge of Lindsay Best, faculty director and coach in athletics. About twenty-five fellows reported for duty and they were put through all the preliminary tactics by Coach Best. Among the candidates that reported at yesterday's practice, and to which many more are expected were: Arthur Fluck, Dudley Wilcox, Howard Freeman, Edward Henian, Stuart Freeman, Gideon Fountain, George Rittenhouse, Guy Fountain, Clyde Doane, William Russell, Joshua Loizeaux, Fred Reid, Herbert Smith, Fred Martin, William Flanders, Bertram Leggett, Joseph Jones, Joseph Osgood, Victor Todd and acting Captain Douglass. The team, while a trifle lighter than former teams, will undoubtedly make up in speed for the deficiency. Practice will again be held this afternoon on Hope Common. A full attendance is requested.

Everard K. Tucker, who fancied he had clear sailing for the nomination, is now to be opposed by two and possibly three aspirants. Andrew J. Dott has decided to make a bid for the honor also.

Captain Louis J. Park, commander of Company C, Phil Kearny Guard, Second New Jersey Regiment, is likewise being brought forward for the Assembly nomination. He is the senior captain but one in the Second Regiment, and for more than twenty years has been a member of the State National Guard.

THINKS SCADUTO MAY NOT BE INDICTED FOR MURDER

FISH PEDDLER'S LAWYER OPTIMISTIC; INDICTMENT CERTAIN, SAYS KIELY.

Luigi Scaduto, the murderer of Lorenzo Fauci, the fish peddler who was stabbed to death on North avenue several months ago, visited his lawyer, John P. Owens, of this city, Monday. Scaduto is out on $5,000 bail.

Both Scaduto and his lawyer are hopeful of a termination of the case wholly in the accused man's favor. Mr. Owens says he has prepared an impregnable defense, and has not the faintest fear of a conviction.

"It is quite possible," he said, "that the Grand Jury will not even indict Scaduto."

Chief Kiely, who is familiar with the evidence gathered against the murderer, said it was foolish to hope for a refusal to indict. An indictment, he said, was certain. What would be done with the indictment or what the issue of a trial would be was, of course, doubtful, but there was no doubt at all as to an indictment.

DAUGHTERS OF LIBERTY MEET.

During the Year 300 Were Added to the Order—Membership 2,200.

The Daughters of Liberty of New Jersey, in annual session yesterday in the Ribsam building, Trenton, reduced the per capita tax from 50 to 40 cents. It was shown by the report of the secretary that during the past year 300 were added to the order, making a total membership of 2,200 in this State.

These officers were elected: Councilor, Mrs. Laura A. W. Perkins, New Brunswick; associate councilor, Mrs. Mary A. Truax, Trenton; vice councilor, George R. Wardell, Bayville; associate vice vouncilor, Mrs. Margaret G. Cowell, Newark; secretary, Mrs. A. S. Van Sciver, Princeton; treasurer, W. S. Chaffey, New Egypt; conductress, Mrs. Mary J. Osborn, Newark; warden, Mrs. Nora W. Naylor, Mount Holly; director, Mrs. Grace Van Tassel, Jersey City; representative to the national convention, Mrs. Sarah Johnson, Newark; outside sentinel, Mrs. Edith J. Dickson, Haddonfield.

Store to Close.

S. Scheuer & Co.'s store will be closed from 12 to 3 o'clock tomorrow owing to the death of the son of Moses Schloss, manager of the store.

Valuable Banking Services

The First National Bank of Plainfield was organized, developed, and is now conducted on progressive business principles that protect and benefit its many customers.

Accounts of Corporations, Firms and Individuals Respectfully Solicited.

POLITICAL TIPS.

A new candidate for a Republican Assembly nomination has appeared in the person of Frank C. Stutzlen, of Elizabeth.

After much persuasion Charles F. Abbott has consented to accept a renomination from the Republican City convention for membership on the Board of Education.

The office of the county clerk was open Monday night for naturalization purposes. The number of applicants that responded was eighty-four. Of this number forty-three took out first papers and forty-five their second papers.

That the fight for the shrievalty nomination is not to be the only interesting feature of the Union county Republican convention, to be held October 5, is evidenced from the fact that a hot contest is now likely to take place over the Assembly nominee from Elizabeth.

The Good Government Club, of North Plainfield, did not meet last night nor will there be a meeting tonight. It is likely that arrangements will be made for a large gathering in Saengerbund Hall early next week, when several leading citizens of the borough will speak.

Nothing but routine business was considered at the meeting of the Union County Republican Committee held in Elizabeth last night, and there was an early adjournment. The Plainfield members present were Mayor James F. Buckle, Andrew McCardell, Frank H. Smith, William Newcorn and John W. Murray, Jr.

Few politicians went to the State House at Trenton yesterday. Those who did expected to see a larger crowd. The most prominent figure, perhaps, was Senator John Kean, who was in and out, after shaking hands with many, but had nothing to say. Senators Horner, of Burlington; Hillery, of Morris, and Shinn, of Ocean counties, represented the Upper House. With Senator Hilliery was "Uncle" Dan Voorhees, of Morristown. They came to talk over matters with the Governor, but said the subjects were not of a political nature. The Morris County Republican convention is to be held next Thursday in Morristown, however, and officials at the State House may have been interested in the Assembly nominees. Assemblyman John H. Mills' prospective colleague will be Richard J. Chaplin, of Mount Arlington. Besides the candidates for Assembly the only other nominee of importance to be named is for sheriff. The Morris county men said there were a number of candidates. They expressed no preferences, but from the reports in circulation it is likely that George Shaw, of Randolph, will be the man.

U. S. GRAND JURY.

List of Men Serving at U. S. Court in Trenton.

Secretary of State Samuel Dickinson is serving on the September United States Grand Jury, which met yesterday. There were scores of witnesses at the Federal building yesterday.

The Trenton men on the Grand Jury are Roland Billingham, Louis N. Clayton and Alexander McAlpine Phillips. The other are Charles Bilderback, Wenonah; Arthur B. Clute, Toms River; John M. Cherry, Jersey City; Samuel D. Dickinson, Jersey City; John C. Eisele, Newark; Stephen C. Griffith, Jr., Morristown; Theodore Gubelman, Jersey City; Charles M. Howe, Passaic; Seldon S. Hartman, Blairstown; James S. Hulme, Mt. Holly; A. Blair Kelsey, Belvidere; John A. McBride, Sussex; David A. McIntyre, Newark; James E. Otis, Tuckerton; Frederick Selnow, Jersey City; Isaiah Stackhouse, Waretown; Wilbur Slack, Frenchtown; George W. Stickle, Rockaway; George J. Tobin, Plainfield; C. Wisner Thorne, Newark; Joseph M. Thompson, New Egypt.

M. F. Gano, of 221 Park avenue, has a number of desirable properties on his list for lease or sale.

PASS CURFEW RESOLUTION

County W. C. T. U. Convention Sounds Call For Stricter Guarding of Children.

DEPARTMENT REPORTS

Several of Them Presented by Plainfield Women—Supper at the Church—Address on National Issues.

Many phases of temperance work were presented at the afternoon session of the twenty-first annual convention of the Union County Women's Christian Temperance Union, in the Congregational church, yesterday, through the reports of the various superintendents.

After the opening exercises, the programme began with a report on the work of the Loyal Temperance Legion by Miss May E. Howlett, the local superintendent, in which she told of the progress in the Plainfield society. Mrs. L. Ussing, of Cranford, gave an interesting account of the work among foreigners. Mrs. A. H. Plummer, of Cranford, presented a report on non-alcoholic medication, and under the topic of education, Mrs. D. D. Irving, of Cranford, presented a paper on scientific temperance instruction, showing the progress in this department. Sunday-school work was discussed by Mrs. F. R. Baker, of Westfield, while Mrs. W. H. Morse, of Westfield, told of the dissemination of temperance literature. Mrs. L. H. Noe, of Elizabeth, reported on the work of the press, and Mrs. G. T. Schenck, of Dunellen, gave an account of the medal contest work for the year. Anti-narcotics was the subject of a helpful paper presented by Mrs. C. W. Scott, of Elizabeth, who told of the excellent progress being made in that department. Her report was filled with valuable suggestions and statistics.

Under the topic of evangelism, Mrs. W. B. Daland, of Elizabeth, told of the temperance work being carried on in the almshouses and along evangelistic lines, while Mrs. J. E. Brewer, of Westfield, reported on the progress of systematic giving among the members. Mrs. S. Stoddard, of Elizabeth, gave a report on the use of unfermented wines at communion and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, of this city, presented a report on the work of her department among the soldiers and sailors, telling of the literature and comfort bags that have been sent out.

Other reports were presented as follows:

Prison and jail, Miss S. J. Keron, of Elizabeth; Sabbath observance, Mrs. M. Winter, of Plainfield; mothers' meetings, Mrs. S. E. Rainear, of Elizabeth; work among railroad employes, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Plainfield; flower mission, Miss M. L. Underhill, of Rahway; social meetings and red letter days, Mrs. M. F. Francis, of Elizabeth; legislation and petition, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson; Christian citizenship and franchise, Mrs. E. R. Fuller, of Rahway.

After these reports were received, a service in memory of the members who have died during the past year was held. Members of each union offered words of eulogy concerning the departed ones. Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, Mrs. William Brown and Mrs. George Belcher, members of the local union, died during the year, and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, president spoke concerning them.

During the afternoon Mrs. D. P. Peeke, president of the Somerset County Union, and Mrs. Wise, of Metuchen, corresponding secretary of the Middlesex County Union, were introduced and made short addresses. It was announced that Mr. Shotwell and Mrs. Sims, two of the oldest members of the local union, who have just celebrated the eighty-eighth anniversary of their birthday, will be given a reception on Thursday, September 28, the anniversary of the late Miss Willard's birthday.

The report of the resolution committee was then presented by Mrs. L. H. Noe, of Elizabeth. Among the resolutions offered were those advocating police matrons for the benefit of female prisoners, the unseating of Reed Smoot in Congress, anti-polygamy legislation, more Spirituality among the members and evangelists and extending a vote of thanks to the pastor and members of the Congregational church and local W. C. T. U., for courtesies shown. Probably the most important resolution was that in reference to the curfew law, which it was decided to forward to the State W. C. T. U. convention. It reads as follows:

"Whereas, Parents are so careless of the education that their children receive at night on the streets; be it

"Resolved, That we use our efforts to get the curfew law enforced in every city and town in our State."

Following a brief period devoted to the question box, the afternoon session closed.

Supper was served at the church to those who remained for the evening session.

GHOST CAME FROM A CAN OF TURPENTINE

DOG'S MASTER THOUGHT HE HAD RUN AFOUL OF CANINE SPIRIT.

Albert Hedden, the liveryman, called a Daily Press man into his office yesterday afternoon, with an air of one having something good to spring.

"Say," he said, "what would you give for a dog ghost story?"

The reporter smiled a superior and knowing smile.

"No, this is no josh," protested Mr. Hedden. "Come over here; I'll show you. Here, Spot!"

An alert-looking bull terrier bounded into the office in answer to the call.

"Now you watch," said Mr. Hedden, and sat down in a deep leather covered arm chair that stood against the wall alongside the stove.

He pointed commandingly to the floor at the right hand side of the chair. "Lie down, Spot!" he ordered.

Spot looked at the place indicated, and his tail drooped. He shrank back as though something was about to hit him.

"Lie down there!" commanded Mr. Hedden sharply. Spot shivered and whimpered. Time after time Mr. Hedden ordered the dog to lie in the place to which his finger pointed, but the dog could not be induced to go near it. Mr. Hedden shifted his hand and pointed to the other side of the chair.

"Well, lie down there," he said. Spot bounded to the place without hesitation, and sank down with a breath of relief.

"Now I'll tell you what that means," said Mr. Hedden. "We had an old collie dog, named Duke, for a good many years. That chair is my favorite lounging place here, and Duke's favorite place of rest was on the righthand side of it. Duke was a peaceable dog, but would never let old Colonel, the other dog we had here, nor any other dog, rest or stand on that particular place. I reckon he would have fought a lion if he tried to lie down in that spot. Well, old Duke died about six months ago. Several months after that we got this dog, who wasn't much more than a pup. He never knew old Duke—hadn't never been near this place; mark that.

"One day when the terrier pup was in the office I sat down in the chair. The pup came over on the righthand side—dead old Duke's place—and sat down. The next second he shot up in the air with a yelp, and ran out of the door into the street squealing just as if Something"—the capital was very plain—"was biting at him plenty. And since then we can't get that dog to go near that spot. He'll lie down anywhere else in the place, but you saw how he feels about that.

"Now," queried Mr. Hedden, with wonderment in his tones, "can you see anything to it but that old Duke is going right on keeping his place by my side? It's a sort of creepy thing to have going on in a man's office, but Duke and me were good friends, and I don't feel queer over it."

Wondering if he could get up nerve enough to try a city editor's faith with a "story" like that, the reporter stepped into the stable. One of the men beckoned at him. The reporter walked to his side.

"Say," he said in a low tone, "the old man has been giving you that yarn about Duke's ghost, aint he? No, it aint no kid; he believes it's gospel truth. But all the ghost there is in the business is turpentine. One day, 'bout a week after the Spot dog came here I was carryin' a can of turps through the office, and a blob of it spilled alongside the boss' chair where Duke used to lie. A little while after that, 'fore the turpentine dried, that Spot comes in and plumps right down on it just like a fool pup. Say, you know what things turpentine does to dogs when they sit in it. Of course Spot got up and hustled right out! So would any other dog that wasn't built of cast iron. An' of course he aint goin' to have anything more to do with a section of the floor where he got burned so bad once; that's just plain dog sense. If you put this in the paper I bet the boss has a fit. He's been tellin' everybody about that ghost, and was just about ready to let some of these scientific bugs in on it."

As the reporter went out he saw Mr. Hedden looking thoughtfully at old Duke's place. Spot, on the other side of the chair, was thoughtfully licking the base of his tail.

Drove to Pocono Mountains.

A. D. Cook, of West Seventh street, has returned from a summer's stay in the Pocono Mountains. He drove to and from the mountains behind a roadhorse. He traveled in a buggy. Mr. Cook went an average of twenty miles a day each way. The trip en route was unusually pleasant.

New Apparatus Will Arrive Soon.

Chief Howard Woolston, of the borough fire department, expects to receive the new combination chemical and hose wagon within the next two weeks. The apparatus is now receiving its final touches.

C. E. CONGRESS MEETS

Its First Session Held In Faith Chapel Last Night.

HEADS OF COMMITTEES

Full List Selected and Announced—State President Expected at a Public Meeting To Be Held Next Month.

The first meeting of the Christian Endeavor Congress, comprising the Endeavor Societies in Plainfield, Dunellen, New Market, South Plainfield and Washingtonville, met at Faith chapel, last night, to plan for the fall and winter work. Fred Lounsbery, Jr., the president of the congress, occupied the chair and directed the business of the evening. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the chapel.

Nearly all of the societies in the congress were represented and considerable interest was shown in the business brought up for discussion. The chairmen of the various committees were selected as follows: Missionary, Charles M. Dolliver; lookout, Miss Vita Whitney; music, Horace J. Martin; prayer meeting, U. B. Crane. The other officers of the congress are as follows: President, Fred Lounsbery, Jr.; vice president, Miss Gertrude Galloway; secretary, Miss Mildred Green; treasurer, C. B. LaRue.

It was decided to hold a public meeting in October at which time it is hoped to have J. T. Sproull, president of the State Endeavor Society, there to tell of the recent National convention held in Baltimore. It will be called an "echo meeting," and it is the desire of the officers that there be a general awakening of all the societies for greater effort. The congress will not hold another business meeting until November, but in the meantime it is planned to arrange and decide on methods of work to be followed during the coming year.

There are now twelve societies in the congress and the Young People's Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, has applied for membership. The application is in the hands of the executive committee and action will be taken within a short time as to the eligibility of this society, which is not an Endeavor, to membership.

After the transaction of business, a social time was had and the Endeavorers discussed informally ways and means to promote more interest in Christian work. It is expected that the new bylaws and constitution will be ready for distribution at the next meeting of the congress.

NO LET-UP IN GAIT OF THE NEW CHAMPS

THEY WILL GO AT THE PIRATES TO RUB THEIR HUMILITY IN.

The ninth of the series of ten games between Plainfield and Westfield will be played at Recreation Park tomorrow, and as there will be several changes in the lineup of the Denmanites this will lend additional interest to the game. Every effort will be made by Westfield to take the next two games, while Captain Driscoll and his mates are just as positive that they will be the victors. There will be no change in Plainfield's lineup, except that "Willie" Deegan expects to be the slabman and be the undoing of the proud and haughty Westfield aggregation.

The Daabsters have been playing great ball this season and they intend to maintain their winning habits and humble their opponents to the uttermost degree if possible.

Westfield will be strengthened by the aid of "Mickey" Finn, of New London; "Red" Pastor, of Lynn, Mass., and possibly a third new player. Bertwhistle, who has been of considerable strength to Westfield, will not play, as he is slated to help the Elizabethport Stars win from the county seat Y. M. C. A. boys. The teams will lineup about as follows:

Football Practice.

The Orange Field Club held its first football practice last night. Many candidates were on hand and made a very good showing. The prospects are very bright and promise to have the usual star team. The next practice will be held on Arlington avenue, next to the old Alis Clubhouse, Tuesday night, at 8:30 sharp. All candidates will be present in uniform.

NEW GOLF CLUB LIKELY

Members Favoring Sunday Play May Secede From Plainfield Country Club.

ONE MORE EFFORT

Probable That Another Attempt Will Be Made to Pass Amendment—Defeat May Mean Birth of New Club.

That it is the intention of the members of the Plainfield Country Club favoring Sunday golf to bring up the matter again within a short time, is now known to be a fact, and there is determined effort on foot to secure this concession from the club. It is realized that it is almost next to impossible to get a two-thirds majority, but those wanting Sunday golf feel as though they are in the majority and should be granted this concession. No action can be taken until ten days after notice of such is filed with the secretary and as this notice has not been filed it would be impossible to hold another meeting until a week from Monday at the earliest.

Since the defeat of the proposition to open the course Sunday afternoon another phase of the question has developed. Numbered among those who favor Sunday play are some of the wealthiest members, and they say that unless the asked for concession is granted they will withdraw from the Plainfield Country Club and form a new organization. They say that they are willing to put up the money to organize another club, secure grounds for a course and build a clubhouse, until such time as the club gets on its feet and is able to pay its way. They further say that with Sunday golf the membership of the new club would soon reach that of the Plainfield Country Club and would be just as strong.

One of the members favoring Sunday golf was asked as to where the new organization could secure suitable grounds. He declined to state locations in mind, but said that it would not be difficult to find grounds where a fine course could be laid out. He hoped that the club would grant the concessions asked for and not compel the members to withdraw and form another club. This action, he said, would make the success of the present club doubtful.

HERE IN PRIVATE CAR.

Vice-President Besler Entertains Relatives.

Mrs. J. D. Besler and daughter, Mrs. John Bassett, of Chicago, mother and sister of W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, returned yesterday from a five months' tour in Europe. They were met on their arrival in New York by J. D. Besler, John Bassett, Mrs. V. T. Chute and daughter, Mrs. Clarence Johnson, of Chicago, and accompanied by W. G. Besler, the party came to Plainfield yesterday afternoon in private car No. 90, from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, where a family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Besler. The private car was detached at the North Avenue station while the party was in town, and was put on the 1:17 train this morning, when the party left for Chicago.

State Increases Membership.

This State has a membership in the National Educational Association this year of 1,526, an increase of 930 over last year. Irwin Shepard, of Winona, Minn., secretary of the association, has reported this number to John Enright, superintendent of the Monmouth schools and State director of the association. Mr. Shepard says the increase is due in consequence of the national meeting at Ocean Grove July 3 to 7, this year.

Miss Martin's Wedding Date.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Marion avenue, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Clara Edna Martin, and Walter Henry Butz, of West Front street. The event will be celebrated on Wednesday evening, October 4, at the home of the bride's parents at 6 o'clock.

Funeral of Alvin Schloss.

The funeral services of Alvin Schloss, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Schloss, of East Front street, were held from the home yesterday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock. Dr. Foster, of Temple B'nai Jeshurum, Newark, officiated. Interment was in Elizabeth.

Wiltse to Pitch.

The management of the West Ends, of Somerville, has engaged Louis Wiltse, of this city, to pitch for the team tomorrow against the Newark Athletic Club. This will be the last contest of the season at Somerville.

Hope Basketball Team.

The reorganized Hopel chapel football team will meet for its initial practise tomorrow night.

TO ONE HEART, $25,000

Alleged Injured Husband Values Lost Affection At a Big Figure.

SUES H. F. ALLEN

Joseph Harkins Starts Proceedings to Recover Damages—Mrs. Harkins Was Miss Jessie Van Nest.

Charging alienation of his wife's affections, Joseph B. Harkins, of West Sixth street, has through his counsel, Isaac P. Runyon, brought suit in the Supreme Court against H. Francis Allen, of the Hotel Iroquois. The papers were filed yesterday and Mr. Harkins asks for $25,000. Sheriff B. Frank Coriell served the papers on Mr. Allen, last night, at his place of residence.

According to the complaint, his wife became acquainted with Mr. Allen a few months ago and he alleges that he has been taking her out riding in a brougham. He also alleges that he has frequently taken her to the theatre and that the route of their pleasure rides has included Scotch Plains, Fanwood and New Market and various other nearby places. Mr. Harkins alleges that his wife and Mr. Allen invariably start from the Hotel Iroquois and that a cab is employed to take them every step of their travels. The husband further alleges that Mr. Allen has been lavish in his expenditures of money on his wife and complains that she does not care for her two small children, refusing altogether to look after them.

Mr. Harkins is a plumber by trade, having been employed by Michael Armstrong, of Park avenue. He is now a paralytic and unable to work. In his helpless condition he has been obliged to care for himself and his two children. His wife was Miss Jessie VanNest, daughter of Charles VanNest, of the borough. They were married in 1901 by Justice Mosher and up to a few months ago were supposed to be living happily together, until, as the husband alleges, she met Mr. Allen. Since then, he says, she has neglected both himself and the children.

Mr. Harkins is about twenty-five years old, and his wife is about three years his junior. Mr. Allen is many years the senior of Mrs. Harkins and has for some time been a familiar figure about the Hotel Iroquois and the city. He is a widower, his wife having died several years ago.

NOTED SHOOTERS WILL MEET AT THE GUN CLUB

PLAN FOR THE BIG OPEN SHOOT MADE: CLUB CONTEST LATER.

Details of the big open shoot to be held by the Plainfield Gun Club on October 21 were arranged at a meeting of the club last night. The session was held at the office of Harry Dreier, the sporting goods man.

Silver prizes are to be offered in the events and there will be gold prizes for first and second high averages for amateurs. All the big cartridge and gun companies have signified their intention to send representative crack shots to the shoot and a great array of talent will take part.

The shoot will be an all-day affair and lunch for the shooters will be served at the grounds by the club. The full list of events and prizes will be announced within a week. The committee in charge of the shoot is made up of Elwood Sebring, Henry Vosseller, Harry Dreier and Philip Jahn, president, ex-officio.

It was announced at the meeting that Schoverling, Daly & Gales, the big New York sporting goods store, had given the club a double-barreled hammerless gun. This will be shot for by club members only, at a separate shoot on a later date. The members will be handicapped, and an unusually careful effort will be made to give everyone of them an equal chance at the prize. On the basis of the scores made in that shoot the handicap list for the Johnson trophy contest will be made up.

A feature of the shoot on October 21 will be the use of the new blackbird traps for the first time. They are semi-automatic and two men can work at them as fast as five men at the old style traps.

Tennis Doubles.

Spirited matches in the doubles held the interest in the New Jersey State lawn tennis championship tournament on the continuation of play on the courts of the Morristown Field Club. In the men's championship, singles, second round, H. J. Cochran defeated Theodore Roosevelt Pell, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, but in the fourth round he was defeated by Wylie Grant, 3—6, 6—0, 6—3.

BROUGHT SON'S BODY BACK FROM FAR WEST

FRANK E. TOUZEAU'S REMAINS DISENTERRED IN IDAHO BY HIS FATHER.

The body of Frank E. Touzeau, the young Dunellenite who was drowned on July 29 in Idaho, near the homestead he was developing, arrived in Dunellen Wednesday night. It was brought home for burial by the young man's father, James E. Touzeau.

Mr. Touzeau found the body interred, and exhumation was necessary before the remains could be prepared for shipment East. It was two weeks after his death that the young man's family learned of it, the letter of notification sent from the West going astray.

Funeral services will be held over the remains at the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. A. I. Martine, a former pastor at Dunellen, now at Passaic, will be in charge of the service; Rev. W. W. Casselberry, the present pastor, will assist. The interment will be made at Asbury, this State.

CITS OPEN CAMPAIGN IN THE BOROUGH

ALL THE CANDIDATES FILE THEIR ACCEPTANCE.

The leaders and followers of the Citizens' ticket in the borough met at the club rooms in Spencer's Hall, on Somerset street, last night and secured the signatures of their candidates. It is proposed to file the ticket and acceptances with Borough Clerk Frank Rowley within a few days. All of the candidates were present last night and signed their names, after which there was an informal discussion of plans and the situation. Former Mayor Charles Place, A. V. D. Honeyman and others were in charge of the meeting. Their remarks were greeted with great enthusiasm and the Citizens' ticket was predicted a sure winner.

With this meeting the Citizens opened the campaign which they will wage relentlessly until the last vote is counted on Election Day. It was announced that a public meeting will be held on Thursday night, September 28, when several prominent speakers will be present to talk to the voters.

The Democrats have already nominated W. J. Conroy for Mayor and Frank Mobus and Charles Emmons for members of the borough Council, and the Citizens have endorsed Mr. Conroy, but have placed in nomination Thomas E. Currin, Jr., and Charles E. Ball for borough Council, and when one of the Democrats was questioned today as to who would be the Councilmanic nominees of the combined forces, said that he did not know.

It was reported that the Democratic nominees would withdraw, but this is denied. It is said that they will make a strong fight for the office. This will give the voters three sets of Councilmanic nominees to choose from.

TO ENTER MINISTRY.

George Bolsterle to Prepare Himself at Rutgers.

George Bolsterle, of York, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Bolsterle, of Watchung avenue, his resigned his position at York, and will enter Rutgers College this fall in preparation for the ministry. Mrs. Bolsterle will return to this city, where she will make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pugh, of West Fourth street.

Mr. Bolsterle is a member of Trinity Reformed church and has always been active in Chrisitan work and in the Y. M. C. A. At one time he was prominent in athletics here, being captain of the Y. M. C. A. team in the City Amateur League, and was considered one of the best players in that organization. Mr. Bolsterle is a block cutter by trade and was formerly employed by Rev. Edward Love, when he was engaged in the wall-paper business here. It was this kind of a position he resigned at York. He has considerable talent as a speaker and is an earnest Christian.

Vets Hold Reunion.

The twenty-sixth annual reunion of the 15th Regiment, New Jersey Volunteer Veterans' Association, was held at Flemington yesterday. The regiment was organized on the Flemington Fair Grounds and started for Washington on August 29, 1862, with 925 men. Yesterday sixty-five answered the roll-call, which is more than one-half of the survivors.

PAULIST FATHER'S TALK

Explains Origin And Reason Of Confession Before Large Audience.

ANSWERS INQUIRIES

Father Healy Tells South Plainfield People Why Priests Do Not Marry—A Successful Mission.

The seating capacity of Washington Hall, South Plainfield, proved inadequate for the accommodation of the large audience that turned out to hear the lecture of the Paulist Father Healy. The interest in these lectures grows daily and a large percentage of the audience last night was non-Catholic. Previous to the lecture Father Healy, in answer to a question, explained why Catholics are not allowed to attend non-Catholic churches. Another interesting answer was given to the ever-interesting question, "Why don't priests marry?"

The lecture of the evening was on "Confession," and held the rapt attention of the entire audience for an hour and fifteen minutes.

Father Healy read the following passage of St. John's gospel xx, 19 to 23.

"Now when it was late that same day, before the first day of the week, and the doors were shut, where the disciples were gathered together, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in their midst and said to them, Peace be to you.

"And when he said this he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples were therefore glad when they saw the Lord.

"And he said to them again: Peace be to you; as the Father hast sent me, so send I also you.

"When he had said this he breathed upon them and said to them: Receive ye the Holy Ghost.

"Whose sins you shall remit, they are remitted; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

In the light of the above texts, the speaker developed his subject along the following lines, although the synopsis gives a very meager idea of the fullness of his argument, and the force and brilliancy of its presentation.

First, If human language means anything, these words give the apostles, who were men, power to forgive sin.

Second, That power was not to die with the apostles, but was to be transmitted to the church of God forever. For it is a power that has to do with the sanctification and salvation of souls, and every such power given to the apostles was to last in their successors to the end of time.

The power to baptize and the power to preach did not die with the apostles. Neither then did the power to forgive sin, which was given by the same Christ, to the same apostles, for the same end.

Third, That power implies, necessarily the confession of sins. For the power is judicial, that is to say, it leaves open to the apostles two alternatives, either to forgive or not to forgive. Now it is absolutely impossible that they should know which of these two alternatives to exercise unless the state of the soul be disclosed to them. In other words, without confession that solemn conferring of an extraordinary power becomes meaningless and worthless.

The sinner is to the law of Christ what the criminal is to the law of the land. The criminal judge, who has power to acquit or convict, must first hear the case. So the apostles, the criminal judges, as it were, of the offenders of Christ's law, must hear the case. They can not know the case unless the sinner reveals the condition of his soul.

The best proof of the apostolic antiquity of confession, and the most effacious answer to the curiously unhistorical charge that confession was an invention of the thirteenth century, is the fact that heretical sects which broke off from Catholic unity in the early fifth century, sects like the Nestorians and the Euthychians, still retain confession—a proof positive that they practiced confession before their separation from the church; for of course they would not have adopted in later ages any doctrines of the church then spurned.

Father Healy then answered a number of popular objections to confession. He ridiculed the accusation that the confession was an "invention of Roman priestcraftry," and certainly no one who was present last evening will ever again heed the slanderous charge that priests sometimes in some places receive money for forgiving sins.

He then showed the beneficial character of confession from the viewpoint of nature, and concluded the lecture by referring to Hawthorne's "Marble Faun" and "The Scarlet Letter," and Thomas Hood's "Dream of Eugene Aram." Father Healy showed that confession answers to a natural craving of the human heart.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Daniel Knutter, who was injured by stepping into a hole left by P. S. C. workmen engaged in erecting electric light poles, has secured a settlement of his claim for damages from the corporation. He will not state the amount received, but it is understood to have been $1,000.

The Dunellen High School eleven will begin its season tomorrow, with a game against St. Joseph's school team, of Bound Brook. The boys have a new pigskin and expect it to bring them luck. The contest will take place on the local gridiron.

The Aluminum Plate and Press Company is building a new office building. It is planned to erect a foundry building, 100x200.

Bernard Siriski's building is going up rapidly. Iron girders are now being put in it, a novel feature for a small Dunellen structure.

Fifty members of St. John's church went to the mission service at the South Plainfield church last night.

Henry Knudwesier, of the village, fell in a fit on North avenue yesterday. He was assisted home.

T. C. Tinsman, of Port Murray, has returned home after a visit to relatives in the borough.

John Cooper is suffering from an injury to his leg, the result of a fall downstairs.

Dr. Nelson's automobile is running again, after a suspension of power for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Tinsman are visiting relatives at Port Murray.

Mrs. William Knutter is suffering from a severe attack of diabetes.

Mr. and Mrs. Stacey B. Opdyke have removed to New York.

Ellis Carmen has gone to a private school at Reading, Pa.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A number of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole, who were married Wednesday night of last week, tendered them a surprise party and housewarming last night. The bride and groom, while taken completely by surprise, were equal to the occasion and a most enjoyable evening was spent together.

The friends of Duncan Munroe, who has been sick for several months, were out in force at the benefit dance given him last night in Excelsior Hall. Nearly one hundred dollars was realized from the sale of tickets. Music for dancing was furnished by Naylor's full orchestra, of Plainfield.

The weekly prayer and praise service will be held tonight at the Baptist church. Rev. T. Moore-Smith will lead; subject, "Midnight Music."

The Daabsters and Westfield team play the ninth game of the series of ten at Recreation Park tomorrow afternoon.

Augustus L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue, is entertaining his brother, George Frentz, of Scranton, Miss.

Miss Mary Westcott, of the borough, is spending several weeks with relatives at Bridgeton, N. J.

The Misses Henderson, who have been spending a week at Bays Head, L. I., have returned home.

Miss Jennie Frentz spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Frank Putnam, of East Second street.

Vanderbilt Raymond has taken a position with D. J. Galbraith, of Plainfield.

Mrs. Isaac Ryno has been entertaining her mother from Westfield.

YOUNG WOMEN'S NEW FIELD.

Typewriters Take Place of Striking Printers in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—The experiments in the shops of the Chicago Typothetae since the printers' strike began promise a new field for industry for girl stenographers. From the typewriter keyboard to that of a big typesetting machine, the employers say, is only a short remove. So successful have the young women proved as operators in the large printing shops that the proprietors are seeking for more of them.

The Typothetae Wednesday decided to advertise for a hundred girls for machine work, to take the places of striking printers. At present twenty-five girls are acting as strike-breakers.

Mrs. Charles H. Smith, of Grove street, who has been sojourning at Lebanon, Hunterdon county, has returned home.

PASTOR BY THE MONTH.

Church Votes to Engage New Minister for Specified Time.

Lee, Mass., Sept. 22.—Because past experience has taught the members of the Lee Congregational church that getting rid of a pastor is often attended by difficulties, the society voted last night not to settle on the Rev. Henry Wilds Smith as pastor of the church, but instead to engage him from month to month for a six-months' term, if he proved satisfactory.

Wellington Smith, a wealthy paper manufacturer, favored calling the Rev. Mr. Smith to the pastorate. A motion to this effect was voted down nearly 3 to 1. A motion to engage the Rev. Mr. Smith for eighteen months likewise was defeated.

The minority was reminded sharply that a settled pastor might work great disadvantage to the parish, as he could not be removed except for cause, and it might be found expedient to send the spiritual head of the church on his way, even though he were guilty of no specific offense.

The Rev. Mr. Smith is yet to be heard from.

Jury for Flomerfelt.

In the Somerset Court this week Alvah A. Clark, counsel for Jacob Flomerfelt, made application for a struck jury. The application was granted and Sheriff Cooper drew out ninety-six names, of which forty-eight were challenged. The trial is to take place during the September term before Justice Garretson. Flomerfelt was tried last fall for manslaughter in causing the death of his brother-in-law, Frank Cramer, at North Branch.

Tax Rates Reduced.

Perth Amboy shares with New Brunswick in a reduction of the tax rate. This year it will be $2.12 on the $100 valuation in that city; $1.29 on the $100 for city tax; 67 cents, county tax; and 16 cents State school tax. The new rate means a cut of thirteen points in the rate, it having been $2.25 last year.

—Henry J. Wierenga, the truckman, has been doing some more heavy work with marked success. He recently removed from the freight house the ten-ton boilers for the new High School. The work was done without a break or an accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flynn, of this city, have been visiting Mrs. Flynn's parents at Raritan.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, are home from their summer vacation.

Anthracite Coal and the Railroads.

The subject of burning anthracite coal under railway locomotive boilers being so largely in the public eye at the present time, it is but proper that "facts be submitted to a candid world." On the present line of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, anthracite coal was discovered over a hundred years ago, but was not mined to any extent until after the 1812 war. It was to transport anthracite coal to tide that the Lehigh Valley Railroad was first projected and built. Fifty years ago when the majority of American locomotives were "wood burners," the Lehigh Valley Railroad was using anthracite coal under its boilers. It is doing so at the present day, to the great comfort of its patrons. As long as steam is the motive power used in trasportation by rail, so long will anthracite coal be the "King of Combustibles," and as such will be utilized by railroad companies. A road-bed of stone ballast, equipped with block signals, passenger train locomotives using anthracite coal, up-to-date passenger train service and equipment, all contribute to the safety, comfort, convenience and cleanliness of a trip on the Lehigh Valley.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

If you are seeking a practical, progressive school, with up-to-date courses of study, skilled teachers, twentieth century methods of instruction and unexcelled opportunities for advancement, you will do well to investigate our facilities for giving instruction and securing positions. We have purchased the large Wood College at Newark and added to our chain of schools.

Our courses are right to the point and are planned to meet the demands of the business men. Eight Thousand Five Hundred Drake students hold responsible positions throughout the States of New York and New Jersey.

We hold that the very best education attainable is none too good for those who are looking for success, and although our tuition may be a trifle higher than some other schools, the difference is made up in the time saved and the results obtained. The Drake Schools are known to be the cheapest first-class institutions in America, with a twenty-one years' record in training young men and women for business. Why not attend a school that has superior advantages? Our seven schools are connected by telephone with our New York employment bureaus.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Leon Ames, of the Giants, has fanned more batsmen than any other National League twirler.

"Dan" Connolly, the printer boy, is playing a strong right field and hitting the ball hard.

The Daabsters are anxious to take the next two games from Westfield, making eight victories out of ten contests.

The Denmanites were sure of wiping up the earth with Plainfield this year, but two victories out of eight contests does not look like it.

"Mike" Leonard is playing one hundred degrees faster than ever. His record this season will equal the best third baseman in the business.

The fans will see a continuation of good baseball at Recreation Park tomorrow and it is Plainfield's day to win. "Willie" Deegan will be there with the goods.

"Pete" Cregan had the political bee early in the season. He was angling for an aldermanic nomination in Peekskill, but has since pulled out of the race.

There is no more earnest player than Captain Driscoll, of the Daabsters. He is in the game from start to finish and through his efforts many games have been won this year.

"Rube" Oldring, formerly of the local team, but now with the Montgomery team, of the Southern League, was recently benched for poor work. He is once more in the game.

One week from tomorrow the last game of the series of ten between Plainfield and Westfield will be played on Crescent Oval and there should be a record-breaking crowd in support of the management and team.

Ball players and critics agree that Mathewson never had a better season. His speed and control have both improved, according to Frank Bowerman, who always backstops him. "I've caught many of them," says Frank, "but he has them all beat."

The local baseball season opened on Saturday, April 15, and the results of the games played to date are as follows: Jersey City, 7 to 1; Elizabeth Stars, 10 to 4; Philadelphia Giants, 3 to 2; Cuban X-Giants, 3 to 2; Philadelphia Giants, 4 to 2; Philadelphia Professionals, 12 to 2; All Americans (two games), 2 to 1 and 12 to 2; Newburgh, 6 to 4; Manhattan College, 12 to 1; Philadelphia Giants, 6 to 11; All Cubans, 0 to 1; All Americans, 16 to 4; All Nationals (two games), 5 to 0, and 11 to 3; Rahway, 12 to 2; Westfield, 4 to 0; 5 to 4; 3 to 1; 2 to 7; All Cubans, 1 to 4; Westfield, 2 to 1; 7 to 2; 6 to 4; 4 to 2. Two games yet remain to be played with Westfield.

AGED PAUPERS IN DUEL.

Serious Battle With Knives in the Poorhouse at Somerville.

Bridgewater Township Poorhouse, at Somerville, was the scene of a duel with knives between George Potts, eighty years old, and Edward Riley, two inmates of the institution, Wednesday afternoon.

They started the fight in a secluded spot where they were not observed by the keeper, and began literally to cut one another to pieces. Other inmates hurriedly summoned the keeper, David Dunn, who separated the combatants, with the assistance of several men, after a desperate struggle. Both men were badly slashed and are now in a serious condition.

Three Remarkable Stories.

Next Sunday's New York World magazine section will contain three features marking it as an exceptional number. These will be the first published pictures of Senator Clark's $5,000,000 palace on Fifth avenue, showing in detail the wonderful building that will be when completed the finest palace in America. The story of a blind girl who has worked her way through Vassar College against tremendous odds. An "Australian Mermaid," Miss Annette Kellerman, who is coming to this country to challenge the American men and women to swim for world's championships. Her remarkable achievements and those of some American girls whom she will meet in natatorial contests. Two good short stories and a dozen other features besides.

Auto Stages for Montclair.

The town of Montclair has always been opposed to trolley lines, and as it is a place of great distances, getting about without a horse and carriage or an automobile is almost impossible. A company has filed an application now for a franchise to run lines of automobile stages from the railroad stations through various streets. The application will come up for hearing next week.

—The September term of court will open at Somerville on Tuesday.

Plainfield, N. J., September 22, 1905.

Everett Colby, the apostle of Clean Republicanism in Essex county, is the guest at the Hyde estate in East Front street.

"No one has mentioned Odell as a mayoralty possibility," says the Elizabeth Evening Times. Quite right, brother Sauer. A resident of Newburgh would hardly be eligible for the mayoralty of New York.

An exchange disagrees with Jacob Riis when he says that Roosevelt is the handsomest man he ever saw. If "handsome is as handsome does," the President of these United States is deserving of Mr. Riis' tribute.

Due appreciation of the value of advertising in The Daily Press has caused the merchants of Plainfield to so encroach upon our columns today that we are compelled to make apology for omitting a good batch of news as well as the promised article in the "Timely Topics" series. H. C. Krebs' contribution on a changed condition in methods of education will be found in tomorrow's issue.

James E. Martine probably has as many friends and admirers among the newspaper men as any man in the State. This accounts for the fact that nearly every paper in New Jersey has been indulging in pleasantries over the announcement that he is about to be married. One of the brightest of these comments is made by the Trenton State Gazette, which says: "Farmer Orator James E. Martine, of Plainfield, has reached the conclusion that single blessedness is a failure and next month will take unto himself a bride. While wishing Mr. Martine all the joy that he can absorb, we want to assure him that he is about to enter upon a campaign in which he will find that he cannot do all the talking."

ROCHESTER FIANCEE FOR GOVERNOR'S AIDE.

Colonel Frelinghuysen to Wed Miss Emily Macy Brewster.

The announcement is made of the engagement of Colonel Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, personal aide to Governor Stokes and probable Republican candidate for Senator from Somerset county, to Miss Emily Macy Brewster, of Rochester, N. Y., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Brewster.

At present Colonel Frelinghuysen, who is a wealthy insurance broker at 76 William street, New York, resides with his mother on the Frelinghuysen estate near Raritan.

It is expected that the marriage will take place in the late fall.

MUST GUARD ROAD HOLES.

P. S. C. Didn't Make One Safe—Knutter Got Damages.

Daniel L. Knutter, of Dunellen, recovered $1,200 damages from the P. S. C. yesterday, in the Supreme Court at New Brunswick, for injuries sustained through a fall into a hole left by workmen who had been erecting poles. The hole was not safeguarded in any way, and Knutter was severely injured.

In the course of trial Justice Fort laid down some law in regard to holes in public highways. He ruled that any one making a hole in a public road must see that the spot is reasonably safe for travel as long as the hole exists.

Mrs. Stewart, of Grove street, has gone to Asbury Park to spend a few weeks in company with friends.

Miss Elizabeth Milligan has returned to her home on East Fifth street after spending a part of the summer in the Adirondacks and at Narragansett Pier.

ing session was the address by Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, of Bayonne, who spoke on "Our National Issue." She said that eighty per cent. of crime, and ninety-five per cent. of the depraved youths is caused by intemperance. She said that the United States Supreme Court has promulgated the doctrine that saloons and breweries are a nuisance and each State has the right to control or destroy them. The evil of intemperance she referred to as "Our National Issue," and she said that the W. C. T. U. advocates total abstinence for the individual and total prohibition for the State and Nation and is pledged to push the chariot of reform in this direction. She maintained that there is no argument against total abstinence, that strong drink is unnecessary, that there is no natural appetite for strong drink, it is either inherited or cultivated and that it is an expensive habit as well as a bad example. She also said that as alcohol is a poison it is bad for the health and that if total abstinence prevailed it would soon empty the almshouses and jails. She pictured the saloon and its victims standing out in bold relief, with men of the Nation standing in the background who have made the liquor traffic a great commercial system.

Mrs. Hammer said that the drunkard is legally debauched, the saloon as National as any National bank, as legal as the church and the public school, and she urged with great earnestness that every member put forth her best effort to down the terrible evil—the liquor traffic.

THE FORUM.

In Memoriam.

Editor The Daily Press:

After a potracted illness of nearly two years, borne with absolute resignation, patience and fortitude, Edward B. Clark yesterday passed into his eternal rest, and Plainfield is poorer thereby.

He came to our city more than twenty years ago, known only to very few of our citizens, but through his genial, hearty manners, energy and capacity in local affairs, he soon formed a large circle of acquaintances who loved and respected him. He served in the City Council, was president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital and active in church and all charitable work.

He always stood ready to assist any in trouble of "mind, body or estate," and it can truthfully be said that he was faithful and loyal in the various positions to which it pleased God to call him.

As a friend of more than twenty-five years' standing, I cannot forbear rendering this tribute to his great worth.

I. L. M.

JOHN F. DRYDEN SAID TO BE QUITE UNEASY

IT IS COLBY, NOT INSURANCE, THAT BOTHERS HIM.

The presence of United States Senator Dryden at the Republican county convention in Morristown yesterday has led to the opinion that the Senator is beginning to feel uneasy about his re-election to the Senate. The recent victory of the Colby faction in Essex county is said to be responsible for this. Colby and his supporters do not favor the Senator for re-election, but are inclined to advocate the election of Gov. Stokes in his place.

As Morris county's representatives voted for Gov. Stokes when he opposed Senator Dryden for the United States Senatorship, it is believed Mr. Dryden means to secure the Morris delegation if possible. He was warmly received at the convention and spoke of the harmony of Morris county Republicans. In Essex county, he said, there had been considerable excitement in the ranks. The ticket nominated at the convention was: For sheriff—George H. Shaw, of Succasunna; members of the Assembly—Richard J. Chapman, mayor of Mount Arlington, and John M. Mills, of Morristown. The latter was renominated, and if elected will be a candidate for Speaker of the House.

Leader of Moral Advance.

Prof. Edward Howard Griggs will begin his new course of lectures at Vincent chapel next Tuesday night. This year Prof. Griggs will analyze the lives and works of moral leaders in the world's history. His series will begin with Socrates and on through the moral advances brought about by Luther, Victor Hugo, Carlyle, Emerson and Tolstoy. The course is one that promises much for those interested, however slightly, in moral and social reforms.

False Alarm of Fire.

A false alarm of fire was sent in from Box 153, at Westervelt and Mountain avenues, at 8 o'clock last night, calling the borough fire department out. The department could discover no fire and Chief Woolston soon learned that it had been called out on a fool's errand. An investigation is now being made by Chief Marshall Weiss and Chief Woolston, and they feel sure that the guilty party will be apprehended.

Plan Red Men's Fair.

The members of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., at their regular meeting last night, decided to hold a big fair for a week, commencing on October 30, in Vardon's Hall on West Front street. It is proposed to make it an elaborate event, a veritable Coney Island on a small scale. There will be shadowgraph dancing, opera singing by well-known talent from New York, and many other features. The committee in charge comprises A. E. Willard, chairman; Mr. Oslin, secretary; M. Leichtentritt, treasurer.

Miss Gassner's Fall Opening.

An event of more than ordinary interest to the women folks is the announcement of the fall opening of millinery at Miss Gassner's store in the Stillman building on West Front street, which she advertises for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 26, 27 and 28. At that time she will offer pattern hats, novelties and art goods.

Boys' Reception.

The boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A. met last night for a discussion of the new season's outlook. It was decided to inaugurate the social side of the department with a reception on September 30. O. S. Rogers and Secretary Robbie are arranging the details.

WORDY WAR BETWEEN COUNTY OFFICIALS

PROSECUTOR AND SHERIFF PAY RESPECTS TO ONE ANOTHER.

Sheriff William Carman and Prosecutor George Berdine had a lively tilt at the sheriff's office Wednesday afternoon over a postponement of the sale of some property at Jamesburg. Mr. Berdine wanted an adjournment, saying the property was worth the judgment against it. Mr. Rosell, a lawyer, insisted that the sale should go on, and the sheriff said he would make the sale. The prosecutor then became angry.

"The county will be well rid of you," he said, addressing the sheriff, whose term expires in November.

"And if it was rid of you it would be better off," retorted the sheriff.

"You have let more people escape and sheltered more criminals than any man that has had the office," said the prosecutor.

"If you convicted a few more criminals there would not be so many here to get through the roof," replied the sheriff.

"Yes, and I'll convict you, too," was the reply of the prosecutor.

"Go ahead and convict!" exclaimed the sheriff.

"We've heard about enough talk of this sort in as public a place as this is," interposed the lawyer.

"My tongue is my own, and I'll do as I please with it," declared the prosecutor, and the sale went on.

To Frank J. Kirk, Defendant:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein The Plainfield Trust Company is complainant, and you are the defendant, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the nineteenth day of September next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by you to the said complainant and dated October 25th, 1904; covering lands in the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, and you are made defendant because you own the said lands or some part thereof.

Dated, August 18th, 1905.

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Harry B. MacDonald, William R. Sullivan and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas by order entered on the twenty-first day of June, 1905, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, said improvements being the macadamizing of

Prospect avenue, from the northeasterly crosswalk at Park avenue to the westerly curb line of Woodland avenue;

West Fifth street, from the southwesterly curb line of Grant avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Monroe avenue;

Albert street, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front street to the southeasterly curb line of Dunellen avenue;

Dunellen avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Clinton avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Compton avenue;

under the ordinance of said city, entitled "An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the city of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 6, 1903, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefitted by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said Ordinances, the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the third day of October, 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.
Dated September 5, 1905.

AMUSEMENTS.

Alberta Gallatin, who will be happily remembered by theatregoers of this city in several roles, is soon to appear at the New Plainfield theatre in "Cousin Kate," the Hudson theatre, New York, opening success, one of the cleverest and best society comedies ever put on the stage. Miss Gallatin's work as an emotional actress is well known here and lovers of all that is good in plays are assured that in the comedy role of "Cousin Kate" Miss Gallatin, if such a thing is possible, does even better work than in the heavier lines of the drama, allowing, of course, for the difference in the class of acting required. Her humor, gaiety and wit are spontaneous and will be long remembered by those who see the play as one of the prettiest pieces af acting of the season.

That ever popular farce comedy "Peck's Bad Boy," that has made millions laugh, will be with us again at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday, and if you desire to have a hearty laugh at good, wholesome fun, without vulgarity, you should not miss this opportunity. It always was funny, and is doubly so now, as a brand new version has been prepared and is presented this season for the first time. New scenery, costumes, songs, dances, specialties, dialogue, business situations, in fact, everything is new, bright and pleasing.

Of the musical comedies that have been produced in recent years, there are none that have been as successful as "The Rays'" howling success, "A Hot Old Time," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. The trials and tribulations of Larry Mooney certainly cause many a laugh, and its appearance here will certainly be welcomed by all who have seen this comedy and by many of those who have not been so fortunate. The specialties that are introduced are said to be novel, and some great singing and dancing numbers are promised. One of the special features this season will be the Burdock Sisters in the latest songs and acrobatic dancing. All in all, this should be an entertainment to please the most fastidious as well as those who like the slap stick comedy.

Jacob Hagin, of Elizabeth, is a candidate for coroner on the Republican ticket. Mr. Hagin is twenty-two years old. He is widely known throughout the conty, having been a resident in Elizabeth for the last eighteen years.

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

LEE SAYS HE IS BEING URGED TO MAKE THE RUN

DEMOCRATS THINK THEY COULD ACCOMPLISH HIS ELECTION.

Collector Robert L. Lee confirmed, this morning, the report that he was being urged to run for a re-election as an independent candidate with Democratic endorsement.

"It is true that I have been advised to run as the choice of the independent voters and Democrats," said Mr. Lee. "As yet I have made no answer to the suggestion."

Prominent Democrats are among those who have asked Mr. Lee to allow himself to be named in opposition to the regular Republican nominee. It is believed by optimistic Democrats that enough strength could be mustered for Mr. Lee early in the campaign to swing a decisive majority from among the members of the Republican party who would be delighted with some such opportunity to administer a rebuke to such members of the organization as they have been criticising.

A prominent and influential member of the Democratic organization had this to say of Mr. Lee's proposed candidacy this morning:

"If Lee runs as an independent nominee he will receive my vote and my support, whatever the Democratic organization may do as a body. I do not think he received a square deal, and he undoubtedly is a square and efficient collector. Put me down for Lee."

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Nailor have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zimmerman, of South Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. John Prugh are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Charles Ulmer, of South Bound Brook.

Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Luckey, of East Front street, have returned from a delightful vacation spent in the West.

Miss Madeline Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Willow avenue, has gone to boarding school at Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryan, accompanied by their son and daughter, left yesterday for their tour of the world. They will sail from San Francisco for Japan on Sept. 26, stopping in Honolulu for a day or two. From Japan they will go to Manila and will spend some time in the Philippines. They will then visit Australia and New Zealand, and will reach India in the winter. They will proceed to the Holy Land and other countries, and will spend next summer in the large cities of Europe. Mr. Bryan expects to be gone not less than a year.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, of Bound Brook, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. W. C. Leek will sing and G. H. Bennett will play cornet solos.

Delegates to the twentieth annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew gathered at the University of Chicago yesterday to attend the opening session. Eight hundred members of the Episcopal lay order were present when the doors of the convention were thrown open. Both the women's and men's dormitories at the university, numbering nine in all, have been set aside for the accommodation of the delegates.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., worked the second degree on five candidates Wednesday night.

In honor of the fifty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Daughters of Rebecca, Friendship Lodge, of this city, held a social on Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Kettenring, on Race street. An informal programme was enjoyed by sixty members, concluding with refreshments.

Napp Out on Bail.

Charles E. Napp, the real estate borker of Trenton, who was arrested Tuesday afternoon on the charge of shooting Daniel Coleman, a negro, at Metuchen, after the latter had made an insulting remark to Napp, was released from the Middlesex county jail yesterday, bail for $600 being furnished by E. L. Kerns, of Trenton.

Drunk Freed.

Bartholomew Taylor was arrested for drunkenness on East Sixth street by Patrolman Higgins yesterday afternoon. He was released under suspended sentence by Judge Runyon this morning.

Miss Baldwin's Party.

Miss Edna Baldwin, of Dunellen, entertained a number of friends at her home last night. There was an informal programme of music, after which refreshments were served.

—Neuman Bros. are receiving daily a choice lot of fresh vegetables from the best Jersey gardens.

JUDGES TO WEAR GOWNS.

Cross and Lanning Are to Be Robed.

Judges William J. Lanning and Joseph Cross, of the United States Courts, have decided to follow the practise of the Federal Courts of Pennsylvania, New York and the higher courts of this State and wear gowns when they are sitting.

The two judges will don their gowns for the first time next Tuesday, at the opening of the October term of the Circuit Court.

They will wear them at all the opening sessions of the District and Circuit Courts and during jury trials. It is not probable that the judges will wear them at the hearings of motions.

The robes will be the same as those used by the judges of the New Jersey Court of Appeals and the judges of the Federal Courts of the circuit, which is composed of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

SPORT FOR HORSELOVERS.

Strong Attractions Will Be On the Programme of the Matinee Races.

Good cards will mark the matinee races at the Driving Park tomorrow afternoon. One of the features will be a team race, a new event for the Plainfield track.

There will be good-sized lists in every class. Horses from New Brunswick, Rahway, Westfield, Woodbridge, Trenton and Metuchen will be entered. The races are to be for ribbons. Admission and everything else is free.

The events are to go as follows: 2:50 trot; 2:30 trot; 2:25 pace; and team race. Two fast teams for one-half mile heats are assured for the latter event.

Must Be Vaccinated.

H. Brewster Willis, county superintendent of schools, has sent an official letter to the boards of education of Middlesex county, calling attention to the law bearing upon the question of vaccination, and insisting upon prompt obedience to the letter and spirit thereof. Vaccination is insisted upon by the State as a condition of entrance or position in the public school and evidence of the operation must be presented at once. In the event of the inability of parents to pay the required sum for vaccination, the municipality will assume the obligation.

Additions to Population.

Letter-carrier and Mrs. Robert Goldsack, of Wilson avenue, the borough, are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a son at their home this morning.

A daughter arrived this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Moore, of 62 Duer street.

A Farewell Reception.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will give a farewell reception and social at the church tonight to R. V. Brokaw, its president, who leaves next week for Hackettstown Institute, where he will prepare for the ministry.

Medal Contest.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will hold a medal contest at the W. C. T. U. rooms next Tuesday night. If the weather is bad the contest will be postponed to Thursday. Everybody will be welcome to attend.

Vagrant Released.

George Anderson, charged with vagrancy by Patrolman Kelly, was arraigned in the city court this morning. He was arrested at 9 o'clock last night. Sentence was suspended.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The Citizens' party of the borough is planning to hold several mass meetings in the club rooms on Somerset street. Good speakers will attend and there will be other attractive features. The club rooms are now open every night.

The Morris county Republicans met in convention at Morristown yesterday and nominated John H. Mills, of Morristown, and Richard J. Caplin, of Mount Arlington, for members of the Assembly, and George Shaw, of Randolph, for sheriff.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler was scheduled to speak at the Morris county Republican convention yesterday. He failed to put in an appearance. Many of the delegates were not surprised at his absence. Mr. Fowler is not a candidate this fall.

The Warren County Democratic convention at Belvidere yesterday nominated Johnston Cornish for State Senator. Joseph Firth, Mayor of Phillipsburg, was nominated for Assembly; Clinton Kerr, of Independence, for sheriff, and Charles Hoagland for clerk.

The Jersey City Democrats held their convention last night, and nominated the following ticket: For Mayor, Archibald M. Henry; president of the Board of Aldermen, Philip Kreutzig, and Street and Water Commissioners, Thomas J. Corydon and Frank Donnelly.

Farmer-Orator James E. Martine was a speaker of the day at the Warren county Democratic convention yesterday at Belvidere. It was the largest and most enthusiastic convention in years. He congratulated Everett Colby on his stand for equal taxation and declared that the new primary law was the most iniquitous measure ever saddled upon a free people. He also scored the voting machines, and acts of the Legislature in general.

Suspended Sentence.

John Fallar, charged with disorderly conduct, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. He was arrested at 1:30 o'clock a. m. by Patrolman Myers. He was released under suspended sentence, with a warning.

—Miss Lottie Hepner, of West Fourth street, entertained several friends at her home last night.

GIFT OF EPWORTHIANS

Grace M. E. Church League Presents Gold Watch to Mr. Brokaw.

HONOR COMING CLERIC

Farewell Reception at the Church Last Night a Tribute to a Christian Young Man—Speeches and Entertainment.

Raymond V. Brokaw, of the borough, who has arranged to enter the Centenary Collegiate Institute at Hackettstown, next week, to prepare for the ministry, was given a farewell reception by the Epworth League, of Grace M. E. church, last night. Mr. Brokaw has been president of the league for some time, and the members have expressed unusual interest in his plans for Christian work.

The feature of the affair was the presentation to Mr. Brokaw of a handsome gold watch. The outside case bears his monogram, while on the inside of the case is the inscription: "Presented to R. V. Brokaw by the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church, Sept. 22, 1905." The presentation was made by M. K. Heicker on behalf of the league. He spoke of Mr. Brokaw's untiring efforts for the league and the work of the church, and said that the members had mingled feelings of sadness and joy at the departure of their president. Sad because they were to lose a valuable member, and joy because he was to prepare himself for great usefulness in the Master's Vineyard.

Mr. Brokaw in receiving the gift, expressed his feelings of deep appreciation and recounted the blessings he had enjoyed in serving the league as president. He asked for the earnest prayers of all and said that he would ever remember to pray for them.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Parsons, pastor of the church, also made a short address referring to Mr. Brokaw's plans. He said that while he had only been acquainted with him four months, he had never met a more earnest Christian and he predicted a successful career for him in Christian work.

During the evening there was an informal programme comprising a recitation, "Isabelle's Missionary Work," by Miss Helen Woolley, a piano solo by Miss Sebring, a recitation, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," by Miss Huber, with piano accompaniment by Miss Martin and another piano solo by Miss Sebring.

The programme was in charge of Benjamin Schuck, while the reception and refreshments were in charge of this committee: Mrs. Charles Herman, chairman; Charles Herman, Miss Nettie Bauersachs, Miss Grace Clark, Miss Lucetta Clark, Miss Stella Vermeule, Mrs. Charles Harden, Miss Emma Smalley, Raymond Miller, M. K. Heicker, Russell Harden and Benjamin Schuck.

MASTODINATO HELD.

Italian Accused of Running Gambling Device Must Answer—Police Alert.

Jules Mastodinato, the Italian arrested for having a slot card machine in his store on Liberty street, was held for the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon in $200 bail. He waived examination before Justice Mosher on advice of his counsel, John P. Owens.

"That's the last you'll hear of the case," Mr. Owens told his client.

"That remains to be seen," said Chief Kiely. The authorities are going to make a determined effort to convict and punish Mastodinato. Chief Kiely is determined that the slot machine evil shall get no start in this city. Hitherto Plainfield has been remarkably free of the devices, and the police will not stand for any attempt to introduce them here.

Jackie Home.

John Townley, brother of Capt. William Townley, of the fire department, is home on a furlough from the navy for the first time since he enlisted two and a half years ago. He is attached to the gunboat Castine. He came North from Portsmouth navy yard on a fifteen-days' leave of absence. Townley likes the navy, and will probably re-enlist when his time is up. He will report for duty at the end of his furlough in Philadelphia.

T. A. B. Dance.

The usual success attended the annual dance of the T. A. B. Society last night. The hall was crowded with dancers and the music was all that could be desired. The committee was made up of Miles Wilson, chairman; Thomas Hines, David Doyle and Thomas McInerney.

To Celebrate Wedding Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hand, of Scotch Plains, will celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding on October 9. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Hand's mother, Mrs. Frank Hosinger, on Park avenue, Scotch Plains.

FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE

Paulist Father Points Out Baneful Influence of Liquor.

DRUNKENNESS A SIN

Father Healy Delivers a Splendid Address Before Large Congregation at South Plainfield.

The services which have been conducted by the Paulist Fathers of New York city at Washington Hall, South Plainfield, and which have been drawing such large audiences, will come to a close tomorrow night. Tomorrow morning mass will be celebrated at the usual hour by Father Healy and the papal blessing will be imparted to the congregation.

Father Healy will deliver his last discourse tomorrow night, his subject being: "Why I am a Catholic." There will be no lecture tonight.

In the course of his lecture last night Father Healy said:

"Three motives there are which impel me to advocate the cause of total abstinence: Love of country, love of church, and love of souls.

"And first, love of country. I do not desire to assume the undignified role of calamity howler, and prophesy the dissolution of the American nation, or the breaking of its power, yet I can not refrain from lamenting that there is a vice which is threatening to become national with us, which is already appalling in its proportions, and which, did it grow unchecked, would prove in a short time the deadliest foe to America's strength, the aborting of her glorious future. For this reason I shall give my best efforts throughout life for the cultivation of a national sentiment against intemperance that threatens to sweep over the land.

"Secondly, I speak out of love for church. It is not infrequently charged against the Catholic Church, by those who are her enemies, that she condones the sin of intemperance too readily, and countenances the saloon traffic, even in its worst forms. I desire to give the lie to that slander, for the Catholic Church uncompromisingly condemns whatever is sinful in the use or sale of liquor; she commands her children under pain of sin to be temperate, and strongly urges us to the practice of total abstinence.

"Finally I speak out of love for souls. With a missionary the saddest of his sad experiences is witnessing the dreadful havoc of wrecked and ruined souls, the unfortunate victims of the demon of strong drink. As a sin upon the soul of man, drunkenness is of the lowest order. In itself, it is hideous beyond description. It robs man of his intellect, destroys his will power, completely demoralizes his whole character and leaves him only a shadow or what he was when he came from the hand of God. In a word, it unmans man. And who shall tell of the multitude of other evils that follow in its wake? Impurities, blasphemy, murder and rapire; the specter of pauperism, gaunt hunger and desolate despair! These are only part.

"Against the sin of drunkenness, therefore, which is a deadly disease knawing at the vitals of the nation, which is a scandal to the church and religion, which damns so many souls, I advocate with all my heart and soul the cause of temperance; nor do I stop here, but go further to plead for the virtue of total abstinence.

"With regard to the use of liquor, temperance means simply moderation, but total abstinence means a complete denial to one's self of the use of liquor, even in moderation. This is a virtue which, when prompted by some noble motive, is more meritorious in the sight of God. And there is a motive which I shall now present to all, even to the temperate, for going the full way to total abstinence, a motive which I am sure will appeal to all. The motive is love.

"There is yet one more appeal to make, and I am done. It is the dying form of Jesus Christ, hanging on the cross. Not the least of his terrible sufferings during those dread hours on Calvary was a thirst so agonizing that it drew from Him the only complaint in those three hours of torture. I appeal to your as devoted Christians in honor of the Sacred Thirst of Christ to be total abstainers. Stand beneath the cross, and hear that plaintive moan, scarcely audible, as it is spoken by a tongue swollen with a parching thirst, and let your sympathetic response be that for love of your dying Christ you will be total abstainers."

MAYOR BUCKLE APPOINTS A POLICE COMMISSION

MRS. MACK DIVORCED ON GROUND OF DESERTION

SOMERVILLE SOCIETY WOMAN FREED FROM UNHAPPY TIE.

Trenton, Sept. 23.—Chancellor William J. Magie has signed a final decree annulling the marriage of Alexander W. Mack and Madeline C. Mack, of Somerville. Almost twelve years ago the Chancellor himself, then an associate justice of the Supreme Court and a close friend of the family of the bride, pronounced the words which joined Mr. and Mrs. Mack in marriage, and it is a singular coincidence which has forced him in his official capacity as Chancellor of the State to sever those ties. Mrs. Mack is a daughter of former Representative Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville. Her husband is a man of wealth, whose place of business is in New York. Both are prominent in society, and for many years were recognized as leaders in their set.

The domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Mack are not new, though the present proceedings have been entirely free from publicity. Three years ago Mr. Mack instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, whom he charged with misconduct. These were met by an answer and cross bill in which Mrs. Mack made similar charges against her husband of a sensational character. Before the case had gone to a final hearing Mr. and Mrs. Mack entered into a written agreement by which they mutually consented to withdraw their divorce proceedings "in order to prevent public scandal and injury to their children." It was also agreed that the charges made in each of the then pending bills should be withdrawn and abandoned and the offenses set forth therein condoned and forgiven, and the proceedings withdrawn from the files of the court, if permitted by the Chancellor.

Another provision of the agreement was that Mr. Mack should have the custody of his daughter, Katharine Mack, now four years old, and Mrs. Mack should have the custody of her son, Adolph Clark, ten years old. Each parent was to have the right to visit the child in the custody of the other in case of illness, and each child was to be allowed to spend one day a week, from 9 until 5 o'clock, with the parent having the custody of the other. For the support of her son, Mrs. Mack was to receive $100 a month until January 1, 1916. It was agreed that this allowance was to be in lieu of all other claims of Mrs. Mack against her husband.

Following out the understanding which, while not expressed in the articles of agreement, is understood to have been mutually consented to at that time, Mr. Mack filed a petition for divorce last March, charging his wife merely with wilful and obstinate desertion for the statutory period of two years. Upon this ground the divorce was granted, no defense being made to the proceedings by Mrs. Mack. In his disposition taken before Special Master Hugh K. Gaston in the presence of Attorney General Robert H. McCarter, his counsel, Mr. Mack told the story of his married life, omitting all mention of the allegations which he made in his former bill.

BABY CAMP CLOSES.

King's Daughters' Institution Relieved an Increased Number.

The King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain closed on Wednesday after one of the most successful seasons in its history. A greater number of children and their mothers were taken care of this summer and there was only one death at the camp. That was the case of an infant fatally ill when taken to the camp.

As for the financial condition of the union, the receipts and expenditures will be about even, which is considered good in view of the heavy expense. There was on an average about twenty children and mothers at the camp throughout the summer, while at times the number reached thirty.

Wall Replaces Hedge.

Charles W. McCutchen has removed the hedge about his handsome grounds in the borough, and is having an attractive rustic wall erected in its place.

Macadamizing New Street.

New street, between Front and Second streets, is being macadamized, the property-owners and city sharing the expense.

—Neuman Bros. will close out their fine assortment of peaches this afternoon at 50 and 75 cents a basket. This fruit is very desirable for table use.

Hard Blow Aimed At Anti-Organization Men Who Will Lose Control of Police Department

THE POLICE COMMISSION.

DR. OLIN L. JENKINS.
DE WITT C. IVINS.
ANDREW M'CARDELL.
H. W. MARSHALL.

Following closely its blow dealt to the Independent Republicans at the primaries last week, the regular organization is prepared to regain control of the police department, resorting to the powers given the mayor by an act passed by the last Legislature.

Mayor James F. Buckle.

Mayor Buckle will appoint a police commission thereby deposing the Councilmanic police board which is controlled by the Independents.

The membership of the commission has already been agreed upon and the appointees will be sworn in as soon as City Clerk MacMurray returns from a short vacation today.

According to the provisions of the act, the board will be bi-partisan, two Republicans and two Democrats being named. The appointment is final, the Common Council having no right of confirmation or rejection.

The men selected for places on the board are Dr. Olin L. Jenkins, DeWitt Clinton Ivins, H. W. Marshall and Andrew McCardell. Former Mayor Jenkins and Factory Inspector McCardell are Republicans and Messrs. Ivins and Marshall are Democrats.

It was reported today that Dr. Jenkins had reconsidered the offer and had declined the appointment. Mr. Jenkins could not be found to verify the report but Mayor Buckle stated that he had received no word of any declination.

In all probability City Clerk MacMurray will administer the necessary oaths to the appointees tonight and the Common Council will receive official information at a special meeting next week. The commission will assume the duties of office next week.

The law under which the move is made by Mayor Buckle was passed by the Legislature on March 30, 1905, and was signed immediately by the Governor. The measure was introduced by the late Assemblyman Edward C. Coyne, of Elizabeth.

Although all cities of the second class under 100,000 population can take advantage of the law, it was passed for the benefit of Elizabeth. In that city the Democrats have had control of the police power for many years and when Mayor Berry was elected in the Republican landslide last fall, the Republican leaders had the bill framed to wrench the control away from them.

On April 15, following, Mayor Berry appointed two Republicans and two Democrats according to the law's provisions. No sooner had he taken this step than Peter Egenoff, the Democratic leader, and several others certerioraried the proceedings.

The claim was made that the act is unconstitutional and the matter was carried to the Supreme Court. These are the reasons given by Judge Gilhooly, counsel for Mr. Egenoff:

"First—Because the act under which the order and appointment of said board of police commissioners were made is unconstitutional and void.

"Second—Because the supplement to the act under which said order and appointment were made is unconstitutional and void.

"Third—Because the act under which said order and appointment

GERMANS PLAN A BIG SAENGERFEST IN NEWARK

THREE CLUBS WILL REJOIN THE NORTHEASTERN SAENGERBUND.

Newark, Sept. 23.—Preliminary arrangements for the saengerfest to be held by the Northeastern Saengerbund in this city next spring were further discussed at a meeting of the local committee in charge. Conductor Julius Lorenz reported having selected the following compositions for the opening concert: "Hymn of Greeting," words by Karl Kniep, music by Lorenz, especially composed for the saengerfest; "Wutterspraeche," by F. Hegar; "Sunday," by L. Bierseck; the two folk-songs, "Aenncken von Thorau" and "The Sandman," by Eugene d'Albert. The soprano parts will be sung by Mrs. Rider-Kelsey.

Conductors Julius Lorenz, Ernest Kampermann, Paul Engelskirchen, F. Albecke and William Laufenberg, who were appointed a commission to pass upon the composition selected by the various choruses for the State prize singing contest, will hold their firt session in Arion Hall, Manhattan, on October 1.

It was announced that the Germania Quartette Club, which withdrew two years ago from the Northeastern Saengerbund, has again become affiliated with the bund and will take part in the saengerfest. Word to a like effect was received from the United Singers, of Lancaster, Pa., and the Elizabeth Maennerchor. The first number of the official organ of the saengerfest will make its appearance, under the name "Signale," October 15. Major Carl Lentz, president of the Northeastern Saengerbund, has been requested by the United Singers, of New York, to call a meeting of the national board for the reconsideration of a resolution adopted by the board bearing on the jury of awards.

COURT OPENING ADJOURNED

On Account of the Illness of Judge Schenck's Wife.

Judge Schenck was unable to open the county courts at Somerville yesterday, as scheduled, because of the critical illness of his wife, and the opening was postponed. It is now set for next Tuesday.

There are several cases of unusual interest on the calendar. The principal one is the Flomerfelt manslaughter case, which will be tried some time next month. Flomerfelt assaulted his brother-in-law, Frank Cramer, at North Branch, in defense, he claims, of his sister, Cramer dying next day as a result of terrible injuries in Muhlenberg Hospital.

Somerville's Game Today.

Because the fans clamored for another game the West End A. C., of Somerville, decided to play today, and have secured the strong Star A. C., of Newark, as the attraction. These teams have been matched twice this season and each has won a game. Humes B. Galbraith, the regular pitcher for the West Ends, has gone to the University of Indianapolis to play football, and "Lou" Wiltse, of Plainfield, he of York, Pa., Trie-State League fame, will twirl for the West Ends.

Club Opening Next Month.

There will be nothing doing at the Park Club before the latter part of October, when it is proposed to have an informal opening for the season. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, as chairman of the entertainment committee, is planning an attractive season to be announced later. The Board of Governors will meet soon to consider business relatives to the coming year.

Nineteen Sutures.

Warren Peacher, an employe at the Pond Machine Tool Works, who recently had three fingers of his right hand caught in a planer and badly mangled, has returned to his former home at Junction, Hunterdon county. The fingers were so badly lacerated that nineteen stitches were required to close the cuts.

Temperance Advocate to Speak.

Mrs. May P. Sparks, of Bridgeport, this State, a well-known temperance worker, will give a Bible reading at the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Sparks took part in the recent county convention of the union at the Congregational church.

Finance Committee Could Not Meet.

Owing to a lack of a quorum the finance committee from the Common Council could not hold a meeting last night to pass on the books of the Board of Assessors and officially declare the tax rate for the coming year. The committee will probably meet on Tuesday night.

BIG CLAIM ESTABLISHED

A. T. Slouson Learns Positively That He Owns Rich Tennessee Lands.

A MILLION IN SIGHT

Twelve Thousand Acres, Worth at Least $250,000, and Believed to Have Much Higher Value, in Holdings.

Confirmation of his belief that he was the owner of very valuable lands in Tennessee was brought to A. T. Slauson, of East Ninth street, this week by Lawyer William Newcorn, who went South early in the month as much to look into Mr. Slauson's claims as to attend the Great Council of the Improved O. R. M. Through his Tennessee representatives, Wright & Wright, of Knoxville, Mr. Newcorn established the fact that Mr. Slauson, as the heir of his father, Charles Slauson, is the owner of lands worth at the least $250,000, and are very likely to be rated at $1,000,000, on account of the mineral wealth in them.

Wright & Wright discovered that 12,000 acres of land was in Charles Slauson's name. Mr. Slauson either did not know or was indifferent to the immense value of the property and allowed it to run itself. As a consequence some of it has been sold for taxes and squatters have taken possession of other sections. To straighten out the title it will be necessary to institute a number of suits, in order that tax sales and squatters may be disposed of. These suits will be started as soon as legal formalities can be shaped.

As it stands now the land is easily worth a quarter of a million. The timber on it assures that much. What is really important in estimating its value is the fact that it lies in the heart of the coal and iron region, and lands all about have proved of immense value for their mineral resources. There is hardly any doubt that both coal and iron in paying quantities are to be found on the Slauson holdings.

PAINFUL JUMP.

Twelve-Year-Old Caddy Boy Cut His Leg Open In Doing "Stunt."

Edward Linzer, twelve years old, a Country Club caddy boy, whose home is at 448 West Second street, was injured while skylarking with a party of fellow caddies on their way to the links this morning. Led by one of the larger boys, the caddies were filling the way to the club with incident by doing "stunts." Following the leader, Linzer tried to clear the wire fence at the side of the Unitarian church on Park avenue with a running jump. His leg hit the sharp corner of a post, and a long, deep gash was torn in his ankle. It required six stitches to close.

Linzer was carried to Dr. Endicott's house by his companions. The doctor called in Dr. Lufburrow, who is the Linzer physician. The boy was badly frightened and suffered considerably from shock.

Married Twenty-five Years.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Leek, of East Fifth street, observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding yesterday and last night. A number of friends from Somerville and New York gave them a surprise. A pleasant evening was spent, an informal programme of vocal and instrumental music being a feature, after which refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Leek received a number of silver gifts.

Epworth Treasurer Resigns.

W. N. Lorton resigned as treasurer of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church at a business meeting of the organization last night. Howard Cox was elected in his place. Miss Grace Weston and Miss Annie Stafford were elected delegates to the annual convention of the league, which is to meet at West New Brighton, S. I., October 26.

Rally Day at Watchung.

Rally Day services will be held in Wilson Memorial chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be an address by Rev. George Shaw and special music by Martin A. Korff and George Spier, violinists; Elmer Wheeler, flutist; Edward Spier, organist, and Miss Ackor, soloist.

A Needed Improvement.

The flagging along the north side of Duer street, between Greenbrook and Craig place, is being raised and laid to proper grade. This is a much-needed improvement as in some cases the walk was lower than the street, which allowed the water to run over the walk during heavy rains, instead of in the gutter.

New Mail Box.

Postmaster Bird has had a new mail box located on Somerset street, near Manning avenue.

MR. CONROY'S STATEMENT

Candidate for Borough Mayoralty Declares Himself on Campaign Issues.

FAVORS SEWER SYSTEM

Politics In Management of Borough Affairs; Says Only Fitness Would Account for Appointments With Him.

In an open letter to the committees of the Democratic and Citizens' parties, W. J. Conroy, fusion candidate for mayor of North Plainfield, has made a formal statement of his position on the issues of the campaign against Mayor Smalley. He deprecates factionalism; condemns political methods in conducting borough affairs; declares for progress, but on a safe and conservative basis; takes an unequivocal stand in favor of a sewer system; deplores the entrance of politics into school, health and fire departments; declares in favor of good salaries for school teachers; opposes "spite" ordinances and "spite" rulings in courts.

The letter, which was made public yesterday, is as follows:

"To the Democratic and Citizens' Committees of North Plainfield —

"Gentlemen: Through you I thank the Democratic party of the Borough of North Plainfield for tendering me their nomination for the office of mayor. I also thank the Citizens' party for their hearty endorsement, and for placing my name in nomination on the Citizens' ticket. It is, indeed gratifying to have the support of so large a body of our good citizens in a manner affecting the public interest.

"Inasmuch as the Borough contains many voters with whom I happen not to have the personal acquaintance which I now desire to have, I shall be pleased to make a thorough canvass of the Borough, so as to meet the voters personally and in the most kindly manner, and am sure they will treat me kindly in return.

"I have been a resident of the Borough for fifteen years, during which time I have conducted a business in your midst not unsuccessfully. I have, today, some extensive interests at stake in the Borough, and, of necessity, have only the best welfare of the municipality at heart.

"Like many others I deprecate the factional warfare which now exists and has existed for several years past, to the injury of business and enterprise in the Borough. There can be no genuine prosperity so long as any of its office-holders are avowed enemies to its very existence.

"I am a thorough believer in healthy progress and fair play. These can be had only by the application of strict business methods to public affairs. If elected to the office of mayor, I shall rely entirely on correct business methods for the success of my administration. Political pull and power to deliver votes will count for nothing with me. All appointments shall be made from the standpoint of fitness. Proper qualifications shall be demanded of every appointee, and each shall be held to a strict accountability. I shall demand its equivalent in service or merchandise for every dollar expended, and no employe shall be in danger of losing his job because he had the independence to disagree with me politically. I despise a coward. I love an honest, true man, no matter what his station, and do not believe in favoritism.

"I am a thorough believer in the 'forward march' principle, but prefer the safe ground at all times to the treacherous sands. I believe we should encourage the improvement of all vacant property fronting on streets and avenues already provided with police patrol, water hydrants, lights and crosswalks, as by so doing we can add largely to our income without extra expense to the taxpayers, and so pave the way for one of our most urgent needs, which is a system of sewerage. There are hundreds of families knocking at our doors for admission to our beautiful Borough, but we have no vacant homes for them. We must provide homes for these; moderate-priced, healthy, happy homes; and we must extend all new people a hearty welcome. In order to provide healthy homes, we must face the sewer problem squarely, and take it up with a purpose of installing, as soon as may be, a system of sewers, to be of course upon the most approved plan, and to provide for its payments in such gradual manner that it will not be a burden upon the real estate taxpayers. This cannot be done in a day or month; it may require a year or more; but the work should be taken up as soon as possible.

"I am in hearty sympathy with the spirit of our schools and the work of our school board, and believe such board to be fully competent to manage the interests of our schools. I hope that the doors of our school board, our health board, and our fire

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

"Sport," John Peters' fox terrier, heard a dog fight below the window of the Peters apartment over the barber shop a few days ago. Sport usually watches such interesting sights from the window sill, and he sprang up to have a look. All summer a screen has been at the window and Sport used it to break the impetus of his leaps to the sill. This day the screen was out and Sport shot through the window. He landed on the sidewalk in a heap. The passersby who saw him tumble expected to find him all mashed up, but Sport got up, shook himself, and plunged into the fight. Nobody understands how he escaped breaking a few bones.

Assessor John Peters is preparing a duplicate of the tax for Collector George W. Day. The assessor is pleased over the fact that the rate is twenty-eight points lower than it was last year, as the rest of the Dunellen taxpayers are. Mr. Peters, remembering his Democracy, says credit for the reduction belongs to Charles C. Black's campaign for Governor on an equal taxation platform. It was the increase in railroad taxation that was largely responsible for the decrease.

The football team is practicing nightly at heavy work. The eleven is growing tougher every day and the supporters of the combination look for great things. There is talk of arranging a schedule of Sunday games with teams out of town. Some of the members believe a better and a more active season can be arranged that way than with Saturday games entirely.

Walter Craig has purchased a new pacer, thirteen hands high. She is a mare of unusually good formation and makes a great showing in harness. She was bought in Northern New Jersey, from where she was driven. As a result of the journey she is a little stiff, and Mr. Craig has put her to pasture to limber up. Her speed mark is unknown.

Traffic was delayed several hours yesterday on the Lehigh Valley tracks owing to the trucks on a westbound freight breaking and throwing the car off the track. With the use of the derrick the tracks were cleared and traffic was resumed. The car broke down at 4:30 a. m. The wrecker cleared up the mess by 9:30.

The mission in Father Dunphy's church at South Plainfield will end tomorrow. The attendance has been large, and Father Dunphy is gratified over the interest aroused among his Piscataway parishioners over spiritual things.

A. S. Giles, formerly of the borough, now a resident of Plainfield, has become an enthusiastic automobilist. He went through the borough yesterday in his car, cloaked and goggled in approved style.

Among the borough and village students at the Plainfield High School are Paul Brakeley, Henry and Lewis De Brigard, Ethan Rogers and Florence Nelson.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's church will meet in regular business session tomorrow afternoon.

The school board held its regular meeting yesterday. Only routine business was transacted.

Mrs. Catherine Maier visited her daughter, Mrs. Ferdinand Hoch, of Somerville, yesterday.

Fred Kirchner and Joel Giddes, Jr., spent yesterday visiting friends in Cranford.

Fred Fedderman is to become a student at the Drake Business College.

Mrs. Bernard Siriski is spending a few days with friends in Newark.

J. Y. Wilson is detained at home by illness.

Willie Vail is suffering from ivy poisoning.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Duncan Munroe died at his home on Bartle avenue, yesterday afternoon, after an illness of several months with tuberculosis. His death, while looked for, came as a shock to his many friends who had hoped that he would be able to ward off the ravages of the disease for a time at least. On Thursday night his friends held a dance for his benefit, realizing one hundred dollars from the sale of tickets. Yesterday morning he began to sink rapidly and the end came at 4:30. Duncan was well liked, his quiet and retiring manner having won him many friends during his residence here. He is survived by a widow and two children, and a sister, Miss Kate Munroe, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard and family, who have been spending the summer at Old Forge, in the Adirondack Mountains, are expected to return to their home, the Gables, the coming week.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be as usual: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by pastor, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15; evening sermon, 7:45.

Gray Brothers, the local breeders of fancy poultry, have made a number of entries in the Bantam class at the Trenton State Fair, which opens next week at Trenton.

William Jamison has purchased the grocery business of the late Charles E. Wade. Mr. Jamison takes possession Monday.

Mrs. Otto Peterson, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Clark, has returned to her home in Newark.

The local cranks are enjoying the game at Recreation Park this afternoon between Plainfield and Westfield.

Miss Lizzie Reick, of Plainfield, is spending a week with her sister, Miss Nettie Reick, of Westfield avenue.

Rev. Mr. Richard will lead the Saturday night prayer meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Frederick Stephenson, of Lincoln, was the guest yesterday of friends in town.

George Virtue, of Newark, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned home.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Public worship at the Baptist church tomorrow will be at 10:30 and 7:45. Preaching by the pastor. At the evening service he will speak on the Roman Catholic doctrine of "Confession of Sin to the Priest," showing its origin, impiety and absurdity.

THE FEDERAL EYE IS ON INSURANCE

DISCLOSURES OF LAX METHODS MAY RESULT IN GOVERMENT CONTROL.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Federal control of insurance business may be one of the results of the disclosures of lax methods in the management of the big life insurance companies of New York. The belief grows here that President Roosevelt will not ignore the situation which has developed in the cases of the Equitable and the New York Life Companies, and that his coming message to Congress will discuss insurance and insurance methods as they relate to the national welfrae.

It is probable that Congress will be asked to pass such legislation as will enable the executive department of the government to take jurisdiction over interstate insurance business, especially life insurance.

Senator Dryden, of New Jersey, president of the Prudential Life, favors Federal legislation on life insurance and has framed a bill embodying his views.

Secretary Metcalf, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, is in favor of Federal supervision. He thinks confidence in insurance would be fostered if the Federal government was given express powers of investigation and supervision, and is impressed with the argument that insurance constitutes a kind of interstate commerce.

In his annual report of 1904, Commissioner Garfield, of the Bureau of Corporations, said:

"A long line of decisions of the Supreme Court establisned the legal proposition that insurance was not interstate commerce. If this legal proposition is irrevocably settled, the present powers of the Commissioner relative to insurance are purely of a statistical, voluntary, non-compulsory nature. He may collect such information as may be voluntarily furnished to him, but he cannot compel the production of such information. The rapid development of insurance business, its extent, the enormous amount of money and the diversity of interests involved, and the present business methods, suggest that under existing conditions insurance is commerce and may be subjected to Federal regulations through affirmative action by Congress."

Since this report was made, agents of the Bureau who conducted the preliminary insurance inquiries have been detailed in New York.

"Affirmative action" by Congress may appeal favorably to those interested in the rehabilitation of public confidence in life insurance, as well as to policyholders.

In addition to the subjects inherited by the coming Congress from its predecessor, insurance bids fair to be a topic of ranking importance.

NO—10 Limitations, Revelations, XXI, "There Was No More Sea."—By The Rev. A. E. Finn, Pastor Of The Park Avenue Baptist Church.

"There was no more sea."—Rev. 21:1.

Figurative expressions abound in Revelation, and many of them are either difficult for us to understand or altogether beyond our comprehension. Almost all the figures taken from the sea refer either to its power or its danger.

It is impossible for us to think that John used this word sea in any other than a figurative sense, for we cannot imagine when the earth is renewed, there shall be no more that sea which is an instrument of its greatness and its power.

What, therefore, was in the mind of John when he uttered the words of our text? John was a prisoner on the Isle of Patmos for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. The sea formed his prison bars, and separated him from those he loved and from the work in which he longed to be engaged; and in his meditation on the glory of the life to come, he rejoiced in the fact that there would be no sea to separate him from those he loved.

We come, therefore, to the consideration of the theme, the removal of all limitations in the coming dispensation.

I.—Physical Limitations.

Man is bound by physical limitations which very materially lessen the scope of his activities in this present life. What is life, after all, but a desperate struggle to overcome physical limitation? There are as many interests in this world as there are men. Every man is following after something. See what men will do singly or banded together to build subways, to construct large buildings, to launch large enterprises; but notwithstanding all this, physical limitations call a halt. Age, pain, care, disease and sorrow mark themselves upon the countenance with indelible lines. Sight grows dim, imagination becomes less and less vivid, —and all this, just as man is learning how to live. To be in a condition which you would not have voluntarily chosen, to be held down by a power which you cannot control, are not these the very things in an experience which makes it a trial? Take bodily illness, for example, and when you get at the root of the difficulty, you find it in the union of these two things, you are where you do not want to be, and you are held there whether you like it or not, by the irresistible force of your own weakness. No sentinel keeps guard at your chamber door to prevent your exit, yet you are a prisoner just as truly as though you were in the "Tombs." There is nothing in your position to attract you to it. All the engagements which you have made must go unkept, the business transactions you expected to complete must be let alone, and all this because of physical limitations.

Physical limitations involve painful separations. Few home circles are unbroken; and if the home circle is not broken, the vail of mortality hangs over every face, bespeaking the fact that some day there must be separation as a result of physical limitation. Socrates, when nearing the end of his physical limitations, said: "Where shall I flee to escape the irrevocable doom passed on all mankind?" In Genesis 3:19 we read: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return." Separation as a result of physical limitation is one of the unalterable decrees of Heaven, and the chain that binds us to that decree is as strong as destiny and as immutable as the eternal laws of God.

Mental Limitations.

Who is there who cannot point to a time in his life when he thought he knew considerably more than he knows at the present time? But when one passes from that sophomore condition into the realms of art, science, philosophy and theology, he becomes utterly amazed at how much there is to know and how little he can possibly know. Men are specialists in this day for no other reason than the limitations of the mind: man can know very much about one thing, but very little about many things.

How much we feel the limitations of the mind in theological research. How many problems there are in the old book which we long to have solved. We would, if we could, reconcile the doctrine of decrees with the doctrine of prayer. We would harmonize man's burden with God's sovereignty. We would know the cause of sin. These are the subjects which have furnished material for mental gymnastics ever since the world began, and will doubtless continue to do so until there is "no more sea." The mere mention of these subjects leads us into the realm of mystery which enshrouds many of the great problems in theology. The two subjects alone, God's sovereignty and man's freedom, are the ultimate bounds of human knowledge on all moral questions. We cannot harmonize them, but with implicit faith in God's word, we are willing to rest these subjects in the hands of an all-wise Father, believing that were it not for the limitations of the mind, there fullest harmony would be revealed. Man's mind is limited, and very much of profound research results in an intelligent "I don't know." With respect to many of the great problems in life, we will have to be content to remain in ignorance until the limitations of the mind are removed and finiteness merges into infinity. "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out."

Moral Limitations.

Man is under the law of his own nature. If man's nature is depraved, he is under the law of a depraved nature, hence he is under the law of sin. But there is a higher law, the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, to which every one of us would attain were it not for moral limitations. Between carnal man and God there is a lack of moral adjustment. Peter could not walk on the sea because he was out of the sphere suited to mere doubting humanity. No man, be he regenerate or unregenerate, has ever read the seventh chapter of Romans without feeling that there is a perfect description of the awful conflict that has been going on within him. All the fierce phases of the conflict are here delineated by the great Apostle. The natural antagonism between the higher and lower elements in man, between the flesh and the reason, between depraved nature and conscience, are here drawn out by the great apostle in dark but indelible lines such as he only could have used who had passed through all the fierce horrors of the conflict. He had drunk to the dregs the bitter cup, and doubtless felt that the ideal was heaven high above his own moral reach, and that all would end in an ignominious defeat. Thus the great apostle was relating the universal experience of mankind.

Much of the unrest of heart and soul is due to moral limitation. "We would do good, but evil is present with us." The pain we endure is due, not so much to the path of sin in which we walk, as it is to the chains which bind us to that path, chains which we cannot break without the atoning work of Jesus Christ.

The Advantage of Limitations.

We have mentioned some of the limitations. Wherein is the advantage? Human life is beset at every step with trials, vexations and hindrances. These things produce a struggle that serves the educational purposes of developing its resources and proving its strength.

Who are the men who are the pride of the nations? A little reflection will help us to answer that they are the men who resolved to be great in spite of their limitations. Men who, with plodding industry and untiring effort, scaled many a mountain of difficulty; men who, with vigorous courage, stormed many a citadel of error; men who, by slow degrees and steady personal acquisition, became possessors of those gigantic powers which they nobly wielded for the world's good. They were the architects of their own intellectual greatness. With unceasing care and consummate skill they drew the plans by which they might fight a hard battle against the limitations with which they were surrounded. Patient labor was required in this struggle; it was the only royal road to their acquisition. Their toil, it is true, was prodigous, their improvement of time assiduous and their wills dauntless and brave. Had Michael Angelo cowered beneath the imperfection of his early attempts with the chisel and pencil, his name would never have been known as the architect of St. Peter's, and the Vatican might never have become Art's sacred place of pilgrimage. Had Mozart allowed his noble impulses and aspirations to be chilled and daunted by the feebleness and imperfections of his early compositions, he would never have poured forth his soul in those melodious strains which are the admiration of the world. If difficulty, misfortune or persecution had had power to subdue the dauntless will and unconquerable resolve of Milton, the world would never have been enriched with his "Paradise Lost."

We begin the struggle without any guarantee of the greatness which we may attain. None of us can tell what part in the drama of the world's future each may be called on to play. Shakespeare, when he fled from his native town and engaged in menial work in theatres, little thought that he would be able to hold for centuries the literary championship of the world. Dante, as he wandered, a grief-stricken soul, had no means of foreseeing that halo that would later surround his name.

Bunyan, the imprisoned tinker, could not have had the remotest idea of the high tribute which a future Macauley would pay to him as the "world's immortal dreamer." None of these men foresaw, even in prophetic foreshadowing, the renown which would attend their name, nor the advantage which the world would reap from their labors.

The world is forced to admire the men who have struggled hard against the limitations of life. The advantage which they have reaped from the struggle has been enjoyed by the world, for they have ever been the pioneers of progress and the world's greatest benefactors.

Limitations Removed.

This is a beautiful world in which we are living, full of joy and happiness and peace. I would not have you think otherwise. But when man reaches the end of his physical, mental and moral limitations, what an abyss of wretchedness he would be plunged into if there were no corresponding heights of bliss! What abject slavery one would suffer if there were no spiritual freedom! How dark the valley of the shadow of death would seem if there was no light beyond! Things concerning us shall have an end, these limitations shall have an end, the time is coming when there shall be "no more sea." Not forever shall we be bound with this body of ours with its liability to disease and its proneness to fatigue. "For God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away."

Not forever shall you and I by mental limitations be enshrouded with the mysteries which envelope many of life's problems, for all these things are directed from a common center, the Master holds the keys, and in the place where there shall be "no more sea" we shall know as we are known.

Not always shall moral limitations keep us from reaching our high ideal, for in the New Jerusalem we shall worship God with the fullest exercise of all our higher faculties. Our souls shall break forth into new light amid the freedom which we shall then enjoy.

The hope of humanity is in Jesus Christ. He recognized these limitations in man. How willingly would his disciples have watched with Him in the Garden of Gethsemane had it not been for physical limitations. Jesus recognized this in the words, "The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak." He acknowledged his own mental limitations in the words, "But of that day and that hour no man knoweth, not even the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father."

And moral limitations are virtually acknowledged in the words, "Ye would not come unto me that ye might have life."

We have not, therefore, an High Priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tried as we are. This High Priest has gone to prepare abiding places for us in the place where there shall be "no more sea," and when He shall appear, all limitations shall be removed, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is.

NO 10—A Changed Attitude In Methods Of Education—By H. C. Krebs, Superintendent Of Schools In North Plainfield.

Some years ago there arose a movement in educational circles known as "Child Study." The object of this work was to give a most careful and minute investigation to the physical, mental, moral, and spiritual make-up of the childr; of his tastes, sympathies, fears, hopes, wishes, dreams; of the effects of heredity and environment on his career; of the stages of his development, and of the countless influences that play upon his character.

Although some of these investigations were of doubtful utility, some even being ridiculous in their scope and nature, the child study movement was productive of one result that has been of untold benefit to the boys and girls of the present generation—it has led to their specific treatment as individuals as distinct from their treatment as a mass; and the question now constantly held before teachers is, "What is the best thing for this individual child?"

Years ago there was, in nearly all schools, a prescribed curriculum. All pupils were required to adhere thereto. The tastes of the pupils were not considered. Indeed it was thought to be a good thing to find out what pupils disliked and then compel them to grind on that diet, however nauseous. Their probable future occupation was not always given any forethought. Their strength and health did not receive due weight.

Under the controlling idea of today, as far as it is possible for a school to furnish it, the essentials of all education are required; but outside of this sphere the question of the best interests of the individual child are given most careful investigation. Is it best for this pupil to study Latin? If so, he is granted that privilege. Does he wish to enter upon a scientific course at college? His studies are shaped toward that end. Is he fond of history? Four years of thorough work are at his command. This is the main reason why the increase of pupils in our high schools has been so rapid during the past fifteen years.

In many schools of the past, and, it is to be said with regret, in some schools of today, the promotion of a pupil was based solely on the results of a final examination. Now we all know that some good pupils "go to pieces" at an examination, especially if much depends upon its results, as in case of finals. At examination time, moreover, the pupil may not be in good health. Frequently it happened, therefore, that certain pupils who were among the leaders of their class during the entire year failed to secure the passing average at the final test, and were thus compelled to spend another year over the same work which they had previously done with success; while it also happened that some of the poor pupils, aroused to unusual activity by the excitement of the test, gained the necessary mark and were undeservingly promoted. In both instances an injustice was wrought upon the pupils that sometimes had a sad effect on their entire future.

In most schools of today each child is considered in reference to its promotion from the standpoint of its individual welfare. All things considered, is it best for this child to be promoted? If so, promote. And the teacher who has had the child under immediate observation for many months is the best person to decide whether or not a child should be promoted. A final examination may be given, and should have some weight; but that it should be the sole determinant of a pupil's classification is certainly opposed to experience and common sense.

Most of us teachers recall those delightful days when punishment was perfectly simple. The rod was the remedy for all persons and for all offences. No use worrying about how best to reach that boy or how to improve this girl—the rod was always at hand, freely applied, and future results show that it was rarely a reformer.

Today each offender is treated separately.

What kind of bring-up has he had? Is he an orphan, or has he parents? If he has parents, what is their attitude toward the boy and toward morality in general? Is the boy obedient at home? Was the offence wilful or unpremeditated? Did the boy know he was doing wrong, or has he a low moral standard? Was this his first offence or is he an old offender? Was he provoked into committing the act? Is he passionate or phlegmatic? Will he respond to kind words or does he need the stimulus of severity. In general, how shall the boy be treated so that this offence may be the opportunity of teaching him a valuable moral lesson, of sharpening his moral perception, and strengthening his character?

Space does not permit the discussion of other phases to which the test of the individual welfare of the child may be applied. Enough has been said to indicate the great complexity of the problem with which the schools of today are concerned, the need of forbearance on the part of the public if not all their ideals are obviously realized, and the necessity of a close co-operation between the home and the school if the best interests of the children are to be served.

DIAMOND DUST.

On to Westfield today to clean up the Pirates.

"Willie" Deegan will deliver the goods this afternoon and score another victory for the Daabsters.

The Daabsters are much pleased with the treatment received here this season and they are anxious to stay here.

Cotter undoubtedly is the best catcher Westfield ever had and he works harder for victory than any man on the team.

The Daabsters were the undoing of "Red" Waller's reputation this season, although the auburn-haired twirler has performed well.

One week from today Plainfield will play its last game with the Pirates, and an eventful history in local baseball will have closed.

Charles A. Dixon, the baseball fan, says that his team will defeat the Daabsters if given a fair show. He objects to the use of Deegan against his team, preferring Beck.

The Eastern League race this season is attracting unusual attention from the fans. It is a nip and tuck go for first place between Providence, Jersey City and Baltimore.

On Saturday, September 30, Plainfield and Westfield will meet on Crescent Oval for the final game of the series. An opportunity will then be given to see how well Westfield fans support and follow their team away from home.

It is nearly time for Charlie Denman to review the history of the season and tell how Westfield lost the pennant. Victories came to Westfield so few and far apart this year that the supporters of the team are discouraged.

If the New York Giants defeat the American League champions for the world's championship and the Daabsters defeat McGraw's men in this city in the final game of the season, it will give the locals good reason to feel proud. Don't wake us up.

INTER-STATE FAIR AT TRENTON.

September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29.

The great Inter-State Fair will be held on September 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, on the Fair grounds, near Trenton, N. J., on the New York Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to the Fair grounds, including coupon of admission, at greatly reduced rates, from stations within a wide radius, and special trains over the New York, Belvidere and Amboy Divisions will be run through to the grounds, thus avoiding street-car transfer.

As in previous years, every department will be replete with superior and instructive displays. The blooded stock exhibit will be particularly fine, and the daily programme of races contains the speediest classes obtainable. The management of the Fair has put forth extraordinary efforts to make this year's exhibition even greater than last year's record-breaking display. 9 16 3 s w

Plainfield, N. J., September 23, 1905.

The regular weekly sermon for the shut-in will be found on page 3. It is by Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, whose subject is "Limitations." Even if you are among those who cannot attend church services by reasons of advanced age or other infirmity, it will well repay you to read what Rev. Mr. Finn has to say.

On page 3 will be found a particularly interesting contribution to the "Timely Topics" series. These articles are published weekly. The number in this issue is by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of schools in North Plainfield. His topic is the changed conditions in education brought about by child study. Our thanks are due Mr. Krebs for his instructive article.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Miss Emily G. Marsh will lead the Epworth League meeting in the Grace M. E. church tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold its first fall meeting on Friday afternoon, October 6. Plans for the winter will be discussed.

Eugene A. Edgar, of Fairview avenue, will conduct the praise service at Vincent chapel, tomorrow night, under the auspices of the Epworth League, of the First M. E. church.

Sunday school rally day exercises will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the First M. E. church. E. A. Edgar will lead the Epworth League meeting at 7 o'clock. His topic will be "Prayer and Power."

The rally spirit will mark the services and meetings at Grace M. E. church tomorrow. In the morning the pastor, Rev. C. W. Parsons, will preach a special rally sermon; the Sunday-school will hold a rally service in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at which H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools, will speak; the Epworth League will hold a rally service at 6:45 o'clock, and there will be a special rally praise service at 7:45 o'clock.

Funeral of Edward B. Clark.

The funeral services of Edward B. Clark were held at 11 o'clock this morning from the late home in Crescent avenue, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Clark was a member, officiating. During the services Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto of the First Baptist church choir, sang "For All Thy Saints." There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors and New York business men, many of whom were associates of Mr. Clark in business. The remains were taken on the 1:39 train this afternoon to Philadelphia, where the interment will be in the family plot in Norwood cemetery.

Death of Harvey P. Weeks.

Harvey Purcell Weeks, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Weeks, of 842 Berkeley avenue, died on Thursday after a short illness. The funeral services will be held from the home of the arents tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and Rev. Mr. Reed, of this city, will officiate. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Julia Was Drunk.

Julia Saueracker, whose face is familiar in the courts on both sides of the brook, was arrested for drunkenness by Patrolmen Myers and Kelly on East Second street last night. Judge Runyon, in the city court this morning, fined her $10 or twenty days in jail.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Yesterday's New York papers announce that plans are on foot to connect New York with New Jersey by a number of tunnels under the Hudson river, and that this will mean fifteen minutes to Newark from New York. Let us think what this will mean—Newark has already a population several thousands greater than that of the Bronx—the beautiful typography and availability of the country surrounding Newark for fifteen miles, makes this section an ideal one for homes. The many towns and cities in the vicinity of Newark to wit, the Oranges, Montclair, Summit, Plainfield and Morristown, have already formed within their limits, well ordered governments, with water, light and sewer systems, and make most inviting homes for the crowded citizens of New York. A great future awaits the country within a radius of twenty-five miles of New York in the next few years.

POLITECON.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The senior class committee on class pins at the Plainfield High School will meet Monday.

The Plainfield High School football eleven will be greatly strengthened by Fred Martin, who has joined the team.

Manager Gavett, of the Plainfield High School eleven, has arranged the dates for the annual games with Leal's School for Saturday, October 7, and Saturday, November 18.

Dates for games between Rutgers Prep. School, Pingry and North Plainfield High School with the Plainfield High School are now being arranged for by Manager Gavett.

The Sagamore Banjo and Mandoline Club met Thursday at the home of S. B. Howe, Jr., of Madison avenue. After a satisfactory rehearsal, refreshments were served. Chester Briggs is the manager of the club.

Miss Eva Kelly, 1908, was appointed exchange editor of the Plainfield High School Oracle at a meeting of the board Wednesday. She succeeds Miss Charlotte Taylor, 1907, who will not return to school this year.

President Stuart Freeman, of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association has appointed the following as members of a committee to arrange for the fall tennis tournament: William Douglass, chairman; Hudson Burr and George Rittenhouse.

It is quite likely that the tennis tournament the annual affair, at the Plainfield High School, will be started early next week. The committee, W. Douglass, chairman; Rittenhouse and Burr, will meet Monday or Tuesday to complete the arrangements.

Miss Ellen E. Niles, dean of the Plainfield High School teaching corps, returned home Wednesday from a summer's vacation spent in travel and study abroad. Miss Niles resumed her duties at the school Thursday morning. She was tendered a warm welcome.

Subscription blanks for the coming year's issue of the Plainfield High School Oracle were passed among the pupils at the morning exercises yesterday. The outlook points to a successful season. The first issue will probably be published on Wednesday, October 4.

At a meeting of the directors of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association Thursday the following committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual outdoor field meet next month: Joseph Gavett, chairman; Leslie Palmer and Benjamin Herman.

At the meeting of the seniors at the Plainfield High School Thursday the following members were appointed as a committee to arrange for class pins: Miss Gertrude Hunter, chairman; Miss Edith Hanaford, Howard Freeman, Abe Rubenstein and Joseph W. Gavett, Jr.

The Whittier school's annual tennis tournament was started Tuesday on the Manning courts, on Dunellen avenue. Play in the several matches was fast and, as a rule, quickly decided. The best and closest match of the day was between Phillips and Davis, the latter winning in two hard fought sets, 6—4, 6—4. Summary of the play: Woodhull defeated Murray, 6—2, 6—1; Fleming beat Hetfield, 6—0, 6—1; Davis beat Phillips, 6—4, 6—4; Manning beat Hibbard, 6—1, 7—5; Rickerts beat Van Alstyne, 6—2, 6—1.

The Plainfield High School football team will lineup against a team of old players, headed by Percy Phillips, this afternoon, on Hope Common. The High School boys will lineup somewhat as follows: Hayman, center; Osgood and Gideon Fountain, guards; Rittenhouse and Todd, tackles; Loizeaux and Martin, ends; Flanders, quarterback; Lynas and Douglass, halfbacks; S. Freeman, fullback. The subsitutes: H. Freeman, Guy Fountain, Doane and Jones, will be given a chance during the second half.

The services of Miss Clara L. Emons, special teacher in the employ of a firm of publishers of the writing books used in the Plainfield schools, has been lent to the city for several days by that firm. Superintendent Maxson arranges for her to go into a class room and give a model lesson to the children. Other teachers of similar grades come into the room and observe the lesson and ask Miss Emons questions regarding the work and get points for application in their own work. Wednesday afternoon she met all the grade teachers in the Plainfield High School and gave them an interesting and helpful talk on methods and principles in teaching writing.

department, shall forever be closed against the politicians. I am in favor of the payment of good salaries to the school teachers, and then demanding from them the best services they can render.

"I am opposed to the placing of ordinances upon our books that can be made to discriminate against, or work hardship to anyone. I believe thoroughly in President Roosevelt's motto: 'A square deal to every man.'

"As to our courts, I believe that judgment should be tempered with mercy and not with revenge or spite.

"It seems needless to add that, with the general proposition of the Citizens' party, which seems to demand less attention to public affairs by political bosses, and more attention to them by business men; or, to quote the language of their advertised call, 'that personal and party interests should be subordinated to the public welfare,' meets with my hearty approval. Healthy progress along conservative lines will surely be advocated by me if the voters favor me with an election to the highly responsible office for which I have been nominated.

"Yours sincerely,
"WILLIAM J. CONROY.

COURT FAVORS CHURCH MUSIC.

Rules that Congregation May Have Organ and Money, Too.

The prevalent notion in parts of Scotland that the use of instrumental music in places of worship is a practise born of the devil has little weight with the State Court of Errors and Appeals, which rendered a decision yesterday permitting the trustees of the Presbytery of Jersey City to dispose of $23,000, regardless of the provisions in the will of George C. Mackenzie.

Mr. Mackenzie bequeathed some property to the Scotch Presbyterian church of Jersey City, with the stipulation that it should never be used for any church in which there was instrumental music. The presbytery subsequently sold the property to the trustees of the Lutheran church of the Holy Trinity, which, on learning of the conditions in the will, refused to carry out the purchase agreement, on the ground that the presbytery could not give a clear title. The presbytery sued, and got a judgment ordering performance.

The heir then got an order restraining the presbytery from distributing the proceeds of the sale among churches using instrumental music. This order is set aside by the decision of theCourt of Errors.

AMUSEMENTS.

Margaret Anglin, who will always be remembered in New York for her marvelous work in "Mrs. Dane's Defence" at the Empire, is the star of the season at the Princess theatre. The arrangement made between Miss Anglin and the Shuberts is rather a novel one, inasmuch as the actress is not heading a stock company, but, nevertheless, is to remain most of the year at one house. During this time a number of plays will be presented, in several of which Miss Anglin will appear with Henry Miller, who is to direct the whole undertaking. The first piece presented is a drama entitled "Zira," which is now offered. In this work Miss Anglin has the assistance of a truly remarkable company, including Frank Worthing, Jameson Lee Finney, and other notable people. At the conclusion of the season the organization is to go on tour.

McIntyre & Heath in "The Ham Tree," at New York Theatre. A Hit of the Season.

At the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight "Peck's Bad boy" will put in his annual appearance dressed up in brand new scenery and costumes. He will also have an entirely new play, new songs, new dances, and new and novel specialties. Duets, trios and quartettes from the popular operas will be well sung and properly and handsomely dressed. It is not the same old play we have seen for years, but is brand new from start to finish.

A musical comedy feast is in store Monday night at the New Plainfield theatre when "The Rays" howling success, "A Hot Old Time," will pay its last visit before retiring for good. This good old farce is replete with more funny situations than any other farce of its kind, and with new specialties injected into it, should make it a very desirable evening's entertainment. The company is said to be adequate in every respect and, judging from the advance sale, a crowded house will receive them.

"Way Down East," Lottie Blair Parker's idyllic play at New Hampshire farm life comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Friday, September 29. The play is one that appeals not to a limited class, but to everybody with a spark of sympathy, a liking for an interesting story and a relish for good wholesome fun. There are many reasons for its popularity. Its pathetic theme, its genial humor, its charming pictures of country life, its quaint characters and striking realism. But its more potent element undoubtedly is the strong human interest that permeates every scene. To all classes and creeds must yield their sympathy. Mrs. Parker's work, so admirably produced under the skilful direction of Joseph Grismer, will be interpreted by a cast that has been especially selected for its individual capability.

Klaw & Erlanger's big production of the new imaginative extravaganza, "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," opened the season at the Broadway theatre last Monday evening, after a six weeks' run at the Colonial theatre in Boston. The new piece is by Paul West, one of the editors of the Sunday World, and W. W. Denslow, whose quaint drawings have attracted so much attention. Mr. Denslow also designed both the scenery and costumes, which are very novel. John W. Bratton is the composer of the music. The story is quite original and very humorous. The foundation of the comic structure is a famine in pumpkins, which pervades all the earth. No pumpkins grow anywhere except in a remote corner of Vermont, where, on Pringle's farm, Joe Miller has raised some wonders from magic seeds given him by a fairy queen. Ike Cannem, who runs a cannery in Bermuda, has heard of these pumpkins and comes to buy them. The adventures of Pearl and Joe and their friends carry them through many gorgeous changes of scene from Vermont, under the sea to Bermuda and introduce them to many strange characters. The story is splendidly told by a great cast, headed by Edwin Stevens, Harry MacDonald, Sager Midgeley, George Richards, Taylor Granville, Thomas Whiffen, Joseph Kane, Allan Ramsay, Gertie Carlisle, Ida Hawley, Ethel Johnson, Kathryn Hutchinson, Carroll McComas, John Mayon and Oscar Ragland. The chorus is remarkable for number and beauty.

"The Prince Chap" at the Madison Square theatre, New York, is much liked by women and children, and the latter compose the greater part of the matinee audiences. The story tells of a child's life beginning at the age of five and the play ends when she is eighteen. Two children and an actress of experience portray the characters, one in each of the three acts presented. This is the first time in the history of the stage that the evolution of a life has been shown. The play has settled down for a long run. Cyril Scott has found in the part of William Peyton a character which brings out his best points. While he has a number of comedy scenes in which he is perfectly at home, he has shown an aptitude for serious work that places him in a new light and one which calls for admiration from those who have always admired him as a light comedian. Mr. Scott can reach the hearts of his audiences as readily as he can make them smile by light touches of comedy. He has shown this in "The Prince Chap."

Charles Frohman's latest importation is a bevy of typical Parisian girls whose dances and songs in French will be one of the features of "The Catch of the Season," in which he presents Edna May at Daly's, New York. The dancers were engaged in Paris by Mr. Frohman's agent there. Two are from the Folies Bergere, one from the Olympia, four were taken from the Ambassadeurs and Jardin de Paris, while the eighth had just returned to Paris from Moscow, where she had been doing the principal dancing in spectacular productions. The young ladies have attracted a great deal of attention in New York. None of them speak English and their efforts to learn furnish plenty of comedy at rehearsals.

The constant changes of fancy in theatrical taste does not seem to affect the growth of the feverish kind of melodrama that finds such cordial favor with the great masses of amusements seekers. In fact there is always manifested a very decided preference for this form of entertainment. The knowledge gained through ripe observation and experience has induced the veteran manager of abundant sensational successes to put forth in enormous elaboration, a play entitled "Tracked Around the World," which comes to regale our local lovers of real strenuous drama at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday, September 30. For thrilling, intent and marvel of scenic display, this offering is said to exceed in speed-limit and general magnificence anything of the kind heretofore attempted.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's season reopened the Belasco theatre, New York, on Wednesday night. For the brief period of her stay, she will be seen in a reportoire of her plays, beginning with last season's great success, "Adrea," which her beautifully artistic acting and her magnetic personality carried for a run of five months. Never before in the history of the stage had a tragic play run for more than a few weeks. Ten nights and two matinees only will be devoted to this revival of "Adrea," after which David Belasco's version of "Zaza" will be offered for one week, beginning October 2. Then will come two weeks of David Belasco's play, "Du Barry," beginning October 9, and leading up to Mrs. Carter's last two weeks, for which the arrangement of performances will not be given until later.

Mrs. Mary A. Huff, of this city, has been visiting relatives in Centreville.

Mrs. Helena Updyke, of this city, is visiting Miss Jennie Updyke, of Blawenburg.

1,526 JERSEY TEACHERS IN NAT. ASSOCIATION

GAIN OF 980 AS RESULT OF MEETING AT ASBURY PARK.

Irwin Shepard, of Winona, Miss., secretary of the National Educational Association, has reported to John Enright, superintendent of schools of Monmouth county and State director of the association for this State, that New Jersey, as the result of the meeting in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove July 3-7, has secured an advance membership in the association of 980. This already makes the total Jersey membership for this year 1,526, which is exceeded by only three other states—New York, Ohio and Illinois.

Superintendent Enright has forwarded the report to Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, at the State House, Trenton. It shows that the total enrollment in the association is 20,941, and states that there will be added approximately 3,000 more members who were not registered at Asbury Park. Some of these will come from this State so that the final Jersey record will probably be considered better than that given.

Speaking of the New Jersey record, Secretary Shepard says: "This, we think, was a most excellent record, and we feel highly gratified at the success of your work in securing memberships." This has reference to the special efforts made by the State board to secure a large membership during the meeting of the association.

New Jersey has 9,000 teachers and Massachusetts 12,000, but the figures in the report show that though the association met in Boston two years ago, the Bay State has only 122 members, as compared with 1,526 in this State.

First Suit of Trolley Accident.

New Brunswick, Sept. 23.—The first of the suits expected as the result of the head-on trolley collision on the Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad, near here, on August 18, when twenty-seven people were hurt, came up in the District Court yesterday morning before Judge Hicks, the plaintiff being Miss Georgiana McIntyre, eighteen years old, who sued through her next friend, Thomas Oliver. She had her nose badly cut and a wrist badly bruised. The case was settled out of court, but a judgment entered, because the girl is under the age in law. Judgment was given for $100 and costs.

Dutiful to myself.
Earnest in the right things.
Friendly in disposition.
Generous to all need.
Hopeful in spite of everything.
Intelligent, but not pedantic.
Joyful as a bird.
Kind even in thought.
Long-suffering with the stupid.
Merry for the sake of others.
Necessary to a few.
Optimistic, though the skies fall.
Prudent in my pleasures.
Quixotic, rather than hard.
Ready to own up.
Self-respecting to the right limit.
True to my best.
Unselfish, short of martyrdom.
Valiant for the absent.
Willing to believe the best.
Exemplary in conduct.
Young and fresh in heart.
Zealous to make the best of life.
And by this time, if I haven't wings, I ought to have.—Selected.

PRIZE WINNERS.

Our customers are competent judges. We do not permit the flesh of any animal to enter our store that is over three years of age.

The primest cuts of Beef come from the young steer. Juciness and tenderness are combined. There's little bone or waste.

The meat is well "marbled," fat and lean being in layers of right proportion. And it's the same with Lamb and Pork. We also have fine home dressed fowls and roasting chicken, and Long Island Ducks. Sausage now in season.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

JEWELRY MANUFACTURE IMPORTANT INDUSTRY

JERSEY HAS 19 ESTABLISHMENTS WITH AN OUTPUT OF $8,678,987 LAST YEAR

The twenty-eight annual report of the New Jersey bureau of statistics, now in course of preparation, shows the manufacture of jewelry and other wares from gold and silver to be one of the most important industries of the State.

The presentation is for 1904 and embraces 79 establishments. The total capital invested was $6,563,262, compared with $4,520,792 in 1903. The increase shown, amounting to nearly 45 per cent., is really due to the fact that the report for 1904 is different in form and includes several items not contained in the report for 1903. Deducting these the real gain is about 15 per cent.

The cost value of all stock or material used in the manufacture of the jewelry was as follows: 1904, $4,362,966; 1903, $4,248,360. The gain for 1904 is $114,606, or 2.7 per cent.

The selling value of the finished product in 1903 was $8,378,649, and for 1904, $8,678,987, an increase of $300,338, of 3.6 per cent. An increase of 84, or 2.8 per cent. is shown in the number of persons employed. In 1903 the employes numbered 2,927 and in 1904 the number was 3,011. The total wages paid makes this showing: 1903, $1,753,002; 1904, $1,974,331, an increase of $221,329, or 12.6 per cent.

The peculiarity of this industry in this State is that all the factories are located in Newark. The manufacturing of jewelry was first established in Newark in 1830, and the city acquired a high reputation for the production of fine solid ware, which it still maintains. In the manufacture of goods of this class New Jersey occupies a position not far from first among the States of the union if it does not hold first place.

BRYAN BERATES ROCKEFELLER.

Prints in His Paper an Article Declined by a Religious Journal.

W. J. Bryan, before leaving Lincoln, Neb., Thursday for a trip to the Orient, made public an article entitled "The Value of tthe Soul," written by him and refused publication in a religious journal because of a paragraph referring to Rockefeller. Not being willing to omit the paragraph or to write for a publication that gave Mr. Rockefeller's business methods even a negative endorsement, Mr. Bryan asked for a return of the article. The paragraph referred to is as follows:

"Mr. Rockefeller is at present probably the most conspicuous example furnished by this generation of the man who habitually stifles his conscience until it becomes too 'seered' to be of service to him. He is quite punctilious in attending upon the ordinary means of grace, and yet his life record shows extraordinary moral obliquity. He has so long accustomed himself to putting money making above ethical consideration that he can bankrupt a competitor through the rebate system, bribe a college with a donation or evade a court summons with equal complacency.

"But Mr. Rockefeller is not alone in the use of indefensible business methods. He enjoys an odious preeminence, but he has many would be rivals. Whenever a business man is caught in wrongdoing he is quick to reply, 'They all do it.' While this indictment is too skeeping to be just, it must be admitted that there is entirely too much truth in the charge."

The name of the journal that refused to publish the article is not divulged.

THEY SUSPECT FOUL PLAY.

Parents of Sailor Found Dead Believe He Was Killed.

Information received at Elizabeth by the family of Charles Grossman, the Elizabeth sailor of the armored cruiser Colorado, whose body was found in Boston Harbor a few days ago, indicate that the young man met his death from foul play. There are several gashes across his throat.

Grossman's sisters and mother received a letter from him dated September 5. The family did not know of his death until they read it in the newspapers. Then they recalled that when their brother was home a little over a month ago on a furlough he said that he had an enemy aboard his ship whom he greatly feared. Young Grossman did not divulge the name of the enemy. A shipmate of his, Thomas Hunt, was with him when he was in Elizabeth.

Grossman was a member of the Palmer Athletic Club, of Elizabeth, before he enlisted in the navy and was entertained by that organization when on his furlough. He was buried with naval honors in Boston on Tuesday. The body was not in a fit state to be brought home.

Editor's Daughter Weds.

Edgar Moses and Miss Bessie Carlton Lowden, daughter of Joseph D. Lowden, the editor of the Elizabeth Daily Journal, were married Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride, Westfield avenue, Roselle Park. The officiating clergyman was Rev. James M. Stifles, of Roselle. The wedding was a quiet one, there being present only the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

VANDERBILT DOGS FOR INTER-STATE FAIR

HORSE SHOW ENTRIES BY MRS. BOURKE COCHRAN, H. GOULD AND A. J. CASSATT

Everything is hustle and bustle these days at the interstate fair grounds, Trenton, the advance guard of exhibitors, owners and race horses, lessees of privileges and fakirs have arrived and are busy getting things in shape for the opening of the eighteenth annual exhibition of the fair association Monday.

Secretary Margerum and his staff have been working night and day arranging the details of the "Big Show," and at the present time everything is reported in smooth running order, and to judge from the list of entries in the various departments this year's fair will eclipse previous efforts of the fair management.

Yesterday a force of men started the work of decorating the buildings. Building No. 3 has been repaired and altered, more than $3,000 having been expended. The interior is finished in white and presents a pretty effect. There are now 81 booths in the building and every foot of space has been taken, which insures a big display. The grounds have been placed in good condition for the opening of the exhibition.

A force of painters and laborers has been busy all the week cleaning and painting the building. The colors of the association, orange and black, predominate. The roadway in front of the "Pike" has been repaired, fresh loam being placed on it. On the side of the "Pike" nearest to the grandstand a cinder roadway has been made, which, when gone over by a steam roller, will be as hard and smooth as asphalt.

The public comfort pavilion is finished and presents a neat appearance, and will undoubtedly be apprecieted by the patrons of the fair.

Entries for the dog and horse shows guarantee the success of these attractive features of the fair. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has entered several of her kennel dogs in the special classes in the dog show.

For the classes in the horse show Mrs. Bourke Cochran, A. J. Cassatt, Howard Gould and others have made entries, and the list includes some of the best saddle horses, jumpers and hunters in the country. The four-in-hand and tandem classes have been filled well.

The grounds will be closed to the public Sunday, and only those holding exhibitors' tickets and employes who have to look after the live stock will be admitted. No holders of liquor privileges will be permitted to do business. Secretary Margerum has informed each holder of a liquor privilege that the privilege money will be forfeited in the event of doing business on Sunday.

The East State street office for the receiving of entries to the various departments was moved to the grounds today.

ACCOMMODATING RAILROAD.

Central Railroad Going to Do Everything Elizabeth Requests.

By an arrangement with the Mayor and City Council of Elizabeth the Central Railroad of New Jersey will put watchmen at all their grade crossings both night and day. The company is also to build at its own expense tunnels at Seventh and Schiller streets and a foot passage over the tracks at South Park street, in that city.

The railroad will likewise undertake to build at the city's suggestion a trunk sewer to run from the boundary of its lands at the foot of Pine street to a distance of about 1,000 feet, to a point outside the new dock in deep water, about 600 feet from shore.

In consideration of these and a few less important concessions the city has agreed to close the streets approaching the Jersey Central freight yards between Division and Schiller streets, and will construct a bridge, whenever it is deemed necessary, forty feet wide, across the tracks of the company.

Belmar Priest Is Dead.

Rev. Thomas B. Nolan, pastor of St. Rose's Roman Catholic church, Belmar, died Thursday morning after an illness of several months. Father Nolan, who was one of the most popular pastors on the Jersey coast, was born at Trenton thirty-nine years ago. He was formerly rector of St. James' church, Jamesburg. He had been ten years a priest in this diocese and was held in high esteem. Father Nolan leaves a mother and four sisters.

Undertakers Meet.

The annual session of the New Jersey Funeral Directors' Association, which opened in Concordia Hall, Trenton, on Wednesday, with an attendance of forty delegates, was continued yesterday. President Charles Lawson, of Salem, presided, and prayer was offered by Rev. Charles H. Elder, pastor of Trinity M. E. church. Mayor Katzenbach made an address of welcome.

Foresters' Court to Meet.

The High Court of New Jersey, Independent Order of Foresters, will hold its sixteenth annual session in Central Hall, Bloomfield, Wednesday. There will be 250 delegates from all parts of the State. The order has a membership of 233,000 and a surplus of over $9,000,000.

were made is unconstitutional in that:

"(a) The title does not express the object of the act.

"(b) The title of the act and the enacting clause of the supplement are at variance and express different objects.

"(c) The act is general and embraces provisions of a private, special or local character.

"(d) It is special and local and regulates the internal affairs of cities.

"(e) It is an unlawful delegation of legislative powers.

"(f) The act requires a political qualification which it is impossible to establish.

"Fourth—Because the supplement to the act under which said order and appointment were made is unconstitutional in that:

"(a) The title of the act does not express the object of the supplement.

"(b) The title of the act and the enacting clause of the supplement are at variance and express different objects.

"(c) The supplement to the act relates only to cities under one hundred thousand inhabitants, and the act relates to all cities.

"(d) The supplement to the act is special and local and regulates the internal affairs of cities.

"(e) It is an unlawful delegation of legislative powers.

"(f) The supplement to the act requires a political qualification which it is impossible to establish.

"(g) The act itself is a general law and the supplement thereto embraces provisions which are of a private, special or local character.

"(h) That the supplement to said act does not extend the provisions of the supplement to all cities of the second class and is therefore special.

"Fifth—Because the supplement under said act is unconstitutional, in that the provisions of the supplement are at variance from the provisions of the original act in the following particulars:

"(a) Under the original act the commisisoners must be selected from each of the two political parties casting the greatest number of votes at the last preceding municipal election, while under the supplement the commisisoners may be appointed from two or more parties and not necessarily those having the greatest number of votes in the preceding municipal election.

"(b) The original act requires a referendum to the voters of the city and its approval by a majority of the votes, while the supplement rests the appointment in the entire discretion of the mayor of the city or other municipality.

"(c) The original act requires a confirmation of the appointment by the council or other municipal body, while the supplement requires no confirmation of the appointment.

"Sixth—Because there has been no confirmation of the appointment of said board of police commissioners in the manner provided by the act of eighteen hundred and eighty-five.

"Seven—Because the provisions of the act of eighteen hundred and eighty-five have not been accepted by the voters of the City of Elizabeth by a majority of the votes cast for or against said act at any charter or general election held in said city.

"Eighth—Because the said order and appointment and the proceedings taken thereunder in divers other respects are irregular, illegal and unjust and oppressive of the prosecutors and other citizens, residents and taxpayers in the City of Elizabeth, and contrary to the laws and constitution of this State."

A decision in the Elizabeth case is expected in November and until that time the matter is in abeyance.

Following is the act as passed by the last Legislature:

"In every city of the second class in that State, in which police commissioners have not been appointed in pursuance of any law of this State, and notwithstanding that the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement may not have been accepted by the voters of such city in the manner provided therein; the mayor may, in his discretion, appoint a board of police commissioners, consisting of four persons resident in such city, not more than two of whom shall be of the same political party; such commissioners, when appointed, shall hold office for the following terms respectively: one from the date of his appointment until the expiration of one year from and after the first day of January following his appointment; one from the date of his appointment until the expiration of two years from and after the first day of January following his appointment; one from the date of his appointment until the expiration of three years from and after the first day of January following his appointment, and one from the date of his appointment until the expiration of four years from and after the first day of January following his appointment; that successors to such commissioners shall be appointed in the manner provided in the act to which this is a further supplement; that commissioners appointed in pursuance of this act shall meet within ten days after their appointment and organise by the election of a president and secretary, and shall thereupon possess all the powers and exercise all the duties conferred or imposed by the act to which this is a further supplement."

It is said that the organization's action is due to the alleged high-handed method of the Councilmanic police board in raiding Goff's place over the head of Chief of Police Kiely. In addition it is said that the administration feels that the present board has not acted for the best interests of the city.

The claim is also made that the Independents have taken drastic and alleged unwarranted measures in coping with the liquor traffic. Passing the saloon quarantine ordinance over the head of the Mayor and raising the license fees to a figure higher than anywhere else in the State, it is said, has given offense.

The present members of the Councilmanic police board are

William S. Tyler, chairman,

William Starr Bullock,

William L. Gloak.

Messrs. Tyler and Bullock, who raided the Goff place over Chief Kiely's head, are anti-organization men.

Rev. Mr. Karr to Speak.

Rev. M. Karr, of Brooklyn, will preach in Danish in the Swedish Evangelistic Pilgrim church at 3 o'clock tomorrow.

FLAGS FOR CRANFORD.

New C. R. R. Ferryboat to Be Launched October 28.

The Cranford Flag Fund Committee, appointed by the Township Committee to raise money by subscription to purchase flags for the new Central Railroad ferryboat "Cranford," met at the township rooms Thursday evening and organized by electing Thomas A. Sperry as chairman and Harvey N. Fiske, secretary and treasurer. The Hon. William F. Hall as chairman pro tem.

The committee reported that it had raised the sum of $197, and it was decided to call for $1 subscriptions to make up the sum of $200 needed to purchase four national emblems, 10x16 feet, a Union Jack, a burgee and a State flag. A proposition to purchase four rubber mats, containing the name "Cranford," was also considered, the mats to be placed at the entrance to the cabins. The Flag Fund Committee decided to make the members of the Township Committee also members of the former committee.

A sub-committee was appointed to confer with the superintendent of ferries regarding the style of flags. There is to be a big time at Wilmington, Del., when the "Cranford" will be launched on October 28. Arrangements for the launching are now being made, this programme being in charge of the Central Railroad.

The following sales at Berkeley Heights were also effected: Five lots to Katahrine S. Totten; nine lots to Thomas M. Eganey; eight lots to Samuel H. Craig; two lots to Alexander B. Ebin; three lots to Jerome J. Wilson; one lot to Leonard J. Tuttle.

Couple Have Been Married Eighteen Years.

Philip Biesell, of No. 75 Fifth street, Elizabeth, was in the police court there yesterday charged by his wife with desertion. She alleges that he abandoned her and his five children five weeks ago because he was afraid of catching consumption, with which she is afflicted.

He was repentant in court, but the woman would have nothing to do with him, despite his promises for the future.

The judge let him go on condition that he would contribute to the support of his family. The couple were married eighteen years ago, when he was thirty-eight and his wife eighteen years old.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Whether the Democratic county convention in Essex shall indorse the nomination of Everett Colby for State Senator is a question that is still under earnest discussion by Democrats all over the county. Many organization men are opposed and many are decidedly in favor, while all Democrats of independent leaning favor the indorsement. The majority of the Democratic County Committee are now opposed, but some of them are likely to be won over before the nominating convention meets next Wednesday night.

She Sees Rum's Finish.

Pennington, Sept. 23.—During the annual convention of the Mercer county W. C. T. U., which took place yesterday in the Pennington M. E. church, Mrs. Isabel Demarest, State corresponding secretary of the organization, said that Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of Boston, superintendent of scientific temperance of the United States, predicts the last saloon in Texas in 1908, the last distillery and brewery in Ohio in 1909, last distillery in Illinois in 1916, rum traffic banished from Pennsylvania in 1919, liquor business ended in United States in 1920, the sale and manufacture of intoxicants by vote of people banished from the United States in 1925.

Borough Clock Wound Up.

The new clock in the tower of the Borough High School building was started yesterday, and residents have already begun to depend upon it for time. The dial and hands are large enough to be seen at a considerable distance.

A Good Play.

"Cousin Kate" was well presented at the new theatre last night. It is a lovable play of the kind that never grows old, and the cast at the Plainfield took no liberties with its lines and situations. The performance deserved a better house.

Mrs. D. A. Teeter, of this city, is visiting J. T. Miller, of High Bridge.

W. C. LaRue, of East Second street, who has been very ill, is now much improved.

Alexander Willett, of Craig place, who fractured his hip a few days ago, does not improve much.

Miss Gladys Peck, of Myrtle avenue, will return to boarding school at Dobbs Ferry on Tuesday.

Mrs. William Beiter, of East Front street, who has been visiting friends in New York, has returned home.

Mrs. D. P. Peeke, of East Millstone, has returned home after a short visit with Plainfield friends.

Miss Madeline Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Myrtle avenue, entered Wellesley College on Tuesday.

Mrs. James Buckley, of Grand and Stout avenues, Scotch Plains, has been spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. William Terry, of New street.

PETITION FOR NEW SCHOOL.

Residents of Rock Avenue and Vicinity Will Ask for $2,500 Building.

Seventy-five residents in the vicinity of Rock avenue have petitioned the Piscataway Township School Board for the erection of a $2,500 school house near Rock avenue. This is in line with previous efforts made by these residents, and they feel they are entitled to a school house at the above location as the children are now compelled to either go to New Market, South Plainfield or Dunellen.

Bolton Hall, who owns considerable property in the vicinity, has offered to donate the land for the building free and besides contribute $500 toward the erection of the building. There is to be a conference of members of the school board and interested citizens this afternoon with a view to taking steps toward the erection of a school house. This meeting will be held at the real estate office of William Jeffery on Park avenue and it is hoped that some definite action will be decided upon.

RENEWS DIVORCE SUIT.

Woman Says Husband is Cruel and Indulges in Gun Play.

Mrs. Rudolph H. Becker, of New Brunswick, has renewed her suit for divorce against her husband, of the firm of Becker & Tietjen, wholesale liquor dealers. She started a suit about a year ago, but the couple became reconciled and the proceeding was discontinued. Since then she says her husband had been treating her cruelly.

In her petition Mrs. Becker declares that life with her husband has not been pleasant. In December of 1903, for instance, she says her husband came home intoxicated and shot at her.

Conference Sunday-school Workers.

Members of the Union County Sunday-school Association held a conference in the Presbyterian church, Westfield, last night, when addresses were made by Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, of Newark, and Mr. Ives, of New York, the latter speaking of modern methods of keeping boys in the Sunday-school. Delegates were present from all parts of the county, those from this city being Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Miss Nettie Beeching, Mrs. L. R. Schofield, Mrs. Edgar Williams and Robert Love.

Rev. Mr. Francis Sued.

Rev. George A. Francis, of this city, who secured a dismissal of the charge of cruelty to animals brought against him in Justice Mosher's court on Thursday, because John Lane, the plaintiff refused to pay the jury fee, is named as defendant in a contract suit brought by F. L. & A. Heldretter, a lumber firm of Elizabeth, in the district court. The demand is for $150. The plaintiffs are dealers in lumber. Mr. Francis is interested in real estate and building operations.

Accused of Assault.

Vladystane Lorbeno was arrested by Constable Weaver yesterday afternoon, charged with assaulting Mrs. Antoni Jarzebeniki. It is alleged that he engaged her in a quarrel on Setpember 20 and brutally beat her. The case will be heard on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. F. J. Blatz is the plaintiff's lawyer and J. P. Owens represents the defendant.

Must Pay Buxton.

Herbert Buxton, of this city, has secured a verdict against George C. Squires, of Orange, for $813 plus $28.40 costs, in the Supreme Court. The money was due on checks. William Newcorn represented Mr. Buxton.

Long Franchise for P. S. C.

The ordinance granting the Public Service Corporation a franchise for a trolley line between Rahway and Elizabeth came up before the Elizabeth Council last night and by a vote of 11 to 10 it was voted to give the company a fifty year franchise, instead of a perpetual one, as asked for. Colonel Hine, who was present to represent the Public Service Corporation, made a vigorous kick and said that such a franchise would not be accepted. It is generally believed that it will be.

Mrs. Harkins' Admirer Gets Counsel.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh has been retained by H. Francis Allen to defend him in the suit for $25,000 brought against him by Joseph B. PROGRESS ON WHARF.

Jersey Central Will Have 2,816 Feet Along Sound Shore.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey inspector, who looks over the work of construction at the wharf which the company has been building from the foot of Livingston street extending north, in Elizabeth, stated Friday that within a very short time the entire pier would be completed. There are yet to be erected a crib of 816 feet long and one at the head of a slip, 120 feet long. Of the first crib, half a section, 400 feet long, has been completed. A dredge is now engaged in digging for the second section, 416 feet long.

When the dock is finished, the Central railroad will have a wharfage of 2,816 feet, or 176 feet more than half a mile. Of this 2,000 feet is already available.

In spite of the excellent facilities afforded now at the sound, than which there are none better in this part of the country, shipping has not been so extensive as had been expected during the summer. The transportation of iron ore, which is usually very considerable, was slight all through the summer.

Elizabeth's Rate $2.86.

The tax rate of Elizabeth for the coming year will be $2.86, a reduction of five points from last year.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Amos R. Andrews Takes The Place Of Dr. Olin L. Jenkins, Who Declines.

COUNCIL TO MEET

Special Session Tomorrow Night to Receive Mayor's Notification —New Body Chooses Officers Tonight.

Owing to the absence of City Clerk James T. MacMurray, who must administer the oaths of office, the new police commission was not sworn in until this morning. Arrangements have been made to hold a meeting of the commission tonight. Mayor James F. Buckle will formally notify the Common Council of his action tomorrow night, a special meeting having been called for that purpose.

Former Mayor Olin L. Jenkins informed the Mayor Saturday that he could not accept an appointment. His reason was that he was out of politics for good. In his place the Mayor named Amos R. Andrews. Mr. Andrews accepted the commission.

The new board is composed of Andrew McCardell and Amos Andrews, Republicans, and DeWitt C. Ivins and H. W. Marshall, Democrats. As told in The Daily Press Saturday, the Police Commission law of 1905 provides that the body shall be bipartisan.

The ceremony this morning was informal and took but a few minutes. There were no spectators except John Keely, the municipal street sprinkling contractor, and a representative of The Daily Press. DeWitt C. Ivins was the first member of the commission to take the oath of office. He was followed in turn by Messrs. Andrews, Marshall and McCardell. After the Mayor and city clerk had attached their signatures to the formal documents, Mr. Buckle turned to his appointees and congratulated them. "The only thing I have to ask," said he, "is that you do your duty."

When the commission meets tonight it will choose a chairman, secretary and clerk. Reliable report has it that Commissioner Andrews will be chairman and Commissioner Marshall, secretary. George Wean, the city clerk's stenographer, will likely be chosen clerk. The commission is empowered by law to fix his salary.

AGED MAN'S FALL MAY CAUSE DEATH

GEORGE SWEENEY IN COMOTOSE STATE AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT.

George Sweeney, aged seventy-three years, fell downstairs at his home in South avenue yesterday, receiving a scalp wound and probable fracture of the skull. He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. Owing to his advanced age his chances for recovery are not very good. He remains in a comotose condition and recognizes no one.

In the opinion of the physician in charge the skull may be fractured and the bone pressing against the brain. If this pressure cannot be relieved the injury will prove fatal.

Week-End Guests at Hamden.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter, Miss Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mrs. J. F. Grandin, Hamden, Hunterdon county. They were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Grandin and her daughters, the Misses Sara and Elizabeth. Saturday was spent at Bellewood, a most attractive and well conducted park on the Lehigh Valley railroad. The scenery of Hunterdon county, famed always as a picturesque bit of country, is now truly beautiful. The first tinge of autumnal foliage makes the view everywhere charming to behold.

Hurt by Fall from Wagon.

George Christiansen, aged thirty-five years, a scavenger living at Oak Tree, fell from a wagon on Saturday, dislocating his left arm. He was taken to the hospital, where Dr. B. VanD. Hedges reduced the swelling and set the arm. The man returned home Saturday night.

James Whitely Dead.

James Whitely, eldest son of Francis M. Whitely, of the borough, and well known to a great many Plainfielders, died at his home last night, Brooklyn, N. Y. He was forty-five years old.

BANQUET FOR THE NINE

Pennant Presentation Affair to Be Held At The Iroquois.

OCTOBER 14 THE DATE

Dinner will Follow a Game Against a Fast Local Team to Be Formed by Warry McLaughlin.

It has been decided to give the Plainfield baseball team a banquet at the Hotel Iroquois on Saturday night, October 14, after a game on Crescent Oval with a local team to be formed by "Warry" McLaughlin. At this banquet the pennant won by Plainfield from Westfield will be presented with an appropriate address. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the game comprise Charles A. Dixon, "Warry" McLaughlin, Benjamin LaVere and George E. Firstbrook.

As an extra attraction Ben LaVere has promised to have his band at the Oval and give a concert before the game and play at intervals during the game.

The team to oppose the Daabsters will be composed as far as possible of local talent. It is expected that Louis Wiltse and George Allen will be the battery, while "Warry" McLaughlin will play a field position. The rest of the players will be the pick from the best of the teams in this city and vicinity and McLaughlin feels sure that his aggregation will give the locals a good game.

The arrangements for the game and banquet were decided upon Saturday at Westfield when the committee had a conference with Manager Daab. The latter expressed his pleasure and willingness to join in the affair and help to make it a success.

MAYOR TELLS WHY HE NAMED COMMISSION

CONVINCED THAT CHANGE WOULD BE FOR BEST INTERESTS OF THE CITY.

To a representative of The Daily Press, Mayor Buckle said today that his reason for appointing a police commission at this time is a conviction on his part that it would be an improvement over the present Councilmanc police board. "The make-up of the police board is constantly changing from time to time and no man is on it long enough to get much experience," said he.

The Mayor added: "This constant upheaval is not good for the city. Under the new method, only one man's term will expire each year, leaving three remaining on the board." It was also stated by the Mayor that he was not pleased with recent actions of the Councilmanic board in acting over the head of Chief Kiely. He did not think that such a course should be commended.

Among others who were asked opinions regarding the Mayor's move were:

Councilman William S. Tyler—"There is nothing I want to say at present."

O. T. Waring.—"The action strikes me as uncalled for and unnecessary under the circumstances."

Special Meeting of Common Council.

There will be a special meeting of the Common Council tomorrow night when several matters left over from the last regular session will be taken up. This business includes the petition of the Mono Investing Company for a permit to erect a storage warehouse in Fillmore avenue, and other matters in reference to surface drainage sewers. It is also likely that the finance committee will take some action in reference to the books of the assessors which were recently returned from Elizabeth. After the finance committee and the Common Council passes on the books the tax rate for the year will be officially announced.

Back from Klondyke.

Robert Randolph, of this city, who has been in the gold fields of Alaska during the past five years, has returned home. He expects to return to Alaska after a visit here.

Social Side of Soldiering.

Company K will hold a business meeting Monday night, October 2, to arrange a programme of social events for the season.

—Headquarters for fancy table and canning peaches and table grapes is located at Neuman Brothers' store. A big display renewed each day to select from.

FALL MAY PROVE FATAL

Accident To G. T. Dunham Causes Concussion Of The Brain.

TUMBLED OFF CAR

Injured Yesterday and is Still Unconscious—No Bruises On His Body.

Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, while returning home last night from a fishing trip at Bound Brook, fell off an open trolley car near Clinton avenue and West Front street, and received serious injuries. When he fell he struck his head, causing concussion of the brain, and except for a few brief intervals has remained unconscious since the accident.

The car was crowded with Sunday pleasure seekers. It was headed for the turnout on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, at a lively rate of speed when Mr. Dunham was thrown off. With a number of other passengers, he was standing near the rear of the car. It is said that he lost his balance and was crowded off.

Samuel Rottberg, a salesman employed by Harry Werner, the clothier, was on the car and he hastened to the assistance of the injured man. With the help of another passenger Dunham was carried to Elmer Mill's restaurant. Mr. Rottberg telephoned to police headquarters for the patrol wagon. It was 7:45 when the accident occurred and it was a half hour later when the patrol reached Mr. Mill's place, and removed Mr. Dunham to his home. The delay was caused by a misunderstanding.

Mr. Dunham's physician, Dr. D. C. Adams, was summoned and Dr. Albert Pittis, representing the Public Service Corporation, also arrived. Despite the best efforts of the physicians they were unable to restore Mr. Dunham to consciousness, and this morning his condition remained unchanged. A strange fact is that there is not a single mark or bruise to be found on Mr. Dunham and the physicians agree that he must have struck the ground head first when he fell.

It was said that Mr. Dunham started out early in the day with a party of twelve companions, on a fishing trip, but when the accident occurred there was not a single person on the car who appeared to know him. What became of the rest of the party is not known.

Mr. Dunham has been employed in the office of the Pond Machine Tool Works for a long time. He is prominent in Fourth ward politics.

ALEXANDER WILLETT SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

VETERAN SHOE DEALER PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY AT NOON.

Alexander Willett, the well known shoe merchant, died yesterday at 12:30 at his home on Craig place, after lingering from Thursday with a broken hip received in a fall. He had previously been in a weakened and nervous state due to his advanced age, and he was unable to withstand the shock from the injury. He became unconscious Saturday afternoon and remained that way until the end.

Mr. Willett was born at Pluckemin in 1823 and came to Plainfield thirty-four years ago. He opened a shoe store on Park avenue in 1876 and had remained in business ever since, his son, Alfred Willett, acting as his partner in recent years. The first store was located in the building directly across the street from where the business now is. Mr. Willett was a member of Trinity Reformed church and was always interested in its work. He was an elder for many years and attended services regularly until his health failed. Faithfulness was one of his traits and all his work, whether religious or otherwise, was marked by a conscientiousness that won him the respect of hosts of friends.

He is survived by a widow and three sons, Alfred, Herbert and Frank. The funeral will be held from his late home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the interment will be at Bound Brook.

Enlarging His Store.

Edward A. Laing, the stationer, is having an extension built on the rear of his building on West Front street, to give him the increased room for his business. W. H. Brokaw is doing the carpenter work.

—S. Scheuer & Co's. store will be closed during the day next Saturday, September 30; open 6 o'clock in the evening. 9 25 6 *

MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT

Pirates Hammer Beck And An Experimental Flinger Without Mercy.

DEAD-AND-ALIVE GAME

Some Very Good Playing and Some Josh Kind—Connolly Gets Back a Stolen Ticker at the Bat.

All sorts and conditions of baseball figured in the ninth collision between the Commuters and the Pirates at Recreation Park Saturday afternoon, including a thrilling one-sided victory for as lively and redoubtable a crew as ever sailed under C. Denman's Jolly Roger. Everything you go to see at the ballyard, and a lot you don't, was mixed up in the display. There was good playing, bad playing and indifferent playing; swell flinging, middling good, and the other kind. How we looked in the running is indicated by the cold and unlying figures, 9 to 2.

We used up two flingers in the deal. Bill Beck, our old and once-reliable friend, started in at the port hole for us, and we wound up with an earnest and vengeful youth yclept J. Weimer, who went in for a combination try out and welt at C. Denman's pride. The youthful Mr. Weimer was tried out to a frazzle, and the Denman pride waggled on with unabated scorn.

Mr. J. Waller, of Union Hill and other places, with whom we have become somewhat familiar, also graced proceedings from the slab. Mr. Waller, who refuses to let past history act on his nerve, served 'em up exactly as occasion required, and our panting heroes were forced to content themselves with seven thumps, wrenched mostly at unprofitable moments.

Al Burch, who has been playing with Poughkeepsie, was back in the Pirate line at second, and Micky Finn, a New London hero, rippled around in left. Al played a liberal and self-sacrificing game. He covered all the territory he could reach on the hurry-up run, and backed up everybody in the infield like he was really hired to play ball. What happened to any ball hit in his direction was a nice feature of the vista, but it hurt our feelings considerable. Mickey didn't do anything to destroy the traditions built up in left by Jeems Bertwhistle, and peeled off two hits.

The Pirates fielded like a selected brand of lightning whenever there was any need for activity in the works. At the time when the Commute band were beginning to look like a bad case of also ran, ye sportive Pirates did gay and careless things with ye globule. Also, they thumped some. Even Tommy Barry, who is a lightweight stickist, peeled off two whacks, one being a sockdolager, giving him a clear road to the second stop. Tommy needed those hits to wipe out two loose and immoral chucks. The Pirates got eight hits and five runs off Bill, and three hits, four gifts and four runs off Mr. Weimer.

Bill started in real good. He struck out Burch, Wahl and Rochford in the breakaway, but in the very next chapter our hero was cast down from his high estate and pushed into chilly weather up to his neck. He hadn't shown signs of recovery when the Weimer youth plunged into the vortex.

In the second a touching little drama, showing the reserved and industrious ballist at play, was chucked into the exhibit by the liberal Commuter management. On the way out from New York Dan Connolly was touched for a watch made of real gold and some wheels. Dan was upset a lot by the touch, because the watch was one his grandfather made and had the picture of his cousin, whose name is Tottie, pasted on the front case. Just as Dan stepped up to the plate for the lead-off of the second, Jack Merity plugged the wheels of industry by raising an umpirial hand. The rest of the Commuters flocked about Jack and the body marched upon the amazed Daniel. Whereupon, the ump, without any warning to the helpless populace, made a humorous speech and disclosed Dan's missing chonology outfit. The Commuters and the courteous Pirates cheered, and some of the populace giggled. Dan was so flustered he stuffed the watch in his bloomers and narrowly escaped fanning. Jack Merity says the pickpocket gave him the watch to return because Dan took the loss of his cousin's picture so hard he didn't have the heart to keep it. Jack O'Neill asked us not to use his name, so we won't mention who made the touch. This incident indicates that the ball player, if captured young, may develop interesting and human traits. The good cheer growing from this episode was knocked out of us when the heartless Pirates wiggled their bats. With two out Barry hit for two bases, and Paddy Cotter scored

BLEW OUT WALL OF JAIL

HE USES DYNAMITE

Mack Lahey, the Burglar, Makes Second Attempt to Escape—Another Prisoner His Assistant.

Blowing his way out of jails with dynamite is a specialty of Mack Lahey, the leader of a notorious gang of Jersey criminals, and last night he blew out with dynamite part of the side wall of the Somerset county jail at Somerville, and nearly escaped.

Lahey generally manages to blow up every jail he is put into, and as soon as he becomes a prisoner the sheriff gets solicitous about the safety of his prison. With a number of his followers he is in the Somerset county prison, charged with burglary, highway robbery and a few other crimes.

When Lahey was arrested, William H. Moore, a special watchman, was employed to patrol the yard surrounding the jail and he had instructions to "shoot first and investigate afterward" at any suspicious happening.

Moore was patrolling about the jail shortly after 6 o'clock last night when he was surprised to see about four feet of the side wall break out and go whizzing over his head. Moore insists that he saw this before he heard any report of an explosion.

He was so thunderstruck at the queer action of the wall that he kept his eyes glued to the spot, and through the dust he saw the face of Mack Lahey peering out of the opening with one of his followers close behind him. Moore did not hesitate. He drew his pistol and fired at Lahey. Lahey and his companion drew back from the hole made by the dynamite and dropped in the corridor.

Deputy Sheriff Anderson, who was in his office in the front portion of the jail, rushed to the cell-room and with a shotgun forced the twenty-five or more prisoners to enter their cells. Moore stood at the hole in the wall with his revolver, and when Anderson had been reinforced by a number of policemen and citizens, the prisoners were locked up and a search made of their cells.

Lahey, "Red" Harrington and James Regan made a desperate but unsuccessful attempt to escape from the jail about three weeks ago by digging out. Since then they have been closely confined, with the exception of thirty minutes each day, when they are allowed in the corridor for exercise. It was during the exercise period that the explosion occurred last night.

Lahey broke out of the Middlesex county jail by the use of dynamite, and he is wanted at Easton for wrecking that jail with a high explosive of some sort.

The police do not know how Lahey got the dynamite with which he blew out the wall of the jail, but they believe it was smuggled in to him by tramps who have recently been arrested.

He and his gang are regarded as the most desperate criminals in New Jersey. Some of their more recent exploits are the robbery of the home of C. M. Sterling at Finderne, the holding up of William McManus, a farmer; the plundering of a saloon and the holding up of a trolley car near Bound Brook.

The other prisoners in the jail have been nervous ever since Lahey was arrested. They are afraid that in his efforts to blow his way to freedom they will all be killed.

DROWNING VICTIM BURIED.

Remains of F. E. Touzeau, Who Met Death In Idaho, Interred in Asbury.

The remains of Francis E. Touzeau, which were brought back from Idaho by his father, James Touzeau, of Dunellen, last week, were buried in the family plot at Asbury yesterday, after a service at the Dunellen Presbyterian church. The service was largely attended.

Rev. A. I. Martine, of Passaic, a former pastor, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. W. W. Casselberry, the present pastor. A quartette composed of Mrs. R. E. Humpston, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; Fred B. Tallamy, tenor; and Louis Y. Tallamy, bass, sang two of the dead young man's favorite hymns, and "No Shadows Yonder," from Gaul's "Holy City."

Gov. Stokes Entertained.

In his great summer mansion at Deal Beach on Friday afternoon, Mr. Daniel O'Day, the Standard Oil millionaire, gave an elaborate luncheon for Governor E. C. Stokes and his official staff. It was in return for courtesies shown to Mr. O'Day and a party of friends who had been entertained by the Governor and his staff.

BOLTON HALL'S OFFER

Will Give Site And $500 Towards New Piscataway Township School.

NAMES CONDITIONS

Building to Cost $2,500—Location Fixed by Mr. Hall—Letter to the Board of Education.

Bolton Hall, of New York, well known as a socioligist and lawyer, offers the Piscataway township Board of Education a plot of land and $500 for the erection of a new school house at the corner of Rushmore avenue and West Fourth street.

His offer is contained in the following letter to the school trustees:

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 25, 1905.
Board of Education,
Township of Piscataway.

I understand that there is a petition, signed by a large number of the voters and citizens of Piscataway township, now before you; requesting you to call a meeting of the voters of said township to consider and vote for the erection of a $2,500 school house to be erected on the corner of Rushmore avenue and West Fourth street, and that the law requires you when calling a meeting to give ten days notice thereof.

I also understand there are twenty-two children in the vicinity of Rushmore avenue and West Fourth street for whom school accommodation must be provided immediately, and to that end your Board appointed a committee to see me and arrange the rental of a room to be placed on the lot aforesaid.

Of course I have no personal interest in the location or site of the school, but act entirely for Bolton Hall, whom I represent, his interest in relation to the site is very small, but Mr. Hall has always been known as a public spirited man, and this together with his interest leads him to make the following order.

He will agree to sell a plot of land of about one-half an acre on the corner of Rushmore avenue and West Fourth street to the Board of Education for the sum of $1, and contribute toward the cost of a school building to cost not less than $2,500, the sum of $500. The school building to be placed on the plot deeded by him.

The pressing need of a school in this section is obvious, the nearest school is known as Maple Grove, distant one and a half miles, and I am informed and believe it is unsanitary. The New Market school is distant a god two miles, in any event the schools are botn too far distant for little children. The means of transportation carried on in former years by the Board has been discontinued and the smaller children are obliged in many cases to give up school attendance, being unable to walk such a distance.

Mr Hall, if the Board will accept his offer, is prepared to carry it out immediately.

I feel that the citizens and voters of the township are not entirely familiar with the conditions and this letter is written to call attention to these facts tha hey with the co-operation of the Board of Education, may remedy them and provide suitable accommodation.

WILLIAM JEFFERY.

WOMEN TOLD HOW THEY MADE DOLLARS

UNIQUE FEATURE AT MEETING OF A CHURCH SOCIEEY.

Under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-day Baptist church an experience tea and social was held in the parlors of the church yesterday afternoon. It was previously arranged that each member should bring in a dollar and then tell how it was earned. In this way $50 was realized.

The parlors were attractively decorated with the season's flowers, and an informal programme, consisting of a piano duet by the Misses Eva and Helen Rogers, and a vocal solo by Mrs. John B. Cottrell, was enjoyed. Mrs. David B. Titsworth was in charge of the programme, and after the entertainment the members presented their dollars and related their experience, which was a pleasing feature.

During the tea a social time was enjoyed. Mrs. H. M. Maxson poured tea and Mrs. William C. Hubbard and Miss Ernestine C. Smith were the committee of arrangements. The reception committee comprised Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. F. A. Dunham and Mrs. T. C. Smith.

FINE GOLFING WEATHER

Large Company Of Players Make The Rounds At Local Links.

COMPETITION SCORES

E. B. Shoemaker Still Leads In Country Club Committee Cup Contest—A Semi-final at Westfield.

Delightful weather on Saturday made golf playing a pleasure and a large field was attracted to the Plainfield Country Club. A majority of the players traveled over the course in an informal way and did not make a special effort for a low score. However, there were a number contesting for the golf committee cup and several low scores were returned. Charles A. Stover won first honors with a net score of 79, while E. E. Iremonger and J. J. Blackmore, the latter a newcomer, divided the points for second place with a net score of 81. These scores do not affect the standing for the cup, E. B. Shoemaker still leading by a fair margin.

The best scores returned for the cup were as follows:

Charles A. Stover, 89, 10—79; E. E. Iremonger, 92, 11—81; J. J. Blackmore, 108, 27—81; Arthur Murphy, 88, 5—83; C. B. Andrews, 103, 13—90.

There was also the stated play for the Mumford cup, women's competition, handicap event, and Mrs. Walter Gaston scored a win for the cup with a score of 121, 12—109.

In the evening there were social features at the clubhouse, including one of the regular dances. This was attended by a large number of members.

There was a fair attendance at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, when there was continuation of play for the president's and club cups. A. W. Kenworthy won first honors for the handicap cup with a net score of 97, while Alexander Gilbert and J. L. Watson finished second and third with net scores of 102 and 103. For the scratch cup, Alexander Gilbert and Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll divided first honors with a gross score of 114, A. W. Kenworthy won second honors with a score of 116, and the remaining point was divided by Nelson A. Miller and Reuben Knox, each returning a gross score of 117.

The leading scores posted were as follows:

A. W. Kenworthy, 116, 19—97; Alexander Gilbert, 114, 12—102; J. L. Watson, 119, 16—103; Reuben Knox, 117, 13—104; Nelson A. Miller, 117, 10—107; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 114, 5—109.

At Westfield on Saturday Joseph Sherman beat Isaac Townley in one of the semi-final matches for the governors' cup, and C. C. Marshall beat R. H. Middiedith in the final round. George Cruse and Joseph Sherman will contest in the remaining semi-final match this week and the winner of that match will play C. C. Marshall for the cup.

UNITARIAN CONFERENCE.

Plainfielders at Bi-ennial Session in Atlantic City.

The last detail has been completed for the meeting of the conference of the Unitarian churches in Atlantic City, beginning tomorrow morning. Delegates have been arriving for the last two days. Among them are Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington and Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Osgood, representing All Souls' church of this city. It is expected that at least two thousand persons will attend this year's sessions. President Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, Washington, will arrive today, as will also John D. Long, ex-Secretary of the Navy, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Long, Judge Thomas J. Morris, of Baltimore, one of the vice-presidents, is expected today, together with the arrival of several hundred delegates from all over New England.

Grace M. E. Rally Day.

Grace M. E. church Sunday-school observed rally day yesterday afternoon with appropriate exercises. The church was attractively decorated with banners, autumn leaves and flowers. There was an unusually large attendance of pupils and teachers. The programme consisted of recitations, songs and a helpful address by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools. The pastor, Rev. Dr. W. C. Parsons, also gave a stirring talk. Each pupil received a rally day souvenir.

Prof. Griggs Draws Crowds.

Prof. Edward Howard Griggs recently gave a series of ten lectures on "Moral Leaders" in Tremont temple, Boston. The vast auditorium was taxed to its full capacity on the occasion of each address. Hundreds who desired to attend were unable to purchase tickets at the closing lecture. Mr. Griggs has a drawing power as a public speaker never before seen in Boston.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Piscataway school board is considering the advisability of erecting or leasing a small building in the Rock avenue section of the township to accommodate the children in that neighborhood who now have no school facilities short of New Market or Maple Grove. If a building could be rented for $12 a month and a teacher could be secured at $40 a month, which is understood to be an assured thing, the expense would be less than transporting the children by stage to either school, and have the great advantage of giving the pupils a neighborhood school. William Jeffery, the Plainfield real estate dealer, is considering a proposition to put up a little one-room structure, large enough for the purpose, on the Hall lot. Ziba P. Osmun has offered to transport the children to the present schools at $15 a week.

The Whittier School eleven defeated the St. Joseph parochial school team, of Bound Brook, on Saturday, 11 to 6. The game was close. Whittier lined up as follows: Rittenbush, c; Dodwell, fb; Hamilton, qb; Runyon, lg; Gorden, lt; Giddes, rt; Jennings, rg; Vail, re; Huff, le; Ising, lhb; Garretson, rhb.

Several of the Owl Club members went to Bellwood Park Saturday. The 7:20 express stopped at New Market Saturday night to enable them to debark, by special arrangement with the traffic department.

Frank Smith, undaunted by brother Bill's experience, has purchased an automobile. He says he would just as soon use it to travel between Topeka and New Market as a railroad train.

Rally day was observed by the Presbyterian Sunday-school yesterday afternoon. There was an enjoyable programme of songs and recitations. The decorations were pretty.

A large number of St. John's parishioners went to the closing of Father Dunphy's mission in South Plainfield, last night.

The proposed test of the new hose and the borough hydrants, has been indefinitely postponed by the fire department.

Jessie Pierman, of Pottstown, Pa., has returned home after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers.

The Y. P. S. C. E., of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will hold a missionary meeting tonight.

The eleven had an interesting secret practice Saturday. The team has a great set of signals.

Henry Johnson, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit to his sister, Mrs. L. H. Danz.

The Foresters will meet tonight.

Eugene Smalley's house has been repainted.

Mrs. D. C. Fulton has been the guest of friends on Long Island for a week.

Lakeside Council, D. of L., initiated two members at its meeting last week.

Miss Mary Voorhees has returned home after a month's vacation trip.

Clarence Sofield is employed in the Pond Tool Works, Plainfield.

Mrs. George Schenck continues to recover from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Lawlor have removed to Plainfield.

W. B. Smith visited in New Brunswick yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of Duncan Munroe, who died Friday afternoon, were held from the home on Bartle avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4:30. Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Baptist church, officiated. The house was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives who had gathered to pay their last homage to one they had known and respected in life, his quiet and retiring disposition having made him many friends during his residence here. During his remarks, Rev. Mr. Smith spoke of this and of the deceased fortitude during his lingering illness. Many kind expressions of sympathy were shown in the number of set pieces sent by friends, the casket being nearly hidden in flowers. The pallbearers were Nicholas Alberts, Anthony Alberts, Frank Rapp, Horace Pangborn, Jacob Warnock and Anthony Warnock. Interment was made in the Baptist cemetery.

The farce at Recreation Park Saturday afternoon between the Daabsters and Westfield team was not enjoyed by the local fans. Because the pennant is won is no reason why the same article of ball should not be played, is the opinion of the local followers of the game.

William Jamison, who has purchased the grocery business of the late Charles E. Wade, took charge this morning. Mr. Jamison has been a resident of the town for a number of years, has the confidence of the public and will no doubt make a success of the grocery business.

Miss Castello, a missionary working in the field of India, will make an address tomorrow afternoon at 3:30, in the parlors of the Baptist church. Miss Castello will tell of the work being done and the needs of the people of India. All are invited to attend the meeting.

Miss Margaret Reynolds, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital two weeks ago for appendicitis, has improved so nicely that she was able to be brought home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Woods, who has been spending a week with Mrs. Woods' parents, Mr .and Mrs. James H. Buckley, have returned to their home at Taunton, Mass.

Rev. Josiah Smith, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who is visiting his brother, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, occupied the latter's pulpit at the Baptist church last night.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith made the address at the anniversary exercises of the Mountainside Sunday-school, held yesterday afternoon in the chapel.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hazel, of East Second street, spent Sunday with Mrs. Hazel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz, or Westfield avenue.

The Potter A. C. team, of Alton, failed to put in an appearance for the game scheduled with the local ball team Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. David Patterson and children, of Johnston avenue, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gray, of Prospect avenue.

The Berkeley Heights ball team and the Shadyside A. C. team, of Newark, played at Berkeley Heights yesterday.

Mrs. Nettie Atwood led an interesting weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U., held last night in the church parlors.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Frank R. Allen, formerly a resident here, but now of Passaic, N. J., spent Sunday with friends in town.

Miss Kate Day, of East Fourth street, was the guest yesterday of Miss Annie Ryno.

William S. Rapp has been entertaining friends from out of town over Sunday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. William Fitz Randolph, who recently was threatened with blindness and was operated upon for the same at Muhlenberg Hospital, is now likely to recover fully the use of her eyes.

A large congregation listened to Rev. J. A. Cubberley's sermon on Roman Catholic confessional at the Baptist church last night.

Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, of Plainfield, spent yesterday at her father's country home, on the farm, on Plainfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson are entertaining Mr. Jackson's father and mother, of Camden.

Miss Nellie B. Manning entertained Miss May Higgins, of Bound Brook, Saturday.

Miss Nellie McGuiness, of Somerset street, has returned home after a visit with Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of Newark.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Harry B. MacDonald, William R. Sullivan and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas by order entered on the twenty-first day of June, 1905, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, said improvements being the macadamizing of

Prospect avenue, from the northeasterly crosswalk at Park avenue to the westerly curb line of Woodland avenue;

West Seventh street, from the Middlesex county line to the present southwesterly end of the macadam;

West Fifth street, from the southwesterly curb line of Grant avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Monroe avenue;

South Second street, from the southwesterly curb line of Plainfield avenue to the present macadam at Muhlenberg place;

Albert street, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front street to the southeasterly curb line of Dunellen avenue;

Dunellen avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Clinton avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Compton avenue;

Rock avenue, from the Middlesex county line to the present southeasterly end of the macadam;

under the ordinance of said city, entitled "An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the city of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 6, 1903, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 12, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefitted by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said Ordinances, the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benfits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the third day of October, 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.
Dated September 5, 1905.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue is one of the best in the State.

V. W. Nash, of Park avenue, can sell you the best coal at the lowest market rate.

When you want first-class meat go to John A. Koch's market at Watchung avenue and East Second Street

W. W. Warnock's bread and cake have a high reputation that is fully deserved. His store is on West Front street.

George F. Brown, of Somerset street, can quote you attractive prices on the best real estate, either for sale or lease.

Fit and style, the individuality of true artistic work, character, is the creations of H. Schwartz, ladies' tailor, West Front street.

Order your coal quickly, ere the strike and cold weather jumps the price. L. A. Rheaume, East Fourth street, can deliver at once.

Wise buyers of china, glass and art objects go to J. W. Gavett's store, West Front street. The array is most attractive. Prices range to suit every pocketbook.

The size of the contract makes no difference to Woolsten & Buckle, painters and decorators. They will do as careful work on a small one as on a large one. North avenue.

The Stillwell Milk Company at Watchung avenue and East Second street, not only sell certified milk, but one price is charged the year round. The company also sells pure cream, butter and eggs.

H. W. Marshall, of East Front street, has the reputation of doing the best laundry work and his charges are reasonable. New and improved machinery is used and prompt deliveries are made.

No matter how fastidious you may be in regard to your dress, no matter how careful in your choice of clothes, Harry Werner's stock will present the styles you want; the fit, too; and the price will not cause you to change your mind. Mr. Werner would rather have his customer satisfied than make a profit out of proportion to the value of his goods. Do you know many clothiers like that?

SNAP SHOTS.

Hereafter totally blind persons will be given half rates on the railroads operating west of Chicago. The proposition to favor those without eyesight came before general passenger agents of the railroads at a meeting in Chicago and was disposed of by allowing each road to cut its rates in two for the benefit of this class.

The Pullman company has issued a general notice that hereafter the practice of making sleeping car reservations will be discontinued. Sleeping car tickets will be sold in advance, according to the order. The change is made for the purpose of better accommodating the travelers. In many cases duplicate reservations have been made by one traveler, while at the same time other travelers have been denied accommodations which they should have secured but for these duplicate reservations. In many cases reservations are made, and although the traveler changes his plan he fails to give notice thereof, consequently the space goes unoccupied, while at the same time other travelers are denied the accommodations they seek.

There is a tombstone in the little Dutch village of Pluckamin, N. J., in the foothills of the Orange Mountains, bearing an inscription to the effect that it was erected over the tomb of Lieutenant William Leslie, of the 17th British Regiment, by his friend, Benjamin Rush, M. D., of Philadelphia, as a mark of his esteem for his worth and his respect for his noble family. This William Leslie fell at the Battle of Princeton, January 3, 1777, aged twenty-six, as indicated on the tombstone, and was the second son of the sixth earl of Leven and Melville, and a great-great-uncle therefore of the present and eleventh earl of Leven and Melville, Lord Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland at Edinburgh, Knight of the Thistle and chief of one of the leading Anglo-American banking houses in London. He is also Keeper of the Privy Seal of Scotland and is a descendent of Galfrid de Maleville, who, in the reign of King David I, was the first justiciary of the kingdom.

John Onderdonk and his sister, Miss Onderdonk, of Philadelphia, are stopping for a time at Truell Inn, Park avenue.

Mr. Hegeman and family, who have spent the summer out of town, have returned to their home on Sycamore avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Moon, of the borough, have returned from their vacation in the Catskills, also Kingston and vicinity.

Mrs. August Trust, of Arcadia, N. C., accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Love, are visiting at the home of Mr. Trust's sister, Mrs. Adam Fritz, of Somerset street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Roll and child, of New York, who have been visiting Mrs. Roll's father, Paul Symons, of East Third street, will return home this week.

Mrs. C. C. Tomkinson and son Hoyt, of Grove street, who have spent a part of the summer at Ocean Grove, have gone to Harrisburg, Pa., to visit Mrs. Tomkinson's parents.

him with a snappy single. Paddy went to third on Jack O'Neill's high chuck to nail him at second. Red relieved the tension by striking out.

Having had a taste of blood, the Pirates ran amuck in the third. Al Burch started business right off with a slashing grounder to deep shortfield, which Happy, in the excitement of swift moving, chucked too low. Micky dumped a lucky one in Buntville, and Al moved up. He stole third neatly. Wahl lifted to left, but Mike Rochford, with that fascinating devil-may-care air of his, knocked the round thing for two laps, scoring Al and sending Micky to third. Mr. McCormick, the faultless dresser, poked one to center and Micky and Mike registered. Dan Connolly took care of Mallen's hoist. Barry worried Bill for a pass and Paddy Cotter scored Dude with a single to center. The ball was chucked to second to nail Paddy, and Tommy was killed at the plate in a frenzied attempt to score during the excitement.

Tommy gave us a niche on the scoreboard in the next stanza by a yellow throw of Dalton's grounder, Bill going to second. Pete Cregan scored him with a sharp crack to left, Pete going to second on the throw in. Leonard fanned and Driscoll made the third down with a loft.

In the fifth Daab told Bill to rest up while he put Joseph Nemesis Weimer on exhibition. Joseph wrote Mr. Daab a pathetic letter last week, in which he said C. Denman had heartlessly refused to give him a show on the slab, and he wanted to make a monkey of his team just for spite. Joe said he would fling for glory and revenge, and Daab instructed him to report in his working clothes.

"Joe is all right," quoth Denman to Daab in the fourth, with a cunning wink at Foxy George.

"Is he?" queried Daab guilelessly. "Then we'll try him." Whereupon he cast a ghost of a smile at Capt. Dave.

Who got stung? Take your choice. Wearing gayly-striped stockings, new bloomers, a red and black sweater and a bright and hopeful smile, Mr. Weimer stepped up to get hunk. What he got was the cold and frosty ha-ha and much travail. He was as wild as a Sioux Indian and a combination of gifts and thumps netted the Pirates four more tallies in the one inning. The stanza lasted so long that the Pirates thought they were never going to get out. There was no more scoring on Joe after that inning, but the experts were doubtful as to whether it was Joe's twirling or the Pirates' indifference to an increased margin that led to this pleasant state of affairs.

Joe belongs in Westfield. He is one of the Garwood flingers, and is reputed to be a terrible proposition to three-and-five dollar batters.

One thing we must be grateful to Joe for. He hit the first ball handed him in the seventh for two bases, went to third on a pass and scored our number two on Cosgrave's rightfield tap. Red says he told Joe what he was going to fling, but even if the toss did look feeble, we will give Joe the benefit of the doubt and refuse to believe Red. That Mike Rochford went after the globule on a dog trot we will not mention.

After the seventh the game became a thing of sere and yellow deadness. There was much relief when Pete Kiernan allowed himself to become the twenty-seventh out by a lazy return to first after Cosgrave lofted.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., Cape Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

If you are seeking a practical, progressive school, with up-to-date courses of study, skilled teachers, twentieth century methods of instruction and unexcelled opportunities for advancement, you will do well to investigate our facilities for giving instruction and securing positions. We have purchased the large Wood College at Newark and added to our chain of schools.

Our courses are right to the point and are planned to meet the demands of the business men. Eight Thousand Five Hundred Drake students hold responsible positions throughout the States of New York and New Jersey.

We hold that the very best education attainable is none too good for those who are looking for success, and although our tuition may be a trifle higher than some other schools, the difference is made up in the time saved and the results obtained. The Drake Schools are known to be the cheapest first-class institutions in America, with a twenty-one years' record in training young men and women for business. Why not attend a school that has superior advantages? Our seven schools are connected by telephone with our New York employment bureaus.

DIAMOND DUST.

It was the worst exhibition put up by the Daubsters this season and many loyal supporters feel pretty sore.

It was not generally known that Beck was to pitch on Saturday, else the attendance of Plainfield fans would have been smaller than it was.

It is certainly to be regretted that in the closing days of the season the locals should put up such a sorry exhibition after a string of well-earned victories.

Weiner, the Garwood youngster who pitched half of the game, was a huge joke. "Jack" O'Neill thought seriously of getting a kicking strap to hold him down.

There is one redeeming feature about the contest—it was the only one of the kind played this season by the locals. The other twenty-four contests were good exhibitions.

While the result of Saturday's game did not affect the chances of the team for the pennant, the people who paid their money to see the game deserved to see a better exhibition.

Louis Wiltse pitched for Somerville against the Newark Athletics on Saturday, defeating the Newarkers 9 to 1. He struck out twelve men. Several Plainfielders witnessed the game.

Billy Beck may be a good pitcher but he is not in Plainfield's class. This has long been the opinion of the fans and Manager Daab will do wisely if he keeps him out of the game in the future.

At Crescent Oval Saturday there will be a preliminary game at 2 o'clock between Clinton Avenue and Dunellen for the championship. This will precede the regular game at 3:45. "Phil." Smith will pitch for Dunellen.

Manager Daab regretted the exhibition on Saturday put up by his team, and he was in nowise to blame for the way they played. Undoubtedly the slab artist caused most of the trouble, but the infield was way off in fielding and the team could not hit.

WITH SMITH PITCHING DUNELLEN LOST, 3 TO 2

TEN-INNING GAME WON BY CLINTON AVENUE ON ERRORS.

The Clinton Avenue and Dunellen teams put up a fine exhibition of baseball on Saturday, when the local team won out in the tenth inning by a score of 3 to 2. James Scott practically won the game for his team. He scored the two runs in the fifth inning by a long hit, bringing two men home, and in the tenth he got a pass and scored on a wild throw. "Phil" Smith, pitching for Dunellen, performed well. He allowed his opponents but four hits, all scattered, and barring the six errors by his team would have won. The score:

Plainfield, N. J., September 25, 1905.

As on all public matters, especially where there are two factions in a dominant party, there is much diversity of opinion regarding the wisdom of Mayor Buckle's action in appointing a police commission. The main objection made to it by men out of harmony with the administration is that it was a political move. They attribute it to a desire on the Mayor's part to punish the councilmen who made a raid over the head of Chief of Police Kiely. As to this charge, the Mayor admits that he was displeased over the unusual action of the councilmanic police board. But he declares that he was prompted by a conviction that to take advantage of the new law and establish a commission would be for the best interests of the city. Orange, Passaic and Elizabeth have already adopted the system, and it is reported that they find it quite satisfactory. One thing is to be considered. It is that for the first time in a long while Democrats take part in the conduct of local government. The councilmanic board is necessarily of one political faith, for the minority party has no representation in that body. Under the new condition of affairs they have two good and representative men in one department. But the chief objection, as has been said, is not in the composition of the commission, but rather in the motive.

Atlantic Highlands Told to Come Here for Sewage Disposal Ideas.

Two town officials from Atlantic Highlands visited the Plainfield sewage disposal works, Saturday afternoon, and afterward called on Street Commissioner Gavett.

The say they will be obliged to put in some kind of disposal plant at the Highlands, as the discharge of raw sewage into the lower bay is injuring the town as a summer resort. They went first to White Plains, N. Y., where they were told by the city officials: "You don't want to come here for a disposal plant; go to Plainfield, N. J."

The White Plains officials have visited Plainfield.

INTEREST IN MATINEE RACES AT DRIVING PARK

GOOD CARD ENJOYED SATURDAY AND ANOTHER MEET PLANNED; A RUNAWAY

Interesting heats, with a runaway and a smashup to add to the excitement, marked the matinee meet at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon. There were three races carded, and an extra bit in the shape of a team race. The attendance was good.

Adam Blair's Harry Dawson won the 2.25 pace in 2.22¾. There were three other starters, Pony, a Rahway horse; Jay W., of New Brunswick, and Ikie, of Raritan. Harry Dawson got two firsts and a second. In the third heat Pony bolted and smashed his sulky to bits. There was a lot of excitement, but neither the driver, the horse nor anybody else was hurt.

Three local horses started in the 2.30 trot: Lenola, owned by J. W. Johnson; Lividia, owned by M. Quinn, and Bob, owned by N. B. Smalley. Lenola took two straight heats; time, 2.35½.

Five horses, all from out of town, were in the 2.50 trot. It was won by Major B., a Woodbridge horse, with two straight heats.

The last event was a half-mile race between two teams. It was won by J. E. Kinsey, of Rahway.

The judges were J. V. N. Willis, of this city, and J. V. Irving, of Westfield. J. W. Johnson was the starter, and Thomas Quinn was clerk. The sport was so enjoyable that another matinee meet will be held the Saturday after next.

AEROPLANE AT FAIR.

First Public Exhibition of Invention Today.

Israel Ludlow, of New York, inventor of an aeroplane, will give demonstrations of his No. 5 model at the Interstate Fair at Trenton today. Mr. Ludlow has been working on the model for the past year and this will be the first public experiment.

The aeroplane will be towed by Sheriff Thropp's 50-horse power automobile and will be the first of its kind to ascend by its own buoyancy. It is built to carry one man, and Charles Hamilton, a professional aeronaut, will go up in it.

The aeroplane is made of canvas and Calcutta bamboo. It weighs 120 pounds, has six wings, each 25 feet across, and its length over all is 27 feet. It has 750 square feet of supporting surface and 800 feet of steel wire bracing.

Fines from Bail.

Salvador Pareti, Michael de Polvo, Antonio Laratto and Antonio Angelo were arrested last night by Special Officers Dougherty, Gaffney, Novello and O'Connell, of the Central Railroad, for stealing coal from the cars. They were captured near the water tank. At the station house they deposited $35 for their appearance in court this morning. Pareti was the only one who appeared, but Judge Runyon made it a fine of $8 apiece and collected out of the thirty-five.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS WIN FIRST GAME OF SEASON

DEFEAT NEWLY FORMED ALIS TEAM EASILY, SCORE 20 TO 0.

In its first football game of the 1905 season the Plainfield High School eleven showed rare speed against the newly formed Alis team Saturday afternoon on Hope Common. Among the faces seen on the Alis team were many former High School boys, Bogart, Elliot Taylor, A. Loizeaux, Templin and Bentley being in their line up.

The Alis boys had had little practise before the game, and while at times they made a good stand against the heavy onslaught of the High School backs, for the most part they were powerless. As a result the High School eleven won handily, score, 20 to 0.

Acting Captain Douglass, at half back, showed his last year's skill throughout the game, scoring two of the four touchdowns. Stuart Freeman, last year's guard, played at fullback to perfection, while Lynas, the new man at halfback, proved a terror to his opponents.

Martin and Osgood each scored a touchdown, besides the two by Douglass. Substitutes replaced first team men for Plainfield High School in the second half. The line up:

P. H. S.—Hayman, centre; Osgood, left guard; Gideon Fountain and Rittenhouse, left tackle; Martin, left end; Gideon Fountain, right guard; Todd, right tackle; Jones and Wilcox, right end; H. Freeman and Flanders, quarterback; Douglass, left halfback; Lynas, right halfback; S. Freeman, fullback.

$20,000 AIR SHIP AT THE TRENTON FAIR

The Lewis air ship and the exhibit of the Southern Railway Company arrived Friday afternoon at the Inter-State Fair grounds, Trenton, N. J., and with them came men sent to Trenton for the special purpose of caring for these attractions, which have a total express valuation of $20,000.

The Lewis air ship is valued at $15,000. It is one of the most complete and successful flying machines yet invented. The contract with the company by the Inter-State Fair Association provides for a flight each day, beginning today, the opening of the fair, and concluding Friday, September 29, the closing day.

To erect the apparatus on the grounds necessary for the operation of the air ship will cost $1,000. This is to be met by the Lewis Company. When this is done the company is bound by a special contract to make a successful flight each day. If this is not done the financial consideration of the contract is forfeited.

The air ship will make its flights at a height of between 1,000 and 1,500 feet. It can be guided the same as a bicycle or other like contrivance. The length of the flights will be two miles each day, from the fair grounds to the Broad Street National Bank building.

Nurses "At Home."

The first reception of the season was held at the Muhlenberg Hospital Nurses' Home Friday night, with a euchre and an informal dance as the attractions. There were about thirty-five guests, including all of the nurses except those on night duty. The euchre afforded considerable enjoyment, the first honors for the women being divided between Miss Cranswick and Miss Maxwell, while Emil Droll won the men's prize. After the euchre there was a dance, which was continued until a late hour. During the intermission refreshments were served. Other similar affairs will probably be held occasionally during the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Findley, of Jersey City, were guests of their cousin, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, of West End avenue, yesterday.

SAFETY SUBWAY WORK PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

DESCRIPTION OF JERSEY CENTRAL'S NEW TUNNEL AT NETHERWOOD.

Following a method established several years ago of boring tunnels under the tracks to connect the stations with the waiting rooms on the opposite side, the Central Railroad of New Jersey is making rapid progress in its work boring a tunnel under the tracks at Netherwood station.

To carry on the work it has been necessary to raise the four main line tracks 12 inches and carry them on a trestle. The tunnel is 96 feet long by 6 feet wide at the base and has a maximum height of about 7 feet 8 inches. Five electric lights will be used to illuminate it. The centre light is wired separately from the others and the wires for this light will be arranged so that it can be turned on by a switch in the ticket office of the station. The other four lights will be on one circuit and are also arranged to be turned on and off from the station.

The wires for the lights will be carried in a conduit of 1 inch, inside diameter, built in the concrete walls of the tunnel. In other subways along the line of the Central ordinary 16-candle power incandescent lamps held in sockets and projecting out into the subway are used. Considerable annoyance has been occasioned by the frequent breaking of these lights, and to overcome this the lights in the Netherwood subway are to be placed in the recesses in the walls of the tunnel.

The Netherwood subway was designed by Chief Engineer J. O. Osgood.

Made Hall His Bedroom.

Mistaking the hallway of a Somerset street flat for his boudoir, William Lane blocked progress on one particular floor by attempting to sleep off a jag Saturday afternoon. The tenants informed Chief Weiss and the officer had to carry Lane down to the street before he woke up. He was released on $10 bail to appear before Judge Doud tonight.

From "The Inland Printer," Aug. '04:
Tasteful composition has a large share in the production of the specimens although ink and paper have done their share, the typography has given the stamp of distinction to nearly every piece. A thorough appreciation of the suitability of certain type-faces to different kinds of printing has been the chief factor in producing this good work. Refers to Stafford, Printer

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Rays" howling success, "A Hot Old Time," which is undoubtedly one of the funniest comedies ever written, is announced for tonight at the New Plainfield Theatre. It will be remembered that the principal characters are "Larry Mooney," the expressman, and Jack Treadwell, who impersonates him and is made up as the exact counterpart of Larry. These two are continually causing side splitting situations by being taken for one another. Aside from this there is Alkali Ike, the dangerous man from Denver; General Stonewell Blazer, Mrs. General Blazer, and others; also a great many pretty girls to assist in the musical numbers. Judging from the way this attraction has been received in other cities, a full house will certainly greet them on their appearance here.

"Way Down East," which comes to the New Plainfield Theatre Friday night, has come to be regarded as a classic among the wholesome and picturesque plays which depict rural life in New England. It will be presented even upon a more elaborate scale than last season when it tested the capacity of all the theatres in which it appeared. There is in this deft combining of humor and pathos with incisive dramatic incident a tremendous amount of human interest. The passions and emotions which sway these simple people of the New Hampshire farm are the same as has governed all people of all ages since the world began. Human nature is pretty much alike regardless of environment and there are heart tragedies among the peaceful granite hills as stirring as those of the brilliant city Boulevard.

In view of the enormous influx of melodramas, a character of stage entertainment that seems to have gained a most tenacious hold on the vast majority of theatre patrons, it would seem nigh impossible to invent a series of sensational features that have not, in some way, tread upon covered ground. However, managerial brains are always on the alert for something out of the ordinary, and no one appreciates the demand for novelty more fully than A. H. Woods, who feels that in offering his very latest triumph, "Tracked Around the World," he has the safest kind of a satisfying proposition of scenic arrangement, while the equipment details of the mammoth production in all respects, invite top-notch approval. The costuming being a special consideration. The cast for this sensational invasion is all that generosity can induce. Ten amazingly pretty show girls are included in the big company. "Tracked Around the World" is announced for next Saturday night at the New Plainfield Theatre.

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company open at the Manhattan Theatre tonight a brief engagement in their success of last season, "Leah Kleschna." Their stay in New York is limited to three weeks after which they will go on a tour of cities in which C.M. S. McLellan's drama has not been seen. These will be the final performances of "Leah Kleschna" in New York. One of the most brilliant examples of acting the American stage has had, this new opportunity to view it will be welcomed by many who already have enjoyed the work of Mrs. Fiske and her associates. For those who have not seen it, there is afforded a chance that they should not miss. Mrs. Fiske, in her superb portrayal of the girl-thief Leah, will have associated with her most of the players who comprised last season's cast. John Mason will again play Sylvaino, George Arliss Raoul Berton, and William B. Mack Scram. Frederic de Belleville, who makes his first appearance as Kleschna, will complete the group that figures most prominently in the powerful episodes of Mr. McLellan's play. Claus Bogel, John Emerson, Monroe Salisbury, Charles Terry, Fernanda Eliscu, Emily Stevens and Mary Maddern will have their former roles. Charles Balsar and Belle Bohn are other new members of the company.

LITERARY.

The complete novelette in the October Lippincott's is "A Manila Madness." Its author is Frederic Reddale, whose earlier works, "The Other Man" and "A Transaction of Rubies," have also been brought out by this magazine. His latest production is primarily a mystery story possessing an intense love-interest. The plot is hatched at Manila, but quickly shifts to New York city for the scene of its unravelling. In his portrayal of the character feminine Mr. Reddale seems to be particularly felicitous, and in the dramatic situation he excels. A millionaire, whose one cross in life is a nomadic son, tries to draw up his will so as to control the future of his boy and anchor him to civilization. In distant Manila the wanderer learns of his father's taking-off and of the fortune that has been left to him—with "a string to it." Remorse and resentment fight for supremcay in facing these conditions. Then something happens—this something is the absorbing tale of "A Manila Madnes.s"

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

TO REMOVE MILDEW.

Now is the time of year when garments that have been laid away in trunks or have not been unpacked at the seashore are likely to show mildew, and the careful housewife hastens to remove the stains. One method which has been successfully used since the days of our great-grandmothers is to wash the garment carefully, soak it over night in buttermilk, and spread it on the grass in the sun to dry. This process must sometimes be repeated several times before the stains are entirely removed, and the process may be hastened by rubbing plenty of salt in with the butter milk. Salt contains a large percentage of chlorine and is therefore a strong bleaching agent.

Another way to remove mildew stains is by washing the fabric thoroughly and rubbing soap well into the stains, then rubbing powdered chalk in thoroughly, and bleaching on the grass in the sun. This process may also have to be repeated several times before it is completely successful.

If linen becomes mildewed, wet it and rub soap on the stains. Then rub with lemon juice and salt on both sides of the goods. After this apply powdered pipe clay or fuller's earth, or powdered chalk, and expose to the sun and air for several hours.

If used carefully, chloride of lime will be found another valuable means of removing these stains. Two ounces of it should be left to stand for ten minutes in a quart of boiling water. Then add three quarts of cold water, steep the stained article in this preparation for ten or twelve hours, remove and wash out the lime.

TO BE POPULAR.

Be helpful.
Be sociable.
Be unselfish.
Be generous.
Be a good listener.
Never worry or whine.
Study the art of pleasing.
Be frank, open and truthful.
Always be ready to lend a hand.
Be kind and polite to everybody.
Be self-confident, but not conceited.
Never monopolize the conversation.
Take a genuine interest in other people.
Always look on the bright side of things.
Take pains to remember names and faces.
Never criticise or say unkind things of others.
Look for the good in others, not for their faults.
Cultivate health and thus radiate strength and courage.
Forgive and forget injuries, but never forget benefits.
Rejoice as genuinely in another's success as in your own.
Always be considerate of the rights and feelings of others.
Have a good time, but never let fun degenerate into license.
Learn to control yourself under the most trying circumstances.
Have a kind word and a cheery encouraging smile for everyone.
Be respectful to women, and chivalrous in your attitude toward them.
Meet trouble like a man, and cheerfully endure what you can't cure.
Believe in the brotherhood of man, and recognize no class distinctions.—Success.

SALAD DRESSING.

In regard to the correct dressing of salads, there is an old adage which says: "One should be a spendthrift in oil, a miser in vinegar and a counsellor in salt." In preparing the average salad this is a good rule to follow.

Mayonnaise dressing still retains its fame as the superior salad dressing, but for certain salads others are better than mayonnaise. For vegetables like cucumbers and cabbage a real mayonnaise is too delicate. A boiled dressing is more suitable. The idea once so prevalent that a rich mayonnaise of chicken or lobster is unwholesome is absurd. Mayonnaise dressing is wholesome when taken as everything should be, in moderation. Olive oil is always healing and nutritious, and therefore excellent for consumptives, delicate persons and pale-faced children. Yolks of eggs cannot be said to be unwholesome. The touch of vinegar gives a stimulus to the appetite and the seasonings used are an aid to the digestion of the rich meats. For variety's sake the ordinary mayonnaise can be tinted a beautiful green with some drops of spinach or colored bright red with a little juice from a boiled beet. Lobster coral, also, pounded fine, is used occasionally as a red coloring for mayonnaise. A cup of stiff whipped cream is another nice addition to this dressing.

Mint Sauce.

Take fresh young spearmint leaves, stripped from the stems; wash and drain them or dry on a cloth. Chop very fine, put in a gravy boat, and to three tablespoonsful of mint put two of white sugar; mix and let it stand a few minutes, then pour over it six tablespoonsful of good cider or white wine vinegar. The sauce should be made some time before it is to be used, so that the flavor of the mint may be well extracted. Fine with roast lamb.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Let the Frosts Come.

In view of the recent cool weather, it is germane to mention that the hay fever victims and farmers are as far apart in their views as the Japanese and Russian peace commissioners were a month ago. The hay fever victims are reading with glee of the frosts in the New England States and in parts of Pennsylvania, eagerly scanning the weather reports for a repetition of the same weather here, while the farmer is hoping that frost will stay off for some time to come. —Trenton State Gazette.

Suggested Conveniences for Trolley Patrons.

The thought of the Jersey City Journal that there should be trolley waiting rooms, will find a response in every city where passengers are tumbled off in any old place, in any kind of weather, to make connections with other roads. And while the broom of reform is at work, there should be some rule whereby trolley cars, which transport people long distances, should be fiteed with toilet arrangements.—Trenton True American.

Plainfield Waking Up.

Plainfield is just waking up to a realization that while its citizens were slumbering in the peaceful imagination that they lived in the garden spot of the country that a political ring has been weaving its web about the town. The awakening came when a couple of councilmen raided a big "speak easy" running full blast on a losing adowawrkd full blast on a Sunday night. Plainfield is surely losing its reputation as an eminently respectable city and is becoming notorious through the State.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Nation's Rifle Range.

In the competition at Sea Girt in the national and State rifle tournaments which ended on Saturday New Jersey guardsmen made a creditable showing. Opposed to them was the greatest number of skilled riflemen that had ever assembled on a rifle range, including nearly all the best shots in the United States. It was the hardest test that New Jersey riflemen had ever been subjected to, and the record they made is highly honorable to their State. Perhaps the State guard would have done much better if the Legislature in previous years had not been so parsimonious in its treatment of rifle practise. For three years the apparent purpose of Governor Voorhees and the Legislature was to kill interest in the National Guard and destroy all the results of rifle practise. Governor Murphy put an end to that insensate policy. But Sea Girt is no longer a State institution. It is national. Owned by the State of New Jersey, it has become the great meeting ground of American riflemen, of experts in the army and navy and National Guard and in civil life, and the principal contests are those established by Congress in its great scheme of a national militia composed of men skilled with the rifle, such riflemen as the Transvaal Republic possessed and those that make little Switzerland formidable in her mountain fastnesses. New Jersey may, indeed, some day transfer Sea Girt to the national government, with the reserved right to encamp New Jersey troops there at a certain period in each year.—Newark Advertiser.

Change of Managers.

It is said that Senator Childs has appointed new lieutenants to conduct his campaign this fall. Three years ago Mr. Clark was the field marshal of the campaign movements and all orders came from his headquarters. Even the county committee, of which Jacob Shurts was the head, counted for little when there were any vital questions to be decided. This applied to even the preliminary campaign for Major Dungan took measures to snatch the nomination away from Mr. Childs and, in an unguarded moment, when Mr. Clark was absent, the Major did get the nomination. Then there was a big hubbub and Mr. Clark made things so interesting that Major Dungan, either as a matter of self-protection or as a matter of expediency, withdrew and permitted Mr. Childs to get the nomination. From that time on Mr. Dungan occupied a tent outside the fortifications. But, behold! it now appears that Senator Childs has changed his manager. Major Dungan, who was administered a dose of get-out medicine by the Childs machine three years ago, now seems to be the campaign fiddler. He has come out with a public statement that Childs will be renominated and that the "fight is going to be a warm one." If Mr. Clark and Mr. Fury have been assigned a rear seat there are likely to be some interesting developments. Especially is this true since there are evidences that former United States Senator Smith is beginning to interest all lagging Democrats in counties where Senators are to be elected. We have not had confided to us the reasons which Mr. Childs has for changing his campaign managers, but he must have good ones to brave the storm which is likely to break about his head.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

A Sewing Machine Secret.

Take out the screws that hold the foot-plate, remove it, and you will be surprised at the amount of fluff accumulated there. Then clean under the whole of the plate and the little grooves with a penknife (having first removed the needle). Very often this accumulation of fluff is the cause of the machine running hard and not working well.

BOTTLE DRIFTED 150 MILES.

Missive Sent by New Brunswick People Returned by L. I. Boatman.

New Brunswick, Sept. 25.—A bottle containing a note, thrown overboard in the Atlantic, forty miles east of Point Judith, by a party of New Brunswick women on August 14, was picked up Sunday at East Moniches Beach, Long Island, by a boatman.

Miss Sylvina Martin, Miss Catharine Donahue and Miss Anna G. Donahue, of this city, and Hugo V. Candidus, of Brooklyn, were passengers aboard the Maine Steamship Company's ship Horatio Hall, leaving New York for Portland August 13, 1905. The ship passed Point Judith at 7 o'clock, and at 9:30 o'clock, after breakfast, the passengers started the game of throwing overboard bottles containing notes. The New Brunswick party borrowed a bottle from the steward and wrote a note on A. J. Martin's letter paper: "August 14, 1905, 9:30. Sylvina Martin, Catharine Donahue, Anna G. Donahue. 7 o'clock passed Point Judith, and such a breakfast you never saw. Communicate New Brunswick Daily Times and receive as a reward twenty-five cigarettes." The reward was Mr. Candidus' suggestion. The note and a card of Mr. Candidus and of Mr. Martin were enclosed in the bottle, which was corked and thrown overboard.

Friday morning The Times received the note and cards, with a letter: "September 20, 1905. The enclosed was taken from a bottle at East Moriches Beach on September 17, at 11:30 a. m., by Captain C. W. Tooker, of East Moriches, Long Island. Send along the cigarettes."

The Times at once notified Miss Martin by telephone. The reward will be sent as promised.

Moriches is on the south shore of Long Island, sixty-seven miles from New York, and 150 miles from where the bottle was thrown overboard.

A CANINE MESSENGER.

Carries Newspapers from the Black Diamond Express to Farmers.

Government Rural Free Delivery in Schuyler county, New York, has a strong competitor. A handsome collie dog awaits the arrival of the Black Diamond Express from New York and Philadelphia, at a point on the Lehigh Valley Railroad near Watkins Glen, on Seneca Lake, and carries home to his master on a farm nearby, a bundle of newspapers, obligingly thrown from the train by the Pullman conductor, who makes up the package of newspapers that have been abandoned by the passengers on his car. Thus the farmers around that point in central western New York State get their afternoon New York and Philadelphia papers about twelve hours ahead of the Government delivery, and free in the bargain.

The good fortune of the farmers has resulted from what might be called "canine curiosity." Several months ago the Pullman conductor noticed a collie waiting at the tracks every time the Black Diamond Express passed. One day he threw off a bundle of newspapers, which the dog eagerly took in his mouth, and galloped away with. As this seemed to be what the dog had been waiting for, the conductor and others on the run of the Black Diamond Express have continued the practice, and it is now a daily occurrence, although the speed of the Black Diamond Express at this particular point is above 60 miles an hour, and the papers have to be made up in strong packages to prevent being scattered when the bundle reaches the ground. The interest of the trainmen in the matter has spread to the passengers, who eagerly look out for the canine rural delivery messenger when passing that point.

A peculiar proof of canine intelligence lies in the fact that the dog arrives at the point where he meets the train, a half hour before train time each day, starting from home, so the farmers say, without being coached to do so.

REFUSES NOMINATION.

School Board Should be Non-Partisan, and Rahway Man Draws Out.

Rahway, Sept. 25.—Robert D. Gibby, Democratic nominee for school commissioner, gives these reasons for declining to serve:

"At the primary election held in the Fifth ward September 12 I was selected as the nominee for school commissioner on the Democratic ticket, which nomination I respectfully decline for the reason that in my humble opinion the Board of Education should be non-partisan. It is to be hoped that the Legislature will, in the near future, enact a law in effect that Boards of Education throughout the State be made non-partisan by having an equal number of its members of each political party, the board to be nominated by the mayor and confirmed by the Common Council."

Veteran Newspaper Man.

Elizabeth, Sept. 25.—Horace F. J. Drake, for many years one of the best known newspaper men in New Jersey and who, more than thirty-five years ago, with Henry Cook, started the Elizabeth Daily Herald, this city's first paper, which for years they successfully conducted, is now in this city visiting old friends. Mr. Drake for nineteen years has held a position in the government's printing department at Washington. The recent death of his mother, on September 11, caused him to take a vacation sooner than he intended. He is a Civil War veteran, a member of Ulric Dahlgren Post, G. A. R., and also of a post in Washington.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

Annual Event at Crescent Avenue Sunday School.

Rally Day exercises of a special character were held at Warren chapel yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Sunday school. There were addresses by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, George A. Strong and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, and Mr. Grenert, bass oloist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, sang a solo.

A feature of the programme was the presentation of a scheme to raise funds for the new chapel building to be erected on Watchung avenue. The members of the chapel, young and old, are to earn a sum of money, according to their ability, and on Thanksgiving Day at the chapel the money is to be turned in and each person is to tell how the money was earned. The children will meet in the afternoon and the adults at night. The Ladies' Aid Society of the chapel started this scheme a week ago and the idea is to be carried out by the members of the chapel.

SUES FOR $30,000.

Mrs. Beloff Seeks Heavy Damages for Husband's Death.

An action to recover $30,000 damages, brought by Mrs. Eva Beloff, of Stelton, for the death of her husband, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be tried in the Supreme Court at New Brunswick on Wednesday. Beloff was killed at Stelton on October 27, 1903. Mrs. Beloff is represented by William Newcorn.

The suit was brought some time ago, but the trial was delayed in order to have a jury inspection of the scene when the foliage and other conditions were the same as at the time of the accident.

Disturber Ejected.

A boisterous young man made a nuisance of himself in the gallery of the theatre Saturday night, and Sepcial Officer Conroy promptly threw him out. The management has instructed Officer Conroy to hold the exuberant gallery gods in stern check.

Campers' Reunion.

The Y. M. C. A. boys who were in camp on Tuxis Island last summer held a reunion at the association building Saturday night. Camp reminicenses and stories were recounted and a delightful informal time was enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

An Early Morning Still Alarm.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 12:05 yesterday morning for a blaze in a chimney at 207 East Front street, the Hetfield property. No. 2 wagon and men were sent out and killed the flames with two extinguishers.

Mrs. Yates' Mother Dead.

Mrs. Frederick W. Yates, of Kensington avenue, has received word of the death of her mother, Mrs. Martha Stanley Cornwell. She passed away at her home in Cambridge, Mass., Thursday.

Supt. H. C. Krebs Will Speak.

The Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church will hold its first fall meeting on Thursday night, when H. C. Krebs, superintendent of borough schools, will make an address.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE.

Rev. Dr. Clark Celebrates Golden Anniversary at New Market Church.

Fifty years of service in the ministry was observed by Rev. Dr. George W. Clark, of Hightstown, yesterday, with a special service in his first charge, the Baptist church of New Market. Several of the church members who were parishioners of Dr. Clark attended the service, among them being Mrs. Mary Squires, Robert Lowrie and Nelson Blackford. The congregation was a large one.

Dr. Clark preached a reminiscent sermon. In the course of it he expressed the conviction that the church was certain to have a handsome new home soon, and he hoped he would be there to lay the cornerstone.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will hold a consecration service tomorrow night.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Warren chapel will meet in the chapel Friday afternoon at 2:30 for sewing.

Preparatory services will be held at Warren chapel on Friday night and communion the following Sunday morning.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will return to the afternoon sessions on Sunday, October 1, when a special rally programme will be provided.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The Citizens' party of the borough will hold a public meeting on Thursday night at which time addresses will be made on timely subjects by prominent residents of the borough.

Told of His Travels.

Dr. Rufus B. Richardson brother-in-law of Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, for a number of years professor of Greek at Dartmouth College, and for the past eleven years head of the American School of Archaeology at Athens, Greece, spoke at the Plainfield High School this morning. His subject was "Greece, Its Land and People." He greatly enlightened the pupils upon the subject. He also told about the American work in excavating the old city of Corinth.

Primary Classes Rally.

The primary department of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday-school held its annual rally day exercises yesterday afternoon. There was an informal programme and the superintendent, W. D. Murray, gave the children an interesting address.

MINISTER WAS MISSING.

Dr. McCrea Forgot that He Had Changed the Hour of Service.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea's notices at the First M. E. church a week ago included an announcement that the Sunday morning services thereafter would begin at 10:30 o'clock instead of 11 o'clock.

The congregation gathered at 10:30 yesterday morning. At 10:35 they looked in surprise at a vacant pulpit. At 10:45 the pulpit was still vacant, and a suspicion of what had taken place began to dawn on them. When Dr. McCrea appeared at 11 o'clock a congregation full of smiles greeted him. Then the divine realized the situation. An apology for his forgetfulness was the first thing on the morning's programme.

Woman Maltreated.

It is reported that eleven men maltreated a woman in Scotch Plains last night. So far as can be learned the authorities have taken no action.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

Because of the limited playground at the Somerset Street School, Superintendent Krebs has asked the parents of pupils to co-operate with him in keeping them from reaching the building too early. In a circular letter given out today he asks that the pupils not come to school before 8:40 in the morning and 1:15 in the afternoon, when they can enter their respective classrooms.

M. W. Halsey Dead.

Ex-Alderman Meline W. Halsey died suddenly yesterday morning at his home in Elizabeth, from an acute attack of Bright's disease, after an illness of only two days. He was for many years secretary and treasurer of the Union County Savings Bank. In politics Mr. Halsey was a Republican. He was one of the organizers of the Lincoln Association of Union county and also of the Potts Republican Club, of Elizabeth.

Conservatism is one of the key notes of the success of this Company.

SOMERSET COURT OPENS

Long List Of Supreme, Circuit, Common Pleas And Justices' Cases.

GARRETSON PRESIDES

Grand Jury Has Many Important Criminal Cases to Investigate —Civil and Criminal Causes.

The September term of the Somerset County Courts opened at Somerville at 10:15 o'clock this morning, with Justice Abram Q. Garretson presiding and Judge Schenck associate.

This term promises to be one of the busiest in many years. There is a big list of civil cases to be tried, including five Supreme, seven Circuit, three Common Pleas and twenty justice appeal causes.

The Grand Jury has many important criminal cases to investigate and it is probable a score or more of true bills will be found.

Some of the civil cases on the list of interest to Plainfielders are:

Supreme.

Stonewall Jackson against Central R. R. Co. of New Jersey, in tort, Reed & Coddington; A. A. Clark and George Holmes. Issue filed August 21, 1905.

Justus H. Cooley against James B. Wilson, trustee et al, on contract, George V. W. Voy; Paul Q. Oliver. Filed August 22, 1905.

JOHNSON APPOINTED ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR

YOUNG SOMERVILLE LAWYER SWORN IN BY JUSTICE GARRETSON.

Edward P. Johnson, Jr., of Somerville, has been selected as assistant prosecutor of Somerset county. His appointment was confirmed by Justice Garretson today.

Mr. Johnson was sworn in as clerk of the present Grand Jury, now in session. The new assistant prosecutor studied law with Vice Chancellor James J. Bergen and has had considerable experience in trying criminal cases.

Mr. Johnson is a young lawyer who has done remarkably well. He is prominent socially and is a member of the Bachelor Club, the Somerville Athletic Club and the Somerset County Bar Association.

Basketball for Firemen.

Basketball will be added to the social side of the life of the firemen at the East Second street house. The spacious yard in the rear of the building will be used for a field. After the men learn the game a match between the firemen and the policemen, who have been playing the game for two years, will be arranged.

Vacation Sociable.

CITY REPUBLICANS NOMINATE ON OCT. 26

PARTY CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN REFORM HALL.

The city Republican convention will be held at Reform Hall on Thursday night, October 26. This was decided at a meeting of the city Republican executive committee held last night in the office of the secretary, William Newcorn, Esq. There were ten members present. In the absence of the chairman, Dr. O. L. Jenkins, the chair was occupied by Frank H. Smith, chairman of the county Republican committee.

Horace G. Adams, chairman of the committee on naturalization, presented a brief report, telling of its efforts to secure papers for those seeking them.

Horace G. Adams, William R. Townsend, John W. Murray, Jr., and Andrew McCardell were appointed a committee on registration and they will look out for voters who have not yet had their names registered. The committee was in session only twenty-five minutes and adjourned to meet subject to the call of the chairman.

NO WEST END AVE. BRIDGE UNTIL NEXT YEAR?

AT MEETING THIS AFTERNOON PROJECT MAY BE DEFERRED.

The joint committee from the Union and Somerset County Boards of Freeholders will meet at the Hotel Kensington, this afternoon, to further consider the plans for the erection of a new bridge on West End avenue over Green brook, and unless radical changes are made in the plans as presented at the last meeting, it is doubtful whether the bridge will be erected this year. The Somerset County Board of Freeholders is determined not to exceed the $7,500 appropriation. This was shown at the last meeting when they refused to increase the appropriation.

The Union county members are willing to exceed their appropriation a reasonable sum to have the bridge built, and W. T. Kirk offered plans which would bring the structure within a few hundred dollars of the sum appropriated, but the Somerset county members would not consider them.

There is now a new phase to the problem. It is understood that several concerns who bid on the work originally, are not over-anxious to get the work, owing to the difficulty in getting material and this may have a tendency to delay the matter. It is thought only a fair proposition for the freeholders to erect the bridge in view of the large sum of money being expended in the West End of the borough for improvements, and while the improvements may not be stopped if the new bridge is not built, it will not allow them to be completed. It is reported that the Somerset county members would like to have the matter go over until next year and have the expense come out of the appropriation for 1906.

CREDITORS UNDULY SCARED.

Heard Mr. Thiers Was Going to Move and Hustled Attachments Out.

William Thiers against whom several attachments were sworn by creditors when it was learned that he intended to move to Maryland, has settled all the claims against him, without costs. Mr. Thiers has secured a position in Maryland and intends to go there to enter upon it.

Mr. Thiers is indignant over the attachments. He says he never had the remotest intention of leaving the city without paying his bills, and that as soon as he learned of the attachments he immediately settled all his accounts in full. He went first to his largest creditors, who were not among those who had secured attachments. The latter paid the costs of their actions. Mr. Thiers says that in some cases the attachments were secured the same day the first bills were sent. W. R. Codington is Mr. Thiers' lawyer.

A Poor Show.

Those who went to the New Plainfield theatre last night expecting to find some of the press notices on "A Hot Old Time" realized were sorely disappointed. The show was a poor affair all the way through, trashily presented by a company that appeared to have been thrown very hastily together. It was practically a fifteen-minute vaudeville sketch diluted and stretched to cover three acts. The audience was not very large, but it made up in the volume of its criticism what it lacked in size.

WESTFIELD MAY BREAK

Denman's Friends To Decide Tonight Whether To Cancel The Last Game.

HAVE A GRIEVANCE

Claim to be Disgusted Over Plainfield's Rank Exhibition Last Saturday—Sore All Over.

Sore to rawness over the sloppy exhibition put up by the Commuters at Recreation Park on Saturday, the Westfield baseball magnates are seriously considering a refusal to come here for the remaining game of the series next Saturday afternoon. So pronounced is the feeling among the Westfield supporters of the game and the men who back the team that there is a strong chance that the series will be abruptly terminated. A meeting to decide the question of another go at Plainfield will be held by Chief Magnate Denman and his associates tonight.

Mr. Denman is very much put out by the game, and says so frankly. It is characteristic of Mr. Denman to knock the Plainfield management without reserve whenever occasion offers, solely for business purposes, but this time he is evidently sincere in his expressions of feeling.

"It was an imposition on the crowd and a slap in the face for the crowd and a slap in the face for Westfield," said the Pirate manager last night, "and the people up in my town feel and talk that way. He had the fastest team we could get together, and went into the game to play it for all it was worth. Daab should have done the same. It was understood in Westfield all along that Deegan was to do the pitching, and we cannot see why he was not put in. He was on the bench in uniform, and in shape to pitch.

"Beck is known to be a mark for our batters, and to put that boy Weiner in the box was an affront. He told Daab that I wouldn't give him a chance to show what he could do in the box. Now, what reason was that for putting a boy like that against us? Why, in the first place, with a pitcher like Red Waller on hand and ready to pitch, should I try an experimental twirler? I knew what he could do, and didn't need a try-out to make it plain. Daab knew that and should never have had the boy out in uniform let alone pitching.

"I doubt very much if there is any hope of bringing the Westfield crowd out to Plainfield for another game. The memory of Saturday's game is too strongly embedded in the Westfield mind to be wiped out by anything the Plainfield management might do."

"Lou Wiltse is to pitch for Plainfield Saturday," Mr. Denman was told; "won't that information, meaning, as it does, the certainty of a close game, serve to attract the crowd?"

"I don't think anything can serve to attract the Westfield crowd," was the pessimistic reply. "It is felt that we have been given a rough deal, and the feeling is too acute to die away.

"The question of game-or-no-game Saturday will be settled tonight. Mind, I am not in favor of cutting the game out, and will try to smooth things out. But I am sore; I am, honestly. It wasn't right.

MISS FICKE WEDS.

Becomes Mrs. Albert W. Pangborn at Home of Bride.

Miss Friederika Ficke, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ficke, of East Front street, and Albert W. Pangborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pangborn, of Chatham street, were married on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. F. Koechli, of Somerville, former pastor of the German Reformed church, of the borough.

Mrs. George Zepp, of this city, sister of the bride, was the matron-of-honor, and Henry Weber, brother-in-law of the groom, was the best man.

The bride was gowned in white silk, embroidered with lace and carried white roses. The matron-of-honor was gowned in white silk mull, trimmed with lace and carried pink carnations.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Harry Weber. Following the reception the bride and groom left for a wedding trip and upon their return will live in this city.

The groom is well-known in the city and borough, and is a talented musician. He is in business with his father, who is a contractor. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Stephen H. Schleif, of Park avenue, and the latter as well as Mrs. Zepp, the other sister, were married by Rev. Mr. Koechli.

A. J. B. Clement, of Central avenue, has returned from a visit to friends in Hoboken.

MET DEATH IN FLAMES

Charles L. Brokaw Overcome In Blazing Room At His Home.

HIS WIFE ESCAPES

Origin of Fire a Mystery—Family in Bed When Flames Were Discovered by Boy.

Charles L. Brokaw, aged about thirty-five years, was burned to a crisp in his home at East Millstone Sunday night. His home was totally destroyed. Mrs. Brokaw escaped with a little clothing. All of the household goods were destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw had been away from home Sunday to spend the day. Upon their return they retired early. About 9 o'clock the bound boy who had been working for Mr. Brokaw ran into his room and awakened him to say that he smelled smoke in the house and that he thought that there must be a fire. Mr. Brokaw, awakened from a sound sleep, was bewildered for a few seconds, then he got up and rushed from the bedroom downstairs to investigate. He opened the door, ran through the lower hall and to the sitting room door, from which the smoke seemd to be pouring.

Throwing open the door he rushed into the room, apparently intent upon finding the seat of the fire and still a little dazed from being awakened so suddenly. He ran right into the room, which was ablaze. He dropped inside the door, overcome by the great volume of smoke and flame which shot out at him. There he lay, unable to pull himself out of the grasp of the flame, and there he died and was horridly burned.

Mrs. Brokaw followed her husband downstairs about a quarter of a minute behind him. She started to enter the sitting room, too, but the flames shot out and drove her back. She supposed that her husband had gone out to give an alarm and arouse the neighbors. The bound boy insisted that Mr. Brokaw had entered the burning room and was being burned to death there, but Mrs. Brokaw could not believe that her husband had entered that room.

It was fully half an hour before any of the neighbors arrived on the scene and it was then too late to save anything from the house. The delay in giving the alarm caused Mrs. Brokaw to think that the story of the bound boy might be true after all. But it was then too late to get near the burning room. The torture of her mind while she watched the burning building cannot be described.

After the fire had burned itself out a search of the ruins revealed the charred bones of Mr. Brokaw, lying where the bound boy had said that his master had disappeared.

County Physician Taylor, of Somerset county, gave a permit for burial.

Mrs. Brokaw went to the home of her father, John L. F. Van Doren, where she is now staying.

While the origin of the fire is in doubt, it is believed that it started from the wooden fireboard of the open fireplace in the sitting room. No other solution can be offered.

The Brokaw place adjoins the Fleischman place on one side and the Abram Nevius place on the other side.

Mr. Brokaw was the son of John Brokaw, deceased, who had lived at East Millstone all of his life. He had been married about three years. He leaves no children. He was an officer of the East Millstone Reformed church and assisted in officiating at the communion service there Sunday morning.

Enjoyed a Corn Roast.

About forty members of the Belleview Tennis Club, composed of the young people of the Seventh-Day Baptist church brought a successful season to a close last night with a corn roast at the home of Reuna Randolph at Mt. Pleasant. The affair was held in the woods back of Mr. Randolph's home and there were many pleasant features.

The Boys' Club of Hope chapel has appointed Watter Firstbrook business manager of the bowling teab; Frank Rimmer captain and James Kenney manager of the basketball team. Basketball practice will be held Friday night for the trying-out of candidates.

T. A. B. to Hold Another Dance.

The dance given by the T. A. B. Society last week being such a success, the society has decided to hold another dance on October 13. The committee in charge comprises Miles Wilson, David Doyles, Thomas Hines, Joseph Birmingham and Thomas McInnerary.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Skillman, of East Seventh street, are entertaining Miss F. B. Clyde, of Philadelphia.

ESTIMATE BOARD FAVORED

Borough School Trustees Discuss Change Of Method In Securing Finances.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Marshals to be Paid Twenty-five Cents Each for Return of Truants—Final Payments on New Building.

Though no definite action was taken, the North Plainfield Board of Education at a meeting last night, took up the question of having a board of estimate to fix upon and appropriate its finances, instead of securing them by public vote as is done at present. The subject was broached by Samuel Townsend and in asking the other members for their opinion, expressed himself as favoring the plan, at the same time stating that no effort would be made to bring it about at this time unless it met with the unanimous consent of the Board. As there is to be a mayor and new councilmen elected this fall no suspicion of politics could be attached to it. Mr. Townsend stated that he brought up the matter without having consulted with anyone excepting the president of the Board.

Opposition was offered by Mr Laing, who said he saw no particular gain in making the change as at the present time the people always rely on the Board to practice economy and sanction whatever sums are asked for. No vote was taken but the matter will be brought up again at a later session.

According to Mr. Townsend, North Plainfield is one of the largest municipalities in the State to secure its school money by popular vote or the "town meeting" method. The Board of Education carefully considers what is needed and then asks the approval of the Board of Estimate. As a rule, no interest is manifested in an appropriation at a school election and yet, Mr. Townsend said, if a political faction cared to oppose an appropriation it could be very easily done and so put the school trustees to a great deal of inconvenience. He suggested that the power be placed in the hands of a board of school estimate, as is done in Plainfield; the membership to consist of the mayor and two councilmen and two men from the Board of Education. Mr. Laing pointed out that this virtually placed the power in the hands of the mayor as he would have the deciding vote, though he did not imply that it would be used any way but for the best interests of the people. Many other opinions were expressed and the school law covering the question was carefully discussed before the matter was dropped for the time being.

The truancy question also came up again last night and by vote of the board it was decided to have the police department to round up all pupils who persist in the practice. Heretofore it has been done by Janitor MacDonald, or the Somerset building, but his duties have so increased that it is impossible for him to go out. The marshal who gets a truant reported to him is to be paid twenty-five cents, "cash on delivery." Superintendent Krebs reported that truants are few at this season of the year and that so far he had experienced little or no trouble.

At the request of Chairman Cooley, of the building and grounds committee, final payments were made William C. Smith, mason; D. J. Galbraith, plumber, and the American Clock Company for work on the Somerset building.

Finch's Jewelry Factory Destroyed.

William C. Finck's manufacturing jewelry establishment, located opposite the Jersey Central tracks between Elizabeth and the 'Port, was totally destroyed by fire which broke out at 1:30 this morning. The loss will aggregate $30,000, with an insurance of $20,000 on building, stock and machinery. Finck alleges incendiarism to have been the origin, but this is scouted by the police.

Boys' Reception.

The annual fall reception of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will be held on Saturday night. A feature of the entertainment will be a Punch and Judy show, conducted by a member of the association. Readings and harmonica selections will be given.

Dr. Parsons to Speak.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church, will make an address at a district meeting of the Epworth League to be held in the M. E. church, Westfield, Thursday night. All of the local Epworth Leagues will be represented.

Mt. Bethel Resident Dead.

Joseph Wittman, a well known resident of Mt. Bethel, died at his home yesterday, in his seventy-fifth year. The funeral will be held at the Mt. Bethel church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

THE M'ADOOS MET BUT DID NOTHING

SOLEMN CONCLAVE AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS LAST NIGHT.

The new police commission met in solemn conclave last night, the scene of their meeting being the upper chamber of police headquarters. Contrary to expectations, no officers were chosen. George Wean will have to wait until later before he is appointed clerk, but he is a certainty for the job, so he does not have to worry.

When the four members of the board had assembled former Assemblyman William Newcorn, laden down with law books, made his appearance. For a time, after general handshaking all around, the commission was informed of its rights, duties and perquisites under the law.

It was decided to take no action until after the Common Council is notified of the Mayor's move. The city fathers will be enlightened officially tonight.

It is said that City Clerk MacMurray disclaims any responsibility for the innovation in the city government. Judge Runyon, also, refuses to take any of the glory. It's "the man higher up," said one politician today.

AGED FARMER WILL BECOME A BLACKSMITH

A. J. RYNO, SEVENTY YEARS OLD, TO CHANGE FOR RELAXATION.

Tired of the placidity of the simple life after fifty years of farming, A. J. Ryno, one of the oldest, if not actually the dean, of the farmers in the neighborhood of Fanwood township, has decided to exchange the quiet of a rural life for the bustle of blacksmithing and wheelwrighting. He has ordered the sale of his farm near Two Bridges and purchased the blacksmith and wheelwright shop of "Prince" Brown, on Richmond street.

Mr. Ryno is over seventy years old. He has been farming on his place at Two Bridges for the past half century. If there is any farm in the vicinity that has been going longer under one man it is the Lambert place.

Mr. Ryno is hale and hearty, and full of interest in the things that are occupying the world. 'He says he is going into the blacksmithing business as a relaxation. He has always done a little wheelwrighting as a side business to farming.

The farming utensils and stock of the Ryno place will be offered at auction on October 11, at 12:30. Justice Hezekiah Hand will conduct the auction. Judge Hand knows Mr. Ryno well, and will interpolate some biting comment on Dr. Osler and his theory of human usefulness in his auctioneering.

T. O. BULLOCK DEAD.

Former Plainfielder Passes Away in Morris County.

Thomas O. Bullock, formerly a resident of Putnam and Kensington avenues, died at 11:45 o'clock last nigth at his home near Succasunny, Morris county, following a long illness with diabetes. He moved from this city to Succasunny last spring and his health continued to fail gradually.

Mr. Bullock was sixty-five years old, and several years ago made a fortune in New York as a sugar broker. He lived a retired life for a number of years. He was a brother-in-law to Albert Hedden, of West Fourth street, and he also has a sister living in Quebec. He is survived by a wife.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but the interment will be in Hillside cemetery, this city, the day following the service.

In Honor of Guest.

Mrs. Adam Fritz, of Summit avenue, entertained a party of friends at her home last night in honor of Mrs. August Trust, of Arcadia, N. C. Instrumental music was furnished by Sam Frazee and Anthony Kregar and Mrs. George Voehl sang two solos. With these and other diversions a delightful evening was passed.

In Recorder Doud's Court.

By promising to leave liquor alone for all time to come, William Lane escaped with a suspended sentence of thirty days when arraigned before Recorder Doud last night on a charge of drunkenness. He was arrested Saturday by Chief Marshal Weiss for annoying the tenants of a Somerset street flat.

CROWDS THRONG MISSION

Paulist Father Lectures On "Why Am I a Catholic."

GIVES HIS REASONS

Declares History Testifies that Catholic Church Alone Teaches All Doctrines of Earliest Christianity.

The Paulist Fathers' lectures at Washington Hall, South Plainfield, were brought to a close last night, when an especially large audience turned out to hear a talk on "Why I Am a Catholic." Every means was tried to accommodate all those who sought admission, and finally many were turned away. A very favorable impression was made on all the non-Catholics who have been attending these lectures, for they could not help noticing and admiring the fairness and charity with which these priests deal with their "separated brethren," their motto being "No controversy; no abuse."

In the course of his lecture Father Healy pointed out and developed at great length the two particular reasons he had to give for being a Catholic. They were: First, faith in divinity of Christ; and, second, the study of history.

"I am a Catholic because I believe Christ to be really and personally God, so that I am bound in conscience to accept absolutely every doctrine that He taught. Only because Christ is God can I accept the mystery of the Trinity, and the mystery of the Redemption; because He is God I must accept them. Only because Christ is God can I accept the doctrine of forgiveness of sin through confession, and the doctrine of His real presence in the Holy Communion; but because He is God I must accept them. I must accept these last two doctrines if I accept the first, for they are all equally the doctrine of the same Christ, who is really God. Be it a mystery profound, a law severe, or a saying 'hard to hear,' I must accept all without discrimination, without objection. More, Christ's promises are the promises of a God, and cannot possibly have failed. 'Twas a divine promise therefore when He said to His apostles as He sent them forth to teach, 'Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world.' So that Christ as God founded His church with His divine assurance that even the 'gates of hell should not prevail against it.' That He would be with it himself, even to the end of the world. And how the testimony of history is brought into play. The study of history shows that the Catholic church as an institution is nineteen hundred years old. It is the impartial testimony of history that the Catholic church is the only church as a distinct church that goes back to the days of the apostles, the only one that falls heir to that divine promise 'I am with you.'

"History testifies to this fact that the Catholic church alone today teaches all the doctrines of the earliest days of Christianity, yet whatever was taught and believed in those days could not have been wrong, and must be believed today. History shows that the Catholic church down to the present day is a one with the apostolic teaching. And if Christ's promise was divine and infallible, then the Catholic church must be true.

"Christ is God; His promises are divine. History is impartial, its testimony favors the Catholic church. Therefore I am a Catholic."

Gun Club Shoot Saturday.

The members of the Plainfield Gun Club met last night and decided to hold a shoot at the club grounds Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. At that time the blackbird trap will be used for the first time. Thereafter there will be a shoot on the grounds every Saturday afternoon. There will be a meeting of the club on Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock to complete arrangements for the big shoot to be held in October.

The Borough School Enrollment.

According to figures compiled by Superintendent Krebs, the total enrollment of pupils in the North Plainfield schools yesterday was 1,026. There are 758 in the Somerset Street School and 268 in the Watchung building. This is quite a large increase over last year, but the percentage cannot be given because of the absence of last year's figures.

Gold Medal Contest.

Under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., the Loyal Temperance Legion will hold a gold medal contest in the rooms on Park avenue tonight. An excellent programme has been arranged, including vocal and instrumental music and recitations, for which a medal will be presented to the contestant whom the judges decide to be the best.

I tried Ely's Cream Balm and to all appearances am cured of catarrh. The terrible headaches from which I long suffered are gone.—W. J. Hitchcock, late Major U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

The Gesang and Turn Verein will give an entertainment in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow night for members and their friends.

BAMBERGER'S
THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE
MARKET & HALSEY STS.

Our Formal Fall Opening.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday,
Sept. 26, 27, 28.

Suits and Outer Apparel, Millinery and Waists.

We are ready with the most pretentious showing of Women's, Misses' and Children's Outer Apparel, Millinery and Waists, in the history of the great Bamberger store. The talent of two continents has been lavished upon this display—rich and exclusive models from the fashion capitals of the old world and equally fetching modes from Gotham's most renowned fashioners. The cleverest conceptions are here in evening gown, carriage wraps and elaborate opera capes, while our display of tailored gowns and separate skirts is complete in the smallest detail and remarkably broad in scope. The Millinery display and the Waist showing are both extremely pretty.

When you get home and the evening meal is over you can feel the day's wear and tear disappear under the spell of Regina music. All you have to do is to sit and listen. And the whole family will enjoy it too. It rests tired mothers and soothes fretful little ones. A Regina Music Box plays all kinds of music. There are thousands of steel tune-discs that last forever and you can have just what you want—classical or popular, sacred or secular music. The tone of a Regina is rich, deep, mellow—real music, not tinkling. It's simply and strongly built. A child can "run it" and there will be no repair bills.

Our Easy Payment Plan

places a Regina in your home for $1.00 now and a small payment each month—so small you'll never miss the money. Ask us to explain.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

W. S. Terhune & Son, of North avenue, have a list of desirable properties for lease or rent.

Take your machine jobs to the Valantine Gas Engine Co., Sycamore street. Expert workmanship.

The Kensington Hotel, North avenue, is a high-grade, modern hostelry. Its patrons sing its praises loudly.

A. F. Naylor, of East Fifth street, can furnish you with music for your social affairs; good music, not merely noise.

If you contemplate putting electric bells in your home consult E. A. Craig, of East Front street. He knows the business from A to Z.

Charles F. Stahl, the Somerset street contractor, has had years of experience in house building. He will furnish estimates upon request.

William H. Pope, of North avenue, is an electrician of experience. Any work you want done in this line will be taken care of properly if you consult him.

As the season of weddings and receptions has arrived, don't forget that J. Hervey Doane, the jeweler, has a large stock from which to select gifts.

Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, have the reputation for doing the best painting and papering. Consult this firm when you need first class work.

Try a fish dinner for a change. Get the fish at Fred Ivamy's market, West Second street. It will be fine and fresh and properly dressed, wholesome and tempting.

Eggerding's cigars have stood the test of time and are recommended by every smoker who knows anything about tobacco. They are sold only at Eggerding's Park avenue store.

As straw hats have been called in it is time to think of a fall or winter tile. The place to get it is at U. B. Crane's West Front street haberdashery. All prices and all styles in derbies and soft hats.

When you want a good pair of shoes for men, women or children stop at Morris Abrams' store on West Front street. His stock is very large and complete as to sizes, while the prices are very low.

Banking methods at their best are exemplified by the management of the City National Bank. An account there is taken care of properly; it grows under normal conditions and is never in danger from the outside.

Shoeology is a science by itself, and it has been studied carefully by the makers of the Sorosis shoe. It represents durability, ease and stylishness all at once. They are sold by A. E. and A. L. Giddes, of West Front street.

When you purchase meat, fish or oysters at Roth & Co.'s market on East Front street, you are always sure to get the best and at prices that are within your reach. Give this market a trial and you will always trade there.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company is headquarters for the best stoves, ranges and all kinds of household utensils, also cutlery, oil stoves, graniteware and builders' materials. You will find these goods to be the best made and the prices just right to suit you.

With the arrival of the first few chills of autumn weather it is time to think of those seasonable goods that I. H. Boehm is showing. The counters of his big department store are replete with bargains in dress goods, underwear and comfortables. Come in any time and look around.

Nobody who has studied the business methods of the A. and P. Tea Company, wonders at its great and growing success. The system is founded on liberality and fair dealing. Customers feel that the company and all its employes are seeking means to give them the most that is compatible with a fair profit on the capital invested. The local store on West Front street, is a mecca for housewives.

This is the time for the men and boys to pick out their fall and winter suits, and M. Weinberger, of West Front street, has just the stock to select from. It is one of the largest in the State, the clothes absolutely correct as to style and are well made of the best material. Before purchasing elsewhere examine this stock. Mr. Weinberger also sells the celebrated Monarch "Pats," one of the best shoes manufactured.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On Oct. 1, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round Trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

Landlord and Tenant.

M. Weinberger has instituted a landlord and tenant action against William Smith, of West Second street, in Justice Mosher's court. It will be heard October 2.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Jack Dunn, manager of the Providence Eastern League team, received an extra $1,000 for winning the pennant.

"Jack" O'Neill says that he has caught a good many pitchers, but the work of Weimer on Saturday was the limit.

The Daabsters will play the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team at Elizabeth tomorrow. A number of local fans expect to see the contest.

A few dollars were dropped on Saturday's game at Westfield, and naturally the losers feel sore over the showing made by Plainfield.

The Somerville fans will be seen at Crescent Oval Saturday to see their former townsman, Louis Wiltse, now of this city, pitch against Westfield.

You can depend upon a good exhibition Saturday. The Daabsters will be back in form again by that time, and with Louis Wiltse in the box it should be an easy victory.

Louis Wiltse was to have pitched for a team in Brooklyn on Sunday, but after spending several hours in trying to locate the grounds he returned home without playing ball.

Considering the manner in which "Willie" Deegan received his bumps on Sunday, it is safe to say that Westfield would have got at him good and proper on Saturday had he pitched.

The local fans should support the locals next Saturday in the final game of the Westfield series. Last Saturday's performance was discouraging, but the Daabsters have played gilt-edge ball all season and should not be severely criticised.

The Daabsters have signed resolutions of condolence, which have been forwarded to Manager Daab. They express the teams' sincere regret for the showing made on Saturday and Sunday. The resolutions will be framed for future reference should the performance be repeated.

There is sure to be lots of interest in the game between Plainfield and Dover on Crescent Oval October 7. The winners of the Lackawanna League pennant think that they can beat the Daabsters. Duquette, the star twirler for Dover, will be on the slab and "Pete" Lamar will do the backstop work. Henriquez, well known here, is also a member of that team.

It is almost a safe bet that next season the series of games with Westfield will not be so long as this year. Ten contests are too many, and the fans are sure to get tired of them, as they are at present. Another season the games, if played, will be more widely distributed, giving the locals a chance to play other teams. Two solid months of Plainfield-Westfield games is too much.

"The hottest time I ever had on a ball team," says Right Fielder Dan Connolly, "was two years ago when I played right field for the Scotch Plains, New Jersey, team. A ball was batted out in my territory and it fell into a nest of hornets. As I reached for it one of the disturbed tribe struck me under the eye, and I went down. When I got up I made a dash for the dressing room and did a better sprint than you ever saw me do after a ball. Some of the other players ran over to get the ball that I was running away from, and —say, you should have seen them start for the fence when the hornets got after them."

GOLF.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and "Marty" O'Loughlin have challenged any amateur couple of the Cranford or Westfield Golf Club to a match.

The next big national event will be the women's amateur championship to be decided over the Morris County Golf Club links, October 9-14, under the auspices of the United States Golf Association. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of this city, will be among the contestants.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, and R. B. Peebles, of South Orange, will play a four-ball professional foursome over the Cranford Golf Club links on Sunday, October 15. These players met at Cranford last Sunday, when O'Loughlin and Peebles were defeated by 8 up and 7 to play.

In a professional match over the long course of the Cranford Golf Club yesterday Robert I. Anson, Cranford, and David Patrick, Westfield, beat R. B. Peebles, South Orange, and Martin O'Loughlin, Plainfield, by 8 up and 7 to play. It was a thirty-six hole best ball contest, the winners scoring 78, 76—154, and the losers 81, 82—163.

The one-day tournament for women, under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, which met with such marked success last spring, will be resumed this fall. The first of the new series will be played on Tuesday on the links of the Essex County Country Club at South Orange. There will be a handicap in the morning and an approaching and putting mixed foursome competition in the afternoon.

The women of the metropolitan district have resumed the fall series of team matches, two of which were disposed of last week, and on Friday two matches will be played on the Apawamis links. The Apawamis women and the Richmond County Country Club women will meet in one match, and the Englewood women and the Brooklawn Country Club women in the other match. On the same day there will also be two matches played in the second district, as the Morris County and Plainfield Country Club women will play at Morristown and the Baltusrol and Essex County Country Club women will play at Short Hills. These competitions should be good practise for the national championship that starts at Morristown on October 9.

TENNIS.

In the doubles and singles, tennis tournament between the boys of the Cedar Brook and Plainfield Country Clubs on the courts of the latter on Saturday, the Cedar Brook boys won every match. In the doubles, Foster and Doane beat Mellick and Rogers, 6—3, 6—0, and Pope and L. Bromfield beat Day and Martin, 6—4, 6—3. In the singles, Doane beat Day, 6—2, 5—7, 6—0; L. Bromfield beat Martin, 6—1, 6—2; Foster beat Mellick, 6—1, 6—0. The match between Donald Bromfield and Ogden Rogers ended in a tie.

FOOTBALL.

The Alls Club has decided to place a football team in the field this year and a meeting will be held tomorrow night to perfect arrangements. Alfred Egan is likely to be made captain and G. Harold Whitney manager.

DAABSTERS POUNDED BY JERSEY CITY TEAM

A WOEFUL EXHIBITION OF THE HOBOKEN TEAM.

Following up its wretched play of Saturday when Westfield defeated the team by a score of 9 to 2, the Hobokens were snowed under Sunday at St. George Cricket Grounds by the Jersey City Eastern League team by a score of 13 to 1. Cregan secured the only hit for his team, while "Willie" Deegan was touched for fourteen hits. Mack was a perfect enigma for the Hoboken boys. The score:

WILTSE IS SIGNED.

To Pitch for Plainfield in Final Westfield Game.

Manager Daab has engaged Louis Wiltse, of this city, to pitch for the locals on Saturday, when they will play their last game of the season with Westfield on Crescent Oval. This will be the tenth game of the series and Mr. Daab is very anxious to make it a victory for Plainfield. He feels keenly the defeat of Saturday and is willing to do almost anything to make up for it.

Wiltse is very anxious to face Westfield and says that he is sure that he can make the Denmanites bite the dust. He is in the best of condition and ready to do the trick. Captain Driscoll assures the fans that last Saturday's performance will not be repeated and that a first class contest will be given. Manager Daab expects to have Dover here for a game on October 7, and as the Morris county boys have won the championship in the Lackawanna League the contest here will be one of unusual interest.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?
If you are seeking a practical, progressive school, with up-to-date courses of study, skilled teachers, twentieth century methods of instruction and unexcelled opportunities for advancement, you will do well to investigate our facilities for giving instruction and securing positions. We have purchased the large Wood College at Newark and added to our chain of schools.
Our courses are right to the point and are planned to meet the demands of the business men. Eight Thousand Five Hundred Drake students hold responsible positions throughout the States of New York and New Jersey.
We hold that the very best education attainable is none too good for those who are looking for success, and although our tuition may be a trifle higher than some other schools, the difference is made up in the time saved and the results obtained. The Drake Schools are known to be the cheapest first-class institutions in America, with a twenty-one years' record in training young men and women for business. Why not attend a school that has superior advantages? Our seven schools are connected by telephone with our New York employment bureaus.

Plainfield, N. J., September 26, 1905.

Once upon a time there was a Democratic party in Plainfield, but that time is not now.

Although the city Republican convention will not be held until one month from today, the nominations are practically made already. But the law requires some little formalities.

Senator Dick says that he is still a "stand-patter." In the light of recent revelations, it would be base ingratitude for him or other Republican campaign managers to be anything else.

An exchange remarks that "no one seems able to draw Bishop Potter out on the latest phase of the subway tavern." It might also be said that they certainly cannot draw him in on it.

Such men as Colby and Lawson do a lot of good for mankind but get very little credit for what they accomplish. It is not what they tell the people that does the real good, for the public is not blind, but it is the way they present the naked truth arousing their fellow men to action and thus wipe out corruption.

Hunterdon county, the rock-ribbed and impregnable fortress of Jeffersonian principles, the adamantine bulwark of Jacksonian doctrines, the invincible battlement of Bryanistic evolution, the ever-lastingly loyal to party under all circumstances; Hunterdon country has risen up, high above all others, and has declared a new doctrine and introduced a new issue in the campaign.

No, dear reader, that is not from a speech of "Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, nor is it a quotation from "Tall Sycamore" Swackhamer. It is the opening paragraph of a Newark News editorial. Oh, Charley McBride, was it ever thus?

The American Advertiser relates that the merchants on the north side of Fulton street, Brooklyn, having noticed that pedestrians favored the south side, made a concerted effort to deflect the current of travel by placarding their windows with the declaration: "This is the Bargain Side of Fulton Street." How the maneuver succeeded we are not told, but this much is certain: Had every tradesman who hung up the bargain sign in his window made a similar assertion in the advertising columns of the newspapers, and backed it up with a few convincing details, the oposite side of the street would have looked like the Desert of Sahara on the day of publication.—Ex.

2,611 Lawyers in New Jersey.

Trenton, Sept. 26.—The compilation of the law diary of the State by Supreme Court Clerk William Riker, Jr., shows 2,611 attorneys in the State, an increase of 430 in five years. The first attorney, as far as the records show, was admitted in 1704. In the last five years 116 attorneys have died, two have been disbarred and one has resigned. Since 1704 there have been eighteen disbarments, and only two were reinstated.

Plainfield's Tax Rate.

The Plainfield Press thinks every taxpayer in that town can be truly thankful that the tax rate remains at $2.52. If it was fixed at such a high rate here there would be a howl from the taxpayers that would raise the roof. Property in Plainfield must be assessed far below its true value, or else the town is run in a most extravagant manner.—Camden Post-Telegram.

JOHNSON FOR GOVERNOR

Bergen County Man The Probable Successor Of Stokes.

COLBY A FACTOR

Open Question Whether Essex County Fighter Will Aspire to Higher Honors—The Situation.

The Colby victory has undoubtedly revived talk regarding the Governorship. While such talk is more or less premature, because the present executive has not completed the first year of his term, the changes the recent primaries promise to make in current politics will affect plans that looked ahead. Everett Colby is bound to cut a big figure in the State. That is unquestioningly admitted. Whether he will aspire to State honors or rest content with his ascendancy in Essex county remains to be seen. But on every hand is heard the sentiment that Colby could very easily become a dangerous factor in the Governorship race if he chose to take the step. It will largely depend of course on how far the Colby movement extends and how strong the issues of the Colby platform prove to be in those portions of the State where they have hitherto lain dormant. The attitude of the county and local conventions so far held shows that Colbyism is growing throughout the State.

Geography may also have something to do with it. At present the United States Senators are both from North Jersey, while South Jersey is the home of the Governor. Perhaps it has escaped general thought, yet the fact is Edward C. Stokes is the first Governor that the southern end of the State has had for twenty-five years, even for thirty. Bedle, McClellan, Ludlow, Abbett, Green, Werts, Griggs, Voorhees and Murphy were all from what is called the northern section. Stokes is the first to hail from a point south of Trenton, and it is a close question, outside of his legal residence, whether the present Chief Magistrate does not really live in Trenton. His business is almost entirely there, and Millville, where he votes, sees him only on a probable average of once a week, and that on Sunday.

However, while the Governorship has been decidedly lopsided, geographically considered, the difference in population largely accounts for it. The counties of Essex and Hudson of themselves embrace so large a proportion that it is not to be wondered they furnished so much political and official timber. Five of the ten Governors, from the time of Bedle to the time of Stokes, came from those two counties.

Taking the entire subject in consideration, and presuming that fitness and political strategy had more to do than locality, there is no reason why the next Governor any more than those preceding should be regulated by the map.

It is an open secret that at the time of the last Republican convention the second choice of the leaders was William S. Johnson, of Bergen. Had Stokes for any reason declined to run, the honor would have been tendered Johnson. Few men have been offered more positions of trust in this State and declined them than Mr. Johnson. He could have gone on the bench more than once. It is believed he could have been Secretary of State by a mere nod of the head. Yet, with the exception of his able legislative career, which involved the presidency of the Senate and Acting Governor, and his term at Washington as First Assistant Postmaster General, he has kept aloof from very active public service. His health had, perhaps, a good deal to do with it. But he is so much better physically that which might once have deterred his ambition would not now interfere.

There has been a great deal of surmise for months as to Mr. Johnson's attitude. Some of his friends thought he would like to be Governor. Others said he cared very little for politics. But there need be no question from now on. William M. Johnson is a candidate for Governor. He certainly has the time. He feels that his health is satisfactory.

11-YEAR SENTENCE FOR HIM.

Clerk Who Took $44,000 from Estate Given Long Term.

New York, Sept. 26.—James P. Hennessy, thirty-eight years old, who was confidential clerk of the D. P. Morgan estate and who, it was alleged, misappropriated upward of $44,000 of the estate's funds, obtained on forgeries, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Newberger.

He pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery and was sentenced to eleven years and seven months in Sing Sing Prison. Sentence was suspended on one indictment.

Hennessy lived at Morristown, N. J., where he has a wife and five children.

POLITICS IN DUNELLEN

Democrats Renominate Wyckoff Without Filing Proper Petition.

ANOTHER MUDDLE

Republicans Name Candidate for Council to Succeed Their Mayoralty Nominee Who Has Not Resigned.

Whether a candidate can assume an office in the event of his election when no petition was filed for the nomination is a question that has caused much anxiety among the Democratic politicians in Dunellen. At a recent convention held by the Democratic party Mayor William Wyckoff was nominated for a second term, but at the primaries held two weeks ago no petition was filed for the nomination, although there was no opposing candidate in the field.

Mayor Wyckoff was notified by the borough clerk last week of his nomination, and has filed his acceptance of the same. The Mayor was absent on his vacation at Atlantic City when the primaries were held and did not return home until after the convention had nominated him. Previous to going on his vacation the Mayor when asked about his renomination, said:

"I do not want a renomination and I hope the party leaders will find a suitable candidate in the person of some one else. I have asked my friends not to allow my name to go before the borough convention for a renomination."

The Republicans have nominated Wilson J. Frederick, a councilman, for mayor, and in filing their petitions they have provided for a vacancy in the council, which at this times does not exist, as Mr. Frederick's term as councilman will not expire for two years more. He is now running for mayor and has not resigned from the council, while his party has nominated a candidate to fill his place in the councilmanic body should he be elected mayor.

It is the opinion of some persons that these proceedings are contrary to law and that the nomination of a candidate to fill out Frederick's term is illegal unless he resigned from the council.

Should Frederick be defeated in the mayoralty contest and his successor be elected to the council it will make a badly muddled case, which will take considerable legal talent to straighten out.

Mayor Wyckoff said yesterday: "I am in the fight to win and expect to wage a hot campaign. There is nothing about my administration that the opposition can attack. My opponent, Mr. Frederick, is a very estimable gentleman, and if the borough must have a Republican mayor, there is no one I would rather have succeed me than Mr. Frederick."

Asked about the nomination of a councilman for a vacancy that does not exist, he said:

"I am having the matter looked into by the borough counsel. I think the proceedings are irregular."

Additional suburban news on page two.

Mr. Allen, of Plainfield.

He who agrees with the notion that a man should be chloroformed when he has reached the age of sixty years because his term of usefulness has expired should make note of the case of H. Francis Allen, of Plainfield, this State. Mr. Allen has passed his seventieth year; wears smart clothes and a boutonniere fresh from the hot house daily, drives spanking teams and loves sport of all kinds. Mr. Allen has recently been sued by a young man for alienating the affections of his pretty wife, who is only twenty-one years old and the mother of two boys. The husband and father says that Mr. Allen has devoted himself to his wife with such persistency and apparent success that he can stand the mental anguish no longer and asks the court to heal his injured feelings by making it possible for him to get $25,000 of Mr. Allen's wealth. Mr. Allen says that he has only taken an old man's interest in the young wife and mother and was led to take her to the theatre and for long drives because she seemed unhappy. He felt called upon to cheer her up a little. It would be a pity to chloroform so helpful a creature as Mr. H. Francis Allen.—Trenton State Gazette.

True American's New Editor.

The vacancy in position of editor-in-chief of the Trenton True American as the result of the death of Joseph L. Naar was filled yesterday by the appointment of Harry B. Reiley, who has been managing editor of the paper since the resignation of Walter H. Savory. Calvin Shipe will continue as city editor. The position of teleghaph editor has been created and John G. Preston, who has been doing reportorial work, covering the city hall and the United States government building, will fill it.

BELGIAN HONORS GIVEN TO JERSEY OFFICIALS

STATE'S EXHIBIT AT LIEGE RECEIVES FIRST PRIZE.

Winton C. Garrison, chief of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics, at Trenton, has received a letter from W. H. Tolman, president of the United States Section Social Economy of the Liege Exposition, Belgium, telling him that the authorities of the exhibition have awarded his exhibit first prize over all the contesting countries of Europe. Besides giving this great prize, the exposition authorities have ordered and awarded to Governor Stokes a diploma of honor, a gold medal to Mr. Garrison and a silver medal for James T. Morgan, Mr. Garrison's assistant, who prepared the exhibit.

The particular work which won these highest prizes in the greatest display of social economy work ever made in the world was the work on betterment of workmen's conditions in New Jersey. The work was well displayed in the columns of the Sunday Call when it was published, and contained many illustrations of what the Weston Electric Instrument Manufacturing Company of Newark was doing along these lines.

This work has received unanimous indorsement wherever it has been seen, and the department in Trenton has had a hard time to keep it in print. It has gone all over the world, even to China, and letters testamentary to its value have been received here by the thousands.

For the purposes of the Liege Exposition Mr. Morgan had the work translated into French. All the other exhibits of the department were similarly treated.

When this exhibit reaches Trenton on its return from Belgium it will be placed on exhibition in the State House. This brings up the problem of storing it, for there is not adequate place for the many rich treasures of the State in the museum. It is said at Trenton that there may be an addition to the State House planned this winter. It is very badly needed for just such purposes as these.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Way Down East," Lottie Blair Parker's idyllic play of New England farm life comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Friday afternoon and night. It appeals not to a limited class, but to everybody with a spark of sympathy, a liking for an interesting story and a relish of good wholesome fun. There are many reasons for its popularity,—its pathetic theme, its genial humor, its charming pictures of country life, its quaint characters and striking realism; but its more potent element undoubtedly is the strong human interest that permeates every scene. To this, all classes and creeds must yield their sympathy. Miss Parker's work so admirably produced under the skilful direction of Joseph Grismer, will be interpreted by a cast that has been especially selected for their different characters.

Melodrama extraordinary will be the bill at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and evening, when A. H. Woods presents his latest popular success, "Tracked Around the World," from the pen of Charles A. Taylor. The play is one of soul-stirring situations and through the "hair-breath 'scapes by sea and land" is woven a charming love story; the comedy element has not been forgotten and beautiful scenery, bright costumes and a galaxy of pretty girls go to make up an ensemble which is irresistible.

"David Harum" is to be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. The play is very well known and scarcely needs commendation, so popular has it been. William H. Turner, the character actor who has played the role of David for the past four seasons, hardly needs an introduction to local playgoers. The play is in three acts and opens in front of Harum's bank in Homeville, New York. Across the road is Aunt Polly's house with the trellis-covered veranda and its old fashioned flowers. In the background is the big barn and in the centre of the yard is a large horse trough. One of the good things in the act is the horse trade. One of the features of the play is the real rain storm in the second act, with the deacon belaboring his balky horse and probably saying things not allowed in meeting.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SELFISH CHILDREN.

Compare the children of long ago with those of today. As a rule, the former were brought up much more strictly than those of the present day and with due regard for their elders.

While the change to present customs is, on the whole, better, as it favors more intimate intercourse between parents and children and encourages more individual development, yet in many cases there is danger of going too far in the opposite direction and raising impertinent and selfish children, who consider themselves the most important members of the household.

Children allowed to grow up selfish are apt to be lacking in respect to their parents. Such children unintentionally form a habit of considering themselves first and complacently allow father and mother to sacrifice time and comfort for their advantage.

Loving mothers do greatest harm in this respect, for they really delight in self-sacrifice for their darlings. A boy that such a one raises, unless a striking exception, will grow up selfish, and be always a trial to those nearest and dearest to him.

Habits of selfishness and self-sacrifice grow rapidly, and a father can do much to check this state of affairs if he keeps watch. A word of admonition now and then which will draw children's attention to services that they can render their mother will cause them to consider her.

By these observances she will be placed on the pinnacle of family love and honor, which is the most joyful position a woman can occupy.

Besides eradicating selfishness, this thoughtfulness benefits the family in another very important way. Such children acquire a polish and refinement of manner which is habitual rather than "company politeness," however gracefully expressed.

Those who grow up accustomed to think of others have a charm which wins more love than any superficial attributes.

FOR PRICKLY HEAT.

For that warm weather trouble, prickly heat, nothing gives greater relief than face powder, but don't use powder without first washing the face thoroughly. The pores, being cleansed, the powder is more easily removed and does not form a crust, as it were, which is hard to take off.

Face powder should be free from bismuth, which gives the face an appearance like porcelain, and, of course, it should not contain arsenic or lead. If powder is home-made, a good formula is the following:

Starch or farina, 8 ounces; Florentine orris flour, ½ ounce; essence of embergris, 5 drops.

Mix thoroughly and sift through a silk bolting sieve. Put up in closely sealed small jars, so that the odor may be retained.

Apply the powder gently with a hare's foot; don't rub it in, but put it on with little "love pats."

USEFUL HINTS.

Salt fish of any kind is quickest and best freshened by soaking in sour milk.

Dry the potato peelings, and by using these you can light a fire with about four pieces of firewood.

Grapes and raisins are nourishing and fattening, and apples eaten daily insure clear, bright complexions.

Powdered charcoal is the best remedy for a superficial burn. If laid thickly on the injured part immediately, it will take away the pain and heal the burn very rapidly.

Oil of red cedar, used to moisten cotton batting, is a good preventive of moths.

Just a squeeze of lemon juice added to sauces, soups, gravies or stews after cooking brings out the flavor wonderfully and is a great improvement.

GUM DROPS.

To make that sweet dear to childhood, old fashioned gum drops, place in a kettle three pounds of sugar, a pint of water and a fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, and set the kettle on the fire. When the sugar is dissolved, add a fourth of a pound of dissolved gum arabic and a few drops of lemon oil. Cook until the syrup, on being tested, will form a "soft ball;" then remove from the stove, run the syrup by means of a funnel into starch prints, sift a little starch powder over the top, and set the tray away for twenty-four hours. The drops may then be removed from the starch and crystallized.

BLEACHING LINEN.

We all have yellow handkerchiefs and doilies that are the bane of our lives because of that dingy, ugly hue caused by an injudicious use of soap or from age perhaps. Wash in the usual way with clean soft water and any good soap, and then soak over night in clean water in which you have put cream of tartar (a teaspoon to every quart of water). Rinse out next day, and when these articles are dried and ironed you will not recognize them as the dirty, ugly things you began work on.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick have returned from their bungalow to their home on East Seventh street.

Miss Elizabeth Welsh and Miss Lena Downs, of German Valley, have returned after a visit with local friends.

TWO MORE COMPANIES FOR TUNNEL ROUTE

THE CORPORATIONS ARE TO CONSTRUCT THE RAPID TRANSIT LINE.

The Newark Railway Company and Hackensack River Railway Company, each with an authorized capital of $1,000,000, were incorporated at Trenton Saturday. The companies are subsidiary concerns of the Interstate Tunnel Railway Company which was incorporated a few days ago to tunnel under the Hudson River, and to provide an entrance into New York City for the Public Service Corporation and trolley system in North Jersey. The incorporators are the same as the Interstate Tunnel Railway Company.

The two companies will build the trolley line from Newark to the Hackensack River and the tunnel company is to build the connecting line from Hackensack to Jersey City, forming one continuous line from Newark to the tunnel of the Interstate Company.

LITERARY NOTES.

Theodore Roosevelt describes his recent "Colorado Bear Hunt" in the October number of Scribner's Magazine. The account is written with the vigor and vivacity which are so characteristic of the author. The individuality of the various dogs in the pack, the traits and characteristics of the guides and packers, the delightful humors of everyday life in camp, the excitement of the chase —all are depicted here with skill and force; indeed anyone who reads this narrative will have a stirring picture of exactly what happened during the weeks that Mr. Roosevelt was out of the world in the Rocky Mountains. His companions of the hunt, Dr. Alexander Lambert and Philip B. Stewart, took many excellent pictures of the various incidents, and they are reproduced with the article. One of the most striking, "Death of the Big Bear," forms the frontispiece of the number. In the November number Mr. Roosevelt will give an account of the "Wolf Hunt in Oklahoma," which preceded the "Bear Hunt" a few days.

The October number of Pearson's Magazine opens with an interesting article on the Austrian Emperor, Franz Joseph, the grand old man among royalties of today. How the giant trees of California are cut down is another article, profusely illustrated. The "Slave Dogs of the Frozen North" is an animal article, illustrated with photographs taken by the ill-fated explorer, Hubbard, which tells of the wonderful race of half-wolves with which Peary hopes to make his dash for the Pole. "The Lost Children of Greater New York" is an article illustrated by a newly famous young artist, Miss Bessie Collins Pease, who is making a specialty of "kid pictures." Besides Mrs. Kate St. Maur's usual "Self-Supporting Home" article, there are: a rattling fine newspaper story, two funny stories and eight adventure stories, including an "A. V." story, a "Don Q." story and an instalment of Albert Bigelow Paine's "A Sailor of Fortune."

William R. Lighton, the author of "When Cupid Came to Nine-Bar," the novelette which opens the October Smart Set, has written a story of Wyoming which is full of Western atmosphere and presents a fine picture of the healthy, invigorating life of that section of our country. Steve Brainard, the hero, will take his place beside the notable characters which writers like Bret Harte have given us. The story is a refreshing departure from the vapid literature of the day. Of the remarkably clever stories which enrich this issue of The Smart Set, none is more entertaining than Edna Kenton's "The Mordant." A powerful situation is handled with great delicacy, and a striking climax is artistically reached. Miss Kenton is rapidly attaining a high place among contemporary writers. Herbert D. Ward always tells a capital story. In "Santakh Das" he unfolds a psychological tale of absorbing interest.

With the publication of its present (October) issue The Metropolitan Magazine begins a new volume—the twenty-third of its interesting career. It is only fitting therefore that this new number should be of more than customary interest and beauty, that it should be an augury of the good things literary and artistic to come. It inaugurates its new period of usefulness at the very beginning with a cover of exceptional coloring and drawing done by Blendon Campbell, reproduced by the finest method of color processes. The October cover of the magazine is, to use a somewhat trite expression, "worth framing," if ever anything of its kind deserved that recommendation. The October number is rich in short fiction—stories by Arthur Train, George Gibbs, F. E. Stearns, H. Addington Bruce, T. Jenkins Hains and others. There are a number of strong drawings accompanying these stories; drawings of action, vital colorful, spirited illustrations made by artists who know their several specialties as your shoemaker knows his last.

Miss Sarah Carney, of Central avenue, has been detained at home by illness for the past week.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY SAYS SENATOR SMITH

"LIMITED FRANCHISES REPUBLICAN ISSUE? BOSH!" HE DECLARES.

"Limited franchises and equal taxation are Democratic doctrines. They are the issues of the New Jersey Democracy. The Republicans cannot fool the public by pretending they originated and first urged the adoption of these measures," said ex-Senator James Smith to a reporter yesterday.

"Of course," continued the Democratic leader, "Mr. Colby has made a great hit with his campaign, and he deserves the success he achieved; but Colby forced the issue down the throats of the Republican managers. They would never have made a party platform out of limited franchises and the like if left to themselves. Therefore, I repeat, the great issues are not Republican—they belong to the Democracy."

"Will the Essex Democracy indorse Colby for State Senator?" was asked.

"Indorse him? Of course not," was the emphatic reply. "Why should we vote for Colby? He is a Republican. He stands at the head of the Republican ticket. We have plenty of good men who will poll the party vote, and who, in my judgment, have a good chance to win. I believe we will make gains all over the State at the next election."

As to the outlook in the State at large, Mr. Smith said very little, except that there will be more or less extensive Democratic gains. Mr. Smith proposes to have his friends in charge of the party and represented on the ticket. Outside of Hudson he will doubtless succeed very well. Thomas M. Ferrell is already renominated for State Senator in Gloucester. John Cornish heads the ticket in Warren. Milan Ross and Oliver Kelly are expected to do their best in Middlesex. The best Smith Democrat will be put up in Monmouth. In Somerset the Senator hopes to have a candidate to his liking.

WHITEHOUSE RESIDENT HAS INTERESTING BOOKS

WHITEHOUSE MAN IS PROUD OF HIS POSSESSIONS.

John Vander Voort, a resident of Whitehouse, is proud of two old books in his possession. He inherited both from his forefathers. One of these is a strongly bound copy of the Laws of New Jersey, which was printed in Trenton in 1821 by Joseph Justice, and is in a good state of preservation. This book belonged to Mr. Vander Voort's grandfather, Jacob Kline, who was a member of the Forty-ninth Assembly. There are none as old as this in the State House, Mr. Vander Voort says.

The other book is a copy of the Bible, which was "printed and published by Matthew Carey, Market street, Philadelphia, 1810." It was "diligently compared and revised by the special command of King James I. of England." This book contains the records of the Vander Voorts, beginning with Mr. Vander Voort's great-grandfather, John Vander Voort, born December 23, 1763, and his wife, Nancy, born April 18, 1773.

CENTRAL WILL IMPROVE ROAD AT WESTFIELD

OFFICIALS MADE SEVERAL CONCESSIONS TO TOWN COUNCIL.

General Manager Besler, Superintendent Huntington, Engineer Osgood and a number of foremen of the several departments of the Central Railroad of New Jersey went to Westfield Saturday afternoon and had a conference with the members of the several committees of the Westfield Town Council regarding improvements along the line of the railroad.

The railroad officers agreed to build a bridge at Osborn avenue over the railroad tracks in that place. This bridge has been wanted by town officials for ten years and will connect the north and south sides of the town at a point where at present there is no street crossing. Several other improvements were promised by the railroad men, and in return they are to receive from the town a concession of a strip of twenty feet along South Elm street for various improvements of their own.

Fund for Dead Musician's Family.

Citizens of New Brunswick are making up a fund for the widow and eleven children of Professor A. C. Garland, who died of peritonitis and was buried on Saturday, only a week after the burial of his son. Professor Garland was known throughout Central New Jersey as a pianist, and his death is particularly sad, coming so soon after that of his oldest son. The people of New Brunswick have contributed $900 in two days for the family.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The Plainfield High School football team will go to Westfield tomorrow, where they will play the high school team of that place, on Recreation Park field.

List of entry to the annual singles and doubles tournament at the Plainfield High School were posted yesterday morning. Play will be started in a few days.

Among the visitors at the Plainfield High School yesterday morning was Fred Van Auken, of the class of '03, who is now enjoying a yearly vacation from duty at the Annapolis Naval Academy.

The first meeting of the Plainfield High School Girl's Athletic Association was held yesterday. Principal I. W. Travell was in charge. Elections for president and vice president were held, the result to be announced today. At that time votes will also be taken for secretary and treasurer.

At the meeting of the Girls' A. A. of the Plainfield High School this morning, the following officers were elected: Miss Gertrude Hunter, president; Miss Louise Klein, vice president, and Miss Elinor Van Tuyl, secretary and treasurer. The matter of planning for the annual girls' tennis tournament was left with the executive committee.

The girls of the Whittier School met Friday and organized what is to be known as the Girls' Athletic Association. It will promote tennis, basketball and other athletic sports, a tennis tournament having been arranged to start tomorrow. The following officers were elected to serve for the term: President, Miss Barbara Fleming; vice-president, Miss Margaret Leggett; secretary and treasurer, Miss Marion Snyder; board of managers, Miss Eleanor DeGraff, Miss Helen Pearson and Miss Edith Leek.

Scores in Friday's play in the Whittier School tennis tournament were as follows: Williams and Thorn, won by Thorn, 6—2, 6—0; Macintyre and Clark, won by Clark, 6—4, 6—2; Fleming and Timpson, won by Fleming, 6—1, 6—4; Fleming and Davis, won by Fleming, 6—4, 6—2; Manning and Ricketts, won by Manning, 7—5, 6—0; Clark and Thorn, won by Clark, 6—0, 6—2; Manning and Clark, won by Manning, 6—2; 9—7, 6—3. Saturday morning Fleming beat Manning for the championship, 6—0, 6—1, 9—7.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The Good Government Club, of the borough, has arranged to hold a smoker at the club rooms on Thursday night and a cordial invitation is extended to all persons who are in favor of good government for the borough.

Without opposition, two Republican candidates for members of the General Assembly were chosen at the Morris county convention Thursday. John M. Mills, who was renominated, and who, if elected, will try for Speakership of the House, was born near Morristown and worked on a farm until nineteen years old. He graduated from the Morristown public school, and from Rutgers College in 1897.

Forty Kirkland delegates met in the Burkely Hotel at Elizabeth Friday evening and agreed to stand firmly by the downtown candidate for the office of sheriff this fall. Captain Kirkland assured his friends that he had enough delegates to secure the nomination on the third ballot at least. He said that he was prepared to name those delegates who would vote for him, but that under the circumstances it was inadvisable to do so at that time.

TRAIN VICTIM MAY DIE

Peter O'Connor Mangled By Wheels Of Jersey Central Coaler.

Cool and Conscious After He Slipped Under the Cars, in Attempt to Board Freight at Westfield.

Weak from loss of blood, with one foot terribly mangled and the other badly hurt, the result of attempting to board a moving freight train, Peter O'Connor, who lives on Broad street, Westfield, was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon. He is in a critical condition and the doctors hold out but little hope of his recovery. He is thirty years old and married.

O'Connor has a brother, Richard F. O'Connor, who is in the hotel business in Bound Brook. He planned to visit his brother yesterday afternoon, and decided to make the trip on a Jersey Central freight train. In attempting to board a coaler he slipped and his feet went under the wheels.

The left foot was crushed and the sole of the other was cut open from the toes to the instep. It was some time before medical assistance could be procured, and he was seriously weakened by loss of blood. He displayed remarkable nerve, retaining consciousness and speaking quietly to those who moved him from the track.

O'Connor was brought to this city on the 4 o'clock train. At the hospital immediate amputation of the left lag at the knee was found to be necessary. O'Connor's nerve held out at the institution and he submitted quietly to the operation.

300 TAXING DISTRICTS HAVE NOT REPORTED

DUFFIELD ACT PROVIDES RATE OF ONE PER CENT. BY STATE BOARD OCT. 1.

Unless the taxing officers in some 300 taxing districts in this State comply with the provisions of the Duffield act passed by the Legislature last winter they will lose a large proportion of their taxes under the penalty prescribed by the new law.

The Duffield act is chapter 91 of the laws of 1905, and rovides for the taxation of second class railroad property in each taxing district at full local rates. Section 3 of this act says:

"The value of such property so certified shall be included in the amount of the ratables to be taxed in the several taxing districts, and the necessary tax rate for such district shall be ascertained by the local taxing authorities and certified to the State Board of Assessors on or before the first day of October in each year, whereupon the State Board of Assessors shall include in the taxes to be assessed by it, under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement, the property prescribed in the first section hereof at the rate in each taxing district that is so far aforesaid certified to it by the local taxing authorities, and said property shall not be subject to any other tax.

"Provided, that if the local taxing authorities of any taxing district shall fail to certify to said Board of Assessors within the time prescribed by this act the local rate of tax as fixed, it shall be the duty of said board to allot to the taxing district so in default an apportionment of tax at a rate not exceeding one per centum upon the class of property described in the first section hereof."

Irvine E. Maguire, secretary of the State Board of Assessors, stated yesterday that the mandate of the law was plain that every taxing district must have its tax rate on file with the State Board on or before October 1. There are about 600 taxing districts in the State and nearly 300 of them have not yet complied with the law.

The State Board yesterday sent out a second notice to all the delinquents. Secretary Maguire said the law would be strictly enforced in every case where a taxing district fails to meet the requirements of the law.

The loss to all districts which remain delinquent October 1 will be the difference between the local tax rate and the one per cent, or $1 on the $100, which will be allowed by the State Board as a penalty.

HEBREW NEW YEAR USHERED IN FRIDAY

SOME FEATURES OF THE ROSH HOSHANNA CELEBRATION.

Rosh Hoshannah, the Hebrew New Year, marking the beginning of the year 5,666, according to the Hebrew calendar, will be ushered in at sundown Friday. Following the usual custom, Saturday will be observed by both orthodox and reform Jews all over the city. The celebration will include services in the synagogue of the Children of Israel.

By a peculiarity of the Jewish calendar, the New Year falls on Saturday again this year, just as it did last.

The law is said to declare that the shofar, or ram's horn, shall not be blown on a Sabbath, and that the summons to all Hebrews on New Year's day to enter upon the work of sanctification should be made in another form when the New Year and the Sabbath fall together.

Stores all over the city will be closed from sundown Friday until sundown Saturday.

The rabbis stand on their feet all of New Year's day, reciting prayers.

A feature of the services on the Day of Atonement, the only fast day commanded by the Mosaic law, is the service in memory of the dead. It is customary for every one to donate sums of money for prayers for deceased relatives and friends on that day, and these donations will range from $2 to $25. Sometimes as much as $1,000 is taken in for the poor. The services on the Day of Atonement are highly impressive.

The Day of Atonement is designed to teach men their weaknesses and to remind them that they are only mortal.

The Feast of Booths is the third day of the holy days. During that day orthodox Jews live in booths together, which are formed on balconies or under projecting roofs with the boughs of fruit-laden trees.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Lord's Supper was celebrated at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel will hold a business meeting tomorrow night to consider some changes to the constitution.

"God's Trust in Man the Highest Incentive" will be the topic of the prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, conducted the services at the Mary E. Wilson Memorial church at Watchung on Sunday night.

An offering will be received at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday for the purpose of liquidating the $700 debt incurred in decorating and furnishing the chapel and parlors of the church.

PERSONAL.

John R. O'Neill was in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Foster and family have returned to their home in New York after spending the summer at the home of Mrs. Foster's sister, Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, of Mercer avenue.

Mrs. E. M. Rodman and daughter, Miss May Rodman, of East Seventh street, have returned from Hanover, N. H., where they have been staying for some time. Mrs. Rodman's health is much improved.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis, who have been spending the summer at their cottage at Watch Hill, R. I., returned home today. On account of Mrs. Lewis' condition the trip was made in a special car. Her condition remains about the same.

Rev. George Hauser, of Grahamville, N. Y., formerly pastor of the German Reformed church on Craig place, is about to sail for Switzerland, accompanied by his wife and youngest child. It is Mr. Hauser's intention to enter a university in Switzerland for a course of study.

John Morton, of West Front street, the ice dealer, will sail on Wednesday, October 4, for Scotland, where he will remain for three months or more for the benefit of his health. His physician has advised the change. During his absence Mr. Morton's business will be taken care of by his son, George Morton.

TWO HIT BY TRAIN HURLED INTO RIVER

MAN KILLED AND GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT AT PERTH AMBOY.

Perth Amboy, Sept. 26—Two persons were hurled into the Raritan River from the drawbridge of the Pennsylvania railroad Sunday morning. One, a man, was killed, the other, a girl, was rescued from drowning, but was badly hurt. Charles Dixon, of this city, witnessed the accident.

John Orban was walking from South Amboy to Perth Amboy, in company with Mrs. Anton Huniski and her daughter Mary. There is a single track across the bridge, and as they stepped to get out of the way of a train, the man and girl in their excitement, turned to the left instead of to the right. They were hit and were hurled into the water. The man's body was not recovered.

Some men fishing near the drawbridge rowed to the spot and dragged the girl into their boat. She was unconscious, but was revived. She is in a serious condition. Her mother fainted when the pair were hit and has been hysterical at intervals since.

TRENTON FAIR OPENS.

Attendance for First Day Was Over 6,000.

The eighteenth annual exhibition of the Interstate Fair Association at Trenton opened yesterday morning when the official pennant was raised from the top of the grandstand by Miss Helen Laffan, stenographer to the secretary of the fair. The weather conditions were ideal and the grounds presented a lively scene as the horde of fakirs and showmen worked like beavers putting the finishing touches on their stands and booths.

The exhibition buildings were the center of attraction for the opening day patrons and the various articles on exhibition were carefully inspected. The attendance was estimated to be in the neighborhood of 6,000, which number is some hundreds in advance of the figures for last year.

JUDGE HAD TOOTHACHE.

Had to Adjourn Court While Justice Fort Had the Molar Pulled.

The session of the Supreme Court at New Brunswick was adjourned twenty minutes ahead of time yesterday noon, because Justice Fort had the toothache and wanted to apply the cold steel remedy. When he arrived yesterday morning Justice Fort said that he had been kept awake most of the night with a troublesome tooth, which had been filled once, but which had been cutting up much of late.

As the session of court progressed he was unable to stand the pain longer, so he adjourned early and hurried down to a dentist and had the troublesome thing out. Court went on as usual in the afternoon.

RATE DROPS FOUR POINTS

Common Council Reduces Tax Rate From $2.52 to $2.48.

INDEPENDENTS' WORK

Councilmen Tyler, Bullock, Higham, Hibbard and Wilson for Less Rate—Reduction of Contingency Fund.

According to the clock in the Common Council rooms, it was 8:45 when the members met in special session last night, but in reality it was 10:05. Some wag had turned the hands of the clock back while the nine members present were holding an executive session, and when, in the absence of President Daniel, who is away on a vacation, Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, called the meeting to order, the city fathers expressed some surprise that so little time had been lost during the conference.

The delay was caused by a discussion about the amount of tax to be raised this year for the contingency fund. The finance committee, after a talk with City Treasurer W. F. Arnold, thought it wise to make the tax rate $2.52, the same as last year, and make the contingency fund $11,258, but Councilmen Tyler, Bullock, Higham, Hibbard and Wilson saw no reason why the rate should not be reduced a few points and make the contingency fund a little less. Accordingly, the amount determined upon for this fund was $6,745, and the rate for the coming year will be $2.48, four points lower than last year.

In making this change those who favored it maintained that there would be an increased revenue this year of at least $20,000 from liquor licenses, added realty valuations, etc., and it was estimated that the extra expense would not be over $11,000, making it possible to reduce the sum total by a few thousand. Of course, the city does not receive the total amount assessed, because the Commissioners of Appeal always allow some reduction, and it is practically impossible to secure the full dog tax. For this reason the finance committee thought it would be wise to keep the present rate and make the contingency fund $11,258, which would be sufficient to take care of all extras and leave a working balance.

The resolution covering this matter provided that to meet contingencies for the coming year there shall be added to the amount appropriated for local purposes for the year $6,745, being an amount not exceeding ten per centum of the amount appropriated for local purposes, that is to say, 3 2-3 per centum of the amount so appropriated, and that the assessors shall fix the tax rate accordingly.

The members caucussed on this matter for two hours, during which time Corporation Counsel Marsh was summoned for legal advice, and when the resolution, as amended, substituting $6,745 for $11,258, was presented all the members voted in the affirmative.

In connection with this, Mr. Bullock, who offered the above resolution, presented an ordinance relating to the assessment and collection of taxes, providing that such taxes shall be payable on or before December 20 next and that the Commissioners of Appeal shall meet on Tuesday, October 24, to treat with persons relative to their tax bills.

Congratulations from Elizabeth.

Mayor Buckle, of Plainfield, has appointed a police commission, and as there are two factions in the dominant party in that city, his action is criticised by the faction which has lost control of the police department. It must be remembered, however, that when the Elizabeth commission was appointed, it was reported that Mayor Buckle believed the example should be followed in Plainfield. He has doubtless made the opportunity fulfill the double purpose of getting even with the anti-administration faction and giving to the city the assurance of a police department unfettered by partisan domination. He has selected good and representative men, and Plainfield is to be congratulated at any rate.—Elizabeth Journal.

Musical Club Meeting.

AMOS ANDREWS HEAD OF POLICE COMMISSION

H. W. MARSHALL IS SELECTED AS SECRETARY.

As predicted by The Daily Press, the new police commission has chosen Amos Andrews, Republican, as chairman, and H. W. Marshall, Democrat, as secretary. Official notification of that fact was transmitted to the Common Council last night by Mayor Buckle.

The new commission will not assume charge of the police department until next month. This is done to prevent any confusion, particularly regarding monthly accounts of the department.

It was expected that George Wean, stenographer to City Clerk James T. MacMurray, would be made clerk to the commission. Indications are that his appointment will not be forthcoming. The commissioners are said to be adverse to selecting him but as yet have decided on no one.

MONO CO. AT LAST GETS BLDG. PERMIT

COMMON COUNCIL ACTS FAVORABLY ON MR. BULLOCK'S RECOMMENDATION

Mr. Bullock, chairman of the fire and building committee, presented a report at the special session of the Common Council, last night, relative to the application of the Mono Investment Company for a permit to erect a storage warehouse on Fillmore avenue, which was held up from the regular September meeting. This report provided for substitutionary methods in reference to the curtain walls to be used in the new building calling for the use of eight inch concrete blocks between these walls. In connection with this report Mr. Bullock introduced a resolution, which was adopted, giving Building Inspector Doane the power to grant a permit to the Mono Investment Company, after the company had complied with the new provisions. The plans and specifications were ordered filed.

Mayor Buckle communicated with the Common Council informing that body that the newly-appointed police commissioners had met and organized by electing Amos Andrews president and H. W. Marshall secretary. The communication was filed and no reference was made to it.

In the matter of laying out and widening Sycamore street, Park avenue and Stebbins place, according to the previous plans of the Common Council, Mr. Wilson, chairman of the street and sewers committee, introduced three separate resolutions in which Elliott T. Barrows, Evarts Tracy and Lewis G. Timpson were appointed commissioners to meet with the property-owners and assess benefits and damages for the improvement. This course was found necessary as the city has been unable to effect a satisfactory settlement with the property-owners. The commissioners will meet at the Common Council rooms on October 17, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of meeting the interested property-owners and treating with them in reference to the matter of benefits and damages.

CONFER P. M. JEWELS.

Anchor Lodge Decorates F. L. Montgomery and L. A. Van Alstyne.

Past Master jewels were presented to Francis L. Montgomery and Louis Van Alstyne at a regular communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., last night. S. V. Affick, a past officer, who was accompanied by several members from a New York lodge, presented the jewels with appropriate remarks.

During the evening the Master Mason degree was conferred on three candidates. Following the business the members adjourned to the banquet hall where a banquet was served.

There were guests from many places, including Elizabeth, Somerville, Bayonne, Newark, Jersey City and New York.

A Joint Institute.

Official notice has been given that the Somerset and Hunterdon County Teachers' Institutes will be held jointly this year at Somerville. Heretofore they have been held singly, but the funds provided by the State are not sufficient to allow the custom to continue. The date for the coming institute has not been set, but it will probably be about the first of November.

Miss Florence Jennings, of Bound Brook, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Foster, of Richmond street.

Miss Grace Nevius, of New York, a former resident of Plainfield, is visiting Mrs. L. S. Smith, of Duer street.

NO BRIDGE THIS YEAR

Somerset Freeholders Block West End Avenue Improvements.

SAME OLD DODGE

Union Ready to Go Ahead Although Adjoining County Will Receive Greater Benefit—Hitch Over Cost.

There will be no new bridge on West End avenue over Green brook this year. This was finally decided yesterday afternoon when the joint committee of freeholders from Union and Somerset counties met at the Hotel Kensington. The Somerset county members, after a caucus, decided that they would not vote for any sum in excess of the one appropriated for the new structure, and in view of this the matter was not put to a vote. It is possible that the question will be taken up next year, but nothing further will be done this year.

There were four bids received yesterday for the iron work for the West End avenue bridge, as follows: Canton Bridge Company, $5,950; Owego Bridge Company, $5,090; Dean, Schwiers & Sutton Company, $5,250; W. T. Kirk, according to original plans, $4,860; according to revised plans, $4,467. William Farrier's bid for the mason work was $4,250. The bids of Mr. Kirk and Mr. Farrier, according to original plans, would make the total cost $9,118, and Mr. Farrier's bid, with Mr. Kirk's figures, according to revised plans, would bring the cost up to $8,717. This would be nearly $1,200 increase over the fixed appropriation, and the Somerset county members would not consider it.

The appropriation of $7,500 for the bridge was fixed when the prices of materials were considerably lower than at present, and since then there has been a steady increase, and while the Union county members were willing to secure an extra appropriation to build the bridge, they were not anxious to push the matter, inasmuch as Somerset county is to receive the greatest benefit.

The joint committee took up the question of building a new county line bridge on Union avenue, Scotch Plains, to take the place of the one destroyed by a storm early in the month. The contract for this bridge was awarded to the Levering & Garrigues Company for $1,556, and William Farrier received the contract for the mason work, his bid being $1,138.50. The bridge will probably not be erected before early spring. It will be a duplicate of the old bridge, and if possible will be made even stronger.

The bids received for the iron work on this bridge were as follows: Levering & Garrigues, $1,556; W. T. Kirk, $1,590; Dean Schwiers & Sutton Company, $1,650; Berlin Construction Company, $1,655; Canton Bridge Company, $1,682; Owego Bridge Company, $1,690. These bids were received for the mason work:

William Farrier, $1,138.50; Joseph Kingston, $1,229.50. J. C. Cooper submitted a bid of $5.52 for concrete work, but as his bid was not complete it was not considered.

RECEIVER'S ACCOUNT FILED.

Local Auto Garage to Be Discharged from Bankruptcy.

Rene P. F. von Minden, receiver of the Plainfield Auto Garage, in the proceedings between Andrew H. Wilson, complainant, and Plainfield Auto Garage, defendant, has filed his account. Chancellor Magie has ordered that it shall remain in the custody of the clerk of the Court of Chancery at Trenton, open for inspection. All creditors, stockholders and others interested in said defendant company must show cause before that court at the State House in Trenton on Tuesday morning, October 3, at 10 o'clock, why the said account should not be allowed and confirmed, the said receiver discharged and his bond cancelled, and the said insolvent corporation dissolved.

At this time and place the court will also hear and consider an application for fixing an allowance to said receiver and also counsel fee to his solicitors. By order of the court a copy of the above order has been served upon each of the creditors and stockholders of the Plainfield Auto Garage.

R. A. Shebbeare to Marry.

Robert Austin Shebbeare, of Putnam avenue, will be married at Toronto, Canada, tomorrow to Miss Gwendoline Charlewood, daughter of the late Colonel Charlewood, who was an officer in the English Army. Mr. Shebbeare is a native of Yorkshire, Eng., but before coming to this city, lived in Canada for two years, where he met Miss Charlewood. After the wedding the couple will return to Plainfield and live at Truell Inn.

CAN'T FIND ITALIAN BOY TO BE DEPORTED

PASCO, WHO SHOT AT DUNELLENITE, DISAPPEARS AND BREAKS PROMISE.

The Middlesex county police are anxiously inquiring the whereabouts of John Pasco, the Dunellen Italian lad who shot at William Stiliger in Albert Rajotte's brickyard, Dunellen, several months ago. When Pasco was brought before Judge Strong he was sentenced to two years in jail, but his parents made so strong a plea for leniency that Judge Strong consented to suspend sentence upon the parents' promise to send the boy back to Italy within two weeks.

Probation Officer Buckalew was detailed to see that Pasco went aboard the ship. Pasco's parents agreed to send back him yesterday, when the time limit expired.

The officer has been unable to find the boy and it is beginning to look as if he had decided that life on this side of the ocean was preferable to that in his native land. He will be arrested on sight, and if he hasn't a good excuse he is likely to suffer the suspended penalty.

GRACE CHURCH CLUB PROGRAMME ARRANGED

LIST OF ENTERTAINMENTS FOR THE WINTER MONTHS.

The Men's Club, of Grace church, formed in the autumn of 1904, for the purpose of promoting Christian fellowship among the men of the parish, and to provide an organization of laymen, which the rector can call upon to assist him in his work, has thus far had a very successful existence. The club has completed its programme for the coming season which has just been announced. All meetings will be held on Monday night and the programme is as follows:

October 16, social meeting, musical and smoker; November 13, all the parish guilds, ladies' evening, presentation of Grace church activities; Sattels' quintette, refreshments; December 11, annual meeting, change of constitution and entertainment; January 8, illustrated lecture by A. McClean Parker, "Panama Canal," reception to Men's Clubs of the other churches; February 12, informal talk by J. A. Averill on "Formosa;" March 12, address by Rev. E. V. Stevenson, "The Church of Our Fathers;" April 9, discussion, "The Public Health," led by Dr. William H. Murray, member of the State Board of Health, and Leon R. Thurlow, health officer of Plainfield; May 14, club supper and smoker.

The club's officers are as follows: President, Hugh F. Fox; vice president, W. T. Pelletier; secretary, Edward F. Feickert; treasurer, George S. Clay; executive committee, Lewis G. Timpson, E. H. Booth, J. Paul Nolting, Marion S. Ackerman, L. A. Johnson, F. R. Stevens, S. D. Lounsbery, T. C. Smith, H. Bernard Coombe, J. E. Erickson, Arthur Murphy, Dr. M. O'M. Knott, R. M. Huse, Howard Fleming and Walter H. P. Veysey.

Dunham Still Speechless.

Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, who fell off a trolley car on Sunday night while returning home, remains about the same. He has not fully regained consciousness since the accident, although he is able to understand words spoken to him. He cannot talk and has yet been unable to give any idea as to how the accident happened. Dr. D. C. Adams, his physician, is quite hopeful that he will recover. One thing in favor of recovery is the normal condition of Mr. Dunham's pulse. He has no fever and his general condition is good.

Park Avenue Baptist Rally.

There will be a Sunday school rally at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, when the afternoon sessions will be resumed for the fall and winter. There will be a special programme, including an interesting speaker; vocal selections by a quartette, singing by the Junior and Intermediate departments, yearly reports of the main school and home department. A novel roll call of the entire school will be a feature.

George Sweeney Worse.

George Sweeney, aged seventy-three years, of South avenue, who fell down stairs yesterday and fractured his skull, is in a critical condition at Muhlenberg Hospital and little hope for his recovery is entertained.

Miss Agnes Baily has resigned her position at Woodhull & Martin's, to enter the office of Edmund Skiff, the organist and vocal instructor.

CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Justice Garretson Says Crime is Prevalent in Somerset County.

TOO MANY WEAPONS

Court Calls Attention to Free Use of Knives and Pistols—Violation of Recent Statute—The Grand Jurors.

At the opening of the Somerset County Courts at Somerville yesterday Justice Garretson, in charging the Grand Jury, stated that the prosecutor had informed him that there was a large number of criminal cases, a larger number than usual, indicating that crime was still very prevalent in the county. Only two or three cases needed a special reference, however, he said.

Continuing, the judge said there had been a homicide case in the county, in which a child was killed by being struck on the head by a stone thrown by some one else. A boy, sixteen years old, had an encounter with another boy, went away, and came back again and renewed the quarrel, throwing a stone that missed the boy it was intended for and struck the girl, fracturing her skull, which resulted in her death. If these facts are justified, the court stated that an indictment for murder should be made.

In reference to the attempt to escape jail, Justice Garretson said that all those who attempted should be indicted, of course, and cautioned the jurors to investigate how the prisoners got the explosive and indict all who abetted.

The court said that many of the crimes committed had been done by knives, pistols and stilletoes; that at the last session of the Legislature a law had been passed making it a State offense to carry same. Such cases ought to be investigated with great care, the court declared.

Among the Grand Jurors were the following North Plainfielders: John T. Polhemus, Charles Place, Peter J. Zeglio, Charles P. Sebring and Jacob E. Reinmann.

Harrison Snedeker, of North Plainfield, was excused from serving on the Grand Jury.

A meeting of the County Bar Association was held just after court adjourned.

MISS DOTY GOT MEDAL.

Winner of Loyal Legion Prize Contest.

Under the auspices of the Loyal Temperance Legion a medal contest was held in the Women's Christian Temperance Union's rooms in Madison avenue, last night. The affair was also in the nature of a children's rally, this being the first meeting of the legion for the season. Miss May E. Howlett, superintendent, was in charge.

Contest recitations were given as follows:

"The Rum-sellers Sign Board," Miss Ruth Wahlig; "The Man Who Could Drink or Leave It Alone," Miss Ellen Doty; "Little Jessie," Miss Marion Doty; "The Drunkard's Home," Miss Edna Doty." The prize medal was awarded to Miss Edna Doty and Miss Marion Doty received honorable mention.

The remaining part of the programme consisted of songs by the legion, piano solo, Ernest Stevens; vocal solo, Miss Hilda Bennett; recitation, "The Right Kind of a Drink," Raymond Stevens; piano solo, Miss Ethel Vail; vocal solo, Miss Hilda Bennett; songs, "Shadows That Run," "Dewdrop" and "Coming Voters," legion. The programme was concluded with a piano solo by Ernest Stevens. Then followed a social time and the serving of refreshments.

Judgment Against Feinberg.

Judgment for $159 was rendered against Harry Feinberg in Justice Hand's court yesterday in favor of Abram Gorden, who sued on contract. Feinberg's store on West Front street was sold under chattel mortgage early in July. The plaintiff sued for a shipment of goods sent after the sale, and Feinberg held that he was no longer responsible for the debt. Lawyer H. C. Runyon, for the plaintiff, contended that he had assumed the contract and must remain liable. The court upheld this contention and ruled accordingly.

Whittier Nine.

The Whittier School team of last year, winner of the Junior League pennant, has been reorganized without a single change in line-up. Games with teams in the same class, or a little beyond, are desired. The combination is a fast one and plays ball every minute of the game. Games may be arranged by writing to Roy Woodhull, West Front street.

HOT ON HEELS OF PLAINFIELD WOMAN

POLICE INSPECTOR SAYS SHE'S A TENDERLOIN PROPRIETOR.

The name of a Plainfield woman is connected with one of the dens of vice in New York's tenderloin, and Captain Dooley has given her notice to close up her place. In referring to the men and women in high places who run such establishments, Inspector Schmittberger said to some reporters last night:

"Do you know that there's one house very close to this station where a woman, a leading church worker in Plainfield, N. J., a woman who sits in a front pew, is the owner not only of the house, but the furniture. She pays the housekeeper's salary and derives a large income from the place. Now, isn't that a nice state of affairs? Well, I'll put her out of business. If she hasn't got any prejudice against tainted money I'll give her church friends and pastor a few facts that may induce them to refuse her companionship and money, too."

PROF. GRIGGS BEGINS HIS LECTURE COURSE

Prof. Edward Howard Griggs opened his course of six lectures on moral leaders at Vincent chapel last night. His subject was Socrates.

The chapel was comfortably filled, and the audience followed the discourse with very deep and evident interest. Prof. Griggs prefaced his discussion on the Athenian philosopher with a preamble to the series.

He spoke of the moral forces that move man and go to make up character and the level of civilization. He emphasized the effect of social environment on mankind and pointed out the value of moral leadership in any society.

"The process of civilization," he said, "did not involve the destruction of the unfit; it works to educate and elevate them to the higher level of their fellows."

The moral leaders, declared the lecturer, must do four things. He must see the light in advance of his fellows; he must be ready to lead them, in revolution if necessary (the lecturer declared that there are crises in national life when revolution is the only moral agent at hand); he must receive persecution at the hands of his fellows; and rise to a greatness sufficient to enable him to bear the persecution without flinching or faltering.

Taking up the subject of his lecture, Prof. Griggs described Socrates as an "unofficial patriot." Purely a private citizen, the Athenian yet was a great and recognized leader of his people. Born in 470 B. C., he lived through the greatest and strongest period of Greek intellectuality.

He was a man who met fully all the requisites for moral leadership. He lived his ideals fully and without faltering. His unhappy domestic life was merely an evidence that he regarded women according to the accepted Grecian idea; the truth as he saw it and preached it he lived fully.

Prof. Griggs gave a trenchant picture of Greek thought on philosophy and painted Socrates' martyrdom with a remarkable degree of vividness. As a whole his lecture was an admirable presentation of the salient features of the socratic philosophy, which held, first of all, that the truth was best found in the sifting of the common thought.

The next lecture will be on Luther, on October 3. The series is given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church.

$4,000 Shared with Workers.

The managers of the Regina Music Company, of Rahway, at 5:30 Monday shut down its works for the day and told the employes to assemble at the office door. There, in a neat speech, Mr. Furber, the manager, announced that the company had decided to give $4,000 to its employes as a profit-sharing system, the result of the successful business year closing on July 1. The employes were taken by surprise and with a hearty three cheers went to their homes with smiling faces and well filled envelopes. The division was based on length of service and amount of wages.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henderson, of East Second street, will remove to Newark this week to reside permanently.

Mrs. Charles E. Sykes and her daughter, Miss Sykes, and Miss Abby Sykes, have removed from their Scotch Plains home and are stopping at Truell Inn, Park avenue.

HUGE STEEL SHIPMENTS

Levering & Garrigues Receive 18,000 Tons of Material in Two Weeks.

VALUE, $900,000

Works Rushed With Big Contracts for Bridges—200 Men, More Than Ever Before, at Work.

Shipments of steel of immense value have been received at the Levering & Garrigues plant in Dunellen during the past two weeks. During that time considerably over 15,000 tons of metal have been delivered. The value of the shipments closely approaches $1,000,000.

The big shipments are the result of a big rush of business. The plant has never been so busy as it is now. Important bridge building contracts, in which the works specialize, fill the company's books, and the capacity of the works to their utmost. Over 200 men, the greatest number ever employed on the force, are at work, and there is no indication of a let-up. The greatest number of men employed before the present rush began was not more than 150.

During the week before last 10,000 tons of steel was received; last week 8,000 tons more came in. The steel is of the highest quality, most of it bent for bridge work, and its value touches the top notch of steel quotations.

It is estimated that the steel costs, on an average, $50 a ton. This makes the total value of the shipments $900,000. It is doubtful if any plant in this vicinity has ever before received material amounting in value to a sum even approaching this.

Not much is heard of the Levering & Garrigues plant in Plainfield, and there is a general tendency to regard the works as comparatively unimportant. As a matter of fact, the plant is one of the biggest of its kind, and its work is regarded as of a high order wherever bridge contracts are matters familiarly discussed.

CITY FLAG POLE TO BE REMOVED AT ONCE

BIG TIMBER DECLARED UNSAFE BY CHIEF DOANE.

Following a careful inspection made by himself and Charles W. Runyon, of the local telephone exchange, Chief Doane yesterday condemned the city flag pole located on East Front street at the head of Park avenue. The lower part has rotted almost its entire length for a depth of two inches, and in the opinion of the chief it is dangerous to allow it to remain in position any longer. The upper part will be taken down today and the base will be removed as soon as possible.

The pole is 140 feet high and was erected by the city eight years ago at a cost of $150. It is of Maine pine and has lived two years over the life allotted timber of this kind. It was purchased by Chief Doane from a shipbuilding firm at Jersey City, after it had been salt water soaked in preparation for use as a mast.

Whether or not another pole will be erected in its place depends upon the Common Council, and it is likely that the attention of the members will be called to the matter at the next meeting.

GYM CLASSES BEGIN.

Thirty Boys and Twenty Men Turn Out at Resumption of Activity.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes opened for the new term yesterday under Physical Director Boardman, the new director. The boys met at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the men at night. There were thirty in the former class and twenty-one in the latter.

Plans are being considered by Mr. Boardman for the formation of a basketball league among the members of the evening class. There is material enough in the class for four lively teams and steps will probably be taken to organize them next week.

His Goods Attached.

J. C. Storm, a Liberty street butcher, secured an attachment against the household goods of Samuel Bowman, of West Seventh street, in Justice Hand's court on Monday. Yesterday Mr. Bowman settled the butcher's account by paying $117 to Lawyer Fred J. Huff.

Miss Anna Hayes, of Liberty Corner, is the guest of Mrs. F. A. Weber, of Liberty street.

Miss Clara Rhoades, of Madison avenue, has gone to her former home at Shamokin, Pa.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

About two weeks ago a man came to Taylor's hotel on a motor cycle. After a short stay he left, leaving the cycle behind. He failed to return, and Mr. Taylor wondered if anything had happened to him. The number on the machine was 1375, R. I., and Mr. Taylor wrote to the Rhode Island Secretary of State for the name of the licensee. No. 1375 belongs to J. W. Findlayson, of Pawtucket. In response to a letter from Mr. Taylor, he claimed the machine. He is a travelling man who has just become a convert to motor cycling and forgot that he left it in Taylor's. An employe of Mr. Findlayson took the cycle back yesterday.

There was a large attendance at the dime sociable in the Methodist church last night. The affair was very successful. Rev. W. W. Casselberry's talk on Holland was interesting to a high degree, and Rev. Mr. Doolittle's talk on the camp meeting at Mt. Tabor was much enjoyed.

Harry Giddes hurt himself so severely in a fall from an apple tree early this week that he will be unable to play with the high school eleven Saturday. His injuries are not serious, but he is stiff and sore.

Abner Corieli has just put padlocks on all his boats and only hires them after a deposit has been left. The cautiousness is a result of the theft of a boat by two boys last week.

The office building the Aluminum Co. is erecting is a temporary structure. It will be replaced by a large structure of brick in the spring.

George Bridge cut has hand severely in the Aluminum Plate and Press shop yesterday.

Five new poles have been put up in the borough by the electric light company.

Mrs. Jacob Grieb has returned from a visit to friends in New York.

William Sandford was in Philadephia yesterday on business.

The railroad gang cleaned up the depot park yesterday.

William Dealaman is spending a few days in South Jersey.

Miss Lucy Freeman is visiting relatives in Bayonne.

C. D. Taylor has returned from a trip to South River.

The boys are beginning to enjoy good nutting.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The bridge committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders and the Somerset County Board met yesterday afternoon in the Kensington Hotel (Plainfield) to give out the contract for the new bridge on Union avenue (Scotch Plains) over Green brook, to replace the bridge ruined by the freshet of several weeks ago. The bridge will be a duplicate of the new bridge over the brook at Mountain avenue, that is solid stone and concrete abutments, iron beams, making the bridge practically impregnable against freshets; the cost to be between $2,600 and $2,700. William Farrier, of New Market, was awarded the contract for mason work.

Miss F. Castello, a returned missionary from India, gave an interesting address in the parlors of the Baptist church yesterday afternoon, upon the life, customs and needs of the people of India. Miss Castello is an intertaining speaker, deeply interested in her work and her address was enjoyed by all who heard it.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith is entertaining his brothers, Rev. Hugh A. Smith, of West Virginia, and Rev. Josiah Smith, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Mr. Smith has two other brothers studying for the ministry.

John Wade left today for Hackettstown, where he will enter the Centenary Collegiate Institute for a three years' course of study.

Mrs. John R. Mash's home, corner of Park avenue and Front street, looks very pretty in its new coat of paint.

Miss Nancy Wade, of Milburn, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, of Stanbery avenue.

Miss Clara Warta, of Siegfried, is spending a week with her uncle, Louis Morel, of Park avenue.

Miss Jennie Frentz spent yesterday with her sister, Mrs. Frank Putnam, of East Second street.

There will be dancing tonight at Rapp's pavilion. Naylor's orchestra will furnish the music.

Samuel MacCauley has broken ground for a house on the corner of Stout and Westfield avenues.

Fanwood Council R. A., held its semi-monthly meeting last night in the Library rooms.

Ferdinand Schmidt was among those who attended the State fair at Trenton today.

George Frentz has returned from a visit with friends at Albany, N. Y.

COMPLETING ARRANGEMENTS.

Committees Preparing for Entertainment at Hope Chapel.

The committee on arrangements for the Cromwell entertainment, to be given at Hope chapel on November 6, 7 and 8, met Monday evening at the home of G. Herbert Condict, to discuss plans. The committee consists of the following persons: G. Stuart Simons, chairman; I. W. Travell, Judge William N. Runyon, Rev. L. R. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Condict, Mrs. Simons, Mrs. Frederic W. Butler, Miss Emily Tracy and Mrs. Howard. From this number several sub-committees were appointed by the chairman, viz:

Patronesses, tickets and printing, Mrs. Butler, Miss Tracy, Mr. Travell. Assignment of parts, Mrs. Simons, Miss Tracy, Mr. Travell, Mr. Howard. Advertising, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Condict, Mr. Runyon.

It was agreed that the chairmen of these committes should have the privilege of calling upon any others whom they may choose as additional members. It is confidently expected that this entertainment will be the most attractive and successful one that has even been presented at Hope chapel.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Thomas Henry Stafford prints for particular people. He says he can surely please you. Give him a trial.

For all kinds of legal work consult Fred J. Huff, Esq., of West Front street. All matters promptly attended to.

John J. Leahy, the Richmond street plumber, is ready at all times to do your work promptly and in a satisfactory manner.

It is now time to get your new fall and winter hat and O. M. Dunham, of Park avenue, has the latest styles in all sizes. The quality and price are all right.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, are showing a fine line of embroidery and linen handkerchiefs, as well as all kinds of dry goods.

Besides conducting a model restaurant, Timbo, of North avenue, always has a large stock of the best cigars and smokers' articles, including a fine assortment of pipes.

At W. W. Dunn's grocery, Duer street and Lincoln place, there is always to be found the best of everything in the grocery line. Orders sent by telephone will be delivered promptly.

When you buy hardware you always want the best and for that reason the store of Worth & Marsh, Somerset street, is called to your attention. Better drop in there before making purchases.

Everybody wants to be clean and L. W. Randolph's benzoin witch hazel soap, recognized as the best, will help you, and Randolph's carbolated violet talcum powder is a necessity in every home.

Smalley Brothers, the North avenue butchers, enjoy the patronage of hundreds of Plainfield's best families. The reason is easy to say. They serve only the choicest of meats, poultry and provisions.

"The House that Jack built" may have been all right but it could not have been more substantial than those erected by Ralph Bullman, the Grandview avenue contractor. He will furnish estimates upon request.

If you haven't already made up your mind what style of hat you will wear this fall, call at James R. Blair's "Town Toggery." All of the best makes are there with the celebrated Hawes in the lead. This store is headquarters for men's furnishings.

Shirley & Johnson, in the corner store of the Babcock building, call attention to the fact that they have one of the largest lines of carpets, mattings, rugs and curtains to be found in the State. Drop in any day at any time and clerks will show you what you are interested in. This firm makes and erects awnings also.

—N. Fassetta, of New York, has opened an up-to-date barber shop at 432 Watchung avenue.

—Under the auspices and for the benefit of the Women's Exchange a porch party will be held at the home of O. T. Waring on Park avenue, on Thursday, October 5.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of City Clerk MacMurray by tomorrow night to secure payment at the October meeting of the Common Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Arens, of Rahway road, have returned from an extended trip abroad.

Manager Philip Daab and "Denny" Long, of the Plainfield baseball team, were in town yesterday calling on friends.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?
If you are seeking a practical, progressive school, with up-to-date courses of study, skilled teachers, twentieth century methods of instruction and unexcelled opportunities for advancement, you will do well to investigate our facilities for giving instruction and securing positions. We have purchased the large Wood College at Newark and added to our chain of schools.
Our courses are right to the point and are planned to meet the demands of the business men. Eight Thousand Five Hundred Drake students hold responsible positions throughout the States of New York and New Jersey.
We hold that the very best education attainable is none too good for those who are looking for success, and although our tuition may be a trifle higher than some other schools, the difference is made up in the time saved and the results obtained. The Drake Schools are known to be the cheapest first-class institutions in America, with a twenty-one years' record in training young men and women for business. Why not attend a school that has superior advantages? Our seven schools are connected by telephone with our New York employment bureaus.

Plainfield, N. J., September 27, 1905.

Citizens' party movements are under way in many cities and towns in this part of the country, Philadelphia having set the example. Will Plainfield have one?

The airship didn't work at the Trenton fair. Too bad the Legislature wasn't in session. Hot air would probably have kept it afloat.

Every taxpayer will be thankful to the Common Council for reducing the tax rate to $2.48 on the hundred. A drop of four points makes a considerable saving, especially to the large property owner, and so far as can be seen the interests of the city will not suffer.

After eight years of service, the city flag pole has been condemned and is to be taken down at once. With equal celerity the Common Council should see to it that another is erected in its place. The daily display of Old Glory is a sight that Plainfielders believe in and the want of it because of the absence of a pole would show a woeful lack of patriotism in official circles.

AIRSHIP NO AIRSHIP.

Aerial Navigation at Trenton Fair a Failure.

Extraordinary efforts were made yesterday to have the Lewis airship fly from the Trenton fair grounds to the top of the Board Street National Bank building, in that city.

A crowd of about 5,000 persons waited at the grounds until 6:30 o'clock to see the flight. The huge silk cylinder of the airship was inflated and sent up for a short distance, being held by a long rope.

There were hundreds of wagons nearby and several horses became frightened at the stupendous balloon and took flight. This caused a panic among the onlookers, who began to run each other down in an endeavor to get into the open. Fortunately no one was hurt. The crowd regathered, but they soon learned that there was some trouble with the machine and they dispersed.

The machine, with Professor Charles Hamilton seated on the framework attending to the steering gear, made two attempts to ascend into the air.

To Describe the Alps.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools, will give a talk before the Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church tomorrow night, telling of a trip he made through the Alps. There will be a special programme of music by E. B. Willard, of this city, and Miss Carrie Daws, of Westfield. This will be the first meeting of the association this season and a large attendance is hoped for.

—Andrew Mulford, of West Fourth street, has taken a position with B. D. Newell, of East Front street.

—Many headaches are caused from eye strain. If you are suffering from them look to your eyes. Consult Stiles & Co. eye specialists, at 105 East Front street, tomorrow, Thursday, for examination.

A Machine for Women should be the best obtainable. The Singer sewing-machine is acknowledged the lightest running, most durable and convenient of any. Look for the red S. 329 West Front street, Tel. 574 J.

OFFICIAL OPINIONS ON THE ELECTION LAWS

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL DECIDES DATES FOR CONVENTIONS.

The following letter explains itself:

"Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26, 1905.

"R. Smith, Esq., Assistant Secretary of State, State House, Trenton, N. J.:

"Dear Sir—In reply to your favor of recent date, enclosing communication from Charles H. Baker, clerk of Mercer county, and requesting the opinion of the attorney general thereon, would say that section 3 of the primary act (P. L. 1903, p. 603), which is a supplement to the general election act, provides that a political party within the meaning of this act shall be a political party which, at the election for members of the general assembly next preceding the holding of any primary election held pursuant to the act, polled for members of the assembly at least five per centum of the total vote cast in the territorial district or division in and for which the nominations are made, or delegates chosen. It further provides that the primary election above referred to shall be held at the expense of the county.

"Section 38 of the election act (revision of 1898) provides that nominations by a political party may be made by a convention, where such political party has, at the last ensuing election, polled for members of the general assembly at least two per centum of the total vote cast in the division or district in and for which the nomination is made.

"A political party having polled two per centum of the vote may nominate by convention, but in order to utilize the machinery of the primary act to solicit delegates to such a convention, and to have their primaries held at the expense of the county, a political party must have polled at least five per centum of the total vote.

"A party polling between two and five per centum would select their delegates in primaries held under the old law, and at their own expense.

"A party holding more than five per centum must hold their nominating conventions in accordance with the primary act at the county's expense.

"A party polling less than two per centum cannot nominate by convention.

"Trusting that the above answers your inquiries, I am.

"Very truly yours,

"EDWARD D. DUFFIELD,

"Assistant Attorney General."

Conference President Takes Senator Hoar's Religion as Topic.

Atlantic City, Sept. 27.—Carroll D. Wright, president of the conference of the Unitarian and other Christian churches which assmbled yesterday for its twenty-fifth annual meeting, was the first and leading speaker at the initial session. He selected for his topic the "Religion of United States Senator George Frisbie Hoar, of Massachusetts."

Six hundred members of the conference arrived Monday evening, and a majority attended the religious service held in the Casino of the Steel pier. The sermon was delivered by Rev. William Hanson Pulsford, of Chicago. Former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long was among those present, and Rev. George Batchelor, of Boston, Mass., and Judge Thomas Moore, who are to talk before the conference, arrived Monday.

While the important object of the conference is to discuss means to bring together all the Christian churches, and the subjects to be discussed will be of a religious character, there are addresses to be made in addition on the "Negro," by Professor W. E. B. DuBois, of Atlantic University, Georgia; "The Business Man" and "Organized Labor."

REMARRY AFTER YEARS.

First Wedding All Right, but Certificate Was Lost.

Orange, Sept. 27—Because they had lost their marriage certificate and family documents in a flood in Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Walker, of Orange, were married over again Monday night.

Mr. Walker and Miss Fedora Coolie were first married in Newark in the early part of the last decade. The Newark pastor and the witnesses to the first ceremony are all dead. Owing to property interests on the bridegroom's side, the second marriage was made necessary, the bridegroom's father having died recently at Wilmington, Del. A reception followed the ceremony.

"Cranberry King" is Dead.

Mt. Holly, Sept. 27—Captain Martin L. Haines, sixty-eight years old, who was known as the "Cranberry King," died Monday night at Vincentown. He was a member of the Burlington County Bar Association, but devoted little time to the practise of law. He gave his attention to the culture of cranberries and was one of the largest producers in the State. He served during the Civil War and was made captain of Company C, Thirty-fourth New Jersey Volunteers. The funeral will take place Friday afternoon.

90 MORE VOTING DEVICES.

Governor Stokes Approves Contracts for U. S. Machines.

Governor Stokes has approved the recommendation of the State voting commission that ninety United States Standard voting machines be purchased for use in the State. Each machine will cost $500.

When the commission met some time ago to open bids made by firms for furnishing machines, the United States company asked $600 apiece. As the other machines in the State were purchased at a lower price, the commission would not award the contract. When the company decided to supply the machines for $500 apiece it was decided to take them.

When these ninety are accepted by the State there will be 380 machines here. All are the United States make. The places where the machines will go have not yet been designated.

The voting machine commission met yesterday afternoon and examined the merits of a machine made by the Triumph Voting Machine Company, of Pittsfield, Mass.

The commissioners will decide upon the merits of the device at a later meeting.

The commission is comprised of Edward T. Phillips, of Chatham; Seward Davis, of Upper Montclair, and Joseph Brohel, of River Edge.

AMUSEMENTS.

A. H. Woods' big scenic production of "Tracked Around the World," a stirring melodrama by Charles T. Taylor, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday afternoon and night. Theatre-goers will be pleased to hear that Georgie Mack, who last season contributed so much toward its success, will again head the cast.

William A. Brady's immense production of "Way Down East" will be at the New Plainfield theatre Friday afternoon and night. "Way Down East" is a story of New England life written by Lottie Blair Parker, herself a New Englander, and thoroughly conversant with the joys and sorrows, the ways and ambitions of simple New England farm folk. No one ever saw it without benefit, and it has been used as a text and approved by hundreds of ministers.

Among the good things that are to be offered to a somewhat jaded theatrical appetite is listed that delightful comedy of upper New York State life, "David Harum." William H. Turner retains the title role in the sterling comedy and Julius Cahn provides an adequate production. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night.

FREE TRAINING OF NURSES.

Young Women of Small Towns and Country Districts to be Favored.

By the terms of a fund to be administered in connection with the Philadelphia School for Nurses, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, a number of young women from every county will receive free training in nursing. It is planned to ultimately reach and help in this way every village and township.

The young women will be provided with room, board, nurse uniforms and all the refinements of a well-appointed Christian home. At graduation the diploma of the school and the Order of the Red Cross will be conferred, qualifying for practice in any State or country; the railroad fare will then be paid back home.

Those applying and chosen to receive the benefits of this fund will be given two years' training, with a rich experience in nursing the sick poor of the city under skilled leaders. The term may be shortened to eighteen months by taking a preliminary course of six months' reading and study at home. A special short course enables young woman to quickly qualify themselves for self support and a substantial income.

In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid and destroy contagion; how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the home; they are prepared for positions as office nurse and physician's assistant; they get a practical knowledge of city mission movements, deaconess training, college settlement work, and are trained for special positions of trust in institutions.

The school is ten years old and is endorsed by physicians, leading educators and prominent men throughout the country.

BATTLE FOR LIFE IN SHELL.

Young Men Picked Up in Narrows After Struggle with Wind and Tide.

After a twenty-four hour struggle against the wind and tide in a leaking racing shell with broken oars, Alvah Conant and Christopher Bernard, two young men of Elizabeth, who had started out for a row on Newark Bay, reached home Monday morning.

The young men had been given up for lost, and boatmen had been instructed to search for them. The young men started for a short spin in a shell hired from John Van Pelt.

A strong tide carried them down to the Kill von Kull and when off Sailors' Snug Harbor the wind freshened and the boat began to fill. They pulled to Bedloe's Island, emptied their boat and made an attempt to get home. The tide was running so strong that in pulling against it they broke a pair of oars and the tide carried them out to the Narrows, where they were picked up by the tug Sachem and brought to the Battery. After a few hours' rest Conant and Bernard decided to make another attempt to row home.

This time they were nearly swamped in a choppy sea and were kept busy bailing out the boat with their hats. Finally they were blown ashore at Fairmount, S. I., and after clearing their boat of water made another start for home. After a hard pull they reached Elizabeth at 11 o'clock Monday morning, twenty-four hours after their start.

PROTESTS AGAINST TREATY.

Objects to Long Time Allowed for Evacuation of Manchuria.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The Chinese Government a week or more ago made a formal protest to the Russian and Japanese governments concerning two of the conditions set forth in the treaty of peace signed at Portsmouth.

China objects to two things—first, the length of time allowed for the evacuation of Manchuria; and second, the provisions made for an armed guard for the railroad lines owned by Russia and Japan in Manchuria.

China believes that nine months is entirely sufficient time within which Japan and Russia shall evacuate Manchuria, instead of eighteen months provided in the peace treaty. The provision made for guarding the railroad lines, the Chinese contend, contemplates an armed force of probably 15,000 men in Chinese territory.

The Chinese Government regards the maintenance of the guard in Manchuria of such size as a menace, and it does not propose to agree to such a plan

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Chase and Hahn are quite likely to be great factors on the New York American League team next season.

Jim McGuire, the veteran catcher for the Highlanders, was playing baseball two years before Hal. Chase was born.

"Gus" Soffel, well-known to many local fans, and who has been playing a fine game for Toronto this season, will be given a try-out by the Philadelphia Athletics.

Manager Denman may think it is good policy to cancel Saturday's game with Plainfield, but there are other years to come and he may have to arrange games in the future according to the say-so of someone else.

Manager Denman has not had everything his own way this year. This accounts largely for his queer actions. It is the first season in many that he could not dictate in some measure Plainfield's baseball policy.

Manager Daab still has recollections of a game Manager Denman cancelled on him a few years ago, after agreeing to the arrangements and guarantee. He notified Mr. Daab too late to arrange another game for the day.

The New York Giants will be here on Saturday, October 21, when Louis Wiltse will pitch for the Daabsters against his brother, George Wiltse, who will occupy the box for the Giants. This game will follow the post-season series.

The Daabsters will play the first of a series of three games with the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team, of Elizabeth, today. The game will be called at 3:45. "Willie" Deegan will pitch, and Turner will play left field in place of Cregan. Otherwise the team will be the same as usual.

After Plainfield won the county series from Westfield, the supporters of the Westfield team dropped all interest and noticeably failed to attend the other games. In the meantime Plainfield turned out as usual. The majority attending last Saturday's game comprised Plainfield fans.

Manager Daab has scheduled a game with Holyoke, champions of the Connecticut State League, to be played on Crescent Oval on Saturday, October 7. The Massachusetts aggregation is one of the fastest among the minor league clubs and includes Hoffman, cf; Hartley, rf; Bannon, lf; Diehl, 1b; Larkins, ss; McCabe, Dolan and Hodge, pitchers, and Schencle, catcher. The management has promised to bring its regular team here and use its strongest battery. This will be the first visit of a team from that league to Plainfield.

GOLF.

The Westfield Golf Club will hold an "auto dance," on Saturday, October 7.

As yet the secretary of the Plainfield Country Club has receive no notice of any intention to call a meeting to vote on the Sunday golf question. The meeting cannot be called until ten days after such notice is given.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers frequently visits the Baltusrol Golf Club course, and plays in competition with other members. She has played a most excellent game this season and is likely to make a good showing in the women's competition at the Morris County Country Club next month.

FOOTBALL.

Rutgers' football schedule for this season is as follows:

September 30—Stevens at New Brunswick.
October 7—Trinity at Hartford.
October 14—Union at Schenectady.
October 21—Lehigh at New Brunswick.
October 28—Delaware at Wilmington.
November 1—Ursinus at New Brunswick.
November 7—New York University at New York.
November 11—Stevens at Hoboken.
November 18—Haverford at New Brunswick.
November 25—Fordham at New Brunswick.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On Oct. 1, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round Trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

WELCOME DAILY FEATURE.

The Daily Press readers will, beginning today, have the opportunity of reading the news of Newark's enterprising big store, L. S. Plaut & Co. This establishment, known for its high grade merchandise, reliable dealing, aggressive business methods and moderation in prices, will have tidings that the economical will not care to miss. Just now the "Bee Hive" is holding its fall opening of millinery, garments and walsts, and it is a most brilliant style exposition. Women may revel in a showing of surpassing beauty, style and refinement. The reputation of the Bee Hive among its patrons for authoritative fashions will be enhanced by what will be shown on these opening days. The millinery, with the "elbow room" given by this year's modes, will be of daring conception and dainty execution. The models come direct from America's and Europe's great designers. The walsts are marvels of originality. Features of the week are sales of notions, dressmakers' supplies and dress linings. Be sure to read page three.

It Eats Up Rust.

GOTHAM OVERFLOWING INTO NEW JERSEY

FIVE COUNTIES OF STATE BEING RAPIDLY POPULATED FROM NEW YORK.

There are two forms of growth at work swelling the power and importance of New York city; one the actual growth and the other the growth that comes from its reaching out and drawing to itself people of other States, who have all their interests, save their homes, within its borders; who depend on it for their income, their supplies and their amusement.

This condition is strongly illustrated by a glance from it over the Hudson River to the five adjoining New Jersey counties that are in effect a part of New York city. These five counties, with their population of 1,247,475, as shown by a count just completed, added to the five boroughs of the city, make a grand total of 5,407,564. This means about the same number of persons as are now in all of the six New England States, and a little more than the entire population of the United States in 1800, when the State of New York had 589,051.

In the last five years the increase in population in these five New Jersey counties has been about 170,000, and more than half of it has come in the last two years. It is mostly the overflow from New York city.

There is a remarkable movement going on in these five boroughs that is being more and more emphasized from month to month. It is this:—The metropolis is adding to its population by enormous strides, drawing from every State at home and every land abroad, the increase having been 756,000 since 1898.

The total number of new residents of New York city is more than this, but while the entry continues there is also an exit, leaving each day an increase of 275. Thousands come to New York in response to its business, social and amusement allurements, and after four or five years, as cliff dwellers in the great piles of apartment houses, again look with longing eyes toward the open landscape, with its light and air. They begin to move from Manhattan Island to houses in the adjoining boroughs, and many go to these five New Jersey counties. Their places in the apartment houses are taken by daily new arrivals, ever increasing.

This exit has been encouraged by transit facilities which have been greatly increased within the last few years, and will be immeasurably more increased in the next five years with new railway and ferry terminals, tunnels under the Hudson River, new and better equipped trolley lines, with rapid transit through the adjoining New Jersey counties.

If an object lesson is wanted as to the daily passenger service of the railways leading to the Jersey ferries, take a dozen days in which to visit as many west side ferries during the rush hours. Count the passengers in and out on one day and the footing will show 700,000 of them.

Rapidly as these numbers are increasing they will increase more rapidly when the river tunnels under construction are completed and when the Pennsylvania road goes into Herald Square.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill, of East Fourth street, are entertaining friends from Cortland, N. Y.

Frank W. Miles, who has spent the summer in Sullivan county, N. Y., has returned to his home on Somerset street.

William T. Law, in the employ of the Plainfield Trust Company, has returned to Truell Court, after spending his vacation at Sea Cliff, L. I.

There was a very successful poster sale at the Plainfield High School during the recess this morning and good prices were received.

The Plainfield High School football eleven will play the eleven from the Westfield High School at Westfield this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Entries for the Plainfield High School tennis tournament for boys are closed and play will begin tomorrow on the courts at the home of Chester Briggs on Albert street. Twenty-four entries have been received for the singles and nine entries for the doubles.

Loyal to Arcanum.

One of the most important gatherings ever held of high officials of the Royal Arcanum of New Jersey was that at Achtel Stetter's, in Newark, Monday evening, in response to invitation from Grand Regent James Rodgers, of Cranford. It was styled a convention of the grand council "official family," and, coming at the time it did, as a preliminary to the opening of the Arcanum's usual fall campaign in this State, and following close on the heels of the controversy over the new rates which has raged within the order, it constituted, in the outcome, a most significant meeting of its kind, looking solely to the prosperity of the institution.

Recalls "Little Black Man's" Name.

George Bird, who was the first lawyer engaged by George Wood to defend him in the famous murder trial, paid to visit to the prisoner at Trenton yesterday. In the course of conversation he told Bird that he had recalled the name of "the little black man" and that it was De Farnes. During the trial Wood sought in vain for the name, but could not remember it. Wood is working in the shoe department of the prison.

Albert Koch, of East Second street, has returned from a visit with relatives in Newark.

DECOYED TO ARRESTS.

Manhattan Men Are Alleged to Be Implicated in Singer Robberies.

Bernard Ehrlich, a dealer in sewing machine parts, of Broome street, Manhattan, and Abraham Rehlich, also of Manhattan, were arrested yesterday afternoon at Newark by Detectives Hummel and Weimer, of Prosecutor Young's staff, and charged with being implicated, as receivers, in the systematic stealing of Frederick Merker, of parts of machines from the Singer Sewing Machine Company, at its factory in Elizabethport.

The two New Yorkers were decoyed to Newark, it is said, by a telegram sent by the detectives, but signed with the name of Samuel Neuwirth, who, the authorities allege, conducted a "fence," covered by a liquor saloon, at Summer and Seventh avenues, Newark. This is directly across the street from the Second Precinct Police Station.

Merker was a trusted employe of more than thirty years' service with the Singer Company. He was trusted with the delivery of parts of sewing machines to agents of the company, and had free access to the factory stock-rooms.

Since Merker's arrest the authorities had been seeking for confederates who they believed had aided Merker in disposing of thousands of dollars' worth of machinery and, incidentally, had absorbed, it is believed, about 80 per cent. of the profits of the sales of the booty.

It is said that Merker implicated Neuwirth, who, when taken into custody, told the detectives that he had been a medium between Merker and Ehrlich. In order to decoy Ehrlich to Newark the bogus telegram was sent, announcing that a deal was ready for consummation. Neuwirth had in his possession a quantity of stolen stock he is said to have received from Merker, and this was bargained for, the detectives allege, by Ehrlich, when they arrested him with the machinery marked for identification in his possession.

Rehlich was arrested on the street, not having entered Neuwirth's saloon.

ANGELS VISIT.

Two of Them Descend Upon Mulberry Street, New York.

Ten thousand Italians, jammed together at the intersection of Elizabeth and Mulberry streets, New York, saw two angels descend from the housetops last evening clothed in flower robes of white with golden wings. The appearance of the angels was not altogether unexpected, as a burst of music and a salvo of rockets and Roman candles accompanied their descent from overhead to a palanquin in the street, on which lifesize statues of the Holy Family were borne by stalwart Italians.

The angels were Lena Cavallerri, twelve years old, of 244 Elizabeth street, and Joseph Laborinni, fourteen years old, of the same address. It was in front of No. 244 that the descent occurred.

The angels made their descent on wires. After alighting on the palanquin they were borne with the votive statues to a shrine erected in the street in front of 248 Elizabeth street, where they recited a dialogue in honor of St. Joseph, whose feast was being celebrated.

All the religious societies of Little Italy paraded past the shrine, the devout kneeling in prayer, and showers of bank notes and small coins descended continually around the feet of the statues until the angels were ankle deep in votive offerings.

BIGAMIST THROUGH REPORT.

Woman Marries Second Husband Hearing First Is Dead.

Trenton, Sept. 27.—W. Holt Apgar, special Master in Chancery, has recommended a decree of divorce for Mrs. Clara Briest from Charles Skitson, of this city, because, he says, the woman was tricked into marrying the man by a "fake" death notice, published in a newspaper in Paterson, stating that her first husband was dead.

Then she married the second man, but, after living with him nine years, her first husband reappeared and began divorce proceedings against his wife. He died before the suit came to trial. Mrs. Briest then brought suit for divorce from her second husband. Mrs. Briest was only fourteen years old when she married her first husband.

FAIR HEIR TO MARRY.

Miss Ella Louise Leonard to Become Wife of Kingsland Resident.

The wedding of Miss Ella Louise Leonard, niece of Mrs. Charles Fair, who was killed in an automobile accident in France several years ago, and Lorenzo Castles, of Kingsland, will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Leonard, of Hanford place, Caldwell, Wednesday night, October 4. Rev. Richard S. Quillan, pastor of the Caldwell Baptist church, will officiate. Rather elaborate preparations are being made for the nuptial event. Miss Leonard is well known in this vicinity.

The bridal attendants will be Miss Katherine Castles, of Kingsland, who will act as maid of honor, and Caleb Leonard, brother of the bride, as best man. Carrie Smith and Hannah Nelson, of New Market, both cousins of Miss Leonard, will be flower girls. Loren Leonard, a nephew, will be ringbearer. William H. Castles, Jr., of Kingsland, and Frank Leonard are to act as ushers. The prospective couple intend to make their home in the Castles homestead, in Kingsland.

Change at W. & M. Store.

A noticeable change has been made in the arrangement of the shelves and counters of the street floor of Woodhull & Martin's store. The office has been moved to the north about twenty feet, and a part of the curtain and hangings department has been placed in the space so cleared. On the north side of the store, in the housefurnishing department, 500 feet more of shelving have been put up.

PUT IT OVER DAABSTERS

Willie Deegan Drops the Game to Elizabeth Y. M. C. A.

8 TO 4 THE SCORE

Christians Do Effective Damage to Plainfield's Ambitions in the Sixth Inning—The Game.

"Willie" Deegan, the star twirler for the Daabsters, went wrong yesterday, and in consequence the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. congregation took the Plainfielders into camp by a score of 8 to 4. It was a hard contest to lose for the team played an errorless game and deserved a victory. The damage was done in the sixth inning, when by a combination of five hits, including two two-baggers, a pass, a ball and the hitting of Luyster with the ball, gave the Christians five runs. Up to that time the score was four to three in favor of the Plainfield boys, but they could not overcome the lead of their opponents. "Jimmie" Clinton put up a fine article of ball for his team, holding the Daabsters to seven hits, all of which were scattered.

The Christians started off by making two runs in the first inning by the aid of two singles and a two-bagger and they did not score again until the fifth inning when they made a tally on two two-baggers. In the meantime, the Daabsters scored two runs in the third inning and their remaining two in the fifth inning. After that they were helpless.

Features of the contest were two double plays, one in the eighth and the other in the ninth, both nipping good chances for runs by the Daabsters. A double play by Deegan, Kiernan and Driscoll in the first inning shut off the run-getting for the home team.

Prior to the game Deegan went to Manager Daab and informed him that he did not feel well, that his arm was sore, but that he would do the best he could. This was very poor, and Mr. Daab expressed his opinion freely as to the kind of a game "Willie" was pitching.

The Elizabeth team was strengthened by Luyster and Connolly, of the Hartford, Connecticut State League; Griffin, of the Hudson River League, who at one time pitched for Alis; Eddie Shortell, of Scranton, of the New York State League, and Gastmeyer, who also played for Alis at one time. Every one of the new men made good, hitting the ball hard and fielding well.

Aside from the fact that Deegan did not pitch his usual game, the locals failed to hit the ball as hard as they have been during the season, and through the masterly pitching of Clinton, their efforts to score were frequently cut short.

One of the amusing features of the exhibition was the umpiring of Joe Hornung, the veteran ball player, who was in his prime in '69. "Joe" was right there with the goods and no amount of kicking would make him change his decision, although he was wrong several times. His quaint manner kept the crowd in good humor and made an otherwise listless game interesting.

BADLY HURT BY RUNAWAY, MEYERS DIDN'T KNOW IT

THOUGHT INJURIES WERE TRIVIAL BUT THEY THREATEN HIS LIFE.

Thomas E. Myers, of West Fifth street, is lying at his home in a critical condition as the result of a runaway accident in New York Monday night. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries.

Myers, who is an employe of the P. S. C., was injured at Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue while escorting a young woman friend home from the theatre. As Myers and his companion neared the corner they heard a fire engine approaching and paused at the curb to watch it go by. They stood a short distance from a heavy truck that was drawn up to the side of the street. When the fire engine rumbled by the truck horses took sudden fright and leaped forward. One of the horses was crowded on the sidewalk as the team plunged by Myers, and he sprang forward to shield his companion. The horse struck him on the shoulder and he was thrown violently to the walk.

He did not appear to be badly hurt at the time, complaining only of a soreness in his shoulder and a knock on his head, and he proceeded on his way after resting in a nearby drug store.

Next day his head and chest began to trouble him and he was unable to go on with his work. Wednesday he was compelled to take to his bed, and Dr. Van Horn, who was summoned, discovered that his head and his stomach had been seriously injured. Myers has no recollection of it, but his head and stomach must have received terrible blows, either from the horse's hoofs or against a hydrant near which he stood at the time of the accident.

TAX RATE TO STAND AS COUNCIL FIXED

NO RIGHT TO MAKE A CHANGE NOW.

There has been a rumor that an effort was to be made to again change the tax rate as fixed by the Common Council on Tuesday night and raise it two or three points, at least. The Board of Assessors held a conference to learn whether the rate could be raised and it is understood that Corporation Counsel Marsh was consulted as to what could be done.

It is stated authoritatively that the rate of $2.48 must stand for this year, that once the Common Council fixes the rate it cannot be changed during the year. In the opinion of the city officials the lower rate will give the city a very close margin, but it will have to get through the year the best it can. The Common Council cannot even borrow in anticipation of taxes, unless a sufficient amount has been assessed by the Board of Assessors, and the new rate is quite likely to make the various departments a little short in meeting various contingencies that are sure to arise during the year, but they will have to do the best possible.

ATTACHED HER RIG.

Mrs. Earl Brought Means of Settling Bill Right to Liveryman.

Mrs. Eva Earl, until recently owner of the old inn at Front street and Park avenue, Scotch Plains, left to her by her late husband, William Earl, drove a horse and runabout to Harry McDonald's livery stable last evening and left the rig to be stabled over night. After Mrs. Earl had gone, Fred Breem, the stable manager, caught sight of Mrs. Earl's name on the office books. The account, which was not very small, was marked "bad."

Early this morning, before Mrs. Earl came for the rig, Breem saw Lawyer Walter Hetfield, Jr. A few minutes later Mrs. Earl's horse and carrige was attached for the debt. Her present residence is unknown, but she is presumed, in the action, to live outside the State. She must pay the livery bill or suffer the rig to be sold by a constable.

Chapel Beautified.

Marconnier chapel has been made attractive and pretty be repainting and renovation. Electric lights, one of which illuminates the outside of the entrance all night, are a feature of the new arrangements. The chapel people are proud of the appearance their church home now presents.

Stelle Fitz Randolph Dead.

Stelle Fitz Randolph passed away at his home in New Brunswick yesterday morning at the age of 82. His death was due to a gradual breaking up of health brought on by his advanced age.

TENNIS SEASON ENDED

Results of Summer Contests of the East New Jersey Association.

THE CUP WINNERS

Bergen Point Club Player Gets Championship Trophy—Local Club Captures Men's Singles.

The tennis tournament under the auspices of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association for women's singles, just completed on the courts of the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Association, ends the association tournaments for the season. In the semi-final round of this tournament Miss Marcus, of the Danforth Tennis Club, Jersey City, defeated Mrs. Edgar, of the Ilderan Outing Club, Rahway, 6—4, 6—2, and Miss Bradley, of the Westfield Club, defeated Mrs. Church, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 8—6, 6—3. In the final round Miss Marcus defeated Miss Bradley, 6—3, 7—5. No players from Plainfield were entered in this tournament.

As a result of the play for the season, the silver cup offered for the club championship, presented by Gardiner H. Miller, president of the association, is awarded to the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club. The cup, which has to be won three times by a club to become the permanent property of that club, was given to the Ilderan Outing Club last season. The clubs in the association compete during the summer in four tournaments, the winner in each tournament receiving five points and the runner-up two points. This is this year's standing of the clubs:

Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club, winners of men's doubles and runner-up in mixed doubles, seven points; Plainfield Country Club, winners of men's singles, five points; Ilderan Outing Club, winner of mixed doubles, five points; Danforth Tennis Club, winners of women's singles, five points; Roselle Casino, runner-up in men's doubles, two points; Westfield Club, runner-up in women's singles, two points; Jersey City Golf Club, runner-up in men's singles, two points. The other clubs secured no points. Besides the tournaments open only to members the annual open tournament of the association was held on the courts of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club. In this tournament, open to all comers, no points toward the club championship are awarded.

ALEXANDER WILLETT BURIED.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Pays Tribute to His Memory.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Alexander Willett at his late home on Craig place. They were in charge of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, who paid a deserved tribute to the departed for the faithfulness of his church life and his upright business principles. His personal traits and disposition, the clergyman said, were such as would bear emulation from everyone. The floral tributes included a handsome piece from the members of the Consistory of Trinity church. It consisted of a sheaf of wheat, tied with ribbon and partially covered by clinging white roses, asters and lilies. There were other floral pieces from relatives and friends.

Interment was made in the Bound Brook cemetery, the pall bearers being Robert Clark, Jr., H. E. Gayle, Horace J. Martin, A. L. Force, E. F. Shepperd and B. R. Force, elders and deacons of Trinity Reformed church.

Billy Beck Quits.

Giving as his excuse that he believed the local fans did not care to have him pitch again, "Billy" Beck has resigned as assistant slab artist for the Daabsters. It has been believed all along that Beck was not strong enough for the team, but Manager Daab carried him along and gave him an occasional chance. He has not announced his plans as to the future.

Cop Gym Class.

The policemen opened their second season as members of a gymnasium class at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Chief Kiely was not with them. Physical Director Boardman put the cops through an easy drill, to give their tender muscles a chance to get used to discipline. They will meet at the gym every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Entertainment at Marconnier.

An entertainment for the benefit of Marconnier chapel is being arranged by the chapel members. It will be held some time next month. The date has not yet been decided on. The programme will be literary and musical.

ONE ARREST AFTER BATTLE AT THE 'PLAINS

COLORED MAN AND TWO PLAINFIELDERS IN THE MIX-UP.

Following a battle in which plenty of blood was spilled, Adam Dunham, of this city, was arrested by the Scotch Plains police force late last night for his participation in the affair, which took place at Park and Westfield avenues. Another Plainfielder named Curran, who is said to have been badly punched, got away, and as yet nothing has been done to Henry Schenck, colored, of the 'Plains, who is said to have precipitated the trouble. Dunham was released on bail today and will appear before Justice Clark tonight.

According to witnesses, the two Plainfielders were leaving a hotel about 11:30 when, without provocation, Schenck hurled a stone at them, striking one of the young men on the head. They gave chase to the colored man, but when they caught up with him at the trolley corner he gave battle and knocked Curran down. Before Dunham could interfere, Schenck, it is said, kicked the prostrate man so that he bled from several wounds. Dunham attacked Schenck and the fracas lasted several minutes, the noise arousing the entire neighborhood.

When Officer Shackleton arrived on the scene he took Dunham into custody and let Schenck depart. 'Plains residents say Schenck is to blame for the affair and that he has been "looking for trouble" for several weeks.

STREET REPAIR WORK.

Commissioner Gavett's Men Overhauling North Avenue.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men are now busy doing repair work on the upper part of North avenue, which was washed out by the heavy rains early in the month. Repair work is also being done on South avenue and the gutters are being opened. The steam roller is also being used on a number of streets in the East End, including Berckman and East Third streets.

Contractor C. M. Meeker is making good progress with the macadamizing of New street. After this is completed Carlton avenue will be taken care of and it is the plan to macadamize Randolph road from Plainfield avenue to Cedar brook.

"The Christian" Next Week.

Hall Caine's great novel, "The Christian," which was successfully produced in dramatized form a year ago, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Friday afternoon and night, October 6. Its run in New York and other large cities surpassed the expectations of even the most sanguine managers. This will be the first time that the Manxman's play has been booked for a city the size of Plainfield and crowded houses may be expected.

Mine Host Holds a Feast.

Henry Windham, proprietor of the Hotel Waldorf, celebrated his fiftieth birthday last night with a dinner to a large party of friends. Between forty and fifty sat down to an elaborate feast, among them a number of city officials and men prominent in city and county politics. The dinner was served in the big dining room of the hotel.

G. T. Dunham Will Recover.

The condition of Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, is reported as being improved today and his physician, Dr. Adams, now believes that he will recover. Since yesterday Mr. Dunham has been able to speak a few words, but he is not yet able to tell anything about the accident.

Hand Caught in Machine.

Joseph Salvador, aged thirty-eight years, residing at 324 George street, caught his hand in a thrashing machine while working on his farm, this morning, and severely lacerated a finger. He went to the hospital and had the finger dressed and returned home.

To See the Cadets.

A party of boys from the Y. M. C. A. will take a trip to West Point on October 7, under the leadership of Secretary Kenneth Robbie. Twelve of the juniors are expceted to make the trip. They will travel from New York by boat.

Prize Photographic.

WIDOW DIES AT PRAYER

Mrs. W. G. Clarkson Found Lifeless in Her Apartments at Hotel Navarre.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER

Resided on East Front Street Until a Few Years Ago—Burial to be at Hillside.

Mrs. Anna E. Clarkson, widow of William R. Clarkson and a former prominent resident of this city, died of heart disease in her apartments at the Hotel Navarre, Thirty-eighth street and Seventh avenue, New York, yesterday afternoon.

She returned from Europe on September 17 and to all appearances was enjoying good health. Tuesday night at 10 o'clock a woman and her daughter who were in a room adjoining Mrs. Clarkson's at the hotel, heard her praying for the welfare of the New Amsterdam Bank and that her real estate valuations would increase. As the praying disturbed the woman and her daughter, word was sent to the office about 2 o'clock and their rooms were changed. The child was almost hysterical from fright. The house detective rapped on the door of Mrs. Clarkson's room, but got no reply, as the widow was deaf. She had, however, stopped praying.

When the aged widow did not appear by 1 o'clock yesterday the room was entered and she was found partly under the bed, as though she had fallen on her knees. The body was taken charge of by relatives and the funeral will be held from the Calvary Baptist church, Fifty-seventh street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be made at Hillside cemetery, this city.

Mrs. Clarkson was seventy-five years old and with her husband lived for a long time on East Front street, opposite Berckman. Soon after Mr. Clarkson's death, which occurred a few years ago, she removed to New York and had resided nearly all the time at the Hotel Navarre. She was well known throughout Plainfield, and her name was prominent because of her philanthropic work. She founded the Jennie Clarkson Home for Girls on the Hudson in memory of her daughter and also established several scholarships in girls' colleges. She was the only surviving member of her immediate family, and R. B. Moore, president of the New Amsterdam Bank, was named as executor of the will.

MISS LULU VAIL WEDS.

George Elmer Volk Takes Her as His Bride.

Miss Lulu Vail, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Vail, of Elmwood place, and George Elmer Volk, formerly of Cherryville, Hunterdon county, but now of this city, were married last night by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. The ceremony was performed at the home of Dr. Schenck and was a very quiet affair.

The bride was attended by Miss Etta Titus, an intimate friend, and J. R. Harden, of the borough, was the best man. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where an informal reception was held.

The groom is a clerk at the City National Bank, and he and hs wife will reside for the present with the bride's parents.

Overbaugh Winning.

The final shoot in the September revolver competition among the cops will be held at the gun club range tomorrow. It looks as if the first prize will go to Patrolman Herbert Overbaugh, with Detective McCarthy a sure second. The prizes are a diamond ring and a gold watch. This winds up the shoots for the present.

O'Connor Recovering.

Peter O'Connor, of Westfield, who lost one leg and had the foot on the other leg crushed in an accident on the New Jersey Central Monday afternoon, is steadily improving at the hospital. The physicians have hopes for his recovery.

—Rockdale print and creamery butter has stood the test of years and is still gaining. Neuman Brothers sell it and guarantee it to give satisfaction.

TELEPHONE CO. BUYS MORGAN BIRD TRACT

PURPOSE BEING TO ENLARGE ITS PLANT HERE.

The New York & New Jersey Telephone Company has purchased the Morgan Bird property on East Fourth street from the owners, L. E. Hart and C. Frank French. This property is 47x91 feet and extends from Fourth street back to the present property of the telephone company. The consideration is not mentioned. The delay in making the deal was caused by a search for the title to establish the exact lines.

It is the intention of the telephone company to build a handsome structure on the site to be used exclusively for the operating department, including rest rooms and lavatories for the men and women employes. There will be accommodations for twenty-five or thirty young women in the operating department.

The top floor will be occupied by the switchboard and necessary rooms for the convenience of the operators and clerks. The second floor will be used for the storage of materials, while on the first floor there will be the offices for the various departments.

The building now occupied by the telephone company has outgrown the business and for a long time the company has been looking for a site upon which to erect a larger building. The building ordinance will not permit the company to build additional stories on its present structure. Since then the company has been making efforts to change its location. Plans are now being prepared for the new building and it will probably not be long before the work is started now that the land has been secured.

"SKEETERS" WILL PLAY THE DAABSTERS HERE

DOUBLE-HEADER AT CRESCENT OVAL ON SATURDAY.

Wishing to give the local fans the best article of baseball possible, Manager Daab today arranged to have the Jersey City Eastern League team appear at Crescent Oval on Saturday, in default of the Westfield agreement, and one of the best contests of the season is assured. The "Skeeters" have been playing gilt-edge ball and were an important factor in the exciting Eastern League finish, coming in third. Manager Murray assured Mr. Daab today that he would present his regular team and use his best battery.

In view of the trouncing the "Skeeters" gave Mr. Daab's team last Sunday, the locals are particularly anxious to turn the table, and they will be largely assisted by Louis Wiltse, who will occupy the slab. He is sure that he can hold Jersey City down and the Daabsters will do their best to win. The "Skeeters" opened the season here, when the locals defeated them by a score of 7 to 2, and they will try to wipe out this defeat. The rivalry between the teams is even more bitter than between the locals and Westfield, and a hard fought game is assured.

There will be a double-header on Saturday, Dunellen and Clinton Avenue playing a championship game at 2 o'clock. One admission will be charged for both games. "Phil" Smith will pitch for Dunellen, and the fans will have a feast of good baseball.

COMMISSIONERS AT WORK.

The McAdoos Booking Themselves on the New Law.

Owing to the lack of a quorum, no meeting of the new police commission was held last night. According to one member, no date has been set for another session.

Commissioner Andrews is spending the day in Trenton investigating how the laws work there. Commission Marshall is in Elizabeth on the same business.

Another Instance.

A Plainfielder found a set of school books in the street a few days ago and inserted a want ad. in The Daily Press to that effect. It was seen by A. C. Mack, of Somerville, the owner, and his property was quickly restored to him. Distance is no barrier to the results of Press want ads.

Easy on Drunk.

Morris Peters, arrested for drunkenness by Patrolman Martin last night, was arraigned in the city court this morning. Judge Runyon suspended sentence after a mild wigging.

Boys' Department Election.

The boys department of the Y. M. C. A. will hold its annual election Saturday morning.

WESTFIELD WITHDRAWS

Cancels Tenth and Final Game in Championship Series.

FEEL INSULTED

Ragged Exhibition of Last Saturday Accounts for Denmanites' Action—Effect on Future.

The Westfield team will not play its tenth and last game of the season with Plainfield on Crescent Oval on Saturday. This announcement was made by Manager Denman last night. He said that he regretted the action taken by the Westfield Baseball Association, but it would simply not stand for the exhibition of last Saturday, which the members considered as an insult to their team.

"I want you to understand," said Manager Denman, "that it is not my fault that the game will not be played at Plainfield. It is the decision of the association and the members will not consent to have the team go to Plainfield on Saturday. Last week's game was a wretched exhibition of ball playing. There are many things that might be said against our team, but one thing is certain, it always played to win. You can positively state that the Westfield team will not play at Plainfield Saturday. No game has been scheduled in place of the Plainfield contest and none will be."

This announcement will give Manager Daab an opportunity to play either Summit or Dover on the Oval, something the fans have hoped for. There are lots of fans who will welcome the change from a Westfield game. They think that ten contests were too many to play with the Denmanites and with either Dover or Summit here a good big crowd is sure to turn out.

Although Mr. Denman does not say so, it is hinted that the Westfield Baseball Association will be money in pocket by not playing. It will save the expenses of its team, which no doubt is a little more than the guarantee for the game and this will give the members a chance to break even on the season.

Mr. Denman says that it is not a question of next year or any other year with him in cancelling this week's game. He will let that matter take care of itself. But it is a question of resenting what is considered an insult.

Probably, the manager of the Westfield team considers his course justifiable, but Manager Daab hardly thought that he would break the agreement calling for ten games, and he thought that in all fairness he would keep this agreement no matter what happened. He does not consider that he is responsible for Saturday's exhibition, and he regrets the performance as much as any one else, but if the Westfield team had given such an exhibition here, Mr. Daab says that he would not deem that sufficient cause to cancel a game. There is no doubt but that next year, Westfield will have to be content with a less number of games if Manager Daab decides to take the team on for a series. He proposes to run his team to suit himself and will not be subject to dictation from outsiders, especially in a case of this kind. Westfield has lost the pennant and is heart-broken. It did not make the showing its supporters hoped for, and the season for Westfield ends in a gloom which only a long hard winter can dispell. Perhaps next spring Mr. Denman will think differently, but in the meantime he will have nothing to think about but lost honors and a lost pennant, which have been won by a team that is superior to his own aggregation.

Belcher's Farm Under Hammer.

While the Grand Jury of Passaic county was preparing yesterday to take up the criminal charges against Mayor Belcher, of Paterson, Daniel L. Campbell, as receiver in bankruptcy, was disposing at auction of the goods and chattels of the Mayor at Wind Beam Farm, one of half a dozen places purchased from time to time by the Mayor to carry out his fad of "gentleman farmer."

Quail on a Lawn.

A flock of quail, numbering at least twenty, was seen resting on a West Eighth street lawn Tuesday afternoon. While quail are common enough around the city it is the first time, as far as is known, that a flock has been seen on a lawn in the heart of the residential section.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Board of Education has found it necessary to draw a boundary line between District No. 1 and 2. Before the new school house was built at Alton many of the pupils began coming to the 'Plains of District No. 1 school rather than take the long walk over to District No. 2 school near Lambert's Mill. With the new school this evil was remedied, the building being more centrally located, but many of the scholars still continued to attend the No. 1. The Board finally decided that all (but High School scholars) living below King street must attend school No. 2.

Mrs. Robert Walpole entertained twenty members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Harrison Baptist church yesterday at her home on Front street. Mrs. Walpole formerly lived at Harrison and was an active worker in the Ladies' Aid Society. Her colleagues, since her removal here, have made it one of the annual events of the society to visit their former member and co-worker. The day was spent in an enjoyable manner, music and refreshments, together with social and church chat making the event one long to be remembered. The trip was made by trolley.

COMMISSION EXAMINES NEW VOTING MACHINES

STANDARD COMPANY LOWERS ITS BID FROM $54,000 TO $45,000.

Trenton, Sept. 28.—The State Voting Machine Commission, composed of J. A. Bohel, Riveredge, chairman; Seward Davis, Upper Montclair; and Franklin Phillips, Chatham, met at the State House Tuesday afternoon and examined a sample Triumph voting machine, provided for the purpose by the manufacturers, of Pittsfield, Mass. The company had an expert present to explain the workings of the machine.

After a session lasting over an hour Chairman Bohel stated that the machine would be investigated further before any action on it was taken.

Governor Stokes has approved a contract for the purchase of ninety United States standard voting machines, such as are now in use throughout the State. The contract price is $45,000, and the machines are purchased under an appropriation of $50,000 made by the last Legislature.

After the appropriation was authorized the commission advertised for bids, as required by law, and the United States Company agreed to furnish its machines for $600 each, or $100 more than the State had previously paid for them. The bid was rejected. Then the company lowered its figure and agreed to furnish ninety machines for $45,000. This was accepted and Governor Stokes approved the contract. The machines will be ready for use at the election in November.

This will make 260 voting machines which will be used. The Secretary of State has the authority to apportion them among the election districts, and this will be done next Tuesday.

CANDLESTICK OF THE BIBLE.

Relic of Ancient Israel Recovered From the Tiber.

According to recent accounts, the golden candlestick and other articles used in the tabernacle by the children of Israel during their pilgrimage through the wilderness have been recovered from the River Tiber, where they were thrown by the ancient Romans when the sacking of Rome by the Goths seemed imminent.

In the box were discovered many vessels and trumpets which exactly answer the description in the Old Testament. Should the identification be accepted this candlestick would become one of the most valuable treasures in the world.

The value of the gold alone is more than $30,000, and, in addition, the rich workings enhances its value, being of the finest. It stands nearly three feet high.

KIPLING TO A CHILD ADMIRER.

Little Girl Received Appreciative Letter From the Author.

To a twelve-year-old Washington school girl who wrote to Rudyard Kipling asking him not to stop writing, since she would soon have read all the books that he published, the author sent the following letter:

"My dear Miss Nannie Peck—Thank you very much for your letter from Washington and for the nice things you write about my books. That is just the right way to write to an author. Some people have a lot of what they call 'reservation' and 'points of difference,' and other uninteresting things, but I rejoice to see you have not. I hope you will have a happy time as you grow up, and find a great many more books that interest you. Very sincerely,

"RUDYARD KIPLING."

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, innoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

Prompt deliveries and telephone orders are attended to at once.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On Oct. 1, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round Trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

Congressman Ira W. Wood Says America Has Little To Learn From England

SOME OF HIS TOPICS

Railroads in U. S. Far Ahead of Those of "Our British Cousins"

—Foreign Women Work Hard.

In the following letter, Representative Ira W. Wood, of the Fourth New Jersey Congressional District, who went to Europe as an American delegate to the Interparliamentary Peace Union, which recently met at Brussels, gives some of his impressions of the European countries he visited. Congressman Wood sailed Saturday for this country from Liverpool on the White Star liner Lucania and will arrive in Trenton next Saturday:

"The past summer has been regarded as a record season for American tourists in Europe. It is estimated that there have been 100,000 Americans in Europe. Americans were to be found everywhere along the usual routes of travel.

"Considerable speculation has been indulged in by the European press as to the amount of money probably spent by this great army of summer visitors. Some estimates have been as high as $400,000,000. The diversion in foreign channels of anything like this vast sum by the people of any other nation might well be looked upon as a serious matter and as a great drain upon the country, but the resources of the United States are so vast and the resultant benefits so real and substantial that the expenditure of even this huge sum may be viewed with equanimity.

"Americans, alert, observant, practical, unhampered by any spirit of conservatism, ready to adopt anything that seems to possess merit, however novel or strange, return to reproduce in the architecture of their buildings, public and private, and in the products of their looms and factories the best artistic features to be found in European lands. Along artistic lines, of course, Europe, with a start of centuries, undeniably excels. Every year our American cities show more and more the tangible results of this great American invasion of European lands.

"Whatever opinions the British contingent at the International Railway Congress, that recently met at Washington, may entertain as to American methods of railway transportation, few Americans will believe that the United States have anything to learn from Europe along these lines.

"The English freight cars, or railway wagons, in use on the narrow-gauge railways seem almost Lilliputian in comparison with our mammoth eighty-ton steel freight cars. They may meet the requirements of the English farmer or the small tradesman. To Americans, accustomed to big things, they are the merest toys.

"The small compartments of English railway carriages in which six or eight persons sit facing one another, and that are supposed to reflect the English sentiment of exclusiveness, seem to Americans in comparison with the spaciousness and freedom of our great American passenger cars anything but exclusive. Even the so-called vestibuled trains to be found now in some parts of Europe, with a narrow passageway alongside the compartments, are but a poor apology for the magnificent vestibuled trains in use on all our great American railways.

"European cities are apparently well governed. Their streets are well paved, and kept in good order; their public buildings and works are substantial and usually of an artistic character, and their parks and squares are well kept.

"The building laws of these great cities are evidently of a stringent nature and have seemingly been framed with a view of insuring a certain degree of uniformity and the general beautification of the city. Sky-scrapers are unknown. Some things in the administration of European cities might well be imitated by our American municipalities.

"European countries are not the land of either the steam plough or the patent harvester. The methods of agriculture are still primitive. The hoe and the sickel are the ordinary implements of agriculture, and the oxen-drawn plough is still a common sight.

"All over Europe women are seen everywhere working in the fields. No wonder the hard working peasants, who toil from dawn to dusk for a mere pittance, long for the wide-spreading acres and the great harvests of our American continent.

"Many of the highways of Europe are splendid specimens of road building. Some of them are a thousand years old. Our macadamized roads, in which New Jersey leads all the States of the Union, and in which all Jerseymen may well take a just pride, are but adaptations, in a less substantial form. To be sure, of these great highways to be found all over Europe, Americans are but just awakening to the great subject of improved roads.

"London is still the city of the omnibus. The great thoroughfares of the Strand, Fleet street, Piccadilly and Ludgate Hill are apparently as congested as ever with these great double-decked, cumbrous vehicles. London has, of course, her underground railway, here called the 'tubes,' and in some parts of this vast city of 7,000,000 people, which is an aggregation of a score or more cities and boroughs, may be found trains and double-decked electric trolleys, but the Londoner is still wedded to the 'bus.'

"Americans would be ill-content to take the time necessary to reach their places of business by this slow method of transportation, but the conservatism of London is proverbial.

"The commanding position of the United States in European estimation is now generally recognized. Everywhere great interest is manifested in all things American. A general desire is shown all over Europe to learn the English language and in at least one canton in Switzerland English is taught in the public schools."

DIAMOND DUST.

The old standby pitchers of the Boston Club are not over-exerting themselves these days.

Lajoie and Griffith should play a series at the end of the season for the hard luck championship.

Walter Clarkson's great work for Jersey City proves that the unassuming Harvard lad has a future in fast company.

It is reported that Umpire Jack Merity contemplates writing a book entitled "Warm Experience." The sale should be very large.

The Holyoke team is rated to be very fast and is sure to give a fine exhibition here on October 7. Many believe that the team is as strong as any Eastern League aggregation.

An intimate friend of Dave Fultz says that if the popular fielder was with the New York Giants instead of the Yankees he would have a great opportunity for missionary work.

"Hub" Smithson, who played such fast ball for Westfield last season and this, has returned from Fargo, North Dakota, where he has been putting up a great game at short.

Dave Fultz, probably one of the best outfielders in the business and as well one of the most popular players in the country, will leave professional baseball this year to practice law in New York.

Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburg Nationals, has offered $7,500 for young "Cy" Young, of Boston, and says that if he can get him he believes he will be able to win out and play in the post-season series.

More games were postponed this year, both in major and minor leagues, than ever before by rain. The worst of it was that rain frequently prevented the games booked for holidays, and yet the season has been a fairly prosperous one.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

GEORGE B. WEAN,
City Clerk pro tem.
Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 26, 1905.

AN ORDINANCE

CONCERNING THE ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF TAXES IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all taxes shall be payable as soon as the tax duplicate shall be delivered to the Collector; that where any taxes shall not be paid on or before the twentieth day of December following their assessment, interest thereon from and after that date shall be added at ten per centum per annum; that the Commissioners of Appeal in cases of taxation in said City shall meet on the fourth Tuesday of November annually, and shall give at least eight days notice of such meeting in writing set up at six or more of the most public places in said City, or advertised in the official newspapers of said City, and may adjourn from day to day until they have completed their work; that all city officers charged with any duty with respect to the assessment or collection of taxes shall promptly perform the duties severally devolving upon them in respect thereto, in strict conformity with the Act entitled "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," Approved April 8th, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and other general statutes applicable to said City; and that all ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

Plainfield, N. J., September 28, 1905.

In some quarters there is a feeling that an excise board will be the next innovation for Plainfield. What foundation there is for such a report cannot be learned, but there is no cause for alarm. It will be a long day before such a system is established here.

The New York police inspector who made the statement that an unnamed society woman of Plainfield owns and runs a place of ill-fame in that city does more harm than good. Had he come out boldly and caused an arrest, thereby performing his duty and at the same time bringing her to the punishment she deserves it would have been creditable. As it is he makes a general allegation and refuses to reveal her identity. The great harm done by him is that people are left to guess at the name of the woman. In this way many innocent persons are connected with the affair. Scandal-mongers will spread false reports as every one knows and a case like the one referred to is just a feast for them. Inspector Schmitterberger has done nothing of which he should be proud.

MORRISTOWN'S HORSE SHOW.

Several Plainfielders Have Entries in the Annual Exhibition.

Morristown, Sept. 28.—The feature this year of the annual horse show given by the Morristown Field Club will be the four-in-hand exhibit and speed contest on the second day. Five four-in-hands have been entered, including those of Charles F. Cutler, H. McK. Twombly, J. Fillmore Hyde, Otto H. Kahn and C. Ledyard Blair, the contest including points on horses and coaches and a speed trial, the time and condition of the horses upon their return constituting fifty per cent. of the award. The run will be four miles, from the clubhouse to Convent Station and return.

There are almost 300 entries, and the show promises to be by far the most successful ever held on the grounds of this club. Among exhibitors from a distance are Alfred Maclay, Mrs. Van Husen, Bird S. Coler, Mrs. John Gerken and Charles R. Scott, of New York; David J. Gould, West New Brighton; William J. Buttfield, Miss Cruikshank and several entries by members of the Hooley family, Plainfield; Tonzo Sauvage and Peter Hauck, Jr., Newark; C. Ledyard Blair, Miss Evelyn Schley, Charles Pfizer, Jr., Joseph Larocque, Bernardsville; Hugh Miller, Suffern; Miss Anita Du Barry, Summit; G. R. Duval, Raritan; John Peirce, Montclair; Frederick H. Allen, Pelham Manor; Mrs. Fairbairn, Miss Van Rensselear, West Orange; G. R. Mosler, Gladstone; G. Herman Kinnecutt, H. B. Schley, Far Hills; Charles S. Ward, Morris Plains; D. Hunter McAlpin, Littleton.

Mr. Hamilton Critically Ill.

Robert Hamilton, of New York, who has been spending the summer with his son, W. F. Hamilton, of Verdon street, has become critically ill and the remaining members of his family have been summoned to his bedside. He is in his eighty-fourth year and is well known in the borough, having visited at his son's home many times.

STATE FIREMEN TO PARADE NEXT YEAR

ALL VOLUNTEER DEP'TS OF STATE TO TAKE PART IN ELIZABETH PARADE.

A plan has been inaugurated by the Elizabeth Veteran Firemen to have in that city in October, 1906, an old time firemen's parade and muster, such as were held there frequently when the volunteer firemen held full sway.

All the veteran fire companies of the State will be invited to Elizabeth, and to take part. Old time apparatuses will be in line and it is expected that there will be nearly 2,000 red shirts in line. A committee was appointed for the purpose of devising ways and means for this event and if the veterans decide to hold it, every effort will be made to beat all previous records.

An effort will be made to have one or more of the city's paid fire companies in line, and companies in this city, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Newark, Paterson, Jersey City, New York, Morristown, Trenton, Asbury Park, and every city where there is a veteran's association or an exempt company will be invited to participate.

The object of the proposition is to give the people of Elizabeth an idea of what a real firemen's day was in the old days. None of the details will be missing. There will be prizes offered for the company turning out the largest number of men, there will be a prize for the company coupling hose and "getting water" first, there will be prizes for house runs and ladder scaling, prizes for steam tests and for fancy drilling.

It is stated by a member of the veteran association that between thirty and forty companies will be in line if the proposition goes through.

SETON HALL SEMINARY DEBT.

Plans Being Made for Its Payment and Founding of Scholarships.

In celebration of the golden jubilee of the theological seminary of Seton Hall College, it is proposed to raise funds to pay off the seminary debt and for the founding of scholarships to train young men for the priesthood. The plan has been promulgated by Monsignor John A. Stafford, president of the college and former rector at St. Mary's church, this city, with the approval of Bishop O'Connor. The details will be carried out by Monsignor Stafford, Rev. Charles H. Mackel, Rev. Dr. J. F. Mooney and Rev. John A. Dillon.

The plan is for the four clergymen to visit every Catholic church in the diocese to preach and raise funds through an offering taken in the congregation. Last Sunday Monsignor Stafford preached in St. Joseph's church, Newark; Father Mackel in the Church of the Assumption, Morristown; Dr. Mooney in St. Michael's church, Jersey City, and Father Dillon in St. Patrick's church, Elizabeth.

A formal celebration of the jubilee will be held toward the end of the year. It is planned to honor Bishops Messner, McQuade, McFaul and O'Connor, Vicar General Sault, Rev. Dr. Henry A. Brann and Rev. Dr. Joseph J. Synnot, all of whom were prominent in the upbuilding of the seminary.

MERKER STILL IN JAIL.

Clerk Who Robbed Singer Company Not Admitted to Bail.

Elizabeth, Sept. 28.—Frederick Merker, the Newark man arrested last Friday night, charged with stealing from the Singer Sewing Machine Company's plants, is still in the county jail here. Judge Vail said today that no application as yet had been made to him by any of Merker's friends or relatives to have the prisoner admitted to bail. Prosecutor English also made a similar declaration and likewise told that from the result of the investigation now in progress Merker's large peculations must have covered a period of several years, and had not been confined to a couple of years.

The New York accomplices of the prisoner, so Prosecutor English said, got the lion's share of the plunder and became wealthy as a result of Merker's crooked work.

This remark would convey the inference that the thefts have been much more extensive than the Singer officials or the police authorities had at first supposed.

Gets $12,000 for Husband's Death.

Mrs. Laura Humphries recovered a verdict at New Brunswick yesterday for $12,000 against the Raritan Copper Works, of Perth Amboy. Her husband was a conductor on a narrow gauge railway train in the defendant's yards, and while making a flying drill one day two years ago part of the train was thrown from the tracks by a defective switch. Humphries was thrown off a car and pinned underneath. He was killed.

Sentence on Murderer Suspended.

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions yesterday George Dixon, an aged murderer, who killed a man many years ago, was arraigned for sentence, he having pleaded guilty to keeping a disorderly house on Butler street, Elizabethport. To the surprise of those in the courtroom, the prisoner had sentence suspended on him by Judge Vail.

ELIZABETH FRANCHISES.

Special Meeting of Board of Trade Tonight.

A special meeting of the Elizabeth Board of Trade will be held tonight to discuss trolley extensions and franchises. The call for the meeting has been signed by former Judge P. H. Gilhooly, Alderman Henry A. Rath, former Governor Voorhees, former City Treasurer John W. Whelan, former Alderman Robert L. Patterson, A. D. Mulford, Charles A. Trimble, Samuel R. Ogden, Augustus S. Crane, D. C. Doty, of the United States Express Company; Fowler & Wilson, and Charles H. K. Halsey, president of the Union County Trust Company.

The chief object of the meeting is to talk over and take some action on the application of the Elizabeth and Raritan River Railway Company for an unlimited franchise to build a street railroad through Rahway avenue and which privilege is being withheld by Elizabeth's Board of Aldermen because of the opposition of half the board to granting a franchise in perpetuity to any corporation.

Bible Society Convenes.

The annual convention of the Somerset County Bible Society was held Tuesday in the Presbyterian church at Basking Ridge, and was presided over by the vice president, Rev. C. B. Condit, of Liberty Corner. The annual sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. W. S. Cramner, pastor of the First Reformed church, of Somerville, and the address was given by Rev. H. D. B. Mulford, professor of the English Bible at Rutgers College. The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Rev. J. T. Reeve, Basking Ridge; vice president, Rev. C. T. Anderson, South Bound Brook; corresponding secretary, A. P. Sutphen; treasurer, Rev. Dr. W. H. DeHart, Raritan; depository, John D. Case; executive committee, Rev. P. M. Doolittle, Rev. Dr. W. S. Cramner, Edward Read, Rev. S. W. Crastner, Rev. R. L. Thomson and Matthew P. Lane. There were about 150 delegates present from Somerville, Bedminster, Peapack and other neighboring towns.

STATE FORESTERS IN ANNUAL SESSION

TWO HUNDRED DELEGATES AT MEETING IN BLOOMFIELD.

Delegations from all parts of New Jersey assembled in Bloomfield yesterday morning to attend the sixteenth annual session of the Independent Order of Foresters, held in Central Hall. When High Chief Ranger David T. Howell, of Newark, called the convention to order at 10:30 o'clock 225 delegates were in attendance. Councilman Chester Green, acting Mayor of Bloomfield, welcomed the Foresters to the city.

Following Mr. Green's address of welcome the convention took up the annual routine business in secret session. More than 100 new delegates to the high court were introduced in a body to the order. The ceremony of conferring the high court degree on the newly introduced delegates followed and the high chief ranger then named the standing committees for the ensuing year, as follows:

Credentials—E. Kramer, Metuchen; Henry Hansen, Plainfield; Otto Rasch, Bergen Point; C. F. Haight, Jersey City; Joseph Fronapfel, Bloomfield.

Distribution — Charles Philbrick, Bloomfield; W. B. Lawrence, Red Bank; Adolph Yauchler, Newark; W. K. Rittenhos, Jersey City.

Finance—C. N. Bingham, Elizabeth; W. Colvell, Elizabeth; W. G. Bauer, Somerville; James Robins, Roselle; T. J. Woodring, Westfield.

Appeals—John Dravis, Elizabeth; L. Goeppler, Newark; George Colmer, Jersey City; W. H. Lapp, Newark.

Constitution—E. S. Schureman, Morristown; W. Bumke, Hoboken; O. P. Mahon, Elizabeth.

State of the Order—L. T. Titsworth, Dunellen; W. H. Zimmerman, Jersey City; John Killough, Elizabeth; J. Bush, Newark; A. M. Vanderbeek, Plainfield.

The high chief ranger, in his report to the session, reviewed the progress, and dwelt upon the significance of the organization.

WANTS LENTZ TO RESIGN.

Nominees Say Conditions Demand Major's Retirement.

Calling upon Major Carl Lentz to retire from the conduct of the campaign, in so far as it concerns the party candidates for county office, Everett Colby, nominee for State Senator, has sent a letter to the chairman of the Essex Republican County Committee. In Mr. Colby's demand Frank H. Sommer, candidate for sheriff; Edward S. Perry, candidate for register, and the several Assembly candidates concur.

Mr. Colby states that he finds himself in an embarrassing position, but feels bound to take the stand he does despite the pledge of support of the county committee, because of the "extraordinary circumstances of the situation." He recalls that Major Lentz opposed him bitterly during his canvass for the nomination, and that he himself referred repeatedly to the hold he believed the corporations exercised with regard to the county organization. He suggests, therefore, that the conduct of the campaign be turned over to a committee, members of which he suggests.

Major Lentz did not receive the letter from the Colby people until 1:35 p. m. At that time he was playing checkers, his favorite diversion, in the parlor of the Republican County Committee. After reading the message he said he would call a meeting of the executive committee of the county committee for this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at headquarters.

"I am very much surprised to receive this letter," said the chairman, upon concluding the perusal of it, "after the harmonious actions and speeches of the candidates last Friday."

Third Auto Suit Trial.

The third trial of the suit for damages brought by Oscar Harrison against William R. Stanbery will be held before Justice von Minden and a jury in Dunellen tomorrow. Both lawyers—Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., for the plaintiff, and S. S. Swackhamer for the defendant—have strengthened their cases as far as possible, and another stubborn battle for a verdict will be made.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 1.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The joys of church membership.—1 Thess. v, 5-15; Luke xii, 8. (Consecration meeting.)

To many people it may seem impossible that there should be joy in attending the services of the house of God, in belonging to the church and in performing the duties upon the church member. But that there is joy in such associations is undisputed. Only those who belong to the church and attend and support it are capable of testifying if the effect of such efforts and their testimony is strongly in favor of the affirmative of our subject. It is true that there are many formal members in our churches who find no joy in their church membership, but they are incompetent witnesses, for they are cold and half hearted in their relations to the church, and half hearted interest in anything never wins joy from it.

The psalmist says, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go up to the house of the Lord." He was glad when the time came for friends and loved ones to march together to the holy city to serve God in the temple. He also exhorts all men to enter into God's house with praise and joy and gladness. At the organization of the New Testament church on the day of Pentecost we find that the people "did eat their meat with gladness, and singleness of heart praising God and having favor with all the people." When the church was established in Samaria, "there was joy in that city." Hearty, sincere and faithful membership in the church of Christ has always brought joy, and it will do so still.

Joy is experienced in church membership from many phases of church life.

1. There is the joy that comes from the performance of duty. Church membership is a duty. Christ asks it of us, promising that if we will confess Him upon earth He will confess us before His Father which is in heaven. The performance of duty always brings joy. Many have united with the church not because they felt inclined to do so, but simply as a duty, and have found great pleasure in church membership.

2. There is the joy of Christian fellowship. One of the sweetest joys of life is fellowship with those about us, and the most blessed fellowship of life is that possessed by Christians who are bound together by the common tie that binds them to Christ.

3. There is the joy of service. Service produces joy. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," whether we give money or gifts or service. Selfishness breeds dissatisfaction, while self denial for others brings joy and happiness. For the joy that was set before Him Christ endured the suffering and shame of the cross, and "if we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him." The reward of service is always a crown of joy.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xvi, 11; xlviii, 1, 2; cxxii, 1-12; Isa. ii, 1-5; Dan. xii, 1-3; Luke xiv, 14-19; Acts ii, 41-47; viii, 1-8; Phil. iv, 1, 4; II John, 12.

Prayer Meeting Proverbs.

Whoso loveth the prayer meeting rejoiceth his pastor.

It's a poor meeting that does no one any good.

A cheerful leader maketh a happy meeting.

Where there is no preparation the people suffer.

It's a wise leader that knows his own topic.

He that trusteth to his own head is foolish; the wise man studies his Bible.

Start a meeting in the way it should go and it will be a success, if you keep it going.

The leader expects every member to do his duty.

A good thought is rather to be chosen than fine words.

A poor speaker is better than a mute.

If at first you forget what you meant to say, try, try again.

A hymn from the heart is better than a dozen just to fill in.

Silence is golden—when some one else is speaking.

Listen to others as you would that they should listen to you.

Better is a little with earnestness than a long testimony without sincerity.

The truth, and nothing but the truth, but not the whole truth in one night.

Commit thy thoughts unto the Lord and the words shall be established.

Rub the dust out of your own eyes before you criticise others.

Early to open and early to close makes a meeting more inviting for the next time.

A meeting deferred maketh the audience tired.—Aubrey Fullerton in Christian Endeavor World.

In Other Tongues.

Last year Christian Endeavor increased in Germany to the number of 1,528 societies, making 5,500 now in the empire.

The Japan Christian Endeavor Union sets aside one-tenth of all the money it receives for work among the soldiers

Japan's year motto is Kaizen Kwakucho, "improve and increase."

Junior Work.

Christian Endeavorers who love Jesus, talk about Him to your little brothers and sisters, to your little friends and pupils. Say something about Him every day, and let Him become the best Friend of the family.—Miss E. Griffin in Japan Endeavor.

Lord Curzon's Testimony.

Lord Curzon told a friend that he is much interested in Christian Endeavor and feels that it has a large mission in India.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

Oct. 1: "The Christian and His Bible"—Ps. cxix, 11; Jer. xv, 16—Bible Study Rally Day.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

"Thy words were unto me a joy and rejoicing of the heart."

Perhaps there is no one thing which more clearly distinguishes the earnest, intelligent Christian from other folks, whether they be professing Christians or common unbelievers, than the way he uses his Bible.

There are those, and their tribe is not a small one in Israel, who have much earnest talk about the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures and its inerrancy and who loudly proclaim their implicit belief in every statement therein to be found "from cover to cover." Criticism of any kind they cannot tolerate. They hold it all as a most sacred thing and the direct revelation of God to man in a class by itself and entirely different from all other writings.

Opposite to these are those who see in the Bible only the religious literature of an ancient and interesting but peculiar and by no means highly cultivated people. To them it is no more sacred but in the same way as the religious books of other ancient nations.

Neither of these classes represent the best type of Bible Christians. Such a one has an interest in all that pertains to the history of the transmission of the various documents and the changes they have undergone in the course of the years through translation and recopying and gives such consideration to these matters as his time and equipment will allow or needs may suggest. But his deepest interest is not in these things.

As he reads the book he recognizes from first to last the revealing and progressive unfolding of divine truth to the race and to himself as a member of the race. It is unique in character and appeals to all that is highest and deepest and most fundamental in his nature as a man. He comes in touch with a world of thought and with men out of the ordinary. Here are choice spirits who have had a genius for religion without fanaticism as high and remarkable as some others have had for mathematics, art, government or military science.

These are discoverers as truly as was Columbus or any navigator of the seven seas. He can make his home where they have opened the way. They have made the chart where all before was unknown. He can navigate his craft where they first sailed. Did Abraham first discover that God was friend of man and become friend of God? Then he learns the same truth and finds for himself the secret of divine companionship here and now and so lives in daily intimacy with God.

He who would become expert in the higher mathematics must learn the principles discovered by Euclid and men of his kind, and then perhaps may penetrate into mysteries never opened to them, for what is now known in this realm is probably but small part of all that is to be known.

He who would become proficient in practice of righteousness and attain to virtue and know the secret treasures of personality in goodness and highest happiness and reach the heights of holiness must study the principles discovered and charted by these Hebrew seers and prophets of Jehovah.

He will need to read persistently and patiently into the inner life of the Christ until he catches the gleam of the white truth which the Father showed His only begotten Son and which the Son reveals to those who learn of Him.

If he will use the Bible as it should be used, he will feel the glow of a new impulse warming up his heart and the insight of new worlds breaking over old horizons. He will enter into larger, fuller, freer life, gain knowledge beyond price in earthly exchange and gain skill in making manhood that is not liable to be stolen and is unpurchasable and incommunicable.

He may find here the record of title deeds to possessions on which he may enter at will, the inheritance of the saints in light, incorruptible, undefiled and inalienable. He is not only heir of all the ages, but heir of God and joint owner in heirship with Jesus Christ. This carries title to glory eternal in nature and endless in duration, and also title to sufferings with Jesus Christ in this present time.

Let the Christian become better acquainted with his Bible, and he will dispute less about it and find more in it. Let others do as they please and think as they will regarding it, he need not be disturbed. If no one else has seen the new world, Columbus has. Sail with him. If no one else has attained the heavenly way, Jesus has. Walk with Him.

Sentence Sermons.

It is no sin to be tempted, but to be overcome.—Penn.

Many men owe the grandeur of their lives to their tremendous difficulties.—Spurgeon.

You should forgive many things in others, but nothing in yourself.—Ausonius.

When thou prayest, rather let thy heart be without words than thy words without heart.—Bunyan.

Choose the life that is most useful, and habit will make it the most agreeable.—Bacon.

The Sunday face that looks like lye will not wash out the sins of the week.—Henry F. Cope.

Evil is wrought for want of thought as well as want of heart.—Penn.

To read well—that is, to read books in a true spirit—is noble exercise and one that will task the reader more than any exercise which the customs of the day esteem.—Thoreau.

The fullness of one's religious life is measured by man's willingness to receive and not by God's capacity to give.—William T. Ellis.

AMUSEMENTS.

That charming New England idyl, "Way Down East," will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. The piece in brief has won popularity with all classes of theatregoers and there seems no reason why the success of its last appearance here should not be duplicated.

Unscrupulous and unrelenting villainy in the persecution of an innocent young girl, the dastardly attempts made to rob the victim of her fair name, and the prevention of foul crime by a logical sleuth, who is himself in love with the heroine, is the theme upon which "Tracked Around the World" is founded. It is a great play story, and addressed in such lavish splendor as characterizes the scenic and costume grandeur of this marvellously big production made under the able direction of A. H. Woods, it is not at all surprising to note the general and uncommon interest in its engagement here Saturday afternoon and night at the New Plainfield theatre. A melodrama of the strong type, such as this one is, backed by extraordinary generosity, is sure to create a profund sensation.

"David Harum" is a comedy more than ordinarily familiar to the majority of theatregoers. It has been before the public for five years. Following closely on the heels of Edward Noyes Westcott's admirable novel, "David Harum," Mr. Crane appeared in the play of that name. It provided Mr. Crane with one of the most successful and delightful vehicles he has used in several years. Mr. Frohman makes it a rule to provide new plays every year for his stars and so the role of "David" fell to Wm. H. Turner, who has been playing the part in Julius Cahn's company for the past four seasons. The company is booked to appear here shortly. "David Harum" is booked for the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night.

LITERARY.

The cost of a school for the development of good boys is thus stated by Eugene Wood in his article, "A School for Boys," in the October Everybody's: "It costs the State of Ohio about $160 a year for each boy. A useful, capable man is worth to society, on the average, $10,000. These 11,000 boys cost the State of Ohio then, say, $2,000,000. Say 7,000 of them were rescued. That is $70,000,000 recovered to society on the investment of $2,000,000. It has been figured that every criminal does about $2,000 damage a year, leaving entirely out of the estimate what it costs to maintain our plant for the detection, prevention, and punishment of crime. Each man will be a criminal not less than twenty years. That's $40,000 damages multiplied by 7,000 boys, or $280,000,000 damages saved, not counting the cost of the anti-criminal plant. Has it paid to run this Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster? And even if it hadn't paid financially, isn't it worth while?"

From its extremely handsome cover to the last line of text, the American Illustrated for October is a magazine of sustained, wholesome and varied interest. There are a number of well-illustrated, up-to-date articles: "Fire at Sea," by Lawrence Perry, tells of the danger of fire to both grayhound and wind jammer; in "Millions for Minutes," Leroy Scott shows what vast sums have been spent to cut down the running time on railroads between important points; Charles H. Caffin, in his series on American painting, treats post-Revolutionary art and Miss Laut tells the story of Vancouver in her series on the Vikings of the Pacific. "Pigs is Pigs," in the September American was the hit of the month. Ellis Parker Butler has another story in October, "The Man with the Glass Front," which is also extremely funny; "Mary Frances," by Mrs. H. L. Harris, the co-author of the "Jessica Letters," is a story that stands out among the magazine fiction of the month.

The October McClure's is devoted peculiarly to American life and activities. Not a story in it, nor a special article, but concerns the real and immediate things that move this country at large. Pastor Charles Wagner, the French clergyman-author, of "The Simple Life," writes of his visit at the White House, and with simple directness tells of the children and the household life of the President as he saw them. He writes an interesting and important estimate of President Roosevelt as a man. "What Kansas Did to Standard Oil" concludes Miss Tarbell's story of the oil war in Kansas, and tells excitingly of how the Kansans rushed in and won. "Pioneer Transportation in America" is the truthful romance of traffic, an absorbingly interesting story full of curious information. In this first paper Charles F. Lummis, foremost authority on the subject, carries traffic through America's heroic age up to the beginning of the great days on the plains. Eugene Wood contributes "The County Fair," the best of his reminiscent stories of "Back Home."

The Time Will Come.

When it will be a disgrace not to work when one is able.

When everybody will know that selfishness always defeats itself.

When the churches will not be closed as long as the saloons are open.

When to get rich by making others poorer will be considered a disgrace.

When the golden rule will be regarded as the soundest business philosophy.

When the same standard of morality will be demanded of men as of women.

When all true happiness will be found in doing the right, and only the good will be found to be real.

When the business man will find that his best interests will be the best interests of the man at the other end of the bargain.

When all hatred, revenge and jealousy will be regarded as boomerangs which inflict upon the thrower the injury intended for others.

When a man who seeks amusement by causing pain or taking the life of innocent, dumb creatures will be considered a barbarian.

When every man will be his own physician, and will carry his own remedy with him—when mind, not medicine, will be the great panacea.

When men will realize that there can be no real pleasure in wrongdoing because the sting and pain that follow more than outweigh the apparent pleasure.

When the world will have everything to sell and nothing to give, and the price it demands will be the best service the purchaser can render the face.

When it will be found that repression and punishment are not reformative, and our prisons will be transformed into great educative and character buliding institutions.

When it will be found that physical and chemical forces were intended to release man from all physical drudgery, and so free his mind from the burden of living-getting that he can make a life.

When no man will be allowed to say that the world owes him a living, since the world owes him nothing that he should not pay for; it owes a living only to cripples, invalids, and all others who can not, through some misfortune, help themselves.

When the "grafter" who fattens upon an unsuspecting public, wears purple and fine linen and lives in luxury, will be meted out the same measure of justice as the vulgar footpad receives who knocks a man down and picks his pockets.

When the "best society" will consist of men and women of brains, culture and achievement, rather than those whose chief merit and distinction lie in the possession of unearned fortunes which they make it the business of their lives to squander.—Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

AMERICAN BANKERS' ASS'N CONVENTION

ELABORATE PLANS BEING MADE FOR THE MEETING IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Government officials are co-operating with the local committee in arranging for the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, October 10 to 13. An executive committee of prominent Washington bankers has been busy for several weeks preparing the programme for the entertainment of the visitors. John Joy Edson, president of the Washington Loan and Trust Company and chairman of the committee, says reports indicate that fully 4,000 bankers will be here, and that preparations are being made to entertain all who come.

By special invitation of Secretary Shaw the visiting bankers will have unusual opportunities to see the workings of the Treasury Department. Every nook and corner of the department building and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be thrown open, and experts in the various branches of the service will be on hand to explain the manner in which business is conducted.

There will be excursions to Mount Vernon and Alexandria each day of the convention, both by trolley and boat. On Wednesday, October 11, the visitors will be received by President Roosevelt at the White House from 3 to 4:30 in the afternoon. On Thursday and Friday afternoons they will be the guests of the officers of the Thirteenth Cavalry and Third and Fourth Batteries of Field Artillery at special exhibition drills at Fort Myer. On Tuesday evening, October 10, the delegates will be the guests of honor at a dinner given at the New Willard Hotel by the local branch of the association. Secretary and Mrs. Shaw will give a reception in honor of the bankers at the Arlington Hotel Wednesday evening, October 11, and the trustees of the Corcoran Art Gallery also will give a reception on that evening. On Thursday evening the visitors will attend two theatre parties, and the following evening a formal reception will be given by the Washington members.

The business meetings of the convention will be held at the new National theatre on October 11, 12 and 13 at 10 a. m. The section on savings banks will meet in the ballroom of the New Willard Hotel, beginning October 10, and the section on trust companies will meet in the dining hall of the Shoreham Hotel the same day. E. F. Swinney, president of the First National Bank of Kansas City, is president, and James R. Branch, of New York, is secretary of the association. New officers will be elected at the convention.

GIFT FOR JAPANESE EMPRESS.

President Having Sewing Machine Made for Her.

The Singer Company plant at Elizabeth has just completed a sewing machine for the Empress of Japan. The machine was made on an order from President Roosevelt and the present of the machine to the Empress by the President is in recognition of the courtesy extended his daughter, Miss Alice Roosevelt, during her recent visit to Japan, when she was a guest of the Empress. The selection of the Singer sewing machine as a present came through a conversation, it is said, that Miss Roosevelt had with the Empress, in which the latter expressed a desire to possess an American machine. Miss Roosevelt at once communicated this conversation to the President, who placed an order with the Singer Company to manufacture a machine regardless of cost.

The machine is one of the V. S. pattern and is one of the finest and most costly ever manufactured in this or any other country. Every part of the machine where there is no friction is heavily gold-plated with Japanese filigree work. On one end of the machine, attached to the gold-plated iron work, are the American and Japanese coats of arms. On the other end is the Singer monogram, all of which are beautifully embossed in gold. Underneath the coat of arms of the two countries, in Japanese characters, is the date, and then follows the reason for the presentation.

From the time that the castings left the molding shop until it received its final test in the operating room, the utmost care and secrecy were maintained, and none but the most trusted employes were allowed to do any part of the work upon it. The machine will be placed in a handsome mahogany cabinet. It will be lined with the finest silk and plush in the Japanese colors. The machine will be sent to Japan by a special messenger selected by the President for that purpose.

STRANGE BUT TRUE.

Speaking of "getting the goods" the Washington Post says:
Taking $1,000,000 is called genius.
Taking $100,000 is called shortage.
Taking $50,000 is called litigation.
Taking $25,000 is called insolvency.
Taking $10,000 is called irregularity.
Taking $5,000 is called defalcation.
Taking $1,000 is called corruption.
Taking $500 is called embezzlement.
Taking $100 is called dishonesty.
Taking $50 is called stealing.
Taking $25 is called total depravity.
Taking one ham is called war on society.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Yesterday was the last day for naturalization purposes in this county and a big batch of foreigners were made citizens. The political leaders of both parties were busy getting the applicants through, and it was after the noon hour before Judge Vail finished his task of swearing in all those who were brought before him. Nearly 100 were given citizenship papers.

Surprise for Runaway Boy.

New Orleans, Sept. 28.—When John J. Coughlan, fifteen years old, ran away from his New York home and took passage on the steamer Chalmette for New Orleans under the name of Frank L. Lloyd, he thought he had cleverly eluded pursuit. But the boy was mistaken. His mother learned where he had gone, and, braving the danger of yellow fever, she came to New Orleans, and when the Chalmette arrived she was on the pier awaiting him. John then agreed to return to New York.

INFORMATION BUREAU FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY

(By Miss Adams, Librarian.)

The questions brought to a public library are many and varied, and to answer them it is necessary to have a well rounded selection of recent and authoritative books in all departments of literature, and at the same time abundance of such bibliographical tools as will unlock the treasures they contain.

No public library can or should attempt to meet the demand for light literature, all it should try to do is to select the best of this, not indeed to neglect the demand for wholesome fiction, which it is a part of a library's function to supply so far as it can without encroaching on the more purely educational side of its work.

The aim of this library has been to first supply the best books in all departments of literature, emphasizing especially the needs of the more purposeful reader, and after to supply a selection of the best books of the day as far as funds allow. This method consistently followed has resulted in a collection of real value and practical use, enabling us to be of assistance in a way which would not have been possible, had we filled our shelves with the fiction of the day.

Three years ago, with a view of meeting the demand made upon the library for reference work, (i. e. the answering of questions which require more or less search), an information desk was placed in the reading room, and the afternoons set aside for the especial work. It was with regret that this had to be given up through lack of assistance, since the use made of it showed how great was the need of some such definite provision.

By better organization and increased help it is now possible to again take this up making it a regular department, and it is planned to begin on October 1, after which date the librarian or assistant librarian will sit at the information desk every week-day afternoon from 2 until 5, to help readers in every way possible. Persons wanting assistance in looking up material on any subject, or instruction as to the use of the card catalogue, indexes, the system of classification or help in their reading are asked to enquire for the librarian or the assistant librarian, and it is hoped that so far as possible such inquiries will be made within the hours mentioned.

Through its up-to-date reference collection, and its filing and cataloging of bibliographical material, the library has been able to be of service to many. Authors have come to it for material, inventors to consult its files of patent office reports, designers, artists, photographers, journalists, housekeepers for recipes, clergymen, the teacher both for personal use and for books for class use, Sunday-school teacher, the social and the municipal worker, the lawyer, the mechanic, while engineers, cival and electrical and mechanical have found its unusually complete files of transactions and proceedings of scientific societies and other important serials on these subjects of great value. A large number of persons building new homes have gotten suggestions from the library's architectural periodicals and books on interior decoration. Courses of reading have been prepared for applicants who are desirous of reading good books, but who do not know where to begin, and buyers of books for school or private use have gotten from it both information as to the best books for their purpose, and the best or most suitable editions.

Parents, who from the enormous output of children's books, are at a loss what books to buy for their children, have received suggestions, while children themselves come to us for a variety of information, which we should be wise indeed if we were able to supply.

It may not be so generally known that for any study or reading clubs applying the library will supply reading lists on its course of study; that to persons pursuing a line of study special privileges are granted both as to the number of books they may take out at one time and the time limit; or that the library will keep any one informed of books on the subjects in which he is interested, as they are added, if addressed postals are left at the library for that purpose.

Unquestionably there is an immense amount of time and energy wasted by individuals and by municipalities in experimenting on their own account, because of their ignorance of and consequent neglect to act upon the accumulated experience of others, the records of which they may so easily obtain from books. Take for example a matter of recent local interest—The different methods of street paving. The files of engineering periodicals in the library would show what had been the experience of other towns, and would also give expert opinions of engineers. Another live local question, municipal ownership of the water supply. In the files of such periodicals as the Annals of the American Academy, American Economic Association Publications, and Municipal Engineering the student of this subject may find the whole matter very fully and ably discussed, pro and con, by men who have thought all around the subject.

These illustrations will serve to show the eminently practical side of the information desk work. In fact there is hardly a department of life in which books will not help us, if we only know to which ones to turn. And it is with the hope that the library may be of more use in this way, that we are systematizing and bringing this work of our information desk to wider attention.

TEMPLARS ARE TO HAVE A BIG FIELD DAY

THREE THOUSAND KNIGHTS EXPECTED TO INVADE ATLANTIC CITY OCT. 12.

Preparations are under way for a turnout of about 3,000 persons, representing commaderies in eighteen cities of the State, at the annual field day of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey, Knights Templar, to be held in Atlantic City, October 12. The day's observance will consist of a parade on the boardwalk, receptions and banquets. Atlantic Commandery, the youngest branch in the State, which was instituted last May, is making extensive preparations to entertain the guests, and especial attention will be given to the reception of the knights' families.

The following commanderies will be represented in the big boardwalk pageant: Hugh de Payenes No. 1, of Jersey City; Helena No. 3, of Burlington; Palestine No. 4, of Trenton; Damascus No. 5, of Newark; De Molay No. 6, of Washington; Cyrene No. 7, of Camden; St. John No. 9, of Elizabeth; Olivet No. 10, of Millville; Ivanhoe No. 11, of Bordentown; Odo De St. Amand No. 12, of Morristown; Melita No. 13, of Paterson; St. Elmo No. 14, of Lambertville; Corson No. 15, of Asbury Park; Pilgrim No. 16, of Hoboken; Trinity No. 17, of Plainfield; Temple No. 18, of New Brunswick; Jersey No. 19, of East Orange, and Atlantic No. 20, of Atlantic City.

A special train leaving from the Broad Street station, Newark, of the Central Railroad at 8 o'clock, will convey the delegations from Morristown, Washington, Paterson and Newark. At Elizabethport the delegations from Elizabeth and Plainfield will join the party in two special cars; at Perth Amboy the New Brunswick representatives will be taken on the train, and at Red Bank the Asbury Park commandery will be picked up. The other commanderies will make up the trip to Atlantic City in individual excursions.

Jersey Commandery, of East Orange, will be represented by a party of about 150, who will leave on a special train Monday afternoon, October 11. Eminent Commander William M. Davis will head the party.

Damascus Commandery, of Newark, will be represented by a delegation of about 300 persons.

The boardwalk parade will begin at 2 o'clock. Preparations are under way in the local ranks to make a splendid showing on this occasion. A reception by the Grand Commandery will take up the remainder of the afternoon, and the departure for home will be made at 8 o'clock.

No Politicians in Heaven.

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 28.—In intimating to the Republican convention that nominated him for coroner that politicians do not go to heaven, Daniel W. Benton, of Esopus, made a big hit. He admitted his qualifications for the office, and in closing said: "It is well that you have rewarded me before it is too late. It is well that you nominated me before increasing age removes me from the ranks of active party workers and places me in the ranks beyond the grave, the ranks which no politician ever enters." Before entering politics Mr. Benton was a lay preacher.

MAYOR REPLIES TO CITIZEN PARTY SPEAKERS

Borough's Executive Hits Hard at A. V. D. Honeyman and S. S. Swackhamer.

REED ALSO TALKS

Corporation Counsel Declares That Swackhamer Cast Vote for Primary Law Which He Now Condemns.

Mayor Smalley made a reply to the charges brought against his administration by the Fusionist leaders at the Citizens' meeting, at a smoker of the Good Government Club, the administration campaign organization, last night. It wasn't intended to be a complete reply, he said, his intention being to reserve a full statement as to the arguments and accusations brought by the anti-administration men until later, but it was full enough and lively enough to arouse the enthusiasm of the assembled voters. There was only one other speech besides the Mayor's. Charles A. Reed made that. He also said he wanted to reserve his heaviest guns for another and bigger meeting, plans for which were being made, but he loosed a battery that was impressive enough for any political occasion. Both speakers paid particular attention to former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer and A. V. D. Honeyman. Mr. Reed took a side shot at Dr. Buchanan.

The meeting was held in a vacant store on Somerset street, near Race. Between seventy-five and one hundred voters attended it. It was called primarily for the purpose of arranging a big mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall, and before anything else was done Mayor Smalley, in the chair as president, sent out to see if the hall could be secured for next Thursday night. Word that it was available on that date was received, and arrangements for the mass meeting were ordered by the president.

After making an announcement regarding the purpose of the meeting in regard to the arrangements for a mass meeting, the Mayor said there were certain things he wished to say in reply to statements made by the opponents to his administration; a full reply he desired to hold for the big meeting, but there were some things he wanted to answer without delay. He opened up on Mr. Swackhamer. A stenographic report of the speeches made at the Citizens' caucus was in his hand.

"Swackhamer," he said, "had served three years with him in the Council. In that time the Democratic leader had attended one meeting in every five or six, and he could'nt recall anything Swackhamer had done for the borough while serving in the body. When his, Swackhamer's, term expired, he had arisen and said he wanted to congratulate the borough and the Mayor on the administration. Nobody asked him to make the statement; he made it because he knew it was true that the borough had had good government, and the men who served with him, in whose presence he made the statement, knew it. Swackhamer could not prove that there had been any attempt to make the councilmen vote except as they saw fit, and he knew it. The charge of bossism was absurd. The vote on the fire department change was entirely independent. He had nothing to do with it.

"The firemen were altogether wrong in the attitude they took in the matter. The new department was a success and economical, and the volunteers were realizing it and saying it. The Council that voted it was to be commended.

"Swackhamer didn't tell the truth at the Citizens' meeting; he never did tell it. He had done nothing for the borough, but had taken several suits against it when retainers were in sight. He had never won one. He ought to have known the Goodwin case would be lost."

He defied Swackhamer or any other man or set of men to prove that he had forced Homer J. Wightman from the superintendency of the borough schools or injected politics into the school system. The only thing he had said to Wightman was a warning to keep out of a vexatious matter like the annexation fight, after the superintendent had attended a hearing at Trenton; he told him the question might become lively and that some people might not like to see a man in his position taking part in it. That was all he had said, and if Wightman had taken his advice he would be in his position today. From all he had heard, the present

FRIGHTENED WOMAN LEAPS FROM FIRE

EARLY MORNING BLAZE AT HOME OF MRS. EVA ROWLEY.

A fire of mysterious origin broke out at 1:20 this morning on the first floor of the apartments in John Manley's double house on Park avenue, occupied by Mrs. Eva Rowley. The flames had consumed a pair of large portiere curtains hanging over a doorway and were making rapid progress when the department arrived. Only the chemical engine was used in extinguishing them and the loss will not exceed $150, covered by insurance.

Mrs. Rowley was aroused by smoke pouring into her room on the second floor and called to Thomas Muir, who was passing on Park avenue, to turn in the alarm. She believed the whole lower floor to be ablaze and became so frightened that she climbed on the roof of the porch and made a leap for safety. She might have sustained serious injury but for Patrolmen Theodore Martin and Charles Flynn arriving just in time to catch her in their arms. She escaped with a few slight bruises.

Chief Doane made a careful investigation, but was unable to gain any idea as to how the blaze started.

THOMAS O. BULLOCK BURIED THIS MORNING

STORY OF HIS FIGHT AGAINST D. L. & W. RECALLED.

Thomas O. Bullock, a former resident of this city, who died at his home at Succasunna Monday night, was buried this morning at Hillside cemetery, Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, conducting the service at the grave. Funeral services were also held at the home last night.

During his earlier days Mr. Bullock brought fame to Succasunna and himself. He was a rice merchant in New York and early in 1896 he became the hero of the Jersey commuters of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

Every commuter always goes home package laden, and when Bullock began his celebrated fight many of the Delaware and Lackawanna's patrons were carrying packages that ought to have ridden in the express car. The express company saw it was losing trade and complained to the railroad. The result was that the railroad issued an order that all packages would have to be carried in the express car.

The commuters howled but did nothing until Bullock announced that he would champion their cause. Then came the day when he entered a train with two large packages. He was ordered to take them to the express car. He refused. There was a struggle between him and the conductor and the packages were taken from him and put in the express car. Bullock refused to take the packages from that car. He showed he meant business when he brought suit against the railroad for $25,000 damages.

The suit was tried in the Morris County Court and Bullock was the victor, the jury giving him $1 for the coat that was torn in the struggle, $5 for his groceries and $1,000 for his damaged feelings. The railroad appealed and had the verdict set aside. When the Supreme Court of New Jersey set aside the verdict it also declared that packages of groceries were not personal baggage.

Bullock had several other tiffs with the railroad about the stopping of trains. He made the railroad take water several times. Bullock also had other troubles.

WALTER L. PLACE WEDS

Miss Marion Eugenie Sproulls Bride of Plainfield Man.

CEREMONY INNEWYORK

Son of Fromer Mayor Place a Benedict—Marriage Service in Church of the Archangel.

Miss Marion Eugenie Sproulls, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Eugenie Sproulls, of New York, and Walter Swift Place, son of former Mayor Charles Place, of the borough, were married in the Church of Archangel, New York, at 8 o'clock, last night, in the presence of a large number of guests from New York, Boston and Plainfield. The church was lavishly decorated with palms and flowers.

The bride was gowned in a white princess lace robe, over chiffon, carrying a large shower bouquet of lillies-of-the-valley. She also wore a veil fastened with orange blossoms and wearing a diamond necklace, the gift of the groom.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. William S. Loizeaux. She was gowned in white bobinet and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses. The bride's attendants were Mrs. Bertram L. Smith, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Harmar Brereton, who were gowned in pale pink crepe trimmed with valenciennes lace. They carried large bouquets of white carnations.

Bertram L. Smith, brother-in-law of the groom, was the best man, and the ushers were Sumner Ballard, John M. Swift, Roswell Flower Vail and James F. Middledith, the last named of Plainfield.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Starkweather Pratt, and the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Reginald William Sproulls.

After the ceremony a supper was served at the "Claremont," for the bridal party. Following a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Place will reside in Newton, Mass. The groom is well known here, where he lived for several years. He represents Coffin & Co., a large bond house of New York, in Boston.

The bride is prominent in New York society, where she has taken part in many brilliant social affairs. She received many handsome and costly presents.

MACHINE SHOP TO HAVE ITS OWN FIRE COMPANY

ALUMINUM PLATE AND PRESS CO. MEN WILL PROTECT PLANT.

Plans for a fire company to be composed of men on its force are being made by the Aluminum Plate and Press Company, of Dunellen. Three hydrants are to be located inside the shop, and two on the grounds about it.

A water main runs right through the shop now, and there are 300 feet of standard hose in the place. The company will be officered as in municipal departments, and drilled regularly. When the company is fully organized the plant will have as much protection against fire while the men are at work as if it was next door to a city engine house.

W. C. T. U. RECEPTION.

In Honor of Three of Its Oldest Members.

In its rooms on Madison avenue last evening the local W. C. T. U. gave a reception in honor of Mrs. S. Sims, Mrs. Shotwell and Mrs. W. L. Smalley, Sr., who are among the oldest members. Old-time hymns were sung and talks were given by Mrs. Tomlinson, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Faulks and several others.

At the close refreshments were served and a large cake made especially for the occasion by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins and bearing an appropriate inscription was cut. Yesterday was the birthday of Miss Frances Willard and part of the reception was devoted to talks about her life and work.

AUTO DAMAGE SUIT ON

Third Trial of Case Against W. R. Stanbery at Dunellen Today.

A JURY AT LAST

Many Challenged Before Twelve Men Are Picked—Oscar Harrison Claims $200.

After taking nearly all morning to secure a jury to hear the evidence, Oscar Harrison's suit against William R. Stanbury, claiming $200 for the loss of his horse and wagon in the fatal auto accident two months ago, was started in Justice Von Minden's court in Dunellen for the third time today. When adjournment was made at 1 o'clock but three witnesses had been heard, but many more are in readiness to go on this afternoon. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., is counsel for Harrison and Stanbery is represented by Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer.

So many men were challenged by the opposing lawyers in getting the jury that the first panel became exhausted with only three accepted. Adjournment was taken while Constable C. W. Blaine was sent out to round up all the available citizens in the borough, and he returned with eleven. From these the jury was completed and it stands as follows: John Tinsman, Isaac J. Stites, Walter Brokaw, William Larrabee, William Fitz-Randolph, S. Sorson, H. Myrick, J. M. Dayton, Harry Hummer, Howard VanNess, A. M. VanAlstyne and George Sperling.

Frank VanWinkle, who took photographs of the spot where the accident occurred, and Abner Coriell, who made maps of the location, were first called and offered them as evidence. They were followed by the plaintiff, Harrison, who told his story of the accident substanitally as had been done at the two previous trials. Both lawyers followed every word closely and though Counsellor Swackhamer made objections at frequent intervals and sharp interrogations, the testimony was not shaken.

Harrison will again go on the stand this afternoon as will Joseph Rutledge, James Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Voorhees, Martin Boyle and John Whelan, all for the plaintiff's side. Miss Ada Westphal, whose mother was killed in the accident, Walter Vail and Stanbery will testify for the defense.

ESTATE FOR CHARITY.

Clarkson Riches Go to Home for Children.

Mrs. Annie Clarkson, widow of William R. Clarkson, formerly of this city, who died at her apartments at the Hotel Navarre, New York, early Wednesday morning, left a considerable estate. Under her husband's will, at her death $150,000 goes to the Jennie Clarkson Home for children at Katanah, N. Y.

Mrs. Clarkson was the last of her family. The home was incorporated in memory of the only Clarkson child before Mr. Clarkson's death. He gave it about $30,000 to start with. Mrs. Clarkson's independent estate, it is understood, will go to the home.

DIED AT SON'S HOME.

Robert Hamilton, of New York, Passes Away After Long Illness.

Following an illness of many months, Robert Hamilton, of New York, died this morning at the home of his son, W. F. Hamilton, of Verdon street. Death was due to general debility. He was in his eighty-fourth year and had been spending the summer in Plainfield. A widow and one son and two daughters survive him. All were present at his bedside when the end came.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Rosh Hoshannah Here.

The observance of Rosh Hoshannah, or the Jewish New Year, will begin at the Jewish Synagogue, tonight, with special music and services conducted by Rabbi Kontonvitz, of New Yerk. The music will be rendered by a choir composed of Mr. Benton, Jacob Abrams, Louis Rottberg, Henry Rosenbaum and David Wolfe. The services will begin at 8 o'clock. There will also be services tomorrow morning.

Death of Mrs. John Moran.

Mrs. Rachel Moran, wife of John Moran, aged twenty-six years, died this morning at her home, 921 South Second street. She was the daughter of Philip and Frederica Schunk. The notice of funeral will be given later.

Football Candidates Out.

Fifteen candidates turned out for practice with the Orange Field Club last evening. The boys are getting down to business, as it is their intention to equal, if not beat, their record of last year.

IN THE SOMERSET COURT

Justice Garretson Dismisses Petit Jurors Until Monday, October 16.

COOLEY LOSES SUIT

All Supreme and Circuit Court Cases Disposed of—Many Cases Off For Term.

Justice Garretson dismissed the petit jurors until Monday, October 16, in the Somerset County Courts, yesterday, after having disposed of all the Supreme and Circuit cases ready for trial.

The case of Dr. Justus H. Cooley against James B. Wilson, on contract, resulted in a non-suit. The plaintiff, who owns the Brookside Sanitarium, sued the defendant, trustee of an estate, for money alleged to be due him from one of his patients. George W. V. Moy was counsel for the plaintiff and Paul Q. Oliver for the defense.

The case of the Rocky Hill Construction Company against Charles B. Walton and others, on contract, went off for the term.

The case of John J. Wahl against John Marsh, on contract, was referred to Judge Schenck for trial. Codington & Swackhamer are counsel for the defendant.

The case of Abram P. Voorhees against Abbie Connor was for payment on a note given by the defendant's husband. The jury rendered a verdict favoring the defendant.

The cases of John and Michael Lasko against the Public Service Corporation, in tort, were for alleged injuries received by being hit by a trolley car. John received a verdict for $60, and 6 cents was awarded "Mike."

All the other cases are off for the term.

TO ASK FOR BIDS FOR STORM SEWER

COMMON COUNCIL HAS SET ASIDE $2,000 FOR THE PURPOSE.

It is the intention of the street and sewer committee at the October meeting of the Common Council to advertise for bids for a partial construction of the proposed Richmond street storm sewer. The committee has set aside about $2,000 for this work and it is proposed to commence it at Cedar brook and extend it as near Fifth street as possible. Another year the work will be continued.

This sewer is to be 3x4 feet inside and is to be of concrete. This is more expensive than some kinds of storm sewer work, but it will pay in the end.

At the October meeting there will also be introduced an ordinance providing for the extension of the sanitary sewers in the East End of the city, including the upper part of North avenue, Columbia avenue and Park Terrace. The work of investigating the advisability of installing a pumping station for the sanitary sewers in the West End when gravity will not carry off the sewage is progressing and a report will probably be presented to the Common Council in the near future.

The work of improvements at the sewage farm is also progressing favorably. The contractors, Richards & Gaston, are making excellent headway.

ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE.

Delightful Affair in Saengerbund Hall Enjoyed by Large Crowd.

A large gathering of members and friends were entertained with a programme and dance in Saengerbund Hall by the Gesang and Turn Verein last night. The first part comprised songs by the singing section, a sketch by Mrs. Sutton, another sketch by Rudolph Bleyer, August Wolf, Frank Keller and Miss Clara Weber, illustrated songs by Andrew Mulford and moving pictures by Professor Chamberlain, assisted by Frank Neidig. At its conclusion dancing was taken up and was continued until midnight.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of August Wolf, Charles F. Meyer, Jr., and Rudloph Bleyer.

Want to See Beautiful City.

A private party comprising forty Newarkers have made arrangements to take a trolley ride to this city on Saturday, October 14, and have dinner at the Hotel Kensington.

Gun Club to Shoot.

There will be a ten men team shoot tomorrow afternoon at Alton between the Alton Gun Club and the Rahway Gun Club for a purse.

$5 FINE FOR ONE OF 'PLAINS SCRAPPERS

SECOND BELLIGERENT TOO BADLY HURT TO APPEAR.

Adam Dunham, one of the two Plainfielders who participated in the fracas at Scotch Plains at midnight Wednesday, was fined $5 and costs after a hearing before Recorder Clark last night. His companion, Thomas Kearns, it was said, had been so severely punished by Henry Schenck, the third of the trio, that he was unable to appear and his hearing was put over indefinitely. No action was taken against Schenck, but it was declared by Dunham's counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., that he would be charged with assault and battery on complaints from both Dunham and Kearns.

The testimony at the trial was very conflicting, each side producing witnesses to bear them out in the statement that each other was to blame. Schenck, who is colored, declared that Dunham and Kearns attacked him without provocation, and that they chased him about with pickets. The Plainfielders said Schenck was the aggressor and proved, through Lynus Walpole, that the colored man had jumped upon Kearns' face with his feet after knocking him down. The young man was badly punished and but for Walpole's intervention would have been seriously injured.

MANY MAKE SPEECHES AT CITIZENS' SMOKER

T. S. ARMSTRONG PRESIDES AT BOROUGH CLUB'S MEETING.

The second of the borough Citizens' party smokers took place in Spencer's Hall last night, with nearly twice as many voters as attended the first gathering. T. S. Armstrong presided as chairman and called for remarks, meeting with many responses. Twenty or more gave impromptu addresses of an informal nature, though one or two spoke strongly against what they declared "machine rule."

It was decided at the meeting to start a subscription list for the purpose of securing funds to conduct the campaign on straight and legitimate lines, and there were many contributions. The list is to be circulated and the receipts and expenditures are to be made known weekly.

The meetings are to be held regularly every Thursday night, and to accommodate the attendances fifty new chairs are to be placed in the room.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT FAIR.

Stokes, Kean, Dryden and Others Were There.

Big Thursday at the Interstate Fair at Trenton brought out many politicians and prominent among them were Governor Stokes and United States Senators Dryden and Kean. The Governor arrived about 1 o'clock. He was in a carriage with Senator Kean and State Treasurer Briggs, chairman of the Republican State Committee. They stopped at Mr. Briggs' tent and stood on the canvass covered platform and shook hands with many who gathered to greet them. Senator Dryden arrived very early, being at the president's tent about three hours before the Governor and Senator Kean entered the grounds. After the salutations a luncheon was had.

After which the Governor, the two Federal Senators, State Treasurer Briggs and Secretary Margerum, in R. L. Kuser's big Clement Bayard auto, drove around the race track to the strain of "Hail to the Chief" by Winkler's band and the cheering of the crowd.

Choose New Officers.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held its first fall meeting this morning. Mrs. F. H. Andrews was elected vice president in place of Mrs. Julia VanBuren, who resigned last year. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, acting secretary, was elected to that office for the year. The visitors appointed for October were Mrs. W. W. Rowley, Mrs. C. E. Ryder and Mrs. George Schoonmaker. Mrs. W. W. Rowley was also appointed purchaser.

O'Connors May Die.

Peter O'Connors, of Westfield, who was injured on the railroad a few days ago while stealing a ride on a coal train, is reported today as not being so well, at Muhlenberg Hospital. The physician has doubts of his recovery.

TELLS OF HIS ALPS' TRIP

H. C. Krebs Relates His Travels to the Trinity Church Men's Association.

SOME HIGH CLIMBING

School Superintendent Dwells on the Beauties of Nature in Foreign Climes—Interests His Hearers.

"Over the Alps into Italy," was the subject of an interesting talk given before the Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church, last night, by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the North Plainfield Public Schools. It was the first meeting of the association for the fall and there was an encouraging attendance of members and friends. Frank Storr, president of the association, was in the chair, and as there was no special business to be considered, Mr. Krebs was introduced. He talked for over an hour, holding the close attention of all while he related some of the most interesting features of his trip abroad.

His description of his trip over the Alps was filled with exciting adventure. He told of the narrow passes through which he travelled and of the snow-capped peaks extending many thousand feet above sea level. When he reached the top of the pass he was 9,000 feet above sea level and he could then look above him and see other peaks 2,000 and 4,000 feet above that.

Mr. Krebs said that while there were doubtless many places in the country just as beautiful and attractive as those abroad, it is the historical associations that lend a peculiar charm to the foreign countries and in travelling through the country made famous by Napoleon Bonaparte the speaker said that he felt a thrill as he recalled the valiant deeds performed by that great general.

In the opinion of Mr. Krebs Lake Como is even more beautiful than the world-famous Rhine, over which so many travellers go in raptures. He referred to the Milan Cathedral, a most wonderful structure with its 5,200 pinacles upon each of which is mounted a figure of some saint. He said that it had often occurred to him that since that that was one of the sights Grover Cleveland would not be able to see, for owing to his large proportion he could not climb the narrow passageway winding itself to the top of the cathedral.

Mr. Krebs told something of his experience in Venice, referring to the Bridge of Sighs, mortalized by Lord Byron. He confessed that his opinion of Italy was considerably changed after visiting that country, that it was, with the exception of the southern part, a beautiful garden.

In conclusion Mr. Krebs related some of the amusing incidents of his trips, telling of the efforts of foreigners to get all the money they can out of Americans. Some of his experiences in this way were exceedingly laughable. On one occasion he purchased a book of views for ten cents, for which the owner originally wanted forty cents.

At the close of his talk, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck spoke words of praise for the excellent talk and on his motion a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Krebs. Through some misunderstanding those who were to have furnished a musical programme did not appear and this part of the programme was omitted, and the rest of the time was spent in a social way.

MRS. L. H. SCHENCK DEAD.

Wife of Somerset Court Judge Passes Away.

Mrs. Schenck, forty-five years old, wife of Louis H. Schenck, law judge of Somerset county, passed away at her home at Neshanic Station yesterday, after a long illness. She was a Miss Emma A. Babcock, daughter of the late veteran editor of the (then) New Brunswick Fredonian and of The Advance, at Jamesburg.

On June 18, 1885, she was wedded to Judge Schenck, and is survived by three sons, Raymond L., Herbert L. and Harold D. Schenck. Mrs. Schenck was a member of the old Reformed church at Neshanic, and before her illness took a very active part in church work.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Excitement over the deciding game to be played between the locals and the Clinton Avenues tomorrow is running high. One of the supporters of the Dunellen combination placed a bet with a Plainfielder at two to one on Dunellen, in Alberts' pool room Wednesday night. The members of the team are indignant over the charges that the game last Saturday was fixed. It is one of those accusations that are easy to make, and hard to disprove, especially when the game is lost through wild throwing. There is one comforting reflection for the nine, however, and that is the entire absence of suspicion over the character of tomorrow's game. The team will work itself sick to win . And the wise ones pick Dunellen as the sure thing in the contest. It has the brawn and the brain, and with Smith in form the Plainfielders will have no license to make even a showing.

The hope that Dunellen will be beautified by the erection of a handsome stone station, aroused by the building of one at Cranford, is not likely to be realized as quickly as the optimistic boroughites believe. It is said by railroad officials that the old-fashioned station appears more fitting and attractive to the would-be suburbanite in a place of Dunellen's character, so that there is no need for the erection of the more expensive stone structure.

The Borough Council will meet next Monday night. It is expected that some report will be made by the Schneider committee on the Chestnut street crossing matter. It is felt by the public that a report or some action by the Council is in order. The people believe that if the railroad company doesn't want to take action the Council has the power to make it, and should exert the power.

There was a large attendance at Father Younan's lecture on "India," at St. John's church last night. Father Younan spoke in a highly interesting vein, describing vividly the Eastern land of romance, and the efforts of the church to rescue it from the darkness of idolatry and heathen beliefs. Striking views illustrated the lecture.

David Steinfelt, one of two Newarkers arrested here two weeks ago on suspicion of having designs on the citizens' silver and other valuables, was injured in a free-for-all scrap among a gang of tramps at Bound Brook early this week. He is in the Somerset Hospital.

The third jury drawn from among the boroughites to hear the suit of Oscar Harrison against W. R. Stanbery is weighing the case in the borough hall, before Justice VonMinden, of New Market, this afternoon.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it, Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Thorp's foot relief is now a household remedy. Have you got a bottle?

When you want the services of a first class tailor consult A. LeVine, of Watchung avenue. He guarantees his work.

Those who know the difference between good candy and poor buy at Henry Mehrtens' store, East Front street. All made on the premises.

I. N. Wyckoff, the painter and paper hanger, has the reputation for doing honest work. Consult him when you want anything in his line.

William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, do trucking of all kinds, and will remove furniture to any part of the country safely and at reasonable figures.

Buy your groceries at W. W. Wilson's store, West Third street, and be satisfied with the values and treatment you receive. Satisfaction is certain at Wilson's.

No customer of Callahan & Son, of Richmond street, is interested in the announcement of other grocers. The Callahan clientele get everything it is possible to offer.

A. M. Griffen, the East Front street hardware merchant, is ready to put your furnace or heater in good condition for winter. He is also ready to contract for installing any kind of heat, or doing plumbing and tinning.

If you are looking for pretty bits of fruiture to fill an odd corner, Powlison & Jones have just the thing you want. And at a value that will astonish you by its reasonableness. The P. & J. store is full of attractive furniture bargains.

Have your teeth attended to regularly. It is a mistake to wait until the enamel is discolored or rotting. There is no chance then to save them. Have Dr. Atwood, West Front street, look them over at stated times and prevent them from weakening.

The women of Plainfield and vicinity are greatly interested in the fine showing of new fall and winter dress goods at Woodhull & Martin's store. They represent the best fabrics in the market and will give entire satisfaction as to wearing qualities and the price. Every other department in the store is well filled with new goods and you will find many bargains. The carpet department is one of the interesting places to visit just now. The display is large and attractive.

SOMEWHAT PERSONAL.

Chicago has a new Greek resident who carries the name of Pappatheodorokoumountourgeotopoulua. If there are any more at home like that the telegraph tolls will break the newspapers when the scrap between Greece and Roumania is in full swing.

Champagne is $500 a bottle in Bogota. Some of the beef trust men must be putting in their vacation in Colombia's capital.

Once more Green and Gaynor must come home from Canada and stand trial, but it is noticeable that they haven't boarded the train yet.

Dowie claims to have added King Edward to the Zion host. We can readily believe that he has captured many a British sovereign.

Senator Platt says the story that he is ill is a lie, intensified with a most unparliamentary adjective, but is unable to get up one strong enough to characterize the allegations in the Mae Woods suit.

None of those who advise Mr. Cortelyou to pay back corporation contributions have told him where he could get the money.

Why shouldn't it be entirely proper that Barber, the match man, put $500,000 of brimstone money into a church?

If Mr. Taggart's remarks about the life insurance companies were of a "cursory" nature, as is said, he need not lack for a chorus.

By way of putting the finishing touches on the proof that she is up to date, Cuba has had an election riot with charges of stuffed ballot boxes and one man killed.

Let us hope the report that half a million coal miners will go out on strike April 1 will fit the date.

At any rate that San Francisco woman who was arrested in New York for toting a gun was justified in thinking she needed one in the metropolis.

Whether the canal needs a lock system or not, on the level, one should be installed in the disbursing department.

SKEETERS' THIRD ATTEMPT.

Plainfield and Jersey City Cross Bats Tomorrow.

Plainfield fans will see a fine baseball contest on Crescent Oval tomorrow when the Jersey City Eastern League team will oppose the Daabsters. Manager Murray is only too glad for another opportunity to defeat the Union county champions, while the latter feel sure that they can win from the Hudson county aggregation. They have accomplished this feat twice this season, by scores of 7 to 2 and 5 to 2 and are confident that they can do the trick again.

The "Skeeters" are now in the best of condition, having had a most successful season, and are sure to play their best. The locals have been on the "slump" during the past week, but are now in fighting trim and ready to give battle to their old-time rivals. It is likely that Manager Murray will select Mack or Pfanmiller to do the pitching, with Vandergrift behind the rubber. Lou Wiltse and O'Neill will be in the points for the locals with the regular team behind them. Last Sunday Mack held the Daabsters down to one hit and one run and Manager Murray may feel that he is capable of repeating the trick.

At 2 o'clock there will be a championship game between Dunellen and Clinton Avenue, and the Plainfield-Jersey City game will start at 4 o'clock. One admission will be charged for both games. This is the lineup:

Plainfield—Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Dalton, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; Wiltse, p.

Jersey City—Bean, ss; Cassidy, 1b; Kiester, 2b; Merritt, 3b; McCormick, rf; Vandergrift, c; McCann, cf; Mack, p; Pfanmiller lf.

The lineup for the Clinton Avenue-Dunellen game will be as follows:

Clinton Avenue—O'Loughlin, c; J. Scott, p; Barnes, 1b; B. Martin, 2b; J. Martin, ss; Beekman, 3b; Dodge, lf; R. Scott, cf; Emery, rf.

Dunellen—Nelson, c; Smith, p; Giles, 1b; Watson, 2b; Craig, ss; Conway, 3b; Mathews, lf; Overton, cf; Jackson, rf.

DIXONITES VS. DAABSTERS.

Banquet to Follow Final Game on October 14.

Charles A. Dixon is completing arrangements for the baseball game with the Daabsters and the banquet on Saturday, October 14. Mr. Daab gave Mr. Dixon this date and the latter is getting a good team together for the contest. He has promised not to use "Willie" Deegan, and it is quite likely that "Phil" Smith will occupy the box for the Daabsters.

The All-Star team will be composed of Louis Wiltse, "Warry" MacLaughlin, Allen, Dailey, Brit Martin, Orra Dodge and possibly several players from the Clinton Avenue team. With this lineup Mr. Dixon is sure that he can give the locals a good game.

After the game a banquet will be given Manager Daab and the team at the Hotel Iroquois. Mr. Dixon is in charge of the arrangements for this affair and expects to have the tickets ready for the banquet in a few days. Among those who will attend are Mayor J. F. Buckle, Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough; City Judge Runyon and a number of prominent fans. There will be speech-making and the presentation of the pennant to the team. It is expected to have about seventy-five guests.

Not Much Bossism There.

The result of the recent primary elections in Essex and Gloucester counties would seem to indicate that there is not as much bossism in New Jersey as a good many high-shouters would have the country believe there is. In both instances the people evidently had an idea of what they wanted to do and did it without going to the trouble of asking anybody for permission—Trenton State Gazette.

"Lou" Wiltse is pleased with the idea of facing Jersey City tomorrow and says that he will do his share toward making it a victory.

Manager Denman says that he cares nothing about next year, it is the present that concerns him. Manager Daab will remember this next season.

As long as Westfield has a winning team and can dictate the baseball policy in the county, everything is lovely, but when the team loses the story is different.

It will be remembered that there were many local fans who did not want Plainfield to play Westfield this year, and Mr. Denman's action will not help this feeling any.

The Daabsters may have done wrong in putting up a poor game last week, but they are heartily sorry for it and were ready to make amends when Manager Denman called off the game.

Now that Manager Daab has won the pennant from Westfield, he has established the right to be considered in Union county baseball and from now on will be an important factor here.

The fans will have a feast of good ball tomorrow and there should be the largest crowd of the season at the Oval. It is understood that some of the "true" sports from Westfield will be there.

A loyal Westfield fan says that Manager Denman's action is the most unsportsmanlike in the history of Westfield baseball and while he may feel sore he was clearly at fault in calling off the game.

Mr. Daab had no intention of making a farce out of Saturday's game and when Mr. Denman recommended Weinner to him, he took the Westfield manager at his word. It was a costly joke—for Westfield.

Manager Daab deserves loyal support tomorrow and in the remaining games. He has certainly "made good" this season and given the town baseball of which it can feel proud. True appreciation will be shown at the banquet to be given on Oct. 14.

It is suggested that next season Manager Daab arrange games with Somerville, Summit, Dover, Elizabeth and some of the best metropolitan teams. Westfield might be given a three or five game series if the management will post a forfeit to complete the series.

TENNIS.

The tennis tournament for the championship of the Plainfield High School was started on the Albert street courts, yesterday afternoon. Although it was impossible to complete the first round, a majority of the matches were played with the following result: Martin beat Douglass, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1; Stuart Freeman beat Reed, 6—0, 6—1; Briggs beat Doane, 6—0, 6—1; Collier beat Brigard, 6—2, 6—2; Howard Freeman beat Williams, 6—3, 6—0; Smith beat Howard Freeman, 6—1, 6—4. The tournament will be continued today.

—It is about time that the Public Service Corporation began to repair the road along its tracks on West Front street from Grant avenue west. In some places the roadbed is in very poor condition.

Plainfield, N. J., September 29, 1905.

The reporter who invented the story that James B. Duke, the tobacco king, is going to turn his palatial residence into an institution of learning ought to "smoke up."

Opponents of the Hillery maximum tax rate law will find argument for its repeal in the way it operates in Newark. The assessors there will have to find $40,000,000 more of ratables, but how to do it is the perplexing problem that cannot be solved.

The Newark Advertiser says that the Democratic platform for that county "is far and away in advance of any political platform ever before adopted in this State." This might seem a surprising statement for a Republican paper to make were it not known that the State's Democratic boss is the reputed owner.

In tomorrow's issue will be found the eleventh sermon in the series by local pastors. These are a weekly feature of The Daily Press and they will be continued indefinitely. Rev. Phil A. Parsons, pastor of the Christian church, has kindly made a contribution, his subject being "Sin and Its Influence." Don't fail to read it.

UNITARIANS WANT PEOPLE TO BE HAPPY

MARRIAGE OF DIVORCED PERSONS NOT EVIL SAYS DR. SPENCER.

After spending more than an hour yesterday in discussing the so-called divorce bill, the congress of Unitarians in session at Atlantic City, declined to go on record except in a passive resolution, which amounted to nothing save an appeal for men and women to be better and try and live happy together after entering into the bonds of matrimony. The resolution at first presented declared divorce to be a great evil, and this brought forth a stirring protest from the Rev. Dr. Anna C. Spencer, of New York. She said that next to the injury done by the sensational press is the absolutely brutal discussion of the subject in conventions of this order. She opposed the assumption that divorce and marriage of divorced persons is evil.

The Rev. Carroll D. Wright, president, was asked for a declaration on the subject. He said: "Ministers do not make marriages. Where such unions are the result of love in its highest plane divorce is a sacrilege and crime. Divorce actually takes place when partners to matrimonial contracts disagree and courts, in according them legal separation simply defines the new relation. How are you going to affect such a condition by religious action? You had better resolve that man is happier by being good.

"I want some assurance that God is responsible for all marriages before I say unqualifiedly that divorce is an evil. Where marriage is not inspired by love, it cannot too soon be put asunder. I would say that an ecclesiastical body that would try to prevent remarriages where there is respect and love between the parties, should be indicted."

MILK IS NOT UP TO REQUIRED STANDARD

INSPECTORS OF STATE HEALTH BOARD REPORT MANY CASES OF ADULTERATION

Trenton, Sept. 29.—During the month ending August 31 last, the number of specimens of milk collected by the inspectors of the State Board of Health and examined in the State laboratory of hygiene in this city, was 437, and of this number 121 specimens, or 25.6 per cent., were found to be adulterated. These figures do not indicate that so large a proportion of all of the milk sold in the State is adulterated, for in the collection of samples the districts, in many instances, are selected because the sale of milk which falls below the lawful standard is suspected in these localities. Thirty-two samples of cream were examined, eight of which were found to be adulterated. The adulteration consisted in the addition of water or removal of the cream in 106 of the samples of milk which were analyzed, and sixteen samples were found to contain preservatives, some of this latter group having also been skimmed or watered.

The localities in which specimens of milk and cream which were found to be adulterated were purchased are as follows: Sussex, Newton, Morristown, Summit, Paterson, Belvidere, Madison, Jersey City, Millville, Laurel Springs, Merchantville, Magnolia, Camden, Wildwood, Holly Beach, Salem, Elberon, Neptune Township, Rumson, Davis, Asbury Park, Bradley Beach, Clinton, Red Bank, Elizabeth, Ocean Grove, Toms River, Seaside Park, Allenhurst, Long Branch, Tuckerton, New Brunswick, South Orange, Montclair and Rahway.

During the month of July the number of specimens of milk and cream examined was 285, and seventy-one samples were found to be adulterated, or 24.9 per cent. These samples were collected in the following places: Boonton, Troy Hills, Caldwell, Paterson, Phillipsburg, Hackettstown, Jersey City, Absecon, Haddonfield, Atlantic City, Millville, Bridgeton, Egg Harbor, Atlantic Highlands, Belmar, Spring Lake, Allentown, Neptune Township, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Sea Girt, Rumson Road, Oceanic, Neshanic, Pennsgrove and Vineland.

Dog Led to Master's Body.

The barking and moaning yesterday morning of a terrier dog at the back door of the home of George Henry Hilber, at Dow and Factory street, Belleville, attracted the attention of Mrs. Hilber. On opening the door the dog led her to the rear of the yard, where she found her husband's body. Hilber arose at 6 a. m. and went to the yard to feed chickens. While doing this he was stricken with heart disease.

—George H. Goddard, of East Ninth street, has had three large maple trees removed from his grounds in connection with other improvements to the premises.

COLBY'S DEMAND REFUSED.

Major's Committee Says It's Satisfied with the Major.

Major Lentz, who has forced himself, through his office of chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee, into the management of the campaign for Senator of Everett Colby, yesterday threw a sop to the Colby advocates in a resolution refusing to comply with Mr. Colby's suggestion of resignation. The resolution was adopted by Major Lentz's executive committee in Newark. Mr. Colby on Wednesday addressed Major Lentz in an open letter, and squarely demanded his retirement from the management of the campaign. He did this on the ground that the campaign was to be conducted on principles which the Major had opposed in the primaries and to which the Major could not now give his support without placing himself in an anomalous position. Mr. Colby pointed out, also, that the Major had taken in the primaries what might be construed without a far stretch of imagination into a personal antagonism to him.

The Major, in his reply through the resolution of his committee, gives all candidates the office of advisory members of the campaign committee. Just what effect this will have on the actual running of the campaign is yet to be seen. It goes, of course, without saying that the Major's committee, neither by word nor inference, binds itself to carry out the suggestions of the advisory members. The status of the advisory members is not pointed out, beyond the statement that they are to be informed whenever a meeting is to be held.

Rear-end Trolley Collision.

Elizabeth, Sept. 29.—A rear-end collision between a Third street and First street trolley car, of the Public Service Corporation, took place Wednesday night on Elizabeth avenue here. Both cars were crowded with people going to the theatre and several passengers were hurled from their seats by the shock. The First street car slackened up to take a passenger. The motorman of the other car was unable to check the speed enough to avoid the crash. No one was hurt except the motorman of the forward car, whose hand was severely bruised.

Man Shot; Negro Held.

Trenton, Sept. 29—Benjamin Goff, twenty-three years old, of Chesterfield, was shot in the neck Wednesday at Allentown by Frederick Sharp, a negro, twenty-two years old, a laborer, of Ellisdale. The police do not believe that the shooting was intentional, although Sharp is locked up at the First District Station charged with the crime, and Charles Sharp, uncle of Frederick, is held as a witness. The wounded man and two negroes tell contradictory stories, and the police will make a further investigation.

No Court Today.

There was no session of the Somerset County Orphans' Court at Somerville, today, because of the death of the wife of Judge Schenck. Several important will cases were postponed until next Friday.

BAIL IN SINGER THEFT CASE.

Merker, It Is Feared, Will Commit Suicide.

Elizabeth, Sept. 29.—Frederick Merker, the Newarker in jail here charged with the theft of sewing machine parts from the Singer Company, may be released on bail this afternon or tomorrow. His alleged confederates have all been admitted to bail in Newark. Merker is very despondent and the authorities fear he may commit suicide. In fact, it is said he was overheard by one of the other inmates of the county jail to make a remark that he would kill himself before he would go to State prison.

It is not thought the full extent of the stealings will ever be learned by the Singer Company. Some estimates place it as high as $50,000, while a more conservative estimate puts the amount at from $25,000 to $30,000.

Dies on Railway Train.

Dryden's Five-Year Lease.

Washington, Sept. 29.—United States Senator John F. Dryden, of New Jersey, has leased for a term of five years the Schneider residence, at Eighteenth and Q streets. It was formerly occupied by the Chinese Legation. The annual rental of the house is said to be $9,000, which real estate agents assert is a top figure.

Jury Gives Underhill Verdict.

SALESMEN WANTED

For several really high-grade specialty salesmen—the kind no salary offer would ordinarily interest—we have very attractive openings. We know of men who are earning from $1,000 to $2,000 annually, simply selling to dealers for a large and well known manufacturer a well advertised staple. To any successful salesman who is now selling a general line and who can handle a profitable and attractive side line, an excellent proposition will also be made.

HAPGOODS, (Inc.), Brain Brokers
Suite 512, 309 Broadway, New York

AMUSEMENTS.

"Way Down East," with its real people, its real story, and its almost real snow storm, is the announcement of the New Plainfield theatre for this afternoon and night. The play has been seen in this city several times before, but it is an excellent repeater, as evidenced by its frequent return engagements in New York and Chicago. Many persons will undoubtedly prefer seeing an old favorite than venture on a performance of which they know nothing, beyond the fact that its press agent is hard working. Then, too, perhaps, the familiar characters and incidents of the play may prompt as pleasant a flow of recollections as may be produced by hearing a well remembered melody. "Way Down East" will be acted by a cast that is almost identical with that of last season.

From all appearances "Tracked Around the World," the big melodramatic sensation that comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, has reached the pinnacle of monstrously large productions. Manager A. H. Woods, whose faith in the demand for honest theatrical investiture was strong enough to prompt the expenditure of unlimited money for the purpose of over-topping all manner of would-be competitors in scenic and costume grandeur, has a right to feel proud over his latest successful achievement, and is to be congratulated upon having augmented the field of sensational stagecraft with an attraction widely removed from the ordinary. Some of the scenes employed in "Tracked Around the World" are said to be the best examples of advanced painter's art ever shown, and have been prepared with the object of allowing for the clearest possible understanding of the playwright's motives.

William H. Turner will be seen here shortly in "David Harum," a part which he has enjoyed playing for the past four years and in which he has given an excellent account of himself. Mr. Turner and a really admirable company were seen here last year in the play which needs no introduction in this city. In the philosophical, big-hearted York State horse trader, Turner is said to be in his element, bringing out each little point which makes the character one of the most lovable, interesting and natural in modern fiction. In adapting the story to stage use the dramatist has not had to depart to any great extent from the incidents in the novel. The rural community is reproduced in pleasing fashion, with all the typical costumes and characters, giving a delightful picture of quaint village life. "David Harum" is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night.

RUBE WADDELL OUT.

Big Pitcher May Not Twirl Again This Season.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—It is reported here that "Rube" Waddell will not pitch again this season. He has been on the bench for two weeks with rheumatism and an unusually lame arm. Manager Mack sent him in yesterday to relieve Henley, who was being hit hard, and he had not thrown more than two or three balls when it became evident that he would be unable to pitch. Mack took him out and is reported as having said that he would not pitch him in another game this season. Without Waddell, Coakley and Plank will have to pitch the whole Chicago series, which starts today, and if Philadelphia wins the pennant his absence will take away greatly from the interest in the post-season series.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

Queens of the Highway.

Miss Reid and Miss Jones, the Bend schoolma'ams, returned Monday from a ten days' jaunt across the Cascade Range. They were attired in cowboy costume, wore six-shooters and belts of cartridges, had their rolls of blankets strapped on behind their saddles and looked as businesslike as veteran cavalrymen. They journeyed 100 miles—to a point within six miles beyond Cascadia and within twenty miles of Lebanon and back, sleeping and eating where they could, and viewing the sights of the country. They saw one fierce black bear, but it had been slain by hunters ten minutes before. They will write a book reciting the thrilling adventures of this 200-mile journey in the mountain fastnesses of Oregon.—Ben (Ore.) Bulletin.

Fed by the Fair.

The ladies of Antioch have again caused joy and gladness in the hearts of the Banner force by sending us a nice box of cake, which comes as regularly as their semi-annual festival and always speaks volumes for the culinary skill of the good ladies holding their membership at the modern namesake of the city of old where "the disciples were first called Christians."—Cambridge (Md.) Banner.

Smart Set of Coolidge Up-to-Date.

They say in Coolidge (Kan.) that the smart set may not be able to keep up with the New York smart set when it comes to entertaining and playing whist for money, but that when it comes to flirtations among the married people in the Coolidge four hundred they will not lay down for any up society people.—Atchison Globe.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Kier Hardy, the radical and eccentric member of the British Parliament, is reported to have abandoned shoes for sandals.

Alderman Charles Kaltenhauser, of Pittsburg, probably is the world's heaviest justice of the peace, tipping the scales at 565 pounds.

A grandson of General Shrapnel, who invented, in 1894, the missile that has cut such a figure in the Russo-Japanese war, is endeavoring to obtain from the British Government some, at least, of the $36,000 his grandfather spent for the benefit of his country, receiving for that and his invention no recognition and dying poor and broken-hearted, after the manner of inventors.

On proposal of Mr. de Magny, formerly French consul general in New York, the French Republic has conferred on Arthur Von Briesen, president of the Legal Aid Society in New York, the Croix de Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur, in recognition of twenty-five years' aid to the poor French in this country.

Noel Bear, over 104 years old, the famous Indian of northern Maine, says he still enjoys life, but not so well as he used to when he was young and could walk and trot about a hundred miles a day, as he frequently did, and then "be jus' little tired." Noel lives alone most of the time and supports himself by making baskets and snowshoes.

When the Mikado is seen in public he manifests no interest in his subjects, neither smiling nor bowing as he passes along. He sits seemingly passionless, the accentuated type of the Japanese.

King Edward has revived croquet, it is said. The lady-like game has languished in Great Britain as well as everywhere else, but now the King gives it a sudden shove into popularity again.

Madame Maxim Gorki protests against the story so often told of her husband that he was born in poverty and vagabondage, and picked up his education after his youth was gone. He was the son of well-to-do parents, and although he did not attend school, his grandfather, who was a painter, brought him up and gave him his lessons. Mural painting was to be his profession, but an irresistible desire to see the world impelled him to leave home and lead the life of a tramp. He has repeatedly traversed the greater part of the vast Russian country on foot.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Harry B. MacDonald, William R. Sullivan and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas by order entered on the twenty-first day of June, 1905, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, said improvements being the macadamizing of

East Seventh street, from the northeasterly curb line of Richmond street to the southwesterly curb line of Belvidere avenue;

Berckman street, from the southeasterly curb line of East Front street to the northwesterly curb line of South avenue;

Prospect avenue, from the northeasterly crosswalk at Park avenue to the westerly curb line of Woodland avenue;

West Seventh street, from the Middlesex county line to the present southwesterly end of the macadam;

West Fifth street, from the southwesterly curb line of Grant avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Monroe avenue;

South Second street, from the southwesterly curb line of Plainfield avenue to the present macadam at Muhlenberg place;

Albert street, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front street to the southeasterly curb line of Dunellen avenue;

Dunellen avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Clinton avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Compton avenue;

Rock avenue, from the Middlesex county line to the present southeasterly end of the macadam;

under the ordinance of said city, entitled "An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the city of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 6, 1903, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 12, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefitted by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said Ordinances, the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benfits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the third day of October, 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.
Dated September 5, 1905.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Trust Funds for Trusts.

Franklin Leonard, Jr., a Democratic candidate for Congress in New York, who was defeated last fall, has addressed to President McCall, of the New York Life Insurance Company, a very pertinent inquiry which awaits an answer. This Democratic candidate wants to know how much of his own money and of the money of other Democrats paid in insurance policies was expended for his defeat. He would also like to know how much money McCall contributed to the Republican campaign fund out of his own pocket besides what he took from the policyholders of the insurance company to defeat honest Democrats. By latest accounts from New York McCall has not resigned the trust he has so shamefully betrayed.—Philadelphia Record.

Freeholders' Graft.

The greatest mathematicians of the age enjoy membership in the Board of Chosen Freeholders of this county. Some of them can make figures do almost anything, even to figuring out 417 working days in one year. In former days freeholders, working the "graft" process in this county, charged it under the guise of "feed and oats," and when the robbery was exposed the people, having no further use for the "grafters," relegated them to private life and the terrors of oblivion. Members of the board have wonderfully elastic consciences when they draw from $300 to $800 in a single year for any attention they may give to a performance of public duty. A former freeholder, now living in this city, says he gave more time than he really had to spare to county matters when a member, and the most he was able to squeeze out in any one year was less than $200. "It is a mystery to me," he said, "how so many members can draw from $300 to $800 a year for the limited number of meetings they now attend." Our ancient friend's early education must have been sadly neglected, and his knowledge of arithmetic confined to rudiments, or he could have done better. Certainly he is outclassed by the more modern statesmen who are adepts in figuring. Such a statesman would find himself the laughing stock of the board were he a member today.—Elizabeth Leader.

Decrease in Chinese.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Two hundred and fifty-six Chinese of all classes were admitted into the United States in August, as compared with 600 in the corresponding month of a year ago. Five Chinese were deported. Of the 256 admitted 199 were residents returning to this country and fifty-seven were new arrivals. Of the five deported all claimed to be residents. The small number of Chinese arrivals in August indicates, the officials says, that the business of issuing fraudulent certificates is dying out.

superintendent was better liked generally than the departed one, and the change would work for the betterment of the schools. The only man who had injected politics into the schools was A. D. V. Honeyman, who, while president of the board, had women teachers go to anti-annexation meetings and used the janitors to carry political circulars around.

Rev. W. E. Honeyman's removal from the Health Board, the Mayor said, was made because he was obnoxious to the administration, and it was his privilege to remove an officeholder who opposed his actions and policy. Dr. Dundon, the new appointee, was a competent official, and the department had not suffered. It had been charged that he, the Mayor, was a perpetual candidate. He had been in office six years and Mr. Honeyman for seventeen.

A hubbub had been made over the athletic exhibition in Saengerbund Hall for which he had given permission. The affair had gone beyond what he expected and understood. He had made every effort to give the Grand Jury a complete list of those present, but nothing had been done by that body. Dr. J. H. Cooley had been a member of the jury at the time.

"Both parties are divided," said the Mayor. "It is important that we get at the truth. If I was guilty of all the charges brought against me, you should ask me to withdraw; if these charges were true, I should not be a candidate. I propose to tell the truth so that the voters may know just what foundation the Citizens have for their statements. You will have the whole truth, if I lose votes by it."

The Mayor then called on ex-Senator Reed. The latter declared that every charge made by the Citizens was without foundation in fact, and would be declared false by any jury considering them. The Citizens took half-truths and distorted them.

Mr. Reed said that annexation, while a dead issue, was responsible for the animus back of the attack on the administration, and cited the Goodwin case and the attitude of the antis on the arrest of the desperate negroes on Somerset street, after a battle with the marshals, to prove that the opponents of the administration simply waited until Smalley took a stand and fiercely espoused the other side.

The charge that the administration had abused the primary law was absurd. They simply used the law as it stood on the books, and rightfully. It was not proper for men who did not intend to support the ticket nominated to take any part in the party primary; only such men as had openly declared their intention to vote the Citizens' ticket were challenged. And whatever was wrong with the primary law, if anything, could not be charged to Smalley; but among the men who had voted for it in the Legislature was S. S. Swackhamer. It was his law, and if the Citizens didn't like it they should ask him about it.

Mr. Reed submitted figures in contravention of A. V. D. Honeyman's intimation that the Smalley administration was responsible for the increase in the tax rate during the past seven years. Mr. Reed explained how the tax rates were made up, the freeholders, the school board, the State school board and the Board of Health, as well as the Borough Council, which merely made up the borough budget and had no control over the other bodies. Then he quoted figures to show that the borough rate had gone down from .81 to .78 since 1898, when Smalley first took office, while the school rate went up from .58 to .98. During practically the whole period, Mr. Reed pointed out, A. V. D. Honeyman had been an influential member of the school board. The advance in the rate had come from sources over which the administration had absolutely no control, and Honeyman knew it. He would probably deny now that he had said Smalley was responsible for the raise. He hadn't in so many words, but what he had said regarding the rate meant that Smalley was responsible, or it meant nothing. It was his way to leave a loophole for retreat in case he should be cornered. He never made a direct statement.

The Mayor spoke briefly again after Mr. Reed finished, making a reply to charges that he was using the public money extravagantly to further a private scheme for the development of West End avenue. He said C. W. McCutchen and W. J. Buttfield, the prime movers in the scheme, had spent $10,000 in cutting out a new street, macadamizing and otherwise improving it, and had merely asked and received a vote for a storm sewer from the Council. It was less than a quarter of what the street improvement would cost, and the whole scheme of development was one of the best the borough had had the good fortune to have executed within it.

"And yet," said the Mayor, "some hellhounds are running about the borough trying to distort the truth and make it appear as if the public money was being perverted."

"There is no record of any property owner being refused an improvement of a street where he has been willing to pay half the cost," said Mr. Reed, when the Mayor finished, "and these men are paying seventy-five per cent. When I heard that Honeyman and Dr. Buchanan were running around and saying that the taxpayers' money was being used for some private scheme, and that they would show up the way 'their money was being used for the benefit of Charley McCutchen and W. J. Buttfield,' I asked Collector Brown to give me a memorandum of the taxes paid by Mr. McCutchen, Mr. Buttfield, Mr. Honeyman and Dr. Buchanan during the past ten years. I learned that Mr. McCutchen and Mr. Buttfield have paid $15,000 into the borough treasury in that time, and that Mr. Honeyman paid $98 and Dr. Buchanan $33."

The speeches aroused a good deal of enthusiasm and applause frequently interrupted the speakers. When the meeting was adjourned three tumultuous cheers for Smalley rocked the building. Over sixty names were signed on the roster of the club before the crowd dispersed.

Arrangements for the Saengerbund Hall meeting were not in shape to give out. The Mayor will make the principal speech, in which a full and categorical reply to the other side will be made, but the list of other speakers is not complete.

Before the speechmaking begins next Thursday the club will hold a short business session to consider a change in name. It has been suggested that the organization be called the Republican Club, and the question will be decided for good at the meeting.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of Warren chapel, meet every Wednesday afternoon at the chapel for sewing.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tonight. The subject will be "The Joys of Church Membership."

Preparatory services will be held at Warren chapel tonight at 8 o'clock and communion services will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

William D. Murray will speak on Bible study at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The choir of the Crescent Avenue church will sing and there will be good instrumental music.

There will be a church rally at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning at 10:30. In the afternoon at 2:45 there will be a Sunday-school rally and the committee in charge is arranging a programme of interest to all.

The first regular meeting of the Young Peoples Society of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the church parlors this evening. An interesting programme will be rendered, after which the various committees will adopt plans for the ensuing year.

Assembled in the first reunion which they have held, the members of Rev. Charles H. Yatman's Bible training class of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Newark, formed in 1882, honored the evangelist, who was their former leader, last night. All but one of the members of the class gathered in the parlors of the Central Methodist church, and after a banquet a picture of Mr. Yatman, which was presented to the Young Men's Christian Association, was unveiled.

STATE AUTOMOBILE CLUBS JOIN A. A. A.

"ASSOCIATED AUTOMOBILE CLUBS OF NEW JERSEY" NAME FOR ORGANIZATION

A State body, to be known as the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, composed of the auto clubs in this commonwealth, was formally organized last night at a meeting held in the headquarters of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club in the Prudential building, Newark. Frederick R. Prat, president of the Newark club, was elected head of the State organization. No other officers were elected for the time being, but a nominating committee was appointed to selecte candidates for the offices of vice president, secretary and treasurer. The nominating committee is composed of W. J. Morgan, W. F. Stradler, W. B. Hunter and Mr. Edwards.

The State body, after a long discussion by the various delegates and Amos G. Batchelder, who represented the American Automobile organization, joined the national organization. A constitution and by-laws were adopted, the State organization agreeing to abide by the rules of the A. A. A.

The delegates at the meeting were:

New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, Frederick R. Prat, W. J. Morgan and W. V. Snyder, Jr.; Hudson County Automobile Club, Mr. Edwards; North Jersey Automobile Club, of Paterson, Mr. Norwood; Automobile Club of New Jersey, W. B. Hunter; Mercer County Automobile Club, of Trenton, W. F. Stadler; Monmouth County Automobile Club, Mr. Clark, of Asbury Park.

Another meeting of the State body will be held on October 10 at the rooms of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Delegates from the various councils of the Royal Arcanum in Manhattan and the Bronx met Wednesday night and unanimously voted to form the entire membership of the meeting into a committee to collect funds with which to oppose the action of the Supreme Council in readjusting rates.

The national encampment of the Patriotic Sons of America, at Atlantic City, yesterday chose Richmond Va., for the next session and elected the following officers: National president, Edward A. Doan, New York; vice-president, William E. Valliant, Maryland; master of forms, M. B. Downer, Illinois; secretary, Charles H. Stees, Pennsylvania; treasurer, Frank P. Spies, Pennsylvania; assistant secretary, Elias Morgan, New Jersey; chaplain, Rev. S. E. Rupley, Pennsylvania; conductor, B. L. Lyden, Georgia; inspector, A. L. Thompson, Connecticut; guard, James W. Allison, District of Columbia; medical examiner-in-chief, C. N. K. Scheenk, Pennsylvania.

PERSONAL.

The father of Joseph M. Shellabarger died last Thursday at his home in Topeka, Kansas, and Mr. Shellabarger is now in the West.

LITERARY.

A rich and valuable number of Good Housekeeping, notable in several ways, is that for October. Besides being unusually handsome, opening with beautiful illustrations in color, it contains the announcement of a new enterprise of national importance known as Pure Food Assurance, the opening installment of a composite serial story of high merit, Treasure Cottage, this chapter from the pen of Mary Stewart Cutting, a paper by Bishop Potter on "The Ethics of Home Ownership," a symposium of keen interest on the purchase of household supplies, new ideas for co-operation, a paper by Lydia Avery Coonley Ward on "My China Boys," an illustrated article by H. J. Hall, M. D., on "Work as a Remedy for Nervous Exhaustion," "A Message to Home Girls" from a lovely young actress, and many choice things besides. The various departments which figure largely in the popularity of the magazine are at their best in the October number.

The Stand of Essex and Hudson.

Four of the planks of the platform adopted by the Republicans of Hudson county are practically identical with the declaration of principles covering the same points promulgated by Essex Republicans. In the matter of limited franchises the Hudson platform is not quite so liberal to the corporations as that of Essex, for it favors twenty-five years as the limit for franchises in all classes of municipalities. In declaring for the taxation of main stem property at local rates, the Hudson delegates did not couple with the proposition any reference to the Hillery law, as did their brethren in Essex. But in favoring the taxation at local rates, and in declaring for the abandonment of the Morris Canal the candidates of the party in both counties stand in perfect alignment.—Newark News.

POLITICAL TIPS.

At the Bergen county Republican convention, held yesterday afternoon at Hackensack, interest centred in the nomination for county clerk. Headed by Sheriff James Myer, the supporters of ex-Sheriff Charles R. Soley, of Rutherford, were certain of victory two hours before the convention was called to order, but their confidence only caused County Clerk John R. Ramsey to push his workers to more concerted action.

The Newark Democrtic city and Essex county conventions, which were held last night in the Krueger Auditorium, were much more enthusiastic than had been any Democratic convention in that city in years. The enthusiasm first was shown when the platform was read. It contained planks for equal taxation, municipal ownership of public utilities and the election of United States Senators by popular vote.

Former Assemblyman John J. Tracy, who has been outside the Democratic breastworks since he opposed the nomination of James J. Murphy for mayor of Jersey City, is back in the fold. He has accepted an invitation to act as chairman of the county convention tonight, at which Egbert Seymour will be nominated for sheriff. John J. Heavey, who was the candidate at the primaries against Mr. Seymour, will attend the convention and assure Mr. Seymour of his support.

A meeting of colored citizens, who have enrolled themselves under the name of the Union County League, was held Wednesday evening in Shiloh Baptist church, Elizabeth, when the following officers were chosen: Chairman, John E. Jones; secretary, William H. Haskins; treasurer, Andrew Hutchinson.. The object of the league, as set forth in its declaration of principles, is to see to it that honest and capable men are chosen for officials. An adjourned meeting will be held on Wednesday evening of next week, when additional officers are to be chosen. There will be a number of speakers, including H. G. Hewlett, of Cranford.

The Warren county Republican convention will be held at Phillipsburg today, and much interest is being taken in the result of the nominations. It is an avowed fact that the Democratic party will go to the polls in this county split. The two factions are Cornish-Barber vs. Mutchler-Cullen. The Republican leaders in the county have been openly informed that rivalry existed in the Democratic organization over an effort to have honest nominations, and that the revolting faction will use its influence to defeat the Democratic ticket. The Republican convention will be held in Ortygia Hall, and County Chairman J. I. B. Reilly has declared that no slate will be presented, but the choice of the delegates will be permitted. Prominent among the probable candidates mentioned for the offices are: George A. Angle, of Belvidere, prosecutor of Warren county, for Senator; Andrew Merrick, of Phillipsburg, for sheriff; J. T. Purcell, of Phillipsburg, for county clerk, and Edward Brill, of Phillipsburg, for coroner.

Woman Hurt by Fall.

A woman employed as a servant in a West Seventh street home, fell on the pavement on West Front street, near John Wirth's bakery, yesterday afternoon, receiving an injury which appeared to cause much suffering. The woman was taken into the bakery and Dr. Fred Hughes was called. She would not permit the physician to examine her. She left the spot with a Mrs. Mullen, of East Second street. Her injury was not considered serious.

JURY RETURNS A VERDICT AGAINST STANBERY

Result of Civil Suit May Effect Action of Middlesex Grand Jury.

AN AUTO COLLISION

Stanbery's Machine Hit Oscar Harrison's Vehicle and Mrs. Westphal Died from Injuries Received.

Remaining out less than one hour and a half, the jury in the third suit brought by Oscar Harrison against William R. Stanbery for $200 damages in the destruction of his horse and carriage by the auto accident at Dunellen last July, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff last evening for $175 and costs. The trial occupied the greater part of the day and the charge of Justice R. P. F. Von Minden was not delivered until 6:30. In the two previous cases the juries disagreed and the final result is considered a great victory for Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who represented Harrison on each occasion. Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer, Stanbery's lawyer, has given notice of appeal.

The verdict is of significance in another direction aside from the payment of damages, as the accident is still being investigated by the Middlesex County Grand Jury. At its last sitting the members were instructed by Justice Fort to probe into the affair and fix the responsibility for the death of Mrs. William A. Westphal, who died from injuries received when Stanbery's auto and Harrison's horse and carriage crashed together. Prosecutor Berdine has closely followed each suit and has secured the greater part of the testimony.

When the trial was resumed yesterday afternoon Lawyer Hetfield placed a large number of witnesses on the stand who bore him out in his declaration that the accident was due to Stanbery's carelessness in being on the left hand side of the road and driving his machine along at a high rate of speed. Among those giving testimony to this effect were Joseph Ruttledge, who was driving with Harrison at the time; Theodore Voorhees, who was one the scene of the accident soon after it occurred, and who followed up the tracks of the machine; Mrs. Voorhees, who said she saw Stanbery drinking out of a black bottle immediately after the crash; Martin Boyle, who was nearby, and Mr. and Mrs. James Boice, of Lincoln, who were driving home and who said Stanbery all but struck them as he passed on the left hand side just before meeting Harrison's rig.

John Wearren, another witness for the plaintiff, said he arrived at the scene of the accident shortly after and that he say Stanbery behind a tree drinking from a bottle. The witness spoke to him and declared he exclaimed: "I know it's my fault and I'll settle." The plaintiff scored with another witness, James Greenhalgh, who asserted that he had been approached several times and been offered money if he would testify in behalf of Stanbery. Greenhalgh was seated on his front porch and saw Stanbery sending his machine along the left side of the street at great speed.

The defense produced John Block and John Coriell, who were standing together about 125 feet from where the crash occurred, to prove that the auto was on the right hand side of the road, but their testimony was conflicting. Block admitted on cross examination that the tracks of the machine were on the left side, while Coriell held to it that they were on the right. Antone Marianschenck, who was a juryman in the second trial, went on the stand to testify that he was on a trolley car and that it was passed by Harrison's rig going at break-neck speed. When questioned by Lawyer Hetfield he acknowledged that he had all along held to the opinion that Harrison was to blame and so believed when he was placed on the jury, thus violating his oath when sworn in.

Stanbery testified in his own behalf, declaring that he was on the right hand side of the road going at ordinary speed when Harrison deliberately steered into him. He denied drinking after the accident and in reply to a question said that the only liquor he had taken that day was a milk punch in the morning, something he always did, in place of breakfast, as prescribed by his physician. Under cross-examination he denied ever having had another accident with his machine, and in rebuttal Lawyer Hetfield produced Edward Keller, of North Plainfield, who swore that Stanbery had knocked

CO. K'S RECORD IS A GOOD ONE

HONORS THAT HAVE COME TO LOCAL MILITARY BOYS.

Although one of the youngest companies in the State militia, Co. K has made a record to be proud of. On February 27 of next year the members will complete the first five years of its existence and at that time about seventeen members will be entitled to their discharge papers. It is likely, however, that a majority of them will re-enlist and stay with the organization. After the first five years the enlistment is only for a year at a time, members being privileged to withdraw at the end of any year. There is no disposition on their part to withdraw from the company, and it is fully expected that all will remain.

Among the honors coming to Co. K this year is the presentation of about fifteen 100 per cent. duty medals. This is the first time in the history of the company that the members have won this distinction, and they are proud of it, as is also Captain Martin, who has worked earnestly to achieve it.

Plans are underway for a big celebration in February, and this will probably take the place of the annual dinner. It is hoped to have some of the big military officials of the State here and make the affair an elaborate one. While the members did not land in first place in marksmanship at Sea Girt this year, they qualified a large number of men on the range and their showing was a fine one.

During the winter the company plans to hold several entertainments, dances and a fair and the committee in charge is hoping for the most successful season in the history of the company. Captain Martin, as well as the officers and men, is working hard for a top-notch record in the State militia and are sure to reach it.

Another matter that still interests the members is the building of an armory here by the State. This has been agitated more or less during the past two or three years, and the members hope to secure favorable legislation at Trenton. Plainfield's former representatives in the Legislature have been interested in this question and Co. K does not propose to let the matter drop until the desired ends are accomplished.

FIXING SLATE.

Secret Conference of Organization Leaders Did Not Pan Out.

Even the organization forces cannot get together when occasion requires and accordingly that secret meeting of the Republican leaders was not held last night. No public notice was posted, only a few letters directed to the trustees here and there being used to gather them at a law office for conference.

What the purpose of the conference was is not divulged. Knowing ones say that it was to decide "who is who" and "what is what" so far as the make-up of the city ticket is concerned. The ticket is to be nominated next month but of course due preparation is now being made for it.

The knowing ones deny that there is any friction among the leaders. Another effort will be made in a few days to "get together."

BIG WORK FOR GRAND JURY.

Over One Hundred Cases to be Considered by Somerset Panel.

The Somerset County Grand Jury, which began its labors Tuesday morning at the court house in Somerville, is having a hard time of it as there are over one hundred cases to examine. Crime has been rampant in Somerset county within the past summer. The jurors were tired out last night and adjourned until next Tuesday.

Monday, October 30, has been fixed as the date to try Jacob Flomerfelt for the murder of his brother-in-law, Frank D. Cramer, at North Branch Depot, last December.

Another Rural Route.

Another rural free delivery route will be inaugurated December 1. It will start from the Basking Ridge postoffice and will take in a circuit of eighteen miles, passing through Madisonville, Blazure's Corner, Van Dorn's Mill, returning by the way of Lyons' Station and Pleasant Plains road. There are now three applicants for the position of mail carrier.

Entertained Primary Union.

Miss Nettie Beeching, president of the Primary and Junior Sunday School Teachers' Union, entertained the members at her home in Watchung yesterday afternoon. The time was spent in a social way and refreshments were served. Miss Beeching expects to move to Plainfield within a short time.

Secretary H. W. Marshall.

Andrew McCardell.

Chairman Amos Andrews.

Plainfield's new police commission has taken no action except to choose a chairman and secretary, the former honor being given Amos Andrews, and the latter H. W. Marshall, as predicted by this paper. The clerkship is a bone of contention, although the salary will only amount to about $200.

The adverse criticism over the appointment of the commission has caused much comment in the State papers and there seems to be about an equal division regarding the advisability of the move. Advocates of the innovation point out that recent actions of the councilmanic police committee have been demoralizing to the department and the action of Mayor Buckle was the only way to end the difficulty.

There are many applicants for the clerkship, but no action will be taken for some time at least. The board, which is composed of Messrs. Andrews and Marshall, together with Andrew McCardell and DeWitt C. Ivins, will likely assume their office next month.

CITY FLAG POLE BEING TAKEN DOWN

MAYOR BUCKLE SAYS THERE'S NO NECESSITY FOR A NEW ONE.

The work of taking down the city flag pole was started this morning by William Hand & Sons. Clarence Mundy, who on several occasions has climbed the pole to paint it and fix the points of the compass, ascended the staff this morning and assisted in taking down the upper half. This was done without difficulty. The remaining part will be taken down in sections.

It is not likely, it is reported, that another pole will replace the present one. In conversation with Mayor Buckle this morning he told a reporter for The Daily Press that it was unnecessary to put up a new pole. He said that in each one of the public school yards there is a flagpole, and he considered that quite sufficient for the city.

It was understood that members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils of this city had a movement on foot to petition the Common Council to erect another flagpole, and such a communication will doubtless be sent to the city fathers.

This flagstaff has been the pride of the citizens since it was put up eight years ago, and it is argued that nearly every city of any size, as well as many towns, can boast of a flagpole. The present pole cost the city about $150, and those who have interested themselves in the matter say that it can well afford to buy another one.

"WAY DOWN EAST" PLEASES.

After Attending Twenty-One Morris-Theatre Witnessed By Large Crowds.

An audience that tested the capacity of the Plainfield theatre enjoyed the presentation of "Way Down East" last night. It was one of the best shows that has yet appeared at the new playhouse and by many was considered the equal of the production now running at the Academy of Music. Miss Ethel Strickland was very pleasing as "Anna Moore," a part she has acted almost as many times as has Phoebe David, who created it, and practically every other member of the cast scored a hit. When Building Inspector Doane considered that enough S. R. O. tickets had been sold he notified the box office and dozens were refused admission.

A matinee was given yesterday afternoon and the audience was also very large.

Funeral of Mrs. Moran.

Funeral services over the body of Mrs. John Moran, who died at her home on South Second street, yesterday, will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 4:30. Mrs. Moran was fromerly Miss Rachel Schunck, whose family was well known in the West End a few years ago. She was a member of Hope Memorial chapel and the service will be conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard. There are four children surviving her.

State Medical Examination.

Trenton, Sept. 30.—The regular examination for the medical license of New Jersey will be held here October 17-18. Applications for the same must be filed with the State Board of Medical Examiners on or before October 7, with satisfactory proof that the applicant possesses a high school diploma or its equivalent and a medical diploma issued after four courses of lectures in an approved medical school.

Stephen Cahoone and family, of Watchung avenue, have returned from their summer home in Jamestown, R. I.

HE WAS TRYING TO RESCUE HIS WAYWARD DAUGHTER

SO JUDGE RUNYON OVERLOOKED THE DISORDER HE CREATED.

Charged with disorderly conduct, James Canary, a hod carrier, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning upon complaint of Mrs. Isabella Bird, of Monroe avenue. Although Canary's disorder was quickly proved—he acknowledged it himself—the story of what led up to it won him a prompt dismissal from court.

Canary's defense involved the story of a wayward fifteen-year-old daughter and his attempt to take her away from a life he felt was making her worse. Alice Canary, the daughter, has been wild and wilful for several years. A year ago Canary went so fas as to prepare papers for her commitment to an institution. His heart softened at the final moment, however, and the girl, apparently unboldened by her escape, became opener in disregard of parental authority. A short time ago she left home and went to live with Mrs. Bird and her mother, Mrs. George Vannest, on Monroe avenue.

Canary did not approve of the step, and when he heard that his daughter was running around nights he determined to make her come back home. He went to the Vannest house last Monday night and demanded his daugther. The girl did not want to go home and Mrs. Bird took her side. Canary, who had been drinking, was not very particular as to the language he used, and Mrs. Bird swore out a complaint against him next day.

Lawyer John P. Owens appeared for Canary in court this morning and brought out the whole story. Judge Runyon quickly made it plain that he had no intention of punishing the father.

"It is unfortunate that you should have acted as you did," he said to Canary; "that was wrong. But I cannot find fault with a father for showing concern over a daughter's welfare. I am convinced that Mrs. Vannest and Mrs. Bird have been good friends to the girl, and given her a home where she has been happy. But it is best for all concerned, I think, that she be returned to her father and sent out of town, where influences that here tend to send her wrong—far wrong—will be absent. I will make that disposition of the case, and expect action in accordance with it to be taken."

Alice Canary was not in court.

The Keans Visit Plainfield.

United States Senator John Kean and his brother, former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, stopped in town at noon. They were in a party of four autoists. Their machine kept well within the speed limit, so there was no work for the McAdoos.

Mr. Hamilton's Funeral.

The funeral of Robert Hamilton, who died yesterday morning, at the home of his son, Walter F. Hamilton, of Verdon street, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The interment will be at Kensico, N. Y.

Former Mayor Fisk Home.

Former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk and family have returned from their summer estate at East Hampton, L. I. The Mayor looks very well and seems to have been benefitted by a long rest.

New Mail Carrier.

William Jones, colored, has secured the position for carrying the mail from the postoffice to the North Avenue station, the carrier formerly holding the position having resigned.

LITERARY MAN FROM THE HEART OF VAGABONDIA

FRANCIS DAVIS COX, PINCHED FOR PANHANDLING DISPLAYS ACADEMIC POLISH

Word was brought to police headquarters yesterday afternoon that a panhandler was working on Park avenue. Officer Payne was sent out to get him. The cop saw a shabbily dressed man approach a passerby, and walked over to him.

"I guess I want you, old man," said Payne.

Sir!" said the shabby one airily, "you are undoubtedly in a position to get what you want. I certainly have no intention of opposing municipal authority. Keep your aegis of office in its sheath. I will bear you company wheresoever your serene mightiness wills.

It was a round-eyed cop that brought the shabby one into the station house.

"Chief," said Payne, "this panhandler is a college professor. You'll have to get a dictionary when you take his pedigree."

The Chief didn't need a dictionary, but the panhandler proved to be the most interesting prisoner the cops have gathered in within ten years. Francis Davis Cox, the gentlemanly wayfarer said his name was. "A New Yorker born and bred, sir." Among things in his pocket was a thick bundle of manuscript which proved to be his autobiography. It was well written, in a fine hand.

Francis Davis Cox said he was well educated, and his conversation bore out the statement. He is about thirty-five years old. He said he tramped because he liked roaming, and was prepared to take all the discomforts of the life, including occasional arrest, as part of an interesting game. He said he frequently sold sketches and stories of the road to papers and magazines. Among his papers was the address of his father in New York, whom he said was a prosperous business man, with a request that his family be notified in case of accident or death.

Cox had an interesting conversation with Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. The judge put on his best Yale manner, and the literary man from vagabondia threw off bits of philosophy and polished quips under the academic influence. They parted under the genial influence of a suspended sentence, with courtly phrases of well wishing on both sides.

WANT POSTAL CLERKS.

Examination to be Held at Postoffice Next Saturday.

Under the direction of the postal authorities, an examination for letter-carriers and clerks will be held here on Saturday, October 7. William Sharp, clerk at the local postoffice, will be in charge. Those intending to take the examination must file their application not later than 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Just now there is considerable difficulty in securing persons of proper qualifications to take the examinations and sub-carriers and clerks are needed very much. One reason why there is a scarcity of applicants is that those who would make good carriers or clerks are employed and they do not want to give up a steady position for an uncertainty, as they cannot tell when they will be put on as regulars even though they should pass the examination.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Worth, of Washington avenue, left today for New York, where they will spend the winter. Their home has been leased by C. T. Nicholson and family, of New York, who will take possession Monday.

SOMERSET W. C. T. U.'S SUCCESSFUL MEETING

TWENTIETH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF COUNTY MEMBERS AT PEAPACK.

The twentieth annual convention of the Somerset County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Reformed church at Peapack Thursday. There were morning, afternoon and evening sessions, all of which were largely attended. All the unions in the county were represented, including nearly 100 delegates and visitors.

The morning session was opened with Mrs. Deborah P. Peeke, of Millstone, the president, in charge. Mrs. William Horton, of Peapack, led devotions. The address of welcome was made by Mrs I. H. Belton, of Peapack, and Mrs. C. A. Garretson, of East Millstone, responded. There was a brief address by Rev. Thomas M. Simanton, pastor of the Reformed church, after which the session was taken up mostly with routine work.

In the afternoon Mrs. Mary F. Winberg gave a Bible reading, and twenty different county superintendents rendered reports.

The election of officers resulted in very few changes in the official board. Those chosen were: President, Mrs. Deborah P. Peeke, of Millstone; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lewis M. Codington, of Somerville; recording secretary, Miss Josephine Waldron, of Martinsville; treasurer, Mrs. Kate K. Brown, of South Bround Brook; press superintendent, Mrs. James Gaston, of Somerville; superintendent of Sabbath observance, Miss Gertrude Sutphen, of Millstone.

Rev. Thomas M. Simanton opened the evening session with prayer. The address of the evening was made by Miss Elizabeth H. Goodwin, State secretary of the Young Women's branch. Special music at the different sessions was rendered by the church choir.

PLAINFIELD WOMEN LOSE.

Morris County Team Wins Metropolitan Match 7 to 2.

Two matches only of the four scheduled were played yesterday by the teams of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. In the first division the Richmond County Country Club and the Apawamis teams played at Apawamis, the visitors winning by 6 to 5 points.

An odd circumstance was that Mrs. Stout, who belongs to both clubs, won the women's championship of Apawamis, although playing on an opposing team.

The match in the second division of the team circuit was at the Morris County Golf Club, the home players winning from Plainfield by 7 to 2. The score:

Plainfield—Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, 2; Miss Maude VanBoskerck, 0; Miss Goddard, 0; Miss Tracy, 0. Total, 2.

Morris County—Miss Hubbard, 0; Miss Willis, 1; Mrs. William Shippen, 3; Miss Swords, 3. Total, 7.

Washingtonville School.

The Watchung School roll of honor for September, 1905, is as follows: Grammar Grade—Theresa Schmidt, Elsie Schmidt, Mary Texier, Leontine Texier, Clara Keim, Eda Wersing, Gertrude Willis, Bertha Wyckoff, Edward Bodin, Douglas Demler, Swift White, Roy Herrmann, Clarence Schmidt. Primary Grade—Minnie Blume, Edel Moldenke, Clara Mobus, Emma Mobus, Helen Schmidt, Daisy Schmidt, Lottie Gunn, Emile Carrarr, Jennie Carrarr, Isable Dietz, Freddie Dietz, Charlie Snowden, Marion Smith, Dorothy Smith, Helen Mobus, Alice Willis

McCarthy Wins Revolver Match.

The revolver tournament which has been in progress among the members of the Plainfield police department for several weeks was concluded this week, when Patrolman McCarthy won first prize, a meerschaum pipe, and Patrolman Herbert Overbaugh received second prize, a briarwood pipe. They also won a safety razor. The tournament has been of great benefit in improving the marksmanship of the patrolmen and no doubt it will be continued next season.

A School for Apprentices.

The New Jersey Central will soon institute at its big Elizabethport shops a school for apprentices there employed. The school will be under the general supervision of Superintendent of Shops Van Doren, and in direct charge of the chief draughtsman. One hour per day will be allotted to this work, for which the apprentices will receive their regular pay from the company.

Baker is Defeated.

J. Whitney Baker, of the Plainfield Country Club, who took part in the golf play for the North Country cup at the Nassau County Country Club yesterday, was defeated by L. C. Sawyer, of Midland, by 2 up.

SCHOOL BOARD INDIGNANT

Had Nothing to do With Ballots Before or After Polls Were Closed.

DIRECTORS BLAMELESS

Two Members of the Board Were Present When Superintendent Counted the Vote.

The report that members of the Piscataway township school board carried the votes to Superintendent Willis' office in New Brunswick after the recent election in New Market proves to be without foundation. Some members of the board said that the allegation that they had charge of the ballots before they were counted in the superintendent's office reflected on them, inasmuch as the result announced by Mr. Willis differed materially from that which is said to have been given out by the tellers after the polls were closed.

When the vote at the New Market election was announced by the tellers it was said to be a tie, but when they were officially counted at New Brunswick it was found that there was a majority of forty-three for the project to build a four-room school for $12,500. No member of the School Board had anything whatever to do with handling the ballots at the school election.

The recount at New Brunswick was made by Superintendent Willis in the presence of two school directors from Piscataway township.

HEBREW NEW YEAR BEGAN AT SUNDOWN

BLOWING OF THE SHOFAR WILL TAKE PLACE TOMORROW.

Rosh Hoshanah, Jewish New Year, began at sundown last night. At the synagogue of the Children of Israel services were held at 6:30 last night. The Rev. Kontonvitz spoke on the observance of the feast last night.

A feature of the New Year service is the sounding of the shofar, which is their manner of proclaiming that the God of Israel is the creator of the universe. By reason of the Jewish Sabbath and New Year coming on the same day the blowing of the shofar will be avoided. In the orthodox synagogues, however, the shofar will be sounded tomorrow.

New Year is a time of general rejoicing among the Jews and is the next important feast to the day of atonement. At 6 p. m. last night many Hebrew merchants closed their places of business and will reopen tonight at 6.

An Auto Trip to Hunterdon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wyman and Mrs. and Mrs. William Wyman, of West Front street, made an automobile trip to Middle Valley, Hunterdon county, last week, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Neighbor. All returned home except Mrs. William Wyman, who remained for a longer visit. Her husband will go to Middle Valley today for a visit of a few days, returning home the middle of next week with Mrs. Wyman.

Father's Death Follows Son's.

Prof. A. C. Garland, who died at his home in New Brunswick last week Thursday, was known to many Plainfielders, for whom he furnished music for many social gatherings. His son, Albert Garland, also well known here, had died a week earlier, and this preyed upon the father's mind. A widow and ten children survive Prof. Garland.

Fined Colored Disturber.

Zeb Freeman, colored, was arrested in front of the theatre during the matinee yesterday afternoon for disorderly conduct. Judge Runyon fined him $5 in the city court this morning. Officer Martin made the arrest.

Communion Services Tomorrow.

Communion services will be held in the following churches tomorrow morning: Park Avenue church, Trinity Reformed church, Grace M. E. church, Faith chapel.

Mayor Place to Speak.

Former Mayor Charles A. Place will speak at the Plainfield Rescue meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the German Reformed church.

Company K Dance October 19.

The members of Co. K will hold a dance at their armory on October 19. The annual fair will be held as usual during the winter.

DON'T WANT CANDIDATES WHO ARE AUTO OWNERS

GREAT GATHERING AT NORTH BRANCH BEGINS DRASTIC CRUSADE.

Whitehouse, Sept. 30.—Feeling against automobilists who operate their machines carelessly ran high at a meeting of the Anti-Automobile Association in Rupell's Hall, at North Branch, Thursday night. There was an unusually large attendance of people interested in the crusade against this form of horseless vehicle, and a score or more of new signers to the resolutions passed at the last meeting were secured.

These resolutions declare that the public roads had been built and maintained by the people at a great outlay; that the people should have the right to use them freely without unnecessary obstruction or danger; that they are deprived of this right by the way some automobilists run their machines; that the organization is for self-protection and the restoring of rights to the free and reasonably safe use of the public roads, and that the association adopt legal means, if necessary, to abate the evils.

Dr. James D. Van Derveer, the president, presided at the session Thursday night. A communication was read from Prosecutor N. C. J. English, of Union county, favoring the cause. He affirmed he would help it along all he could. Requests were received from different places in New York and New Jersey for copies of the resolutions, with a view to forming organizations at those points.

Dr. Henry V. Davis, J. Edward Glaser and John G. Sutphen were appointed as a committee to secure a speaker for the next meeting, which will be held in Rupell's Hall Thursday evening, October 12. The committee has former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, in mind and will communicate with him.

The balance of the meeting was taken up with an informal discussion, the sense of which was that none of the members would vote for anybody who owns an automobile; for such, if elected, would not help their cause. The idea of the association is to incite interest in every town and hamlet in the State so that clubs will be organized to such an extent that these, banded together, will be a potent factor in sending rulers to Trenton who will form more strict laws to hold the automobilist in check, or keep him from the public thoroughfares entirely.

The recent statement of Justice Fort, in opening the September term of court at New Brunswick, that so far as he had been able to discover there is no statute in New Jersey giving automobilists or self-propelled vehicles any right upon the public highways was widely discussed, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that if Justice Fort couldn't find such a law there wasn't any of that nature.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin thatch on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes, to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

PULPIT TALKS FOR SHUT-IN PLAINFIELDERS

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

NO. 11—Rom. 6:23, "The Wages of Sin is Death."—

By the Rev. Phil. A. Parsons, Pastor of the Christian Church.

The wages of sin is death.—Rom. 6:23.

When Paul said in one of his letters, "Sin is transgression of the law," he had in mind the higher or ethical law, the question of right or wrong, without reference to the penal code. We find also from the text chosen that in Paul's mind death was not a punishment for sin, but a consequence of it. We shall therefore deal with sin as a transgression of the higher law and the influence of such transgression. For brevity and precision we had better consider the influence of sin as divided. There being what we are pleased to call a primary and secondary influences.

As a matter of course, in a theological sense, the primary influence of sin is the loss of the human soul. Up to within the last fifty years this consequence of sin was used as the principal argument to turn men from unrighteousness to the higher life. But within the last fifty years has come a revolution in thought with regard to Christianity, which is no longer so widely conceived of as offering punishment for sin, but as an influence for righteousness for the mere good that righteousness brings to humanity in this life as well as the life to come. Sin bars us from Heaven to be sure, but if, as conceived of by many at the present time, Heaven begins here, we are still barred from its pleasures by unrighteousness. The highest conception of happiness comes from a consciouenees of having done good, from which happiness we are barred by an evil conscience as effectually as was the devout churchman's ideal sinner by the pearly gates, closed by a weeping but relentless justice. In the language of Dr. Knox, "Man is still in a garden, surrounded with Eve and apples, and other temptations," and how truly does the serpent creep in and tempt him to partake of the forbidden fruit! But in contrast with the former conception, man resists, not for fear of the mandates of a terrible judge, but because of a consciousness of the fact that a higher and more lasting pleasure comes from resisting than is obtained by yielding.

If the modern theologian rejects the thought of a judgment day with its angel record, its trembling sinner, its stern judge and pleading intercessor, he can nevertheless not escape the last hour of his existence, wherein he stands condemned by his own relentless conscience, convinced of his own unfitness to die. While the cultured mind turns with revulsion from the thought of a lake of fire wherein unrepentant sinners are to writhe in agony throughout endless ages, it is, by reason of its culture, compelled to perceive the more awful fate of endless separation from all that is good and true on account of unrighteousness, which has made it unfit for such association. The greatest thinkers of all times have conceived of the soul, or the mind, or ego, or whatever you may be pleased to call it, as indestructible, and therefore immortal. This, if true, confronts each one of us with an eternity of consciousness. A lake of fire would be a relief compared with such an existence filled with regrets and penitence availing naught. If damnation is this it is a mighty word. Yet no one can say that it is unjust.

Dr. Vincent, of Union Theological Seminary, presents a conception of Hell which is not the orthodox lake, to be sure, but one none the less terrible. His conception presents a man seated before a mirror, compelled, throughout eternity, to see himself, not as others see him, but as he is.

So much for the great primary influence of sin. However, we would deal for a few moments with what we have chosen to call secondary influences, which in the end lead to the same result. First of all we would consider the influence of sin upon self. James divides religion into two parts. Our duty to others and to ourselves. What are some of the duties which we owe to ourselves? First of all comes the obligation to keep inviolate the body which had been given us as a temple for the mind. But how frequently do we see about us the evidence of treachery to this sacred trust. Few people realize that mental degeneration is the first consequence of sin. Psychologists tell us that every impression made upon the mind molds to a certain extent every subsequent thought; and that every thought or deed transpires in the light of and as a consequence of all previous experience. Therefore, every evil thought or deed leaves its impression, infinitesimal though it may be, upon every subsequent thought or action. How many times we think we sin in secret! We are but preparing ourselves for a humiliating confession before the world in manifestations of incompetence due to mental or physical degeneration. Again we see brilliant minds imprisoned in shattered and wasted forms due to the gratification of lusts or appetite, or again find a shattered temple deserted by the god because it has become an unfit place for his habitation. Again some stately edifice comes crushing down, spreading destruction and ruin on every side. We shudder to find that the vermin of secret vice have for years been gnawing at the foundation.

Rev. Dr. Phil. A. Parsons.

Society witnesses the downfall of one of its most promising sons. Expressions of regret and sympathy come from every side. But the real tragedy is not appreciated by many. Although the fallen one may right himself to all appearances and prosper to a degree, he must remain a broken reed to the end of the chapter.

In addition to the influence of sin upon self there is the other of James' divisions of Christianity, namely, our duty to others. So frequently we hear the expression, "My life is my own to do with as I please." Possibly there is no more common error than this. If the influence of unrighteousness ended with self this statement would be in a certain sense true, but a great fact has been overlooked, which fact constitutes the second and third of the secondary influences of sin. The fact is this: We are accountable for the influence of our sin upon our associates and upon posterity. The gravity of this phase of our subject is little appreciated, although nearly two thousand years ago Paul saw its significance. He says, "If eating meat causeth my brother to stumble, I will eat no meat while the world stands." He goes on to state that, while the eating of meat might not be sin for him, his influence would be sinful, in that it might lead to his brother's sin. We are just becoming conscious of the fact that "no man liveth unto himself." Few people realize the extent of their influence over those with whom they associate, even those with whom they have the slightest acquaintance; and frequently, although we may be ignorant of the fact, we cast an influence over entire strangers. It is to be regretted that the influence of evil is more far reaching than that of good; a condition probably due to the truth expressed in the Latin idiom, humana est errare—it is human to sin. Almost daily we find verification of the sentiment expressed by Shakespeare, where he makes Antony to say, "The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones."

We now approach a division of our subject from which we have long been barred by a false sense of propriety, which barrier we feel bound to surmount, because of a duty to society at large. Too long has evil smiled with satisfaction at the protection afforded it by this flimsy covering. The burning truth of the words of Christ comes home to us in this day as never before: "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon their children even to the third and fourth generation." A brief visit to one of our penitentiaries, asylums, hospitals, or orphanages, is all that is necessary to convince one of the fulfilment of his words. The human mind is incapable of conceiving of anything more horrible than the birth of a child doomed to a life of abject suffering and imbecility, because of the sin of some progenitor. Would that in the moment of temptation there might appear a mental picture of an accursed progeny as a consequence of indulgence of lust or appetite! What a picture to meditate upon throughout an endless eternity! Could a burning lake be more torment than this? In the face of conditions like these need ministers of righteousness resort to pictures of a judgment, or tales of a Hell unutterable? Would that God might raise up a ministry that feared not to speak boldly to the people of the greatest crime of all ages—the crime against society! How long will the babling theologian prate of theory and dogma and cater to the popular taste while the people, the people for whom Christ died, perish in agony?

Burdened with a sense of the tragedy of life we look about us for some way of escape. Is there no hope, no ray of light, for a sincursed people? Once more our eye falls upon our text, "The wages of sin is death." But what are those words that follow from the burning tongue of the apostle? "But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

At last our Saviour appears to us in his true form, to reveal the redemptive purpose of God, to save us, not from a Judgment day and from an awful condemnation only, but from sin. He brings to us the secret of happiness voiced so many years ago by the prophet, "This is the end of the matter, fear God and keep his commandments." Righteousness, the secret of happiness—Righteousness, the secret of life. "Ye shall receive a blessing from God the Father and righteousness from the God of our salvation."

What more need be said, if the people would receive this message. There is so much to satisfy the needs of the people in Christianity that they are not getting out of it. Nor will they ever, until religion as a form or observance is lost sight of and the righteousness of the Christ becomes the actuating principle of human existence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlain, of this city, have been spending several days at their former home in High Bridge.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

It is said that a large box of porous plasters has been ordered by the Westfield fans to cover the sore spots.

A host of Lou Wiltse's friends from Somerville, as well as this city, will be at the game this afternoon to see him pitch.

The Westfield manager says that his team has lost money this year, even though it had the best team in the history of the town.

It is very kind of Mr. Denman to charge up last Saturday's game to Mr. Daab. Of course, a manager can make his own team win a game, even with an off day.

Manager Denman says that it was not a question of money in calling off the last Plainfield-Westfield game. That, he says, could be arranged, but injured feelings could not be.

The Holyokes, Connecticut State League champions, will meet the Union county champions at Crescent Oval next Saturday. Lou Wiltse will probably pitch for the Daabsters.

There is more than usual interest in the outcome of the American League race, and the majority of the local fans prefer to see the Athletics win out and meet the Giants in the post-season series.

Today's double-header on Crescent Oval is the first ever played in the city. Clinton Avenue and Dunellen will meet at 2 o'clock for the championship, and at 4 o'clock Plainfield and Jersey City will cross willows.

"I suppose you will see the Plainfield-Jersey City game on Crescent Oval Saturday?" Manager Denman was asked yesterday, to which he replied: "No, I expect to witness the Star-Y. M. C. A. game at Elizabeth. It is a little chilly in Plainfield."

A message from the "Dove of Peace," at Westfield, predicts that there will be no semi-professional baseball in this vicinity next season. He even says that Westfield's team will be in Clinton Avenue's class. However, it is a safe bet that Manager Daab will be here with the goods and will be fully supported.

Among the leaguers who played at Rahway a week ago tomorrow were Elberfeld, Chase, Yearger, of the New York Americans; Donahue and Altrock, of the Chicago Americans; Rothfuss, of the Tri-State League; Luyster and Connolly, of Hartford; Cargo, McCauley and Pfanmiller, of Jersey City. Pretty expensive game for the Rahway teams.

GOLF.

At the Park Golf Club today there will be the weekly competition for the president's and Park Golf Club cups.

Miss Maude VanBoskerck, who has been away most all summer, has returned and is a familiar figure at the Plainfield Country Club course.

C. B. Morgan has returned from his summer vacation and is making a strong bid for golf committee cup honors at the Plainfield Country Club.

The event at the Westfield Golf Club today will be the final play for the governor's cup. There will also be social features at the clubhouse tonight.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and Miss Maude VanBoskerck, from the Plainfield Country Club, were among those taking part in the women's tournament at the Morris County Country Club yesterday.

Play for the golf committee cup will be the event at the Plainfield Country Club this afternoon, and tonight there will be a dinner and dance at the clubhouse. These dances will be continued every Saturday night until further notice.

Plainfield, N. J., September 30, 1905.

Oyster Bay is forgotten; Washington again claims the President.

Who will come forward and contribute toward a fund to erect a new city flagpole?

It is admitted by the president of the P. S. C. that there is pronounced public hostility to corporations. He says that in order to combat this opposition it is the duty of big corporate bodies to deal fairly with the people. This is plainly evident, but the trusts are only finding it out now. Tomorrow may be too late.

Mayor Buckle told a Daily Press reporter today that no new flagpole will be erected in place of the one taken down today. His reason is that there is no necessity for one. Most good citizens will strongly disagree with his honor in this contention. There is more necessity for a flagpole than a police commission as a means of reminding the people of the duty of true civic virtue.

GIRARD SUSPECT IS FREED.

Man Arrested at Somerville Proves to be Michael Smithwick.

Somerville, Sept. 30.—The man who has been held in the Somerset County Jail for five days under suspision of being Joseph Girard, suspected of the murder of Gussie Pfeiffer in New York, was released Thursday after he had been identified as Michael Smithwick, as being formerly employed by Richards & Gaston, contractors, at Phillipsburg. Smithwick, who answers the description of Girard in every particular and has a scar on his thumb, was found unconscious in the woods at Vanderveer's Cut, two miles north of here, on Saturday.

After he was restored to consciousness he admitted that he had lived near the scene of the Pfeiffer murder. He was in a dazed condition and unable to give a clear account of himself. He was identified Thursday by an employe of Richards & Gaston, who said Smithwick had worked for the firm at Phillipsburg at the time of the Pfeiffer murder.

PRIEST A SECTION HAND.

Dismissed Clergyman Goes Back to New Brunswick to Work.

The Rev. Francis Vodola, who was the pastor of the Italian Catholic church in New Brunswick until Bishop McFaul removed him last month, has returned, not as a priest, but as a private citizen seeking work. He says he went back to New Brunswick to clear himself of the charges that had been made against him when he suddenly disappeared early in August.

While away he has been a section boss of a construction gang. He still has his brass pay check, showing that he was known on the payrolls as No. 708. He says that he kept at that work until he was compelled to give it up by injuries he received. Then he decided to go back to New Brunswick and face the people to whom he owes money.

He says he did not run away from New Brunswick, and shows a letter to prove that he was deprived of his charge and that his priesthood rights were taken away from him by the bishop.

City Physician Dead.

Dr. George A. McCallion, one of Elizabeth's two city physicians, and a member of the Alexian Hospital staff, died at 8:50 o'clock yesterday morning. He was taken suddenly and violently ill last night in his home, with an attack of uremia, and died in the hospital.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

St. John's church on Thursday night was packed to the doors by the large and appreciative audience that came to hear Father Younan, the Paulist from New York, give his famous illustrated lecture on India. Father Younan, although a Syrian by race, his father speaking the Syrio Chaldaic dialect, the same language used by Christ when on earth, is a native of India, where he spent over forty years of his life. His familiarity, therefore, with that wonderful country made him such a master of the subject, and his sliding pictures running from the ridiculous to the sublime, so held the attention of the audience, that they were loath to depart when the lecture was over, many coming to grasp the hand of the missionary to congratulate him.

The annual forty hours' devotion to the Blessed Sacrament will begin in St. John's church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and will continue until Tuesday morning. Tomorrow evening Rev. Francis Donnelly, of the Jesuit Fathers from New York city, will deliver the sermon. His subject will be "The Blessed Sacrament of the Eracharist," appropriate for the occasion. On Monday night the lecture will be on the "Sacrifice of the Mass." There will be other priests present to assist in the services. The altar will be beautifully decorated with flowers and lighted candles. All are welcome to attend these lectures.

A forty-hours' devotion will begin in St. John's church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and continue until Tuesday morning. Several priests will take part in the services. Tomorrow night Rev. Father John Donnelly, S. J., of New York, will deliver a sermon on the sacrament. The subject of the Monday night lecture will be "The Sacrifice of the Masses." During the devotion the church will be elaborately decorated with flowers.

The call for the Democratic county convention at New Brunswick next Wednesday has been issued by the chairman of the committee. The meeting will be held in Armory Hall. Several Dunellenites have planned to attend it.

The Middelsex Borough Association, the organization of the Piscataway citizens who want a new borough in the township, are actively arranging steps for securing a charter.

An ice cream and cake table will be a feature of the clam chowder sociable at the Methodist church next Thursday.

Mrs. Sarah C. Fisher has returned from a visit to friends in Lebanon.

The Guild of Holy Innocents' church is planning a cake sale.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A committee consisting of Superintendent R. B. Manning, Mrs. W. H. Manning and Mrs. J. A. Cubberley has been appointed by the Sunday school of the Baptist church to examine and purchase new song books for the Sunday school.

Preaching services and worship at the Baptist church will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 and in the evening at 7:45. Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m.; Sunday school at 11:45 a. m.

Philip Smith pitches for the Dunellen baseball team against the Clinton Avenue team this afternoon.

Frank Thomas went to Hazleton, Pa., today, where he will spent a few days at his former home.

To Preach in Dunellen.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Bryan, of this city, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, will preach at the Dunellen M. E. church tomorrow morning. Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the New Market Baptist church, will preach in the evening. Rev. S. K. Doolittle, pastor of the Dunellen church, will preach at Mt. Tabor. Mr. Doolittle is an officer of the Mt. Tabor Camp Meeting Association.

NURSE A TYPHOID VICTIM.

After Attending Twenty-One Marristown Patients, Falls Ill Herself.

Miss Louise Lines, a professional nurse, is in Memorial Hospital, Morristown, hovering between life and death from an attack of typhoid fever, contracted while caring for patients ill with that disease. An epidemic of typhoid occurred around Morristown a few months ago, and twenty-one patients, taken to the isolation ward of the hospital, were under the care of Miss Lines. Only one of that number succumbed to the disease.

Miss Lines is the daughter of former Alderman John T. Lines, of Morristown.

DOG SAVES MAN FROM RATS.

Score Attack Coachman, Biting Legs and Hands.

John McGowan, coachman for a wealthy family residing in Elizabeth, had a lively fight with a score of big rats Thursday night. Although armed with a pitchfork he was being worsted, when a fox terrier came to his aid.

McGowan sleeps in a room over the stable, and when he entered it rats swarmed around him and bit his legs and hands. A fox terrier, the property of a neighbor, heard the uproar, ran into the stable and killed a dozen of the rats. McGowan had his wounds cauterized by a physician.

Our Statement to the Public to Correct Some Wrong Impressions.

The common use of the term "retiring sale" by many people, simply with a desire to stimulate business, has created in the minds of many the impression that all retiring sale advertising is of a "fake" nature Our employes are frequently asked by people who do not know this store's reputation for straight forward advertising, "Is this a genuine sale?" "Are you really going out of business?" To cover this matter permanently we herewith state:

First—That Hill & Shupp will positively retire from business in Plainfield as soon as their business matters can be adjusted. Mr. Shupp will go to Pennsylvania, his family already having located there. Mr. Hill resides in Wilmington permanently and has not at any time been active in this business.

The special prices advertised each week to close out these large stocks are legitimate and liberal reductions from regular retail prices. A store of this size has to contract for much of its merchandise months ahead, and while we could have cancelled the orders already placed for fall goods, when we decided in June to discontinue business, we have thought best to let it come in and give you the benefit of special prices on much of it. You will hardly find a stock in the entire store but what has on its counters a reasonable showing of early fall goods and with opportunities for profitable buying not often enjoyed. While we are cutting down the heavy parts of these stocks by special sales, special prices, etc., we shall keep you supplied with everyday necessities such as you run in hurriedly to buy, expecting the departments to have them.

THE MEN'S WEAR DEPARTMENT.

At 25c—A new lot of Fall Neckwear Received Yesterday. In this lot you will find many of the reular 50c Silks.
At 15c and 19c—10 dozen New Bow Ties. The regular quarter kind.
At 13c, 2 for 25c—The Fall styles famous Corliss Coon Collars, 4 ply, commonly recognized as a 15c collar.
At 2½c, 5c, 7½c—The King Collar Buttons (fully guaranteed).
At 25c—Complete line of Rubber Collars (linen finish).
At 25c—Tan Silk Half Hose, worth all of 39c.
At 39c—Our regular line of 50c Madras Shirts.

TABLE LINENS.

A belated shipment will reach us ready for first week in October. It covers the popular prices —39c, 50c, 75c and 1.00. They will be priced to save you 5c to 15c per yard.

DOMESTIC COUNTER.

White Spreads, cut-out corners for brass or iron beds, exceptional values at 1.50, 1.98, 2.49.
Early Fall Blankets—Lightweight, 59c to 1.25. We quote very close prices on them.
A few more of those odd Sheets and Cases, slightly soiled, including the popular Fruit of Loom. The price will interest you.

LACE COUNTER.

New arrivals. All over Chiffon and Applique to match. All over Lace and Band to match. Fancy all over and Applique to match. Oriental all over and Bands to match. Full assortment narrow Laces.

CORSETS.

We study the practical side of the Corset question. Our people in charge of the Dept. keep in close touch with the manufacturers and can give you intelligent Corset information—the best

Those who are active in the ranks of fraternal orders are always interested in the work of the National Fraternal Congress, an association composed of fifty-eight of the leading orders represented in this country and Canada.. The Congress held its annaul session late last month in Mackinac Island, Mich., and the official journal of the meeting will soon be mailed to the officers of the orders represented on its rolls. Inasmuch as these journals seldom find their way to the lay members, comparatively few have any conception of the work done annually by the combined orders.

The most interesting report presented at the meeting just held was by the committee on statistics. This document showed that the year 1904 was, in some respects, the most critical in the history of fraternal order insurance in America. It witnessed a large number of orders readjusting their rates, and, consequent upon this, there was more unrest among the members than in any previous year. Notwithstanding this drawback, there were 594,890 certificates issued by the several orders to new members, and the amount of protection represented by these policies was $636,729,416.

The fifty-seven orders in the Congress show a total beneficial membership at the close of 1904 of 3,907,888, with 810,326 social members, or 4,718,214 in all. The net increase for the year was 84,697, which was less than during any year since the organization of the Congress in the year 1891.

Another noticeable fact in connection with the progress of the orders in 1904 is the larger number of suspensions for non-payment of dues than in previous years, the number being 472,633, or 122 per thousand members, as compared with 100 in the year 1903. This high lapse rate is said to be largely due to the unusual lapsation in a few of the larger orders, which, during the year 1904, readjusted their rates of contribution to the benefit funds, the abnormal losses in membership being almost wholly confined to this cause. The committee expressed the belief that as soon as the period of excitement passes in the orders with the new rates the tide will turn and many of the members will return to the ranks of the orders they left because of the enactment of higher rates.

During the year there were 34,212 deaths reported, or an average mortality for the entire membership represented for the year of 8.85 per thousand. The benefits paid during that year amounted to $57,100,360.75. While this indicates a somewhat higher mortality than during the past four years, it is lower than the rate of the orders represented in the Congress ten years ago.

The amount paid for expenses during 1904 was $6,974,058.39, making the per capita expense, based on average membership, $1.80, as compared with $1.87 for 1903, and $2 for 1902. On the basis of death benefits paid the expense was 12 1-5 cents on $1, as against 13 2-5 cents the previous year. When this expense is considered on the basis of insurance in force, it amounted to $1.22 per $1,000, as compared with $1.25 for 1903. The cost of protection for the year to the surviving members was $10 per $1,000. In 1903 it was $9.22.

In the matter of deaths during the year, the committee called attention to the fact that he mortality tables showed that 32,094 deaths were to be expected, but the reports recorded only 31,745. "This," reported the committee, "shows that our death rate was lower than we had reason to expect it would be."

The five leading orders are as follows:

Modern Woodmen of America—Members at he close of 1904, 692,260; death rate per 1,000 members, 5.65; lapse rate per 1,000, 85; insurance written during the year, $80,992,000; insurance in force, $1,136,678,500.

Ancient Order of United Workmen—Members, 323,333; death rate, 14.01; lapse rate, 2.32; insurance written, $25,897,395; insurance in force $556,592,493.

Knights of the Maccabees—Members, 322,376; death rate, 6.82; lapse rate, 202; insurance written, $51,236,750; insurance in force, $409,851,474.

Royal Arcanum—Members, 305,083; death rate, 10.79; lapse rate, 36; insurance written, $54,228,500; insurance in force, $680,848,000.

Woodmen of the World—Members, 237,252; death rate, 8.05; lapse rate, 126; insurance written, $73,341,300; insurance in force, $349,752,700.

Reaching Out.

Who can guess how far the ramifications of the Public Service Corporation extend? Its last combination, with the Metropolitan Railway interests of New York, to build a rapid transit line and tunnel from Newark to New York, with fifteen minute trains is somewhat startling evidence of the way the P. S. C. is reaching out. The Erie Railway Company is also said to be a beneficiary of this combination.—Paterson Press.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905. Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

WOMAN AT HER BEST.

When She Looks So Is a Matter of Individual Taste.

When does a woman look her best? Every man will probably reply according to his individual tastes. M. Nimrod, for example, will declare that when she is riding across country Lady Diana looks her best. The boating man will think Undine most charming as she lies amid the pretty cushions of a punt, dressed en suite. The man about town will award the palm to the woman who is best dressed in the park.

I have heard a man declare, says a writer in the London Globe, that he thought a woman never looked so well as when wearing a perfectly plain gown of some washing material, whereas it is obvious that some of the sex find us most attractive in what they describe as "full fig" or "war paint." And, speaking generally, I suppose a woman does have almost every chance in a becoming evening gown. But one can lay down no hard and fast rules as to when a woman really looks best. Much depends on the woman, much depends on what she is wearing, and much depends on her environment; but I cannot conceive a woman looking her best when engaged in exercise which is either very violent or which dishevels her in any way; nor is she likely to look her best when the dress does not fit her surroundings. This is a fact which should be well borne in mind by women of a certain age bent on rurallizing, and, indeed, by women of all ages, at all times, and in all places.

LINGERIE.

Materials quite fine enough for a debutante are "coming out frocks." They are used of the richest lingerie, Persian lawn, India lawn, India silk, mull, tussore that is ivory white, as fine as mull and durable as long cloth; silk batiste, gossamere, dimity, pongee and the finest Shanghai silks. French nainsook is a bit more ordinary, but fine and sheer, and the sheer American lawns are used extensively. Embroideries are not nearly so popular as laces, and to be used at all must be of the sheerest and most lacy description. French lawn that has been embroidered by the novitiate with a flower or leaf, a lover's knot, is possibly the smartest form of embroidery, and this is most used on convent made garments, that are also decorated with quaint embroidered wreaths or knots of tiny Dresden bouquets. The Irish embroidery is a shade more strong, but wonderfully delicate and lacy—valenciennes, of course, and the lovely Indian lace, Canary Isle's drawn work, which is as fine as lace, and guipure and the very old thread hand point d'esprit, and only occasionally the heavy Irish and cluny and silk lace from Malta.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

Aunt Tabitha dearly loved her pipe, says Harper's Magazine, and could not be persuaded to give it up. She was a pious old soul, too, but argued that her mother and grandmother before her had smoked in the same chimney corner, and if it was right for them it was right for her.

A young minister came to the town and one day, as he was walking about, he stumbled upon Aunt Tabitha's hut at the foot of a hill, away off in the woods. He walked in and found the old woman smoking. He at once thought who she was, as he had heard of her, and deemed it his duty to remonstarte with her about the use of tobacco.

"Aunt Tabitha," he said, "don't you know that the Good Book says that nothing unclean can enter into the Kingdom of Heaven? What will you do when you are refused admittance because of your breath polluted with tobacco? What have you to say to that?" he sternly concluded.

Aunt Tabitha puffed away while she looked the minister calmly over. Then, taking the pipe from her mouth, she answered:

"What I say to that, young man, is that I spects to leave my breath behind when I goes to heaven."

AMUSEMENTS.

So long as the theatrical trend leads in the direction of vigorous dramatic treatment, just so long will the sensational melodrama have the right of way. Realizing the truth and force of this argument, Manager A. H. Woods has concluded to supplement his numerous big successes with a sensational offering of such magnitude that should leave nothing lacking toward the wildest dreams of play imagination. This absolutely astounding conception he has given the title of "Tracked Around the World," and judging from the reports concerning the mighty details of its scenic and costume investiture it must indeed be startling in its entirety. The production is further enhanced by the introduction of several features which are innovations of a most emphatic kind. "Tracked Around the World" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

"Tracked Around The World."

Among the coming attractions that are listed to appear at the New Plainfield theatre none holds out more promise of an evening's entertainment than does "David Harum" with Wm. H. Turner in the title role. Mr. Turner has successfully pleased in the part of "David Harum" for the past four seasons and his appearance here is something to anticipate. Probably the first thing that one thinks of when "David Harum" is called to mind is the horse trade between the Deacon Perkins and David. This bit of description was one of the best things in Westcott's book, and in the play, taken from the book, a great deal is necessarily made of this piece of business. The trade is shown in the early part of the first act and it is one of the most amusing scenes ever set in a comedy of modern life. The humor of it all is simply irresistible and it is all so well done that one forgets while viewing it that it is all a mimic scene. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night.

Mirth and melody will reign supreme at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night, when Parker and Neff will present "A Windy City," said to be the cleverest musical farce ocmedy ever produced. The piece is replete with funny situations and witty sayings; specialties will be introduced, not the least of which is "Little Willie," who has made such a terrific hit in the vaudeville houses of the country; a number of songs will be sung which are tuneful and catchy and have proven sure fire hits.

John Drew and "De Lancey" are filling the Empire theatre, New York. Augustus Thomas' wit and facility of play construction are at their best in this delightful comedy and it may be truthfully stated that John Drew was never so satisfactorily placed as he is in the role of the polished and charming hero. There is a good hearty laugh in every line of the play and plenty of amusing situations. The love story, too, is novel and extremely interesting and it is worked out in a way that does not permit the audience's grip on the performance to relax for a moment. Mr. Drew has distinctly triumphed as Jim De Lancey in every phase of the character. Margaret Dale, as De Lancey's sweetheart, is splendid and all the parts are cleverly filled. "De Lancey" has tickled New Yorkers as they are seldom tickled by a society comedy, and its popularity will soon wane.

Following the Minstrels, the attraction at the Grand Opera House will be that most successful musical comedy, "The Maid and the Mummy," next week. It is conceded by all that "The Maid and the Mummy" is the cleverest bit of writing the popular and talented actor-author, Richard Carle, has as yet given the stage, and the merriest entertainment his name has yet been connected with. It is a musical melange, the music being composed by Robert Hood Bowers, and it comes here with the record of three-month runs on Broadway, in Philadelphia and in Chicago. Mr. Carle's book is full of bright lines and laughable situations, and the music is well calculated to please all classes, for it is of the merry, tinkling order that is so popular. Beauty, laughter and song is a strong magnet and "The Maid and the Mummy" has all three in a degree that is most marked, the beauty being represented by a host of the prettiest girls it has been possible to get together, and the delineations of the characters in the cast are in most capable hands.

Raymond Hitchcock in "Easy Dawson" is now in his sixth successful week at Wallack's theatre, New York. The principal musical number, "And the World Goes on Just the Same," which is alloted to the comedian has proved immensely popular. The song travesties the uselessness of human endeavor and points that the world will go on just the same no matter to what flight one aims or reaches. Mr. Hitchcock renders the number in a semic recitative way recalling his excellent song hit, "Ain't It Funny What a Difference Just a Few Hours Make," in "The Yankee Consul," and wins encores nightly. In the supporting company are Julia Herne, Flora Zabelle, Grace Griswold, Jeffreys Lewis, Lovell Taylor, Scott Cooper, Earle Browne and John Bunny.

The most powerful dramatic performance seen in New York in many years is now the attraction at the New Amsterdam theatre—Liebler & Company's production of Hall Caine's "The Prodigal Son." Mr. Caine, the famous novelist and author, is now in this country to witness this play. The London production was put on at the Drury Lane theatre simultaneously with the presentation here. Having seen the London premiere, Mr. Caine came to America to see the results which have been achieved by American management in comparison with those of their British cousins. This comparison has proved very favorable indeed to Liebler & Co. and Mr. Caine has expressed a great deal of pleasure at the thoroughly artistic manner in which his story is staged and played here. No adequate description of the great story of this play can be written. It is a heart-throb from start to finish. Each part is acted by a player especially selected for it. It can be said in truth that this company represents one of the best selected organizations ever seen in New York. The principals are Edward Morgan, Aubrey Boucicault, J. E. Dodson, W. H. Thompson, Charlotte Walker, Drina De Wolf, Marie Wainwright, Ida Waterman, Ben Webster, George C. Boniface, Sr., Henry Bergman and Basil West.

David Belasco's new play which he has written for Blanche Bates is called "The Girl of the Golden West." It will be played for the first time on any stage at the new Belasco theatre, Pittsburg, October 2, and after angagements in Washington, Baltimore, will open a season's run at the Belasco theatre, New York, following Mrs. Leslie Carter. Mr. Belasco has gathered a powerful cast to support Miss Bates, including Robert Hilliard, Frank Keenan, John W. Cope, J. H. Benrimo, T. J. McGrane, Herbert Corthall, Harriett Sterling, and others. Mrs. Carter is now starring in "Adrea" at the Belasco. At the Bijou, David Warfield is in his second year in "The Music Master."

Mrs. John McWilliams, of Raritan, has been seending several days with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Flynn, of West Fourth street.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Has the Auto Any Rights?

Justice Fort has raised a fine point of law when he questions the right of the automobiles to use the highways at all. The justice says that while a special act was passed giving bicycles that privilege, he finds none giving permission for automobiles. It is doubtful, however, if the people want the automobiles put off the roads. All they want is for the autos not to try to put everybody else off.—Perth Amboy News.

'Twould Be a Good Law.

A law will probably be enacted by the next Congress to compel political campaign committees to make sworn statements of contributions received. That would put a salutary check on a growing evil. If the chairmen of the national political organizations are required to make statements of the sources from whence they derive their funds, and the names of the donors, there will be no more furtive $48,000 checks handed out to them from the treasuries of life insurance corporations. —Newark Advertiser.

The Smoker's Kick.

The trolley companies are calling in their open cars and smokers watch them go with regret. One smoker suggests that the women should mourn the disappearance of the cars the most because the women are the ones who usually monopolize the seats—not to smoke, of course—but for the greater enjoyment of posing as martyrs and saying things with their eyes. For the rest of the year it looks as though on the majority of cars the harrassed smoker must occupy the rear platform and practice magic in concealing cigars from the vigilant conductor.—Paterson Guardian.

ENGLISH DANCE POORLY.

Talking of dancing, says an English weekly, one is impressed by the grace and restraint which is practised abroad in contrast to the violent and vulgar antics into which the "poetry of motion" has degenerated in England. Ballroom bouncings, consisting mainly of kitchen lancers, cakewalks, the barn dance, and other high-kicking varieties of transatlantic gymnastics, have dragged dancing down from its once artistic eminence of pavane, minuet, coranto, and stately civilized Anglo-Saxon; so much so that the Imperial Society of Dance Teachers, recognizing the deplorable condition of the modern ballroom, met together the other day at the Hotel Cecil, and, after divers grave discourses, decided that kitchen lancers, cakewalk, barn dance and other such abominations be struck off the list of teachable dances and banished down the back stairs—with ignominy; also that young England be trained not alone to dance, but to walk and bow as its grandfathers did—"with the stately grace of old." Modern middle class Mafickers who bounce about at suburban subscription dances and "reverse" with outstretched arm on elbow, to the personal injuries of their fellow subjects, cannot easily, one thinks, come under the refining influences of the minuet (again to be re-established.

A FLOWER OF THE DAY.

(Cudweed.)

It has lots of names.
Some call it sweet balsam.
Some call it clammy everlasting.
Many know it as the immortelle.
Silver leaf is one of its pretty names.

The woolly under side of its leaves has given it cottonweed for a name.

Its generic name, gnaphalium, is from the Greek and signifies a lock of wool.

Its downy, lanceolate leaves are of an exquisitely pale serge green color.

Numerous, clustered, double little white flowers crown the stems.

Along with other everlastings it forms the staple diet of certain caterpillars in the earlier stages.

In open, rocky places, moist or dry, it dwells and blossoms from July through September.

It grows as far North as Nova Scotia and Southwest to Arizona.

Though it is a "fadeless flower," nobody loves it hard enough to encourage Burbank in one of his quests.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On Oct. 1, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round Trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

MRS. CATHERINE SEBRING DIES IN 85TH YEAR

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT PASSES AWAY AT SON'S HOME.

Mrs. Catherine Sebring, widow of William H. Sebring, died last night at the home of her son, Charles Sebring, on Prospect place, where she had been living for some time. She was eighty-five years old, and had been an invalid for several years.

Mrs. Sebring was born at Springfield, this county, and when a child moved with her parents to Somerville. At this place she married William H. Sebring, being his second wife. After their marriage the couple moved to the old homestead at Sebring's Mills, which has been in the family for over seventy years.

Mr. Sebring died several years ago, but Mrs. Sebring remained at the homestead until two years ago, when she came to Plainfield. She was a member of the First Baptist church for many years, and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the pastor, will be in charge of the funeral services to be held from the "Homestead," at Greenbrook, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The interment will be in the family plot at Bound Brook.

Mrs. Sebring is survived by three sons, William H., Charles and Edward H. Sebring, all residents of this city.

FREDERICK MERKER MAKES A COMPLETE CONFESSION

Singer Company Has Been Systematically Looted by a Gang—His Thefts Comparativelv Small.

Fred Merker, who is now in the county jail, accused of robbing machine parts from the stock room of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, where he was employed for many years as a confidential clerk, yesterday morning made a confession in jail, supplementing the one he made a few days ago. He made his statement under advice from his counsel, Lawyer Nugent and former Prosecutor Crane, of Newark. There were present when the additional confession was made, Assistant Prosecutor John K. English, Lawyer Edward Nugent, City Attorney James C. Connolly, who is acting for the Singer company in the case, and the stenographer for John K. English.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the presence of these same persons, Merker formally signed the statement he made in the morning, making it a legal document.

In the fuller confession made yesterday morning, Merker gave the names of more people who were implicated in the gigantic swindle of the Singer company. He gave evidence of desiring to help the company as much as he could in its efforts to ferret out the entire list of criminals who have been waxing rich on their illegitimate gains from the big factory. From the statement given out yesterday morning, it becomes more and more apparent that Merker's single peculations are very small in comparison with the huge sums gotten by some of the gang yet uncaught.

Merker himself took from the company, it is said, goods worth not more than $5,000. The unknown gang availed itself of sums many times larger than that. It is pretty certain now that there were other men in the factory besides Merker, of whose illicit proceedings Merker knew nothing, and who acted independently from him, contributing to the great gain of New York and Newark fences. It is said to be inconceivable that one man could have taken out of the factory all the stuff from which the fences made their fortunes. Merker is doing all he can now to aid the Singer people in rounding up these thieves.

It was stated yesterday that bail would be forthcoming shortly for Merker, and there is no reason to believe that under the circumstances of his confession, it will be refused. As for the rich fences, bail in their cases will be accepted only charily, for it would be to their profit to furnish the amount of bail and escape to Europe.

LOST CERTIFICATE.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Walker Decided to Marry Again.

Because they had lost their marriage certificate and family documents in a flood in Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Walker, of Orange, were married over again Tuesday evening at the home of Justice of the Peace James M. Post, of Nutley. Mr. Walker and Miss Fedora Coolie were first married in Newark in the early part of the last decade, but the marriage certificate and other family records were lost in a flood twelve years ago in Pennsylvania. The Newark pastor and witnesses to the first ceremony are all dead, and the record of the marriage is not to be found.

Owing to property interests on the bridegroom's side, the second marriage was made necessary, the bridegroom's father having died recently at Wilmington, Del. After the ceremony light refreshments were served, after which the couple left for their home in Orange.

SUED FOR HORSE'S KICK.

Father of Injured Elizabeth Boy Wanted $300—Jury Didn't Agree.

Elizabeth, Sept. 30.—A suit to recover $300 damages as the result of a horse's kick occupied the attention of Elizabeth's District Court Thursday. The case was tried by Judge Atwater and a jury of eleven men, and at 7 o'clock Thursday night ended in a disagreement of the jury. The plaintiff was Charles Berg, ten years old, who was represented by his father, Jacob Berg.

The defendant was Ernest Nettle, an Elizabeth newsdealer. The latter rents a barn from Mr. Berg, and in July, while Nettle's horse was being harnessed to his delivery wagon, a lad who was doing the job, it is said, tickled the animal to tease him. The horse let fly with his hind hoofs, one of which struck young Berg, who was sitting on the wagon. The blow hit the lad in the face, breaking his nose and badly disfiguring him for life.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Chief Justice Gummere, after a conference of the Court of Errors and Appeals Thursday, said, in reply to the question of a reporter, that he was not ready to make an announcement of his decision upon the application for a recount of the votes for the defeated Colby candidates for membership in the Republican County Committee of Essex. At the time the case came before the Chief Justice he declared his intention to confer with the other members of the Supreme Court relative to the questions that have arisen under the new primary law, and it is probable that this will be done after the regular conference work of the Court of Errors and Appeals has been disposed of.

In the action of W. Barlow against the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum to restrain the order from increasing its rates, Justice Street, at Toronto, Ont., yesterday declared the defendants were within their rights in making the changes, and, therefore, binding on the plaintiff.

VERDICT AGAINST STANBERY

him down with his machine one day while he was guarding a line of hose at a borough fire. Stanbery had no right to go over the hose, he said, and when he consulted a lawyer to bring suit for damages for personal injury, he was advised not to do so. This lawyer, Keller said, was Counsellor Swackhamer, who he afterward learned had been retained by Stanbery.

Miss Ada Westphal, daughter of Mrs. Westphal, and Walter Vail, who were in the auto when the crash occurred; Walter Craig, Chauncey Martin and David Blackford, all testified for the defense as to the position of the auto and Harrison's rig.

The opposing lawyers consumed about twenty minutes each in summing up and Justice Minden spent fifteen minutes in charging the jury. It returned about 8 o'clock and delivered the verdict.

An interesting fact in connection with the three trials is that of the three juries—twenty-nine men have stood in favor of the plaintiff. In the first trial the members stood 7 to 5 for Harrison, and in the second, 10 to 2 for Harrison.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

Manager Van Arsdale, of the North Plainfield High School, has scheduled the following games: North Plainfield High School versus ex-Plainfield High School, Sept. 30; Plainfield High School, Oct. 4; Plainfield High School, Oct. 18; Westfield High School, Oct. 21. He also expects to schedule games with Rahway High School, Somerville High School and Leal's.

The tennis tournament for the championship of the Plainfield High School was continued on the Albert street courts yesterday, when, in the second round, Fred Martin beat M. Reed, 6—3, 7—5; Lindley Best beat Hudson Burr, 6—1, 6—1; Paul Collier beat W. Briggs, 6—5, 6—4; S. Freeman beat Lindley Best, 3—6, 6—0, 6—4; G. Fountain beat De Brigard, 6—0, 6—0, and Ira W. Travell beat S. Howe, 6—3, 6—2. The tournament will be continued today.

ROBBED FATHER'S STORE.

Business Man's Son Sent to Jail on Indeterminate Sentence.

Trenton, Sept. 30.—Lester King, son of a business man in Trenton, was sent to the Rahway Reformatory yesterday for an indeterminate sentence, which will be of fourteen years' duration unless he shows that he is repentant and intends to lead a new life.

King was convicted of robbing his father's business place and he had previously been implicated in like offences. His father has heretofore been able to have him spared from imprisonment. Following his latest robbery King fled from the city. Two of his alleged accomplices, Owen McNiff and Sylvester Vansykel, were yesterday placed on the probation list.

CRUSHED BETWEEN CARS.

Dies from Injuries Received in Central Yards at Jersey City.

Jersey City, Sept. 30.—While Cory M. Cotay, of 328½ Cherry street, Elizabeth, the night yardmaster, was demonstrating to a new employe how to work the automatic coupler on two freight cars in the Central Railroad yards here yesterday an engine backed against the cars as the yardmaster was standing between them. Before Cotay could step aside the cars came together with a crash.

He was caught between the bumpers and so badly injured that he died two hours later in St. Francis Hospital. He leaves a widow and one infant child. He was twenty-nine years old.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Union Bible class, taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns, will meet at the Y. M. C. A. hall on Tuesday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. All are invited.

"The Christian and His Bible," will be the topic for the Epworth League service in Vincent chapel, tomorrow night, and Miss Gertrude Fenno will be the leader.

Rally day services will be held tomorrow afternoon, October 1, at the First Baptist church. Those who are in charge are planning to make this the best rally day ever held at the church.

William D. Murray will speak on Bible study at the Y. M. C. A. meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The choir of the Crescent Avenue church will furnish special music and there will also be instrumental music.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church a rally social will be held in Vincent chapel on Thursday night of next week. Elaborate plans have been made to have the first social a great success and a cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of the church.

Commencing tomorrow the hours of service at the First Presbyterian church will be changed for the fall and winter. The Sunday-school will meet at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, instead of the morning, and there will be a rally day service, including recitations by members of the school and special music by the church choir.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue church held the first meeting of the season in the church parlors last evening and outlined the work for the coming months. President Howard Williams occupied the chair and an address was given by Dr. Zelie on the subject: "The Battle of Today a Young People's Battle." During the winter the society is to have a series of helpful talks and a social and entertainment once a month. The following committees were announced: Programme, Mr. Travell, Miss Cumming, Miss Margaret Goddard; devotional, Mr. Holt, Mr. Brower, Miss Griffen; missionary, Miss Haloway, Miss Edith Tracy, Miss Theodora Miller, Miss Laura Lovell, Whitney Baker, William Douglass, H. M. Slauson; visiting and district, Mrs. Voorhees, Mrs. White, Miss Nora Rockwell, Miss Burke, Miss Dewey, Miss Kampman; finance, Mr. Heely, Mr. Sampson, Mr. Van Deventer; industrial, Mrs. Cregar, Miss Grace Burke, Miss Benton, Miss Voorhees; membership and attendance, Dr. Hedges, Miss Slocum, Oscar W. Smith, Miss Van Deventer, Miss Walbridge, Miss Haven, T. O. Gavett; welcome, J. W. Gavett, Jr., Leslie Slocum, Monroe Long, Dudley Strong, Edwin Daniel, Edward Hayman, Edwin Browne; social, Paul Taylor Brown, W. L. Glenney, Miss Bowen, Miss Eva G. Browne, Miss Cone, Miss Harriet Goddard, Miss Frances Van Deventer; music, Miss Love, Miss Hyde, Miss Breck. The officers of the society are: President, Howard H. Williams; vice president, I. W. Travell; treasurer, Walter Sampson; secretary, Miss Miller.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Baltus Mellick, of North Branch, has been visiting friends in town for a few days.

Mrs. John Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Corning, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Frank H. Smith, of West Fourth street, has gone to Westerly, R. I., to visit her parents.

Miss Clara Ward, of New York, is spending a few weeks in town after a vacation spent in Maine.

Mrs. Phoebe Hall, of Somerville, is visiting her niece, Mrs. George M. Hoagland, of Duer street.

Paul Beardslee, of Millstone, has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. George White, of North Plainfield.

Mrs. Lorenzo Townley, who recently recovered from a severe illness, has gone to Bedminster to recuperate.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Van Arsdale, of Grove street, who have been at Lima, O., will return home next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moran, of Grove street, have returned from East Hampton, L. I., where they spent the summer.

Theressa Meade and Margaret McGinley, of High Bridge, are guests of Miss May Ella Hand, of Richmond street, for a few days.

Heat Records Broken.

Heat records for September 30 were broken today. The official thermometer registered 85 degrees at noon, the highest figure for this date on record. Unofficial, but usually veracious thermometers at work in the sun, where the man in the street lived, moved and hustled on his job, registered as high as 106. The general feel of the day was as of midsummer and perspiring folk turned to soda fountains and other stations of relief as in mid-July. The unfortunates who swathed themselves in woolen and flannel when the nipping winds of two weeks ago began to whistle down their backs, are having a particular time of their own.

A Memorial Service.

The local corps of the Salvation Army will conduct a memorial service in its hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Prominent amongst those remembered will be the late Mrs. General Booth, Consul Booth Tucker, Colonel Richard Evans, once a resident of Plainfield; Capt. McIver, who was buried at Hillside, and Adjutant Parsons, once in command of the local corps.

Death of Mrs. C. H. Farley.

Mrs. Margaret E. Farley, wife of Charles H. Farley, died at her home on Jackson avenue this morning. She was in her forty-fourth year and was well known in the city and borough. The funeral will be held from St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 9:30, where a high mass of requiem will be said.

Death of Young Son.

Charles K. Bicknell, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bicknell, of Washington Valley, died this morning. The funeral will be held from the Wilson Memorial chapel, Watchung, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be at Hillside.

PLAINFIELD WOMAN OBEYS.

Closes Up Dive Maintained in Tenderloin of New York.

All the poolroom proprietors in the Tenderloin in New York received a peremptory order to close their places Thursday or suffer the fate which befell the six women of uncertain age and station in life who were arrested Wednesday night for failing to move out of the precinct, as directed by its new police commanders, Inspector Schmittberger and Captain Dooley. Four of the women were held by Magistrate Pool to give Captain Dooley a chance to get additional evidence. Summonses will be served on residents in the vicinity of the closed houses, whose testimony is expected to establish the case of the police.

Inspector Schmittberger yesterday said that the house owned by a well-known Plainfield woman, who regularly attends church and collects Tenderloin rents, was among those who obeyed the order to close. Had there been any defiance it was the purpose of the police to expose her. The new plan is to hold the owners of houses responsible if their property is being illegally used.

The family of Charles Shupp, of the dry goods firm of Hill & Shupp, has moved to Kingston, Pa., their future home, and the household goods were shipped to that place today. Mr. Shupp will remain here to close out the business. He expects to leave Plainfield about January 1.

W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, accompanied by his family, made a trip in a special car to Reading, Pa., today, where they will visit over Sunday.
